CANNON IS RE-ELECTED

Minority Gives Champ Clark Total of 166 Votes.

Reactionary in Lower Branch of Congress Claims Victory.

Progressives Go Into Battle With Apparently Solid Union.

Washington, March 15.—Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois was today re-elected speaker of the house of representatives of the sixty-first congress, receiving 204 votes; Champ Clark of Missouri, 166; Cooper, Wisconsin, 8; Esch, Wisconsin, 1; Norris, Nebraska, 1, and Hepburn, Iowa, 1.

Washington, March 15.—With an apparently solid union of forces, the house insurgent Republicans today began their supreme struggle to reform the rules so as to minimize the power of the speaker. To all appearances, practically the entire Democrat minority, under the leadership of Champ Clark of Missouri, is with them. The Cannon forces, marshalled by ex-Congressman Watson of Indiana, former whip, assert their fight is already won

MIDNIGHT LID IN THREE LARGE CITIES AGAIN SAT UPON HARD BY THE HOUSE

Leavitt Relief Bill Causes Sharp Talk in the Senate.

Stuart Puts In Another Mortgage Registry Tax Measure.

J. F. Jacobson Gives the House Old Time Talk on Economy.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house again refused this morning to stand for the midnight lid, even in the three large cities. Representative Wells of Breckenridge moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby the bill was defeated Thursday, after it had been amended to include cities of the second and third classes as well as cities of the first class. Mr. Wells presented a bunch of petitions for the bill from the three cities, including one from Duluth signed by Mayor Haven, City Comptroller McCormick, Sheriff W. J. Bates, Postmaster Guy A. Eaton and about fifty business men. Mr. Wells said the idea was to amend the bill back to its original form, so that it applied only to the three large cities.

W. H. Putnam of Red Wing made a strong talk against the motion.

Representative McGrath said it would be a shame and a disgrace to the party if the Republican legislature did this thing.

ARE RENT OVER MAYOR

Los Angeles Citizens Agitated Over "Recall" Issue.

First Election of Kind Held in United States.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—The city council is in session today for the purpose of selecting a successor to Former Mayor Harper, who resigned last week, facing an election on his recall, the first election of the kind ever held in any American city for the recall for a mayor. Since his resignation, the city has been without a mayor.

Feeling is bitter. When the council convened this morning, the report was out that there would be a deadlock on whether the man named today should serve for the remainder of his term, or only until the recall election can be held and a successor chosen.

A "dark horse" chosen this morning by a caucus of Republican members of the council may be the next mayor of Los Angeles. At the same time, the friends of George A. Smith, a former councilman, who was originally preferred by a majority of the council, say his election is probable.

Late last night the situation was further confused by the positive statement of one council man, that the members who were favorable to a com-

BRYAN FOR THE SENATE

Will Be Receptive If Not an Active Candidate.

Is Interviewed in Chicago As to Burkett's Successor.

Chicago, March 15.—William J. Bryan, in an interview here today, impressed his auditors with the idea that he will be a receptive, if not an active, candidate for the United States from Nebraska in 1911 to succeed Elmer J. Burkett, Republican.

"Nebraska has adopted the organization plan of popular elections," said Mr. Bryan. "I don't know whether I will be a candidate. A senatorship I aspired to even when a boy. If there seems to be a good chance to elect to the senate from Nebraska some other Democrat, it will please me better than to be a candidate myself. I have said repeatedly that I hope I may never again be a candidate for office. I would not say that I would not under any circumstances accept the nomination because no one is wise enough to look into the future and decide on conditions in advance.

"I think the Democrat party is in better condition than at any time since 1892, and that it has an excellent chance to control congress in 1910."

ROOSEVELT CURT AS TO ITINERARY

Boer War Veteran Wrote Him Advising Changing Plans.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—Capt. A. J. Smiley, who is said to have served with the Irish brigade in the Boer war, says the hunting grounds where ex-President Roosevelt plans to spend his vacation, are nothing but a huge game preserve, and that the hunter will have a tame time.

The captain claims to have hunted over this ground many times and asserts that the lions have been shot at so often that they have become gun shy. The duke of Manchester, according to Smiley, has shot over the country which Roosevelt will traverse, without bagging any game. Smiley claims to have written to Roosevelt suggesting that he go to a portion of Africa where elephants can be met in drives instead of pairs, as said to be the case in the Mombassa district.

Roosevelt's reply to this letter was a curt intimation that the itinerary had been made out and he could not change it.

EIGHT THOUSAND MEN MARCH, SINGING HYMN.

Denver, Colo., March 15.—Singing "Onward, Christian Soliders," 8,000 men marched through the streets to attend a meeting held by Gypsy Smith, the evangelist. The meeting, which was attended by 14,000 men, unanimously adopted resolutions against the Carey-Warlaw bill before the senate, which, if passed, will destroy local option in Colorado.

Cupid Breaks Up Club.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sans Souci club, a bachelors' organization, formed ten years ago, was obliged to disband because of lack of members.

KILL AND BURN IN WILD MARCH

Persian Forces Shoot Russian Subjects on the Frontier.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—A dispatch to the Novoe Vremya from Julfa, on the frontier between Persia and Russia, says 1,000 Persian government horsemen and 500 infantrymen are marching on Julfa, from the Persian bank of the Araxes river, devastating the villages and shooting down the people.

Already ten villages, four inhabited by Russian subjects, have been pillaged and burned. Many women, carrying their children on their backs, attempted to swim the Araxes to the Russian side, but were shot.

Three hundred homeless families have taken refuge on an island in the river opposite Julfa.

FATHER AND SON IN KNIFE FIGHT

Quarrel Over Property—Younger Man May Not Live.

Appleton, Wis., March 15.—James Grignon, 40 years old, lies in a critical condition in St. Elizabeth's hospital here, while his father, Alex Grignon, lies in his home, also in a serious condition, as the result of a stabbing affray in the Grignon home.

The father and son became involved in an altercation over the disposition of property, the quarrel ending in a fight with knives.

Young Grignon may not survive.

HOTEL CLERK IS SLAIN BY THIEF

Skull Is Fractured and Throat Cut—Till Is Robbed.

New York, March 15.—Lying in a small room adjoining the hotel office, the body of Isadore de Valento, night clerk of the Eastern hotel, whose home was in Montvale, N. J., was found early today with his skull fractured by a blow from an iron pipe. His throat was cut. The murderers had afterward rifled his pockets, taken $78 from the hotel till and made an unsuccessful attempt to get into the safe, in which there was $3,000.

CHAMP CLARK IN CALL FOR UNION

Tells House Democrats They Must All Act Together.

Washington, March 15.—Addressing the house Democratic caucus this afternoon, Champ Clark, minority leader, who has just been nominated for speaker of the house said:

"Last December the Democratic caucus elected me minority leader by unanimous vote. A moment ago you unanimously nominated me for speaker. For these flattering evidences of your confidence and esteem, I am grateful.

"In the last days of the Sixtieth congress we won some notable victories—astonishing victories when we remember that there was a Republican majority of fifty-seven in the house.

"We achieved those triumphs by standing together and fighting together. We can in the present congress win more victories, more easily, because there is now a majority of only forty-seven against us.

"We must stick together in order to do our duty. The country expects us to stick together and fight together.

"We must remember that to a very large extent we have in our keeping the immediate future of the Democratic party. Recent events have demonstrated that the Republicans are disorganized, disgruntled and at loggerheads generally. Let us close up our ranks, present a solid front and demonstrate to the world that we are worthy of the high vocation in which we are engaged.

LUCKY BALDWIN'S WIDOW TO CONTEST HIS WILL.

San Francisco, Cal., March 15.—That the widow of Lucky Baldwin will contest his will is confirmed by Garrett McEnery, her attorney. A member of the law firm has gone to Los Angeles to institute proceedings on behalf of the widow.

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE MAY ELECT CANNON AS UNITED STATES SENATOR

SHOT HIM FROM REAR

Attorney General Dwells on Course of Cooper's Bullet.

Closes Argument By Detailing the Killing of Carmack.

Nashville, Tenn., March 15.—Attorney General McCarn resumed his closing argument today in the Cooper-Sharp trial for the murder of Former United States Senator Carmack. He said:

"At the time of adjournment Saturday I had gone over the immediate facts of the tragedy. I had shown you by physical facts that Senator Carmack was shot in the back. Don't forget that. He was shot in the back—he was shot from behind. They ask us for our theory. Well, gentlemen, my theory is that the bullet which came out of Carmack's mouth entered the back. And it is no more chivalrous to shoot a dead man in the back than to shoot a live one. That bullet is the only one that ranged up, two bullets ranging downward. Now, you shoot a man as he is falling and the shots do not range upwards. No, gentlemen, these men are not only assassins of Carmack, but they are cowardly assassins of fact."

"Do not take the doctor's words. Take the facts. Doctors can tell you the range of pills, but they are not experts on the range of bullets. They tell you Carmack could not do anything after he was shot in the back. Do you know, I think, that's why they shot him from behind."

"Counsel tells you that you are not trying ordinary criminals, that these are men of distinguished ancestry. Well, when men in pairs hunt another man, approach him from behind and kill him, then it's time for some of the descendants, the tail of the ancestors, to be cut off."

GRAND JURY AS GRAFT DRAGNET

Pittsburg Judge's Order Opens Way for More Developments.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 15.—Judge Davis today authorized the use of the March grand jury, which was called in extra session for dragnet purposes in connection with the municipal corruption scandal. This opens the way for important graft developments.

MISSISSIPPIANS ROUTED FROM HOMES BY FLOOD.

Columbus, Miss., March 15.—The Tombigbee river has reached a higher stage than at any time since 1892, when a destructive flood resulted. As a result the lowlands about Columbus are flooded and scores of residents are abandoning their homes. A further rise is anticipated.

Passed Century Mark.

Alpena, Mich., March 15.—John Charbonneau, a hunter and trapper, who was born at St. Ignace, Mich., is dead at his home, twelve miles from here, aged 104 years. The duke and duchess of Manchester paid the aged trapper a call at his home in the woods several years ago when they were on a trip through Michigan.

The House Insurgents Are Charged With Abetting Springfield Deadlock.

End to Long Fight Over Toga is Expected Soon.

Hopkins' Men Will Make Final Effort to Win.

Washington, March 15.—Gossip at the capitol for the last few days is to the effect that Speaker Cannon can secure the United States senatorship from Illinois if he desires it. According to the rumor the deadlock over the selection of a senator from Illinois is due indirectly to the fight on the part of the insurgents in the house and those opposed to Mr. Cannon for the speakership.

It has been said Cannon would not accept the speakership if the present rules are changed but the understanding is that, in that event he would take a seat on the floor of the house.

Cannon, who is 73, has had a notable career in the house, where he has served almost continually since the Forty-third congress, beginning in 1873. He has been speaker for the last three congresses.

Friends of Mr. Cannon, approached regarding the rumor that the speaker might be named by the Illinois legislature for the senatorship, declared that they believe it would not be characteristic of Mr. Cannon to accept

NOT GUILTY, SAYS WORLD

Publishers Enter Plea in the Panama Libel Case.

Answer Is Made Through Counsel in Federal Court.

New York, March 15.—The Press Publishing company, publishers of the New York World, through its counsel, Delancy Nicoll, pleaded not guilty before Judge Holt in federal court today to the charge of criminal libel in West Point and the New York postoffice in the Panama canal case.

The plea of not guilty is in answer to the charges preferred in the now famous indictment, charging that ex-President Roosevelt, William Nelson Cromwell, J. P. Morgan, Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of Mr. Roosevelt, and others were criminally libelled in connection with the stories about financial transactions that brought about the purchase of the Panama canal property. The indictments also charged the publishers of the Indianapolis News with criminal libel.

Counsel for Caleb van Hamm, an editor of the World, also entered a plea of not guilty to a similar charge, in behalf of Mr. van Hamm. Counsel was granted one week to prepare a special plea as to the jurisdiction of the court.

GIRL ASKS DAMAGES

Marie Clausen Makes Sensational Charge Against Restaurent Man.

Wants $15,000 for Assault She Alleges He Committed.

Charging that Harry W. Johnson, by whom she was employed in a restaurant at Twenty-sixth avenue west and Superior street, entered her room on the night of Wednesday, Dec. 9, and assaulted her, Marie Clausen, 17 years old, is suing him in district court for $15,000 damages. The case was taken up before Judge Ensign in district court this morning.

Mr. Johnson was on the stand for a few minutes this morning, his testimony relating to the amount of property he owns. He is the owner of several houses and lots in the West and and said that he estimated them to be worth between $8,000 and $10,000, free of all encumbrances. He refused to answer any questions in regard to the alleged assault on the ground that his answers might tend to incriminate him. He is 26 years old and married.

The girl's story was sensational in the extreme. She worked for Mr. Johnson for three weeks previous to the alleged assault and left three or four weeks afterwards. Charles Berg was appointed guardian ad litem by the court and the suit is being brought by the girl through him.

The girl was born in Norway and came to this country with her mother and sister when 12 years old, joining Thomas Clausen her father, here in Duluth. She returned to Norway alone two years later, remaining there two years and then coming to this country again last April.

Thomas Clausen, the girl's father, went to Norway some time ago and last fall, Mrs. Clausen obtained a divorce. She then went to Norway also and Marie and her brother, who is 20 years old, were left in the United States. The girl said she didn't want to go to Norway because she had to work anyway and she could do better in this country.

As she told her story this morning, she had to force back the tears several times, but she held up well under the terrible strain on the stand. Cross-examination by Mr. Fryberger failed to shake her. Since leaving Mr. Johnson's restaurant, she says she has been living with Charles Berg.

The defense has entered a general denial of the charges made by the girl, but the exact grounds of defense have not yet been brought out.

CUPID HANDS ANOTHER LEMON TO OUR OLD FRIEND ANN

Ann has had another adventure. She fell for the love spiel again. Once before Anna experienced the thrill of love's young dream, and in that experience Ann was stung. Her man decamped at the last moment, just as Ann had resigned from the kitchen, not even saying good-bye. In this case, even as in the first, the man vanished taking with him some of the cash that Ann had earned.

Do you remember Ann? She is employed as a domestic. She works in a home on West First street. Though she is not so young, yet she has the tender passion. Soft words, softly spoken, which to people with more hardened sympathies might be characterized as mere nothings, mean everything to Ann. Twice, in the short space of two months she has been beguiled by deceitful man. This latest experience is one calculated to shake her faith in the constancy, not to say, the integrity of man.

The second steady was similar to the first. He handed out something of the same line of love adjectives as the first, only he had an innocent line of open-eyed speech, that for true goodness of soul, sincerity of intention, and depth of affection, would have made one of Bertha M. Clay's heroes look cheap and unworthy.

Ann had been in the habit lately of reading Laura Jean Libby. Laura Jean has the habit, as you have observed, if you have perused her works conscientiously, of classifying her men into types. Ann instantly recognized her steady as one of the types set forth in the fiction of Miss Libby. She read the novel over again, poured over the manly qualities of the type, of which her man was a living prototype, and then fell for his work.

Oh, yes, he proposed, they generally do. They walked out evenings, and from report he took Ann to several picture shows. They didn't cost much, and this designing near-villain was scheming all the time to get his money back.

The time ran along, until the ceremony was about due. Ann had her trousseau prepared. Don't you remember? She had it made for her first man, and he left for the West unexpectedly, leaving Ann with the wedding paraphernalia upon her hands.

There was nothing much to do, but to read from the works of dear Miss Libby, and to listen with bated breath to the words of George.

Even if George did eat unions and drink big schooners, he was a hero, just the same. Ann went carefully over the works of Laura Jean to find some precedent for a hero who ate onions and drank high boys; she couldn't 'tis true, but all heroes fall a trifle short of our expectations, pondered Ann, and she was reconciled to George's breath.

The time for the ceremony drew near. It was to be an eventful day for Ann. George didn't seem properly excited, didn't seem to grasp the true importance of the coming event, but then Ann learned later just how grasping George was.

From correct information, it was just the night before the march to the altar that George knocked at the kitchen door. Ann did an Alfred Shrubb to the balcony window, as she pretended, for love's imagination is strong, and greeted George, as was her custom, with cheerful gladness.

George took it all in good part. He was a philosopher. Then he got down to business. So excited was Ann that she scarcely noticed that there was a hard and material look in George's optics, and that his breath had an acrid odor of Three-star Hennessey and fragrant onions.

"I'm broke, Ann," he started the conversation, "and if you want me to look nice tomorrow evening, you got to come across with a quarter of a century."

Just how George knew that Ann had saved some of her earnings, is unknown. Villains, however, are designing and wise. Ann pondered deeply. Perhaps a shade of suspicion crossed her mind. Burned children are afraid of the flame. But then, George was a hero after all; a hero such as Laura Jean Libby had portrayed in her eighty-six novels. The king can do no wrong. It would be rather small and mean of Ann not to assist George at the last moment.

George even went into details. A check from the West was delayed. He had plenty of lucre in the bank, but there had been a delay somewhere. It was pretty late, the day before the wedding, and what could he do. If he didn't think so much of Ann, of course he would never have come to her for money.

Well—George got the money. Then he remarked that it was growing late, and he left, with $25 in his little string-latched wallet.

There was no wedding. Ann is still working at the same old stand. George is playing dates some place else. He has flitted, as do the birds of dark October. He has gone, probably not to return again. Back to the mothball reservation has gone the trousseau, and Ann is wondering where Laura Jean Libby got the material for her types of strong, true heroes.

ENTERED REFRIGERATOR CAR TO KEEP WARM

When five men told Judge Windom in municipal court this morning that they climbed in a refrigerator car because they were suffering with the cold, and wanted to get warm, he elevated his eyebrows, and mentally wondered if they were trying to "kid" him.

"These men are charged with trespass," he said, turning inquiringly to Capt. Fiskett. "Of what did their trespass consist?"

"They were arrested after being caught in a car in the Northern Pacifcl yards," the captain answered.

"A refrigerator car."

"What were you doing in a refrigerator car?" the court asked the five.

"We climbed in there to get warm, yer honor," volunteered one.

The others did not even crack a smile. Judge Windom looked puzzled. Evidently the man was serious in what he said, and was not trying to be funny.

"How could you get warm in a refrigerator car?"

"We built a fire in the stove.'

At this juncture Judge Windom almost made up his mind that they really were trying to have fun at his expense, but it was explained that regrigerator cars are used for the transportation of perishable goods in winter as well as in summer, and that where, in summer, it is necessary to fill the car with ice to protect the perishable shipments from heat, it is equally necessary to provide a stove and fire in winter to protect them from the severe cold of this northern latitude.

"Five dollars and costs each, or five days in the county jail," said the judge, and the men took the jail sentence. They gave their names as: William Kelly, Peter Malloy, William Pierce, Mike Sullivan and Joseph Connors.

A Profitable Exchange.

Mr. Ward Grow, owner of a big orange ranch in San Bernardino, California, has recently sold it, and removed to the Isle of Pines. He says that the advantages of the Island over California are very marked in the fruit business. The Island has no frost, and no need for irrigation. It is close to market, and has water transportation. The climate and soil are Ideal. Yet land can be had on the Island for about one-twentieth of California prices. We are still selling personally selected lands for $40 an acre.

The father of B. B. Hovland of Duluth died last Friday at Zumbrota, Minn., at the age of 78 years. Harrows, jr., of Cleveland, who were in the city yesterday, will also attend the services.

Back to the Poor Farm.
Patrick Murphy was arrested in the City National Bank building Saturday, and a charge of begging was placed opposite his name on the police blotter. It appears that he had been an inmate of the county poor farm for some time past, but slipped away from that institution without the people in charge knowing anything about it, evidently believing he could have a better time in the city begging for a living. In municipal court he was given a sentence of fifteen days in jail, which was suspended on condition that he return to the poor farm.

Hoval A. Smith of Globe and Bisbee, Ariz., associated with H. B. Hovland, Maj. J. Uno Sebenious, D. L. Fairchild and other Duluthians in a number of big copper mining properties, was in Duluth last evening, conferring with some of his associates. He left last night for Zumbrota, Minn., to attend the funeral of Mr. Hovland's father.

Besides being a copper mining man of wide repute, Mr. Smith is prominent in the Republican politics of Arizona and is chairman of the Republican central committee there. He represented the territory at President Taft's inaugural ball.

Mr. Smith says the Globe and Burro copper districts are the most active in the Southwest at the present time. He says in the Globe district, development work on the Live Oak property is progressing nicely and on the Eureka ground of the Cordova company preparations are being made to sink a shaft at Globe Consolidated will be continued, he says, as it is expected that the rich vein of Old Dominion will be encountered at a greater depth.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper continues dull, but the tone of the market is a shade firmer. Lake is 13c and electrolytic 12¾c per pound. Sales aggregating approximately 100,000,000 pounds have been made at these prices since the first of the month. Supplies of copper in the hands of consumers have been practically exhausted, current purchases must equal the total volume of consumption. As a result of this, the statement of the Producers' association, which will issue one month hence, should show almost no further addition to the surplus stocks of copper in this country. The statement, issued Wednesday, indicated an increase of about 1,000,000 pounds of copper daily in February; but it did not include the heavy sales made so far this month. There is good reason for the belief that the actual surplus would show very little increase since Jan. 1, if an accurate summary of producers' and consumers' stocks could be obtained.

"When the consumers come into the market and buy a three months' supply of copper in advance, as is their custom when conditions are normal, they will quickly absorb every pound of surplus in the hands of producers, and buy more in addition for later delivery. This will cause the entire outlook to change abruptly, and consumers will thenceforward see the situation in an entirely different light.

"I feel confident that this will be a year of heavy consumption, as well as abnormal production; and I believe that the price of copper will be considerably higher before Oct. 1. The electrical equipment of steam railroads will gain headway very rapidly this year."

POLICE FORCE ORDER IN COURT

Chicago, March 15.—When Luman C. Mann, charged with the strangling of Mrs. Frances Gilmor Thompson, resumed the witness stand today, the courtroom was crowded and the overflood of curious persons blocked the corridors.

The bailiffs were unable to maintain order among the disappointed ones until reinforcements of police arrived.

Mann, apparently in better control of his temper than he had been, entered the courtroom smiling and twirling a light cane. He resumed the stand without being requested to do so, and answered a rapid fire if questions of cross examination, destined to test his memory, without hesitation.

HORSES BURN IN BARN FIRE

A fire of unknown origin Saturday night, about 1 o'clock, destroyed the barn owned by William Hallerhan, located on Second alley, between Fourth and Fifth avenues east, and two horses belonging to Henry Widdis burned with it.

Mr. Widdis rents the barn, and his horses were the only animals in it. They were valued at $400 and the barn was forth about $800. The blaze was well under way when discovered, and by the time the fire department arrived on the scene had gained such headway that neither barn nor horses could be saved. It is thought possible that the blaze was started by a spark from the pipe of some tramp who was lodging there for the night.

GRAND FORKS' BIG FIRE.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The factory of the Congress Candy company, corner of Alpha avenue and Eighth street, was destroyed by fire Saturday night. The loss is about $50,000 and insurance is $32,000. Only portions of the brick walls of the big three-story building remain.

Harry Caniff, one of the firemen, was knocked down during the progress of the fire and sustained injuries. He was not seriously injured.

The loss on the building is $30,000, and on the stock $26,000

The factory employes quit work at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and there was no one in the building from shortly after that time.

The building is not close to any others and there was no damage to any other property in the vicinity.

The blaze was a spectacular one and thousands of people on their return from the theater and elsewhere gathered to see it.

Manager Louis Rohde stated after the fire that the company would undoubtedly tear down the old walls and make the new building all in one, twice the size of the present structure.

LAURIN IS ON TRIAL

Alphonse Laurin, charged with criminal assault upon the person of Miss Edna Stahbrodt, on the Hermantown road, last month, is on trial before Judge Cant in district court this afternoon.

The court room was crowded with interested spectators when the case opened, and the audience contained a good many women. There are eight or ten girl witnesses, friends of Miss Edna, who testified relative to seeing her immediately after the alleged assault, and to finding pieces of her clothing in the road where she claims Laurin attacked her. The other women are mostly friends of the principals.

It is claimed that Laurin, who is not yet 21 years of age, assaulted Miss Stahbrodt just about dusk, two miles from the city, as she was walking home from Duluth. According to her story, Laurin was frightened away by the sound of sleigh bells, and immediately afterwards she was picked up by friends and taken home in their sleigh.

Her father was so enraged at her story that he seized his gun and drove off in search of Laurin. He overtook him on the road and would have shot and killed him, had not his gun missed fire. Laurin slipped into the brush, and Stahbrodt drove on into town and caused his arrest. He was found by the police in bed at his home near the boulevard.

ROYAL G. WILSON, SOLOIST.

"Lohengrin" Featured at the Twentieth Free Organ Recital.

The program for the twentieth free concert at the temple yesterday afternoon was up to the high standard of its predecessors and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience, which showed its appreciation by hearty applause and generous encore calls.

Royal G. Wilson, ably sustained the demands made on him for the vocal portion of the numbers. Mr. Wilson made his first appearance at those concerts and "made good." His voice is a bass-baritone and his work in the first selection, "It Is Enough," from the oratorio of "Elijah," by Mendelssohn, showed that he is especially adapted for oratorio music. He has an artistic appreciation, a smooth voice with no marked difference between the upper and lower registers and his climaxes are well marked and true. For an encore he sang "I Know a Lovely Garden," by D'Hardelot.

No. 4 was changed to Lusts' "My Rosary," tuneful and sympathetic, showing that the singer can satisfactorily render soft and tender strains as well as the loud. For an encore the old English ballad, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," was given and this selection showed the good training of the voice and its rich tone.

The organ music was represented by the incidental music to "Peter Pan," as the first number, followed by the celebrated March in act 3, of "Lohengrin." The music of this most tuneful and beautiful opera was the feature of the instrumental music, consisting of two selections, in addition to the "March," and what was considered the gem of the instrumental program, Lohengrin's Infernem Land," delicately and feelingly interpreted, the solo portion well brought out, and the shading and ending being very satisfying. The program was concluded by Liszt's symphonic poem, No. 2, "Les Preludes," which exemplified the tumultuous waves of sound which characterizes much of his music, though in this piece there is much melody and grand combinations of magnificent chords.

Beethoven's music will be exemplified by some selections for next Sunday, together with some other selections to vary the program.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Ireland for ever!

And England all the rest of the time.

And to make the matter truly cosmopolitan, France and its clever dramatists at any odd moments left over.

Those are the sentiments of Miss Margaret Wycherly who plays in "The Thief," and it keeps one nimbly jumping from one state of mind to another to keep track of Miss Wycherley's national enthusiasms.

With tears in her eyes she talks of William Butler Yeats and his exquisite plays of and for the Irish people. She speaks however, from the standpoint of a person who can't understand the necessity or reason for home rule, and then she waxes eloquent over the marvelous technical skill of Bernstein, the Frenchman, who wrote "The Thief."

"With $200 and a big supply of nerve, three years ago some of us played William Butler Yeats' exquisite one-act plays, 'The Land of Heart's Desire,' 'Cathleen ni Hoolihan,' and 'The Hour Glass,'" said Miss Wycherly this morning, in a golden brown Kimona that reflected the glints of her hair and eyes. "They were beautiful and really a great success, but by the time we were ready to open, the few members of the company had pawned their valuables and we were there with nothing but our $200 production between us and starvation. The plays were a success, but would never, of course, be the kind that would make a great popular success. You had to choose your audience for them. My costume in 'Cathleen ni Hoolihan' was the one that Maud Gonne wore in the play when she created the part after Yeats had written it for her. She was not an actress, but she was a great Irish patriot and to represent Ireland, calling the young men of the land to her support and starting on the campaign of bringing back the fields that had been taken from her, was a part that appealed very strongly to her."

Miss Wychely has appeared in the plays of that other brilliant Irishman, George Bernard Shaw. She was Lydia in the New York production of "Cashel Byron's Profession," and later played Candida in a revival in New York. "Lydia was the most hopeless thing you may ever hope to meet," said Miss Wycherly. "She never opened her mouth but she was trying to teach somebody something. Candida is the only fine big woman that Shaw has ever created. The rest of his women are clever and interesting, but as hard as nails, and make you want to wring their necks. But they are a joy to play. But speaking about playing, 'The Thief' is a wonder. Critics and people seeing the play for the first time, speak of the second act as the wonder, for only two characters are on the stage for the whole act. But to me the first act is the most wonderful. It works into the rest of the play like that," said Miss Wycherly, interlacing her fingers. "I don't believe there is a single word said which does not build up the play. The inconsequential appearing dialogue forms a necessary part in the development of the play. It is wonderful."

And then this alert and very beautiful young woman talks in terms of psychology and universal human nature about the plausibility of the character-drawing of the fluffy, inconsequential young woman, who as the heroine, becomes a thief, and yet retains the interest and understanding of the audience. "She is not a hero-y kind of heroine. "Who in the old days would have put forward as his first woman character an individual who steals?" asks Miss Wycherly. "But you may know the power of this French dramatist that he does, and it makes the situation and character so true and real that his audiences, even American audiences, who might be supposed to be a little out of sympathy with such goings on, understand perfectly."

She becomes so enthusastic over the French that one almost forgets what she said about the Irish dramatists, and time only restrained her from telling her views of the American playwright. If she ever got on to William Shakespeare, there would probably be no end, for in spite of her admiration of Yeats and Bernstein, Miss Wycherly insists that he is entirely English.

CONTEST ON.

Y. W. C. A. to Work for Two Thousand Members.

The degree membership contest of the Young Women's Chrstian association opened today at the association rooms, and by evening it is expected that returns will begin coming into the desk. The mark set by the workers is a membership of 2,000 by April 15, one month from today, and it is hoped that every member now enrolled will become actively interested in the work. The association now has a membership of between 700 and 800, and the plan adopted by the workers is to induce each woman now enrolled to become interested enough to secure three new memberships, or renewals, by the end of the month. If this were done the association would have the desired number of Duluth women and girls enrolled.

Degrees will be conferred upon the members who secure three or more memberships or renewals. The secret meaning of the degrees will not be made known until the membership banquet, which will be one of the first social functions to be held in the new building. The degrees and colors which will identify them will be as follows: Three members, B. A.; pale green; four members, M. A., white; six members, Ph. D., orange; seven members, M. D., yellow; eight members, D. D., red; ten members, D.D., LLD., pink; sixteen to twenty-one members, Y. W. C. A., foliage green.

A meeting of the membership and business committees of the association will be held the latter part of the week and the progress of the contest will be posted on the bulletin board at the rooms after a few days. Miss Margaret Stewart will be in charge of the clerical work of the contest at the headquarters. The workers are hoping that the members now enrolled will volunteer their services to aid in the campaign, which will necessarily be a very active one, to secure the desired number of members in the time set.

To Sew All Day.

The members of the Women's Relief corps will meet Friday of this week for an all day sewing session at the home of Mrs. Robert Stitt of 221 Tenth avenue east. A picnic luncheon will be served at noon. The meeting has been postponed from Wednesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbridge will visit through the Southern states and on their return will be in Washington during the week of April 19, during the national meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution. FOR EASTER WEAR.

The Modes for Spring Are Decided Upon.

For the trotting-frock the separate coat is somewhat looser, also shorter. It is generally double-breasted, and fastens with brass buttons that make you feel as if you were masquedading at a children's party in an outgrown reefer jacket recalled from your school days, says Mrs. Simcox in the April Delineator.

They are the most comfortable sort of thing imaginable, especially for the country, where canoes and sailboats and a dozen other exigencies call for a really warm practical jacket, and the loveliest of lace and linen wraps fail to meet the situation.

One of the most interesting developments of the spring, to my mind, is the shifted position of trimmings. Never before has the arrangement been so arbitrary, the location so surprising. Formerly, there were certain well-defined conventions that were adhered to religiously even by those of us who rather pride ourselves on our originality and resources. The retrograde movement began last fall when some one decided to use chiffon over lace, white under colors, and several other reversals of the established order. The very capriciousness of the bouleversement recommended it to the feminine mind, and the idea which lay dormant all winter has broken forth this spring in the most remarkable shapes and guises.

Net blouses are mounted on linings of broderie anglaise so exquisitely fine that every leaf and flower cries out against the indignity put upon it. Silver tissue is veiled by coarse tulle, and cloth-of-gold travels incognito thinly disguised by muslins or chiffons. But even more eccentric are the localities chosen for braidwork and embroidery. Quite frequently now one finds a great triangular patch of suotache in the lower corner of a front or back gore. Princess panels, which formerly received a great amount of attention at the hands of the dressmaker, are now ignored, and trimming goes under the arms and down the side seams.

New Wedding Custom.

It is a charming innovation in the heretofore cut and dried monotony of bridesmaids, in white, in pink, in blue—in twos, fours, sixes and eights—at weddings, to have the bride attended by little misses and masters of her own family, or by the children of her married friends, says an exchange.

England has long stood by this pretty custom in part, and all the smart weddings in high life consider it obligatory and customarily have had this charming feature attached. But very recently the fine weddings have shown brides of prominence attended solely by children, in lieu of the traditional number of maids. In all countries children have appeared in bridal procession, but the abandonment of maids and the bridal escort of four or six children is a novelty. It is not yet a settled point whether these little honorables are to precede or follow the bride. The bride may choose the manner she individually prefers. As Americans we have not considered the costume in any representative manner, but have borrowed in many cases the dress of English or French children that have been worn on these occasions. Were we to select our Colonial blue and buff suits for the boys and the youthful Lady Washington period for the girls, we should assuredly win praise for the charmingly picturesque effect produced.

Baked Bean Luncheon.

One of the most effective tables I ever laid for my little daughter's pleasure was for a luncheon planned just one hour before it happened, writes a mother in Woman's Home Companion.

One of her chums going through my kitchen as I opened the oven door said, "Oh, I love baked beans, and I always order them whenever we go to Fields'." So the "party" started.

Some "left-over" crepe paper napkins with wreaths of tiny yellow flowers were laid on the polished oak table for centerpiece and plate doilies, in the center stood a low glass bowl filled with small yellow sunflowers, and each place favor was a larger one. The quaint brown bean pot graced one corner, and diagonally across from it was a plate of old-fashioned gingerbread. On another corner was placed the sandwiches of thin slices of Graham and white bread laid together, while the fourth corner held the hot Boston brown bread.

Salted peanuts and tiny cucumber pickles kept within the color scheme, while sliced bananas with whipped cream for dessert made a good ending to the "Brown and Yellow Luncheon."

Not an extra thing was needed outside my ordinary supplies, and I may add I had no maid at the time.

Such a table would be very attractive at a church fair, while for the woman who desires to entertain at a small cost it would be a charming luncheon. Wild sunflower of black-eyed Susans can always be found, or nasturtiums might be used, provided one could find a few of the brown ones.

According to the newest dictionary and the most popular, that unexpurgated edition, edited by C. O. Applehagen, end man of the Y. M. C. A. minstrels, codfish is "a smell that swims."

Just at this time when fish in divers ways appear at the table, codfish, that homely, comfortable, plebeian fish, does duty many times. There is one nice thing about codfish. As soon as you get within a block of home you need no longer fret yourself about what you are going to get for dinner. The cod sends out a welcome that is unmistakable, a welcome that can be confused with no other, and for many minutes before it appears swimming in a milk gravy, everyone knows what's coming. There is a boneless kind that is little trouble to prepare and not very dangerous to eat.

Articles in which Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts are used, have no disagreeable odor or sickly taste, but are always enjoyable.

SOME FACTS OF THE LIFE OF IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT

St. Patrick says of himself in his confession that he was born at "Bannaven Tabernlae," which is extremely hard to identify. Some, however, claim that Kirk-Patrick, near Glasgow, in Scotland, took its name from St. Patrick.

The saint was born about 372; was a captive and a slave of the king of Dalaradia, in Ireland, from 388 to 395; went to Gaul and was there ordained priest; was consecrated bishop and sent to Ireland as missionary in 422, and died at Saul, near Strangford Lough, County Down, Ulster, where many years before he had founded his church, March 17, 465, the day now sacred to his memory.

Ireland was then occupied by a great number of petty tribes, most of whom were evangelized by Patrick. So well was the work accomplished that Ireland was known in subsequent centuries as the "island of saints and scholars."

The method employed was that of dealing cautiously and gently with the old paganism of the people. The chieftains were first won over and then through them their clans.

Of St. Patrick himself much that has been related is fabulous, but his autobiographical confession and his epistle to Coroticus, both of which are unquestionably genuine, reveal a devout, simple minded man, and a most discreet and energetic missionary.

In his epistle he states that he was of noble birth and that his father, Calphurnicus, was a Roman decurio. His mother, Conchessa, or Concels, was the sister of St. Martin of Tours.

The family of the saint is affirmed by the earliest authorities to have belonged to Britain, but whether the term refers to Great Britain or Brittany or other parts of France is not ascertained.

Some of the quaint stories told in Ireland about St. Patrick would make the traveler imagine that the saint visited the island for the benefit of witty guides, or to promote mirth in wet weather. It is not remarkable that the subject of these stories for sixteen centuries, at countless hearths, has been regarded and is today honored as the greatest man and the greatest benefactor that ever trod the Irish soil, and, considering the versatility of the Irish character, it is not strange that there remains respecting the saint a vast cycle of legends—serious, pathetic and profound.

In Duluth St. Patrick's day will be celebrated by the presentation of the drama "Arrah-Na-Pogue" at the cathedral auditorium. In Superior the annual St. Patrick's day banquet will be held.

WEALTHY ENGLISHMAN HAD HORROR OF BEING BURIED ALIVE

"As I have always dreaded the possibility of being buried alive, I bequeath to my friend Edmund Royds the sum of 25 guineas free of legacy duty (in addition to the 25 0pounds, which I bequeath to him for undertaking the duties of my executor and trustee), on condition that he does not permit my coffin to be finnily closed until he has personally satisfied himself that my body shows distinct signs of decomposition, and that further the surgeon or physician attendig me at the time of my death, or some other selected by the said Edmund Royds, do previously to the final closing of my coffin pierce my heart with some sharp instrument, in the presence of the said Edmund Royds, in such a manner as could not fail to cause death, should death not have already occurred, as has been supposed to be the case."—Extract from will of Howard Gilliat.

The will of Howard Gilliat, a wealthy Englishman, who died in London Dec. 3, 1906, has just been filed in the probate court of St. Louis county. Mr. Gilliat owned about $10,000 worth of property in St. Louis and Carlton counties, and the will has just reached here for probate.

The will is a voluminous document, covering in minute detail the distribution of an estate estimated to be worth 263,912 pounds, 13 shillings and 9 pence, or over $1,200,000 in American money.

The duties of the executors and the manner in which the affairs of the estate are to be administered are set out in the minutest detail in the will, which contains several queer conditions. The queerest of all is that quoted, taking precaution against the possibility of being buried alive.

Mr. Gilliat's property is spread almost all over the world. He had interests in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Canada and the United States.

HOLLANDERS COME TO SETTLE UP COUNTRY.

Bismarck, N. D., March 15.—Seeing no chance to improve their condition in crowded Holland, fifty natives of Breda, in Brahantz, passed through the city recently for Southheart, N. D., in charge of Von dan Henvel, a Catholic priest, who for sixteen years has brought thousands of families from the teeming cities and countries of the Old World to farms in the Northwest.

The fifty are the van of a certain fifty more and probably 1,000. Ten families will come on the next steamer, as they were left at Antwerp, Feb. 20, on account of a crowded ship.

AGAINST PROPOSED TAX.

Upper Michigan Merchants Want Coffee and Tea Left Free.

Marquette, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Merchants in Upper Michigan who sell tea and coffee are signing petitions to be forwarded to Congressman Young at Washington, protesting against the reported plan of the house ways and means committee to impose a duty of 4 cents a pound on coffee and 10 cents a pound on tea.

The protest is based on the contention that the articles are necessities, and to tax them as is proposed in the new tariff bill would work a hardship on the great bulk of the wage-earners. It is estimated that more than 3,000,000 pounds of coffee and approximately 1,500,000 pounds of tea are consumed in the Upper peninsula annually.

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Committee Will Plan Warfare Against White Plague.

Employment of Visiting Nurse May be First Step.

Organized efforts to prevent the spread of tuberculosis in the city of Duluth will be actively taken up at the meeting of the general committee of the anti-tuberculosis society, at the rooms of the Commercial club to-morrow evening.

This meeting will include all of the committees that have been working under the Duluth organization. Definite plans for the campaign in this city will be formulated, various committees named, arrangements for the engaging of a visiting nurse made, and progress reported upon the bill, before the legislature at the present time, authorizing counties to provide hospitals for consumptives.

While the plans of the general committee are determined upon, no attempt has been made up to the present time, to put them into execution. At the meeting tomorrow evening, means of raising funds to deal with the tuberculosis problem, will be considered by the members of the committee.

It is believed that a membership plan will be carried out, making everyone a member of the organization upon the payment of $1. The members of the committee will endeavor to secure as many members as possible, and in this way raise funds to carry on the work of prevention by means of educating the people in sanitary methods.

The members of the general committee believe that they will be able to interest the business men of the city in the plan of membership, and in this way increase the organization into one that will include a very large percentage of citizens.

It is earnestly requested that all those interested in the success of the movement, be present tomorrow evening. The meeting is a most important one, as the plans of the work of the organization will be outlined then.

SHARTEL WILL LAND THE PLACE

Believed That He Will Be Elected President of City Council.

Alderman Shartel, the "Puradora" candidate, next president of the common council.

That is the way they have it doped out around the city hall today. It seems to be the general belief that Mr. Shartel will be elected to the place, although he probably will not have any votes to spare.

The way things look now if Alderman Shartel is not elected, no one else can land the place, and Alderman Getchell, president now, will hold over indefinitely.

Alderman Shartel had quite a long talk with Mayor Haven this morning, and while it was admitted that the matter of the presidency came up, both denied that anything was said or done which would have a bearing on the vote tonight.

It seems that no agreement has been arrived at yet in regard to who shall be made sealer of weights and measures. There are five candidates for the place, and five ballots at last week's meeting failed to give any one of the candidates enough votes to give him the place. It is claimed that the aldermen have decided on no one as yet.

CONDITION DANGEROUS

Sixth Avenue West Viaduct Badly in Need of Repairs.

City Engineer McGilvray will report to the city council tonight that the west approach to the Sixth avenue viaduc is so badly in need of repair as to be in a dangerous condition, and will recommend that provision for its repair be made.

The city engineer says it will cost $1,000 or more to do the work necessary, and asserts that unless the money is forthcoming it will be necessary, for the safety of that portion of the general public which uses the viaduct, to close the west approach to traffic.

Mr. McGilvray also will recommend to the council tonight that an appropriation of $1,200 be made for the purchase of an auxiliary gasoline motive power plant for the aerial bridge, to be used in cases of emergency, when the electric power is out of commission. The council already has approved the plan of such a purchase, but has not ordered one purchased.

The Team Loading Ordinance.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice there has been an ordinance introduced in the city council to regulate the size of a load a team of horses should be allowed to haul up hill in this city. This bill is more theoretical than practical, and if passed as introduced, would work hardship to many of the transfer companies and team owners in this city. In the first place, there should be no set standard of weights of what all teams might haul. The condition of the streets and the condition of the team make all the difference. There are seasons when a team can haul twice or three times what it can handle at another season of the year.

Then, again, the horses that are properly fed or properly handled can haul very much more than horses poorly fed and poorly driven. In our work, that of the Duluth Van & Storage company, we are compelled very often, when bidding for work from outside concerns, such as carting of goods, machinery, etc., from the railroad tracks to public and office buildings, to compete with the prices made in other cities, and to do this we have to load on all the teams can easily handle without hurting or straining them. If we are not allowed to load more than the limit of the ordinance as now introduced, we may as well go out of business at once, for we can haul, when the streets are in good condition, nearly double this amount without injuring the teams.

I can say candidly that while I have owned and worked a great many horses for several years, I have never yet hurt a horse by overloading. And aside from the humane point of view, horses are too valuable to have them injured or to allow our drivers to injure them by overloading. I will say further that I will be pleased to aid the council in passing an ordinance looking to the better care of horses and the preventing of abuses of any kind to them in this city. I think careful investigation into this matter will show that most of the abuses that horses in Duluth are subjected to are not overloading, but underfeeding, and more particularly want of proper shoeing. Yours truly.

J. W. SHERIDAN.

Duluth, March 15.

To Amend the Tonnage Tax Bill.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I would respectfully call the attention of the state legislature of Minnesota to the fact that if a tonnage tax is placed upon iron ore, which is a product of the ground. Why not measure all products of the ground by the ton pro rata?

Iron ore by the ton is worth about $4.
Metal by the tons is worth about $33.
Potatoes by the ton are worth about $16.
Turnips by the ton are worth about $10.
Onions by the ton are worth about $50.
Cabbage by the ton is worth about $30.
Carrots by the ton are worth about $20.
Hay by the tons is worth about $10.
Hayseeds by the tons is worth about $60.

I would respectfully ask that the tonnage tax bill on iron ore be amended, so as to include all of the above products of the ground in this tonnage tax bill. It would equalize the burden of taxation and it would be more in line with the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, and would be a square deal to all sections of the state, no special taxation to be allowed.

PARIS AGITATED OVER A STRIKE

Government Telegraph and Phone Employes May Quit.

Paris, March 15.—Paris is in suspense today over the likelihood of a general strike on the part of the telephone and telegraphers employes in the bureau of the postoffice. All the branches of these services are involved. There is considerable excitement around the general and branch postoffices. Detachments of police and municipal guards surround these buildings and a regiment of infantry is camped in the courtyard of the general postoffice. Mail wagons are being driven through the streets under military escort. The employes lay most of their woes to the door of M. Simyan, under secretary of posts and telegraphs, claiming he has systematically prevented them from obtaining increases of salaries.

MAN LATE TO WORK AND TWO DEATHS MAY RESULT.

Lufkin, Tex., March 15.—When J. F. Nutter reported for work today he was a few moments tardy. This fact brought about a dispute with J. C. Brown, which resulted in the latter being fatally shot. After receiving the fatal wounds, Brown attacked Nutter with a knife, inflicting injuries which may cause his death as well.

MASSACRE HERO DEAD.

St. Peter, Minn., March 15.—John Peterson, aged 78 years, a former judge of probate of Nicollet county, and an early settler of Lake Prairie township, is dead. Mr. Peterson settled in Lake Prairie township in 1856, and in 1862, during the Sioux Indian outbreak, was captain of a militia company and marched to the relief of New Ulm, participating in one of the battles fought there.

THREE MEN MAY DIE DUE TO AN EXPLOSION.

Washington, March 15.—An explosion at the Washington Gas Light company plant, Twenty-sixth and G streets northwest, early today, resulted in the burning of three men so severely that it is thought they will not survive. They are: Edward Enderson, Peter Kelley, white, and a negro named Venable.

WHISKY JUDGE, "MAN WITH GOLDEN NOSE," IS DEAD.

Lexington, Ky., March 15.—Patrick Lamphear, a widely known whisky man, died here last night. His skill in determining the quality of whisky and the large salary paid him had gained for him the sobriquet of "the man with the golden nose."

Houghton, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge of Probate Bentley announced at the county building that he is a grandfather. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bentley of Scanlon, Minn., last week.

H. Johnson, Burnquist and Mattson opposed the bill, and Representatives Stone and Rodenburg of St. Paul approved it.

The motion to reconsider was lost, however, 30 for and 73 against, even Mr. Wells, the author of the motion, losing his courage and voting against his own motion.

There was another echo in the senate this morning of last week's action by the Republican majority in railroading through the Peterson bill for the relief of S. W. Leavitt of the board of control.

Senator Works called up his resolution against having any more suspensions of the rules, and on motion of Senator Sullivan it was referred to the rules committee, 26 to 15, where it will doubtless die.

Senator Works, in advocating his motion, said that senatorial courtesy is now an idle dream when the confidence of the senate has been abused by slipping through an attempt to force the appointment of Mr. Leavitt under the guise of sympathy for the old soldier. The bill was passed by misrepresentation and subterfuge, said Senator Works.

Senator Seward, Republican, though he voted for the motion to refer, said that he was surprised that there was no reply to the charges of fraud. This was a reference to the fact that Senator Peterson made no statement in his own behalf.

Senators Laybourn and Pugh of Duluth voted for reference, and Senator Vail of Virginia was the only Republican to vote with the Democrats against the Sullivan motion.

The house judiciary committee reported to the house this morning its inability to agree upon the question of whether Stuart's bill abolishing the tax on credits is constitutional. In view of this doubt, the committee recommended that Mr. Stuart be allowed to substitute another bill for the one now pending, and he did so. It provides a mortgage registry tax of 10 cents per $100 instead of 50 cents, divided equally between the state and the county general revenue fund, instead of being apportioned as other taxes are distributed, and providing that land contracts shall not be classed and taxed as mortgages. This the present law does.

The house took a brief recess this morning to hear an old-time talk on economy from J. F. Jacobson of Madison, the recent Republican candidate for governor and once a strong house member. He criticised sharply the practice of grabbing appropriations and said that the poorest member is the one that grabs more than his share. The legislature should not allow borrowing by the state, but should appropriate what its levies produce, and no more. The practice of continually increasing salaries, he said, is a bad one. It is all right to pay employes what they could earn in private positions, but most of the employes could not earn a quarter of what they get from the state if they were privately employed. He said that the present tax levies, with the indirect taxes now coming in, are ample to take care of the business of the state, if it is economically handled.

The capitol is deserted by lawmakers this afternoon, for the legislature is out at New Brighton looking over the proposed Armour Packing plant site, the guests of the Commercial clubs of the Twin Cities and personally conducted by Cal. Stone of St. Paul and John Lennon of Minneapolis.

MANY ACRES TO BE RECLAIMED

Eastern Marshall County to Benefit by Big Ditch Scheme.

Middle River, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Engineer George E. Ralph has gone to the scene of the labors of the surveying crew east of Thief River, where he will take active charge of the work. Mr. Ralph declared that the state is to immediately put through a big drainage system for Eastern Marshall county. Thief river is to be dredged and straightened its whole length, and a complete system of laterals put in on all the section lines on both sides of the river. The survey, Mr. Ralph stated, will be completed in two weeks, and the contract for the work let at once, so that the entire system will be constructed by the coming summer.

This project means everything to Middle River and all Eastern Marshall county. It will reclaim hundreds of thousands of wet lands, and will be such a stimulus to development that Eastern Marshall county will go forward by leaps and bounds and soon become what nature destined it to be—one of the richest and diversified farming sections in the world.

President of Thief River Falls Bank Going West.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. Prichard, president of the First National bank Friday sold his interest in the institution to Messrs. Hansen and Patterson of St. Hilaire. Mr. Hansen is president of a bank in his town and Mr. Patterson is one of the wealthiest residents of this county. The First National will be directly under the direction of Mr. Hansen, who will make this city his home. The retiring banker, Mr. Prichard, will leave at once for the West, where he is interested in a lumber enterprise with relatives in Tacoma.

The Presbyterian church has purchased the Kratka homestead, one of the finest residences in the city and will utilize it for a parsonage. It adjoins the church and is considered a valuable property. LET US BE A LITTLE ASHAMED.

John Ruskin, master of remorseless prose, said some very hard things of us in his day, some of them just as true of us now as they were the day he said them, we greatly fear.

For instance, here is our indifference and even hostility to the spending of enough money to preserve the priceless treasures of the state historical society and to provide a place for them where they may be a blessing to us and our son's sons after us, forever. We call ourselves an educated, cultured people and we point with pride to the thousands we spend upon our great university and to our school system, justly esteemed one of the finest in the Union, yet for all these John Ruskin might justly rise from his grave and tell us again that we have despised literature and science. He proved it in his day, with figures, something after this wise: A rare collection of fossils, invaluable in its historical significance, was offered the British Museum for 700 pounds although, at a private sale, it would easily have brought from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds. The acceptance of the offer dragged until the collection was about to be lost forever to the nation, when a private citizen intervened, paid the price, and offered the collection to the nation which finally agreed to pay him 400 pounds in hand and the balance of 300 pounds at some future time. Now the country at this time was spending upon its public improvements annually the sum of 50,000,000 pounds to which 700 pounds, the cost of this collection, is as 2,000 pounds is to 7 pence. Suppose, now, a private gentleman of a fortune so large that its exact amount is unknown, a gentleman who spends upon his park each year 2,000 pounds. This gentleman prides himself upon his culture and his love for learning. To him comes his servant with a rare and precious book which he tells his master may be had for 7 pence. His master puts the servant off from time to time until, when the book is about to be lost, the servant buys it himself and fetches it to his master who impatiently gives him 4 pence and promises to bestow the other 3 pence upon him at some future time! What shall we say of the culture of the rich gentleman who spends 2,000 pounds annually upon his park and frets at an expense of 7 pence for a book of invaluable knowledge? Does he despise learning or no?

Our representatives in legislature assembled may reply that they have not despised learning. Have they not, indeed, appropriated their thousands for rural schools, their tens of thousands for high schools and their hundreds of thousands for the university? They have; but not without some suspicion of self interest. Even the most careless observer must have noticed that no appropriations are so easy to be got as those which distribute some part of the appropriation to every part of the state. A suitable building for the state historical society, calls for an appropriation, however, which appeals solely to the pure love of knowledge, and we are as slow and sulky about providing the needed pence to pay for it as was John Ruskin's English gentleman.

Let us not indulge ourselves in the customary excuses in this matter, but be a little ashamed of our vaunted regard for the better things of life—ashamed enough to build that building right away!

THE SIN OF THE SUGAR TAX.

It is reported that the ways and means committee has agreed to leave the duty on sugar in the new tariff bill as it now exists in the Dingley law—about 80 per cent ad valorem.

The sugar tax is one of the most iniquitous of the whole list. It is purely and solely a tax for the benefit of the sugar trust. Independent producers of sugar in this country have declared in the most positive language, again and again, that the sugar industry in America no longer needs the protection of any duty whatever. The hearings before the ways and means committee during its recent sessions have demonstrated by an overwhelming weight of evidence that the duty on sugar is not protecting the sugar industry but that it is simply putting the entire amount of the tax as an additional profit—additional, mnid you—into the bulging pockets of the sugar trust. In the face of these facts it is reported that the committee has determined to leave the tax as it is. The report may, of course, not be correct, but the outlines of the new tariff measure have been so frequently reported and there is such substantial agreement in all the reports, that there is grave reason to apprehend that the report as to retaining the duty on sugar is true.

The Republican party will not be fulfilling its promises to the people if it allows this 80 per cent tax on sugar to stand. The people can no longer tolerate being thus robbed for the benefit of the barons of the sugar trust. The tribute which the country has been each year compelled to pay to the sugar trust because of this scandalous tax is about $140,000,000 per year, a little more than that, in fact. And who pays it? Everybody pays it. The rich and the poor alike pay it, but upon the poor its burden falls the most heavily, for sugar is a necessity. Men and women who must deny themselves everything but the meager necessities of life must have sugar and of every dollar they pay for sugar from 40 to 45 cents goes into the pocket of the millionaires of the sugar trust! The Herald has no desire to emphasize class distinctions or to inflame class prejudice, but it does desire to call serious attention to the fact that the failure of congress at this time to reduce the iniquitous tax on sugar will do much to emphasize class distinctions and inflame class hatred. The tax on sugar is so distinctively and so boldly a wringing of pennies from the pockets of the poor, a collecting of them into dollars and a presenting of the dollars to the rich that this matter can no longer escape plain speaking.

The sugar trust has brought to the support of its plea for charity from the poor to the extent of $140,000,000 annually, a cloud of cunning arguments and specious reasoning, but no amount of suave speaking should obscure in the minds of the representatives of the people these two facts: the tax on sugar is a tax on a necessity and independent sugar producers unanimously declare that the industry can thrive without a cent of protection.

The people are dependent upon their representatives in this matter and they realize that their representatives are perplexed by the conflicting claims of revisionist and anti-revisionist and by the most difficult problem of justly revising the tariff and yet providing additional funds for increased expenses, but they are in no temper to be trifled with in so plain a matter as this of the trust-fattening sugar tax.

HERE'S A HINT, YOUNG FOLKS.

Once upon a time some one wrote to Theodore Roosevelt and asked him what he thought about oratory, and this is what he said: "On the particular subject of oratory I have not a word to say. I have never been an orator and never studied oratory. When I have spoken, my aim has been simply to say nothing in which I did not believe, to say what I did say as strongly, as accurately, ac concisely as possible, and then sit down."

Mr. Roosevelt's rule is heartily commended to those young people of Duluth who expect to submit Ben Hur essays to The Herald. It would be impossible to have a better rule to go by. When you have the story of Ben Hur in mind, if it means anything to you, which it certainly will if you soberly and earnestly think about it, write down what it means to you "as strongly, as accurately, as concisely as possible," and then stop.

Another word: beware of the awful adjective. If the adjective is not full of awe to you, it ought to be. Good thoughts burdened with adjectives, are like a blooded race horse weighted down with unnecessary harness heavily trimmed with shiny brass mountings, or like a woman's hat of fine lines and elegant shape but dreadfully bedecked with flaring flowers of every hue. "For the work of the world at large," says Alfred Henry Lewis, "it (the adjective) has ever been a clog. Adjectives are the parents of error, of misinformation. Our day would have been enhanced, and the race set forward by centuries if in the beginning adjectives had been made a capital offense." Beware the adjective; it has betrayed many, it may be false to you.

It's a grand story, the story of Ben Hur. If you can dig out just one of its great truths and set it down in clear, simple, bullet-like English you will have done something worth while—and will get to see the play into the bargain.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Working by ragtime!

At the round-table meeting of the Hotel McKay club last evening Lieut. Arthur Watts told that not only had music charms to soothe the savage breast, but that it also had the power to stimulate the muscles of the mighty chest; that under the influence of its lilting strains men would labor with much vigor and quickness.

"When American warships coal in foreign ports, when there happens to be two or three, or sometimes more ships in one of the ports of the Orient, the officers get up a competition among the crews of the ships, to see which ship can be filled the quickest. There is great rivalry to see which ship will win the race, and here it is that the bands of the different ships are pressed into service.

"If all of the ships have bands, so much the better, for the race will be that much faster. The full band gathers upon the deck of the ship and plays lively marches. By the rhythm of this music the men who are filling the ship with fuel work, the crew and the band of each ship trying their utmost to outdo the band and the crew of the other ships.

"The same idea is worked out by the American negro on the wharves of the Mississippi. You see them working down on the river levees, and you will invariably find they are working to the tune of some negro melody. They strike up some old Southern air and work by its rhythm all day. They keep time to its music, so that the men in charge of the work generally see that the tune chosen by the black workers is a lively one. Music is one of the greatest stimulators for the worker; you will find when any great body of men gather together to labor in unison, that they invariably, unless restrictions forbid, find that they are singing or droning some air."

"Are you a Mason?"

The two Mr. Masons met at the St. Louis hotel Saturday evening. It was their first meeting since their last meeting, which was their first meeting. One of the Mr. Masons is from the Copper country, Houghton; the other Mr. Mason is from the range.

Well, the first time they met, it was under difficulties. They are both stopping at the same hotel. They both came in late, one later by about half an hour than the other. The night clerk gave the first Mr. Mason the other Mr. Mason's room. Then he wanted to give the second Mr. Mason the first Mr. Mason's room, but the second Mr. Mason demanded his own room.

Anyway, the two Masons met in the second Mr. Mason's room. The second Mr. Mason protested against this invasion, but the first Mr. Mason repelled him with cold replies. There, in the shimmering, early dawn, they sat and argued as to which was a Mason.

"My name is Mason," said the first Mr. Mason.

"So is mine," replied the second Mr. Mason.

And so they argued back and forth. Then finally the night clerk came up and satisfactorily explained the mistake. Since then, or since the second meeting of the two Masons, which was last Saturday night, the two Masons have been fast friends.

Capt. T. R. Kyle, well known to many people at the Head of the Lakes, paid a graceful compliment to the climate of Duluth, at the Lenox hotel, last night.

The captain has been confined at St. Mary's hospital, Minneapolis, with a severe attack of inflammatory rhumatism. Finally, as he lay upon his bed of pain, he thought of the dry and balmy climate of Duluth. He made up his mind; he would come to Duluth. He did, and he has felt better.

"I would sooner be in Duluth with inflammatory rheumatism, than to live in Minneapolis with the most perfect health," said the captain. And to prove the truth of his assertion, the captain is with us again. He intends to stay at the Head of the Lakes until his rheumatism goes. Few people know it, but Duluth is one of the best places in the country for those afflicted with rheumatism.

Martin Hughes of Hibbing, and his fellow townsman, John Kleffman, have, since the report of the purchase by those two gentlemen of a horse, which, through the grace of smiling fortune, did not cost the two gentlemen much, not been able to make much progress in taming the vicious disposition of that stubborn beast.

It is said that Mr. Kleffman often urges Mr. Hughes to attempt to get the beast into the harness and drive him out for the exercise he badly needs. Mr. Hughes is equally insistent in the contention that Mr. Kleffman, knowing more about horses than he does, should be the one to escort the nag.

The nag has done nothing but stand in his stall and bite at people whom the two proud possessors of the beast happened to take to the barn to view the steed. That horse acted so meanly about the enthusiasm of his two owners, that he discouraged them from showing him off. Now he stands in his lonely stall, with long hair and wild eyes, like Ajax defying the lightning, at war with all the world.

Meantime Messrs. Kleffman and Hughes are upon the lookout for some horse that they can really use.

The McKay hotel is undergoing a process of rejuvination that will result in the changing of the interior appearance of the downstairs part of the hotel. All of the old ceiling and fixtures are being taken out, the old ceiling being replaced with steel ceiling, and the fixtures by new ones. The dining room is being done over, as well as the lobby. Over $5,000 is being expended in the refitting of the ceiling of the lobby and the dining room. The improvements will make it one of the most handsome lobbies in the city.

THE WEATHER.

Spring seems to be slowly sliding out of the lap of old Father Winter, and day by day the weather is growing milder, and the cold spells of shorter duration. The weather man looks for snow flurries tonight, but milder weather. The sun is trying hard to break through the clouds today, but is finding it rather difficult work.

A year ago today it was bright and fair.

The sun rose this morning at 6:21 and will set this afternoon at 6:13, making eleven hours and fifty-two minutes of sunlight.

R. E. Clark, acting forecaster, makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Seasonable weather now obtains over the greater part of the country. During the past twenty-four hours light rain or snow has fallen over the Gulf coast and the Southeastern states, the Lake region, the upper Ohio and Missouri valleys and in Canada due to the movement of the two areas of low pressure now disappearing over the North and South Atlantic coast states. Another disturbance is approaching over Southern California. A large area of high pressure, with centers over Saskatchewan and Missouri, covers the entire region from the Rocky Mountain eastward to the Ohio valley. Temperatures have fallen somewhat since Sunday morning over British Columbia, Alberta and the Lake region and have risen over Saskatchewan, Manitoba and the Northwestern border states."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Many a barber chair occupant is cut and dried.

And lots of young men act sensibly until they fall in love.

A short answer may turn a blissful honeymoon into matrimonial strife.

The man who claims to be able to do anything he wants to seldom wants to do anything.

A wise man never asks a woman her age; he simply tells her she doesn't look it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The thing that worries a man about being rich is how he can get richer.

The redder a girl's hair is the safer it is to tell her that it is silken sunshine.

One thing that helps a man to be a good husband is not caring whether he enjoys life or not.

Quarrelsome people can get just as mad with you for agreeing with them as for differing from them.

People think they know how to raise children when they don't even know enough to raise vegetables.

The Claim Chaser.

New York Globe: Efforts to hamstring the ambulance chaser and put him out of business as effectively as possible are made from time to time—altogether too sporadically, it is true—but we do not hear as much of the evil wrought by his counterpart, the claim chaser, as we should. The other day a plaintiff who had lost his leg in the service of the defendant corporation brought suit, and was met with the prompt defense that within a day after the ambulance chaser could and had prevailed upon him to give up a right to proper indemnification for his loss—in consideration of a mere pittance. He was ignorant. He could hardly have understood certain terms of the document he signed. And he was doubtless greatly distraught by his terrible misfortune. Yet it was all but impossible for him to prove that he had been imposed upon.

Taft Yarn.

Leslie's Weekly: A veteran newspaper correspondent at Washington tells the following story of President Taft: On the occasion of Mr. Taft's call in Washington to see the president over Sunday after his terrible speech-making trip through the West and South in 1908, with a more terrible trip yet ahead of him, suffering from a throat that threatened to make him speechless and from physical exhaustion bordering almost on prostration, a friend called at the White House to see him on an important matter. "Mr. Taft," said the friend, "will you permit me to say you look mighty good in the White House?" "Quit your fooling," was the quick reply, "and come over here in the corner and talk to a poor, broken-down old man who ought to be in a Turkish bath, with a wet towel around his throat."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Moorhead Citizen: Andrew Carnegie has announced a contribution for the purpose of reforming Pittsburg. At last, it would seem, he has found a method by which he might die poor.

New Ulm Review: Whatever division of sentiment there may be throughout the country as regards Theodore Roosevelt, there certainly exists none as to his genial and womanly wife. The whole nation takes its hat off to the retiring mistress of the White House.

Rochester Bulletin: Taft's appointment of J. M. Dickinson of Tennessee to the cabinet position of secretary of war is being criticised by the narrow-minded. Mr. Dickinson is a pronounced Democratic leader, but an able man of unimpeachable character, and Taft's independence in the selection of his cabinet is a most encouraging sign.

Norman County Herald: We believe in giving the devil his due, and will state that Congressman Stenerson of this district was the only congressman from Minnesota to vote against the subsidy bill.

Austin Transcript: Roosevelt's special messages to congress will be good reading for a generation. They contain the wisest discussion of public policies and needs which have been issued in seven years pat. If congres had heeded them more instead of harking so much to the corporate interests, the country would have been far better off.

Iron Trade Journal: A bill prohibiting actresses from wearing red, white and blue tights has been introduced in the state legislature. Talk about freak legislation! Ten chances to one, the author of the bill is baldheaded and a regular front-row patron of some near-decent showhouse, and has introduced the bill to fool the folks at home.

Barnesville Record-Review: It is to be hoped that in the "push and pull" for all manner of appropriations our legislators will not lose sight of the great and urgent need of an appropriation for a suitable building in which to house the thousands of valuable volumes, portraits, bound newspaper files, curios and relics in the possession of the State Historical society in the new capitol are already overcrowded, and there are thousands of dollars' worth of its possessions stored in the old capitol, where the danger from fire is great, and as a vast amount of this property cannot be duplicated at any price, it would seem the height of folly to permit present conditions to continue a day longer than necessary.

Mankato Free Press: Maybe some of those United States senators are mad because Uncle Ike Stephenson has raised the price of seats in the rich man's club.

Perham Enterprise: Why wouldn't it be a good idea to have the presidential inauguration ceremonies held in Minnesota, where they would be sure of fine weather?

GOOD-BYE.

How oft amid the busy throng
That hurries to and fro,
An old acquaintance comes along,
A face with smiles aglow,
A kind commutual "pleased to meet,"
A twinkle of the eye.
Then each in careless tones repeat
The fateful word "Good-bye."

Ah! cruel word that wounds the heart
And brings the bitter tears,
That bids the smile of hope depart
And darkens future years.
What universal sorrows blend,
What anguish they imply,
As friends in parting from a friend
Exchange a sad "Good-bye."

In anguish deep my soul rebels,
My heart grows faint with fear;
Its direful utterance so foretells
Of severed ties so dear.
It comes the fairest dream to mar,
To cloud the brightest sky.
Oh! say "Farewell" or "Au Revoir."
But never say "Good-bye."

VIOLA.

Nobody of Any Importance.

Chicago Tribune: Nobody, perhaps, except the people, is really concerned about raising the Maine.

Frank It, Mail It.

Minneapolis Journal: Send a nice little package of structural steel to the old folks at home. It's cheap.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Kansas City Journal: "In days of old were knights easily so bold?"

"They could well afford to be. A man in sheet iron could hug a girl without getting lacerated by the pins in her waist."

Judge: Mr. Ruffly—I called because I thought you were out

Miss Pert—Well, I thought I was too. The maid must have thought you were some one else.

Washington Post: "Have any of you farmers been uplifted as yet?"

"Yep," answered Mr. Corntossel. "Day before yesterday Si Smilling was hit from behind by an automobile."

Cleveland Leader: "What are the names of that young couple next door?"

"We won't be able to find out for several weeks. They've just been married and he calls her Birdie, and she calls him Pettie."

St. Louis Times: Reporter—Do you think this long-distance walking benefits you?

Mr. Economy—Sure! I save 5 cents every trip.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Where is El Dorado?"

"In the back of magazines. When I read of the money to be made in Belgian hares and squabs, I grow supercilious with wealth."

Chicago News: Milton—Yes, I'm willing to admit that women have much better complexions than men.

Ethel—Naturally.

Milton—No, artistically.

National Grange: He—I love you, of course—but the medium said I'd marry a blonde.

She—Oh, I'll fix that up.

Washington Star: "Did you ever feel that the world was against you?"

"Sure. I felt it this morning when I slipped on the sidewalk."

Chicago Tribune: "I presume you have a family tree, Joe," observed his friend.

"Sure," answered Joe Miller. "It's a chestnut."

But this being aparently original, was omitted from his published works.

The Recall.

Philadelphia Ledger: Never, perhaps, in the history of America, except during the critical times of the founding of the nation or during the Civil war, has there been so widespread and deep an interest in political, sociological and what are called governmental questions. In recent years the attention of the people has been drawn sharply to the subject of popular election of senators and popular nominations of all sorts of officials by means of primaries. The initiative and referendum is a device which many people think so highly of that when it has been adopted its advocates count the battle of free and good government already won, and now the "recall" is to cap and crown and real salvation of political society, where all the other laws exhibited some defect due to the persistence of perverse human nature.

Our First.

Utica (N. Y.) Times: The first cargo of oats ever landed at any United States port from a foreign country, arrived in New York on Friday. It came from Buenos Ayres on the steamer St. Quentin, and consisted of about 200,000 bushels in bulk. The importation was made, it is claimed, on acount of the scarcity and high price of the staple here. Secretary Wilson believes the United States can grow all the food required here for man and beast, and he will not take kindly to the import of oats from Brazil. His soil experts will be required to get a hustle on in the interest of a greater oat production.

ASSAULTED IN HER ROOM

West Duluth Woman Is Attacked by Two Men.

Prisoners Are Claimed to Have Entered Room at Midnight.

Charged with criminally assaulting Mrs. Milia Naranchich early yesterday morning at her boarding house 6520 Raleigh street, Toney Smaltz, age 28, and Vasily Luziach, age 33, are being held at the Central police station.

The assault is alleged to have taken place at about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, and the two men were arrested later in the morning by Officer Mike McDermott. The arrest was made at 701 West Superior street, which is a boarding house run by Luziach. Smaltz is one of his boarders.

According to the story told by Mrs. Naranchich, the two men entered her room in her boarding house, where she was sleeping alone, and said that they had come to West Duluth to look for one of Luziach's boarders, who had jumped his board. She ordered them from the room. Out in the hallway they held a whispered consultation and returned to her room, where, while Luziach held her, with his hand over her mouth, Smaltz assaulted her. But when Luziach attempted to assault her, she claims that she sprang to her feet, freed herself, and drove the man back with a chair.

Mrs. Naranchich fears the wrath of her husband when he returns from the woods and learns what has happened. She says that Smaltz attacked her once before at Stephenson, Minn., but that she could not prove that Smaltz was guilty.

Mrs Naranchich speaks little English and Nichlos Pavkovich acts as her interpreter.

The men were arraigned this morning and their hearing set for tomorrow afternoon.

MYSTERY IS UNSOLVED

Nothing Yet Heard From Norman Patton of West Duluth.

Father Disappeared in Similar Manner Many Years Ago.

It is now almost two weeks since the last was heard from Norman Patton, the linen buyer for Panton & White, who has so strangely disappeared. He was last seen in Pittsburg a week ago last Thursday. Since then absolutely nothing has been heard from him.

The young man's mother and wife, who is a bride of but little over two months, are stricken with grief. Neither can account for his unexplained absence. His wife says that the last letter she received from her lost husband was postmarked New York. It was full of affectionate longing to be home again with her, and joy that his business would not detain him much longer.

Mr. Patton's disappearance has brought to the memories of many of the friends of the afflicted family the fact that the young man's father, when Norman was but an infant, dropped as mysteriously from the lives of his family as has his son has recently done.

When questioned concerning this this morning, Mrs. W. Langslow, the missing man's mother, admited that her husband had strangely disappeared and after several years of fruitless waiting for him, he was given up as dead, though there was no absolute proof for such belief. After ten years he again returned home. His wife secured a divorce, later marrying Mr. Langslow.

Mrs. Langslow also says that while a boy her former husband ran away from his home in Canada and enlisted in the British army, and was not heard from for two years.

"Those traits in his father can have no bearing on the disappearance of Norman," stoutly claimed the mother and wife. "Something must have happened to him. I cannot believe that he could have inherited his father's trait of leaving home. His father went to Panama. If Norman had planned to leave us, why did he go to Pittsburg. Why didn't he take a steamer from New York for some far away land?"

BRINGS BODY ACROSS SEA

West Duluth Girl Died of Tuberculosis in Finland.

Father Had Body Brought Back for Burial Here.

Mrs. Charles Hill of Midway arrived yesterday in Duluth after a long sad journey across the Atlantic and nearly half way across the United States, with the body of her 16-year-old daughter, who died of tuberculosis at Helsingfors, Finland.

The mother and her daughter left Duluth Nov. 30 last for the old country, believing that the climate of Finland might help the child regain her health. They stopped at Helsingfors with relatives. But the climate did not prove as beneficial as it was hoped, and the child died.

The father in this country would not have his daughter buried in the distant land, so cabled his wife to bring the body home for burial. Mrs. Hill arrived yesterday and was met at the train by her husband. The casket containing the girl was placed in a carriage and driven over the hill to Midway to be buried in the Pine Hill cemetery.

SWIPED TRAMP'S CLOTHES.

Shivering Wanderer Chased Boys to Regain His Raiment.

West Duluth people residing in the neighborhood of Central avenue and Main street were thrown into a state of excitement Saturday afternoon, when two small boys came running down the street hotly pursued by a scantily clad man, who appeared to have lost his reason as well as his clothes.

Lieut. Wilcox rounded up both the pursued and the pursuer. The latter claimed to be a free lance of the road, and his appearance bore him out in his statement. He said he had arrived in West Duluth that morning on the bumpers of a Northern Pacific freight train. While in West Duluth he had bought himself a clean undershirt for his annual spring change. In order to avoid the gaze of the public while making the change, he sought the protection of the Central avenue bridge at Main street. He hung his outer garments on the bridge girders, and receded farther into the shadow to complete the job, when two youngsters came along, grabbed his clothing and set off at a run. He explained that there was nothing left for him to do but to give chase.

The lieutenant saw that the boys returned the clothing, and made the man promise that he would clear out of town as soon as he could.

FURNACE IS BLOWN OUT

Big Plant at West Duluth Will be Repaired.

Operations have been suspended at the blast furnace of the Zenith Furnace company. Saturday the furnace was blown out, so that repairs can be made on the lining. This will not in any way affect the other departments of the plant, and it is said that no men will be laid off during the furnace's inactivity.

The blowing out of the furnace has been anticipated for some time. There are three holes burned through the firebrick lining, which will take from six weeks to two months to repair. The cost will be over $12,000.

BUY OLD CHURCH.

West Duluth Austrians May Have Edifice of Their Own.

J. E. Foubister has purchased the old St. James Catholic church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Lexington street and is moving it to Main street on Fifty-seventh avenue west. When it is placed on its new site, it will be remodeled and in all probability be used by the Austrian Catholics for their place of worship. Nichlos Pavkovich, who leads the West Duluth Austrians, says that his people will buy the building if satisfactory terms can be made.

The old church when it was built seventeen years ago cost $6,000. Father Roy was its first pastor. The new St. James church cost about $30,000 and is a much larger building, probably seating 1,000 people, where the old one only held 300. The sale of the old church brought $600.

GIVE CASES TO JURIES

Sum of $5,000 Asked for Death of Workman in Mine.

Good Faith of Whitely Questioned as Defense to Notes.

Two cases were given to juries in district court about noon today. In Judge Dibell's courtroom, the suit of James H. Whitely, against Fred L. Chandler was completed, and before Judge Cant the suit of John Mestnik, as administrator of the estate of Joseph Mestnik, against the Malta Iron company, went to the jury.

The Mestnik case dragged through several days and some interesting points were raised. All of the testimony was taken by Friday evening and the arguments were made this morning. Joseph Mestnik met his death in the Malta mine at Sparta last year, through the burning of a mule barn. The flames cut off his escape and he was suffocated.

The suit, which was for $5,000 for the benefit of the wife and two children, was based on the contention that the company had been negligent in locating the mule barn where it did, as, in the case of a fire, the men in the lower levels of the mine were cut off from escape. The company claimed the barn was located in the best possible site that could be found, and further that the fire was caused by the negligence of a fellow employe of Mestnik, who fell asleep in the barn, with a lighted cigarette, and caused the fire, and was not by the negligence of the company.

During the progress of the trial Howard T. Abbott made a motion for dismissal and another motion for a directed verdict, but Judge Cant overruled him and allowed the case to go to the jury. Samuel A. Anderson and John Helno conducted the case for the plaintiff.

James H. Whitely sued Fred L. Chandler for $1,350 on promissory notes given by Mr. Chandler on the purchase of fifty shares of stock in the Evener Manufacturing company in May, 1907. Mr. Whitely, who was secretary and treasurer of the Evener Manufacturing company, claimed that he was a bona fide holder of the notes, they having been transferred to him by the company for a valuable consideration by the company, without his having notice of any defense to their payment.

Mr. Chandler claimed that Mr. Whitely was not a bona fide helder and the defense of fraud and misrepresentation, which would have been available against Mr. Whitely. He claimed that N. H. Smith, who promoted the company, fraudulently misrepresented the facts to him, inducing him to make the purchase of stock and give the notes in payment.

Gidding's Formal Opening.

Today, tomorrow and Wednesday are opening days at the Gidding store. The garment exhibits are now at their best, and critical women will no doubt welcome this opportunity to acquaint themselves with the exclusive styles of the season. The Gidding opening is the fashion event of the setson, that definitely determines what Duluth women will wear for the season. ***

SPRING STYLES BEING SHOWN

Much of Interest for Duluth Women in Gidding's Opening

In the whirl of soft colors and softer fabrics the Gidding establishment clothed its store today for the formal spring opening. Suits and gowns for spring and summer wear in the new colors and the new styles were the center of much interested attention. The severe tailor mades in the new colors, olivette, atlantic, canard, cedre, burnt rose, doubonnet, buff, stone green, amethyst and brownish and bluish greens, are of course the first things to attract attention, for a suit is the first point of interest in any wardrobe. Navy blue, and black and white in combination, are making some of the smartest spring models and are among the stylish costumes worn in the East. The slant cutaway is to be a favorite model and the coat on straight lines will be much worn. The linings are often a contrast in color to the suit, or in tones of the suit color or the trimming.

Trotteur dresses in soft colors and in fabrics that have a satiny finish are altogether charming in the new rose tones and blues and a new golden shade that is particularly effective. The linen trotteur dresses appear in shades of linen that are irresistible and button trimmings seem to predominate here. Each dress seems to be ornamented with about 379 separate and distinct buttons, the favorite size being about that of a quarter and even the most ambitious girl gets discouraged in trying to name to the end, rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, etc. They are all one piece dresses, no other style seeming to be possible according to the present modes.

The hats have become almost all crown, and jet trimmings are very popular. Small flowers and ribbons will appear in the spring millinery most prominently, according to this advance showing.

The novelties and dress accessories are always interesting. Jet will be prominent in these pretty pins and buckles and hair ornaments and the semi precious stones in the amethyst, coral, turquoise and topaz in odd and interesting mountings, are not the least interesting of the many beautiful things shown.

In the junior department the tailor-made costumes in three pieces and the simple but attractive tub frocks for children and young girls are always the center of much interest to mothers with girls at the difficult age to clothe, and this department always receives enthusiastic attention.

During these opening days there is in fact, no department of the store but is in gala furnishings for this first announcement of the coming of spring.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP POPULAR IN GILBERT.

Gilbert, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council will tonight decide on the franchises that have been asked for by electric companies of Gilbert, Virginia and Eveleth. From present indications it looks as if neither will get the franchise, as the business men are satisfied to use their present gas systems, and think that the franchise is too valuable to be given away. Most of the business men in town favor building a municipal plant.

The Golds live in a one-room hut on Walnut street, and besides the little fellow that died a little girl still remains.

This family came to Chisholm immediately after the fire from Cass Lake, and for a short time lived without any shelter over their heads whatever. Cold weather set in, and Mr. Gold secured some lumber and built a hut and moved in what little lumber they had. They have had no bed whatever, so in one corner a bunk was erected, where the Golds slept, and underneath the children slept.

Chisholm Needs Laundry.

Chisholm, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This town is badly in need of a steam laundry. ONLY TWO MORE DAYS

"Ben Bur" Essays Must Be in by Wednesday Evening.

No Essay Received After That Time Will Be Considered.

There are only two more days to get the "Ben Hur" essays in. Many paid heed to the hurry-up call in The Herald Saturday evening and the mails this morning brought many essays that had been written Saturday.

One thing that must be kept in mind, is that the contest closes at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. No essay received after that time will be accepted. The Herald has made but few conditions governing the contest, but the few that have been made will be strictly lived up to.

Interest in the plan by which 150 school children are to see the play from the best seats in the theater, seems to grow greater each day. The letters have come in with a rush since the story was finished Friday evening, and it looks as though the teachers who are to judge the contest are going to have their hands full.

The two days left will probably be big ones. Many have wished to thoroughly study the book before writing their essays, and these will, in all probability, not come in until the very last minute. The Herald advises each entrant to get the essay in as soon as possible, however, as it is the wish of the people to have some idea as to how many there will be all told. The eighteen teachers selected by Supt. Denfeld to do the judging, may have to be added to, so that the work may be finished up in a short time. If this is to be the case, The Herald wants to know it in time to avoid confusion.

The final installment of the story that is being read to the pupils in the schools by the teachers, was placed in the hands of Mr. Denfeld today. The final chapter will be finished Tuesday, and there will then still be time to get the essays in before closing time.

Teachers all over the city report much interest in the contest. When the teachers who are to decide the winners start their work, they will probably have several hundreds papers to look over and judge.

Remember the time—Wednesday at 6 o'clock—the contest closes.

and that there will be no rules revision. The election of Cannon as speaker is conceded.

The speaker was Saturday nominated by the house Republican caucus for re-election by a big majority, although hardly any of the insurgents attended the caucus. The vote: Cannon, 162; Smith, 10; Tawney, 7; Keifer, 5; Representative Crumpacker of Indiana, 1, and Representative McGuire of Oklahoma 1.

The house Democratic caucus was held at 10 this morning, and Champ Clark was nominated for speaker by unanimous vote. He made a short address, urging the Democrats to united action.

To Bind Insurgents.

The members of the Georgia delegation, who had prepared a set of resolutions proposing to bind the Republican insurgents to vote against Cannon for speaker, to favor free debate and unrestricted amendment to the tariff bill, and and to favor the adoption of a new set of rules, offered a resolution proposing that each and every Democratic member of the house present at the caucus be bound by its election.

Representative Henry of Texas presided during the selection of officers, which resulted in the re-election of Representative Clayton of Alabama as chairman. Representative Robinson of Arkansas was elected secretary and Representative Underwood of Alabama was recognized by the chairman to present his resolution, which pledged the members to support the Democratic leader "in his efforts to overthrow the present arbitrary rules of the house and to adopt rules that will enable the majority of the representatives in congress to legislate." The resolution says:

"To accomplish that end we favor the enlargement of the number of the members of the rules committee to fifteen, to be elected by the members of the house and we favor a thorough and complete revision of the rules of the house."

The resolution also declares "we denounce the present rules as a machine intended to thwart and destroy the representative character of the house, and to enable the speaker of the house to absolutely control legislation, regardless of the will of the majority."

The Democratic caucus adjourned until 8 tonight after adopting the Underwood resolution, binding Democrats to support Clark, in seeking enlargement of the rules committee.

There were five absentees, as follows: Shepard of Texas; Clark of Florida; Goldfogel, New York; Legare, South Carolina, McDermott, Illinois. Of these, Representatives Shepard and Goldfogel are expected to attend the organization of the house. Mr. Underwood's resolution was opposed by Representative Livingstone of Georgia and several other members.

Those selected to continue in the positions which the Democratic caucus has the power to fill are: Joseph Sinnott of Virginia, special messenger; Robert Cowart, Texas and Paul Porter, Mississippi, messengers.

Before the vote was taken on the Underwood resolution, Representative Livingston of Georgia offered the resolution proposed by the Georgians, and a lively debate followed. By this time 167 of the Democratic members of the house were present. Representative Moon of Tennessee left the caucus before it had taken any action on the rules question. He declared that his vote could be counted on by Mr. Clark, but that it was against his principles to be bound by any caucus.

Samuel M. Gilmore, who was elected March 10 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Davey of Louisiana, was here to vote in the house this afternoon, there being some question as to the legality of his election. There also is a vacancy on the Republican side of the house through the election to the senate of Representative Burton of Ohio. Representative Clark of Florida claims to have arranged for a pair.

If Representative McDermott cannot be counted on to vote with the Democrats, their total strength will be 168 when the previous question is moved by Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania in the house today.

There was some indication that the Republican "regulars" were planning to delay action on the adoption of rules for the Sixty-first congress in order to secure more time in which to assemble their forces.

The Underwood resolution to bind Democratic members to support Champ Clark was adopted, and the Livingstone resolution, which proposed to bind the Republican insurgents to vote against Mr. Cannon for speaker, was voted down.

The Democratic nominations for offices of the house were made as follows:

For clerk, Former Representative Kimball of Kentucky; for sergeant-at-arms, J. T. Ellington of North Carolina, and for postmaster, Robert L. Douglas of South Carolina. No nominee for doorkeeper was selected.

HERBERT SHARVY PASSES AWAY

Popular Duluth Young Man Dies After Long Illness.

Herbert Norman Sharvy, a well-known Duluth boy, who lived here all of the twenty-five years of his life, died Saturday evening at 11:45, after a lingering illness.

While Mr. Sharvy had been ill for a long time, and his death was not altogether unexpected, it was nevertheless a shock to his many friends in the city.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30, at Trinity Procathedral, Twentieth avenue east and Superior street. Mr. Sharvy was a prominent member of the parish, and was secretary of the Sunday school. The interment will take place at Forest Hill cemetery.

Herbert N. Sharvy was born in Duluth, Jan. 19, 1884. Most of his school days were spent in Duluth, and he graduated from the Central high school, a member of the class of '04. He took a keen and active interest in high school affairs, and was mascot of his class. He was also prominent in the Delta Theta fraternity, the secret societies not at that time being under a ban.

After finishing high school, Mr. Sharvy went to Bliss Electrical school, Washington, D. C., from which he graduated with honors.

At one time he was active in the local National Guard.

Mr. Sharvy was the son of the late Paul Sharvy. His mother survives him.

WOODSMEN BACK FROM THE CAMPS

Beginning to Decorate the Sunny Side of the Street Again.

The woodsmen are beginning to come in to town, and the warm, sunny spots on the street corners are once more occupied with "jacks" back from the big woods.

The lumber camps are beginning to break up, and the men are straggling back into town to look for new jobs and slip out again on railroad work. Most of them are in no hurry to return, and prefer to spend a few days in the city.

The "jacks" are the surest sign of spring, and a crowd of woodsmen lonfing against the sunny side of a building, or a lumber pile, is better than the first robin.

the nomination which would compel him to give up his fight against the insurgents, who desire to change the rules of the house, which Cannon has upheld.

At the Springfield End.

Springfield, Ill., March 15.—The impression is strong among the different factions which have developed the senatorial dead-lock that a crisis is approaching and that a shift of votes is coming which will break the deadlock before long. On all sides is heard the opinion that an effort will be made to pull down the plum for Senator Hopkins. The anti-Hopkins men declare it to be a final effort after which, if it fails, the futility of further attempts will be apparent.

In some circles, it is considered that the most strenuous attempt to be elected will be made by Senator Hopkins this week, when there will be three legislative days in which joint ballots will be taken.

promise had agreed on William D. Stephens, providing he would accept the election for whatever period the city attorney held was the unexpired term. Stephens declined to become recall candidate against Harper.

The only names used in the talk of new men last night were Dr. Walter Lindell, Lee C. Gates and W. M. Bowen, former president of the council. It was announced that Gates would not accept the election, and Stephens did not give any answer.

Efforts to bring about a compromise that would mean the withdrawal of George Alexander, the recall candidate from the race, were impeded by the fact that if Alexander withdrew, the only candidate on the ticket would be Fred C. Wheeler, Socialist nominee. The chairman of the Socialist committee says Wheeler will not be withdrawn under any circumstances, as the Socialists are devoted to the recall and believe the law authorizing the election valid. If Alexander should withdraw, and leave Wheeler a clear field, of course, Wheeler would get all the votes cast at the election, unless the Prohibitionists got out a large enough vote to give their candidate a majority. The Prohibition candidate is not on the ticket, and the Prohibitionists are preparing to write his name on the ticket.

A great crowd of citizens is besieging the city hall and the council chamber is jammed with citizens interested in the outcome of the recall movement.

HILL DENIES REPORT.

St. Paul, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The report is untrue; the Great Northern is not making investments in the Crows Nest mines in British Columbia, or in any other section."

James J. Hill commented thus on a report from Toronto that Mr. Hill or the interests he represents, has secured control of the mines at Crows Nest Pass, north of Spokane, in Alberta.

Many Settlers Coming.

Crookston, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Ball has returned from an extended trip in the Middle West and he claims that there will be many people from Illinois coming to this section the coming spring and summer. He found sentiment very favorable toward Polk county and the Red River valley, and there is every reason to believe that much land will change hands and many new settlers will locate here.

Worth Reading.

It is a matter of greatest encouragement to all who are interested in sanitation and hygienic reform that our statesmen and government officials are at last coming to recognize the fact that the health, energy and stamina of the people of the United States is the greatest asset which this nation possesses. It is also a matter of importance to know that the daily use of golden grain belt beer is conducive to good health. It gives a feeling of bodily comfort and mental exhilaration and makes red blood and health tissue. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

NO RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Riders Unable to Keep Their Feet on Ski Hill.

Longest Standing Jump Was 128 Feet By Ole Fiering.

No records were broken at the ski tournament pulled off on Chester hill by the members of the Duluth club yesterday. The weather was the best experienced this year for the spectators, and a good program was furnished.

August Norby, Superior, was the winner of the tournament in the professional class. He had 407 points. Olaf Jannum of Minneapolis was second with 405 points, and Olaf Larson of Duluth was third with 375. The longest standing jump was 128 feet by Ole Fiering.

In the amateur class the winners were: Arnold Olson, Duluth, 354; H. Hindrum, Duluth, 321; E. Bergslin, Superior, 303.

The weather was very mild yesterday and the riders claim that the snow was too sticky for the best results. The speed gained by the riders was the greatest of the year, but many of them had much difficulty in keeping their feet, so slippery did the slide become after having been used for some time.

One queer feature of the tournament was the fact that the Duluth men who have been hot favorites in this line of sport for some years past, and who are nearly always in on the prize money, fell away back in yesterday's events.

Next Sunday a benefit tournament will be held for Christ Gunhus, who broke his leg two weeks ago.

SPORT NOTES

Ole Boy, the Superior horse owned by Martin Thorpe, won the Hendersón cup donated earlier in the season by James Henderson. He won his third event Saturday on the ice track at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west. W. G. Shive's Bonnesita and C. R. Rust's Tomango had a chance as one had captured two races and the other one. The blanket donated by J. H. Constantine for competition in the 2:20 class will probably go over until next year a sthe season is now practically over and there seems to be little interest in horse racing.

In an interview recently, Walter Whitehead's manager said that he would soon take the big negro west and fight him with the best in that part of the country. The fight game in and around Duluth is not now what it was some little time ago, and all the engagements for this part of the country have been cancelled. Tonight in Wisconsin George Gunther, the colored man who says he is from Australia and has been quite a noise around the Head of the Lakes since he hit the country some time ago, will meet Tony Capont. Whitehead, it is likely, will meet Gunther some time next month and directly after the fight he will be taken West by his manager.

Chuck O'Connell has been matched with Nick Constantine. They will meet some time next month, although, the place or exact date of the meeting has not been decided on.

"I'LL FIGHT, BUT ON MY OWN TERMS"

Jack Johnson, Champion, Makes This Statement in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., March 15.—Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, champion heavyweight of the world, arrived in St. Paul at 6 o'clock last evening from Vancouver, and left shortly after 8 o'clock for Chicago. Johnson said he had heard nothing from Jeffries regarding a fight.

"I will fight Jeffries," said the colored man, "if he makes the challenge, but it will be on my terms. I've fought always with the other fellow getting the best of the terms. No more of that for me."

AN AMATEUR LEAGUE.

Upper Peninsula Teams May Get Together and Play Organized Ball.

Marquette, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A baseball league, made up of teams representing the iron and copper regions of Upper Michigan, is in prospect. It will be a strictly amateur organization, and will play on a schedule calling only for Saturday, Sunday and holiday games.

Marquette, Ishpeming and Negaunee, in the Iron country, and Houghton and Calumet, and either Lake Linden or Hancock, in the Copper country, are the prospjective members, and a meeting of representatives from the two districts will be held in this city shortly to discuss and formally pass upon the project.

ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTING FORECAST FOR THE WEEK

Every pugilistic enthusiast in the world is waiting eagerly for definite news as to whether James J. Jeffries will agree to meet Jack Johnson in a contest for the heavyweight championship of the world. The recent arrival in this country of Hugh D. McIntosh of Sydney, Australia, has added greatly to the public interest in the possibility of such a contest, but considerable feeling has developed that McIntosh's offer of a purse for the match on foreign soil should not be accepted, and that the question as to the merits of the men should be decided here. It is known that Jeffries is not inclined to fight abroad and that if he decides to re-enter the ring he probably would favor the offer for a world's championship battle in Seattle during the exposition there. He has taken up road work in connection with the light indoor exercise he has been doing and will continue this work the coming week. Jeffries tells his friends that his wind is improving rapidly and he says he intends to work up gradually, if possible, to his real fighting trim.

It is no secret among friends of Jeffries that he is anxious to fight Johnson and has practically made up his mind to do so as soon as he feels sure that he will be able to do himself justice in the ring. Johnson, who has declared his willingness to fight Jeffries, is expected to be in the East within the next two weeks and it may be that he and Jeffries' manager will then come to an agreement.

American bicycle riders will compete at the Zoological Gardens, Berlin, in a six-day bicycle race this week. The race will begin today on the same conditions which govern the annual New York race. Among the American riders who will compete are Floyd Macfarland, San Jose, Cal.; Walter Demara, San Francisco and James Moran, Chelsea, Mass., and Jack Clark, an Australian who is now racing under American colors, is also entered.

The New York Athletic club will hold its annual indoor carnival at Madison Square Garden Tuesday. Every athlete of prominence in eastern colleges and clubs has sent in his entry.

Tonight Dorando Pietro of Italy and Johnny Hayes, winner of the London Olympic Marathon, will meet in Madison Square Garden for the third time in a match to settle the question of Marathon supremacy. Dorando broke down at Sheppard's Bush and Hayes fell a victim to Dorando's prowess last fall in New York.

The Marathon wave has hit Pittsburg and two contests have been arranged in that city for the 16th and 30th of this month. The indoor track measures seven laps to the mile. On Tuesday, ten men will qualify there to meet five New York amateur distance men, including E. H. White, Tom Morrissey, Samuel Meller and M. J. Ryan at the full Marathon distance in the Pittsburg rink on March 30.

DINHAM STILL IN ALL THE EVENTS

Youthful Skip Is This Year Establishing a Good Record.

That "boy" curler, Will Dinham, is certainly showing the members of the Duluth Curling club that he is in the game all the time. His two rinks got down to the finals and semi-finals in one event; he has the board of trade buttons, and he is still in the race for the other events, with the season nearly over.

Saturday he met and defeated Nichols in two events, the Bagley and Manley. He has lost but few games all season, and in addition to honors already won, he is class winner in the Bagley and squad winner in the Manley.

Play in the bonspiel for the board of trade buttons begins tonight. Only C class rinks are entitled to enter the contest, as it is a C class event. The games committee has the C class bonspiel in charge, and they made the draw this morning.

CLUBHOUSE IS NOW ON ITS WAY

Yacht Club Main House Being Moved Down the Ice.

The clubhouse of the Duluth Yacht club will be in its new location by nightfall. H. W. Reau, who is superintending the work, had fourteen teams of horses on the ice at an early hour this morning, and the clubhouse was soon on its way gliding down the ice to its future resting place.

The old pavilion, near the White City, has been moved out on the ice, and the piling is being driven so that no time will be lost in getting the buildings on their foundations before the ice weakens.

It is estimated that the improvements being made by the Boat club will cost more than $15,000. The Yacht club launch houses are being torn down and being rebuilt at the main house of the Boat club. Teams are engaged in hauling the lumber as fast as it can be ripped off, and the work is going ahead very rapidly.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT IS INACTIVE THUS FAR IN BLACK HAND MURDER

Rome, March 15.—The question is raised here whether the United States is entitled to special satisfaction from the Italian government on account of the murder of Lieut. Joseph Petrosino, of the New York police department at Palermo. While the nature of the crime was such as to stir the hearts of all the people, the officials of the government point out that only the diplomatic and consular bodies are under the special protection of the government and that only in the event of a member of one or the other of these bodies being assassinated by an Italian in this country could the government be held in a measure responsible. Petrosino did not come under this head, but was in the same category as an American citizen, abroad, contemplated in the treaty comtemplated Feb. 26, 1871, establishing that the subjects of each country shall enjoy the same protection and security for their person and property as natives.

The American ambassador has made further representations to the foreign office setting forth the imperative necessity for the protection of both Italians and Americans of bringing assassins of Petrosino to justice. The foreign office officials assured him that everything possible was being done by the Italian government and promised that she should be kept informed of all developments. The general inspector of police has already proceeded to Palermo to make a full investigation and the government in addition to leaving nothing untried to discover the criminals, has offered large rewards for their capture.

Italians Arrested.

New York, March 15.—Lieut. Antonio Vocharis, chief assistant to Detective Joseph Petrosino, who was killed by assassins in Sicily, has arested four Italians in the Italian quarter of Brooklyn. Vocharis, who was assisted by half a dozen men from the Italian criminal squad, took the men into custody only after one of their number had fought desperately to escape.

The men arrested are Amadio Pietro, Vito Andraguo, Vito Velo and Stefano Castronove. It is intimated Vacharis has reason to believe that the men had knowledge of the plot to kill Petrosino. Castronove, the man who attempted to escape, is said to have recently come here from Chicago, where he is alleged to have been a leader of the Black Hand groups. Revolvers and stilettos were found on the prisoners.

Seven other arrests of Italian suspects were made in this city yesterday.

Inspector McCafferty, head of the detective service, has made some caustic remarks over the neglect on the part of the Italian police. Said he:

"If an Italian detective, sent here on a mission by that government and working in behalf of the Italian police, had been murdered in New York we would have notified the slain man's home people. So far as the police of Sicily are concerned, we have not heard a word of Petrosino's death. I cabled Saturday for information, but have received no answer from Palermo."

Wonders as to Robbery.

The inspector said that he was particularly anious to know whether Petrosino was robbed after being shot. He intimated that Petrosino had some papers valuable to the police here in running down Black Hand and other Italian offenders. The neglect of the Palmero police makes it impossible for the police here to know whether Petrosino had these papers in his pocket when slain and whether or not the assassins secured them. The inspector said Petrosino had letters of instruction from the department here, which, if stolen by the murderers, would reveal to the Italian criminals just what plans the police of New York have on foot.

"If the police have any papers that Petrosino had," said Inspector McCafferty, "we would like to know it."

To the quesaion if Italian criminals here had requested confederates in Italy to kill Petrosino in that country, Inspector McCafferty said he doubted that theory. Petrosino was constantly in perilous positions in New York, the inspector said, and that if criminals of this country would have dared to kill him at all they would have done it in this city. Petrosino, he said, was frequently alone in dark places in New York, in Italian dives and even on his way home late at night, when the criminal class had an opportunity to carry out his murder.

Mrs. Petrosino, the young wife of the murdered detective, is prostrated as the result of the tragic death of her husband.

SAY COERCION IN HASKELL'S CASE

Motions to Quash Indictments Charge Testimony Suppression.

Muskogee, Okla., March 15.—Sensational allegations are contained in motions to quash the indictments against Governor Haskell and other prominent Oklahoma men charged by the government with conspiracy in connection with the Muskogee townsite scheduling, filed here on behalf of the defendants and served on Assistant United States District Attorney Gregg.

The motions charge misconduct on the part of the special assistant attorney general, Sylvester Rush of Omaha, who conducted the grand jury examinations. It is alleged that government secret service operatives gave hearsay testimony before the grand jury, that important testimony was suppressed, that the government denied the jury's request for certain testimony, that witnesses were coerced and held in subjection, and that Rush told the jury that indictments should be returned because the government wanted it done.

It is further charged that witnesses, instead of being permitted to testify freely, were confronted with previously prepared statements, purporting to contain their testimony, and forced to say the statements were correct and an implied threat was made by Mr. Rush when a juror attempted to question a witness.

The United States circuit court has been asked to assign a judge to try the case in place of Judge H. F. Campbell of this district, who has declined to preside.

MOORE DEFENDS WEATHER BUREAU

Sends Out Circular Letter Explaining Storm of March 4.

Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau at Washington, has issued the following statement, explaining the failure to predict the storm of March 4, and defending the weather bureau:

"It is not usual to answer criticisms of the forecasts of the weather bureau, but the hundreds of press clippings that have been received since March 4, containing adverse criticisms of the bureau seem to call for this statement from me.

"Forecasts of the weather bureau are before the public every day in the year. In the past about one prediction out of each ten failed to be verified, and it may be expected that the same ratio of failure will be maintained until meteorology can be made, what it is not now, an exact science.

"In the case of the storm that visited Washington on March 4 last, the fact is that the disturbance began here on the morning of the 3rd, and was accurately forecasted the day before. The bureau anticipated that the storm center would pass over the Middle Atantic states during the night of the 3rd, and that northwest winds and falling temperatures would leave a clear day for the 4th. The center passed precisely as forecasted, the wind shifted and the temperature fell, but instead of the northwest wind clearing the sky, as it does in nearly all cases, precipitation, in the form of snow, occurred and continued for twelve hours after the storm center had passed eastward. No forecaster could forsee this. Were we to forecast a fall of snow following the passage of storm centers that move from the northwest, we would have hundreds of failures charged against us, instead of an occasional one, for it is rare that snow falls in the Middle Atlantic states, except with the approach of a storm from the southwest, which causes northeast winds, and it is extremely rare that any storm in this region that begins with rain ends with snow of any considerable amount. On the contrary, many storms that begin as snow end as rain.

"The forecast in question was made by one of the most experienced forecasters of the bureau, and was concurred in by all the forecasters who were conversant with the conditions, and the same forecast would be made today if similar conditions existed.

"The forecasters of the United States weather bureau are the equals, if not the superiors, of any others in the world, and their predictions of frosts, cold waves, floods and marine storms, although subject to error in the proportion of about one to ten, are of such value to the industries of the nation that if one of the newspapers that now so freely criticise because two unverified forecasts for the District of Columbia have fallen on inauguration day were to omit from their pages the daily predictions of the weather, its readers would compel it to restore them, and if the department or congress were to close a station of the bureau in any part of the United States the property interests would demand its restoration. This would not be the case if the hysterical abuse that is now being indulged in was justified."

EAMES GRIEF-STRICKEN

Because Her Name Is Drawn Into the de Gogorza Suit.

New York, March 15.—Emilio de Gogorza, the baritone singer who is on a concert tour with Mme. Emma Eames, is defendant in a maintenance suit instituted by his wife, Mrs. Elsa de Gogorza. According to the allegations made by Mrs. de Gogorza, it is the concert tour which has caused all the trouble. She is suing for separation from her husband, as the same time specifically stating that she has no cause far absolute divorce, as far as she knows. But she does say this:

"We lived happily together until he (meaning her husband) went on a concert tour with one Emma Eames."

As happiness is now a thing of the past as far as she and M. de Gogorza are concerned, according to Mrs. Gogorza, the wife thinks she should have separate maintenance allowed her. In the meantime she wants $250 weekly alimony and an allowance of $2,500 for attorney's fees.

These requests, she thinks, are reasonable. In view of the face, as she states, that her husband makes $10,000 a year by his prowess as a singer. So she went before Justice O'Gorman and asked for the temporary alimony allowance, pending the trial of the suit for separation.

Chicago, March 15.—Mme. Emma Eames, who was at a hotel here yesterday, refused to see reporters, but to a friend who visited her she confided her grief over her name being dragged into the de Gogorza suit. "This is terrible! terrible!" she moaned. "Why should this woman draw my name into her affair? I do not know what her differences with her husband, Signor de Gogorza, may be, but why seek to involve me? What shall I do? The newspapers in all the world probably have the awful story."

CENTRAL LEASE MISINTERPRETED

Does Not Guarantee Dividends on the Preferred Stock.

New York, March 15.—The following statement was issued authoritatively, Saturday: "A misapprehension apparently exists in the minds of many of the holders of the preferred stock of the Wisconsin Central Railway company in regard to the condition of the lease negotiated with the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company, which it is proper should be corrected.

"The lease does not provide for any guaranty of dividends on the preferred stock. The shareholders will be entitled to such distribution of the net revenue as may be available in the discretion of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Central Railway company. The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company leased line certificates will be issued in exchange for the Wisconsin Central preferred stock under a contract independent of the lease.

"The Wisconsin Central railway is a property of great strategic value, and of considerable possibilities, but like all properties that are endeavoring to keep pace with the requirements of a growing business, it now requires large sums of money expended upon it. Among the requirements is the shortening of its line between Minneapolis and Chicago, aditional equipment and further rectification of grades. This is a work that will require several years to complete and naturally means that the money for these undertakings must be provided, which will likely have an effect upon the returns which may be paid upon the stock.

"It was these considerations, among others, which prompted the committee in accepting the offer of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie Railway company, and which the board of directors deemed to be for the very best interest of the preferred shareholders.

"The parties who originally conducted the negotiations were large holders of the preferred stock. They demanded a guaranty of 4 per cent upon this stock, and that an opportunity should be given to all the holders of preferred stock to participate in such guaranty. The result is that the offer is only open to the shareholders for a limited time and the board recommends the prompt deposit of the stock if it is intended to take advantage of the offer made."

LYCEUM—"The Thief."
EIJOU—New vaudeville bill.

"The Thief."

"Love, like opportunity, is an angel that comes but once, and when it comes it ought to be prized and cherished above everything else on earth. Not all the riches of the world can buy it or keep it, and when once it has gone it will never return." Thus says a great writer and an acute observer of mankind. In brief, this is the text of "The Thief," the great play by Henri Bernstein which has had world-wide presentation, which ran for ten months at the Lyceum theater, New York and which Charles Frohman will present at the Lyceum the first half of this week commencing tonight.

In "The Thief" woman's vanity and man's complaisant conceit which too often sacrifices love, are powerfully exhibited, but there also heroin shown that the great chance for the regeneration of both lies in the pure and unselfish love. Bernstein's skillful analysis of this vanity and conceit, his sympathetic treatment of the conflict of two estranged, yet loving hearts and their happy and logical reconciliation explain the universal vogue of "The Thief."

Mme. Eames' Visit.

Thursday evening, March 18, will prove to be a great night artistically and socially for Duluth and vicinity, for it is the night that Emma Eames, the famous soprano, assisted by that superb baritone, Emilio de Gorgorza, will give their concert in the Lyceum theater. Some of the most beautiful and costly gowns ever worn by any great prima donna on the concert stage are these worn by this distinguished star. The one she will wear here will be a creation by Worth of Paris. Madame Eames is a woman of regal beauty.

"The Girls From Berlin."

Corinne will come to the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday in her new musical success, "The Girls From Berlin," by John J. McNally. William Jerome and Jean Schwartz. The story is said to be different from anything yet attempted in the line of musical plays and the part assigned the star is well fitted to her talents. The supporting company is made up of some well known musical comedy artists, as well as a beauty chorus of exceptional grace.

Gen. W. J. Palmer Dead.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 15.—Gen. William J. Palmer, founder of Colorado Sprigs, died at his country seat, Glen-Eyrie, west of this city, late Saturday. Death came as a result of a fall from a horse in October, 1906, which resulted in breaking his back. Gen Palmer, who is widely known throughout the country, has often been called the foremost citizen of Colorado. He leaves an estate valued at $15,000,000.

S.S.S. BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

S. S. S. is the best treatment for Catarrh because it is a perfect blood purifier. It is the only medicine that is able to get down into the circulation and entirely remove the catarrhal matter and impurities which produce the trouble. As long as the mucous membranes and tissues are kept inflamed and irritated by this impure and infected condition of the blood Catarrh will remain. Its disagreeable and dangerous symptoms, of ringing noises in the ears, mucus dropping back into the throat, headaches, watery eyes, difficult breathing, and even stomach disorders and weakened health, cannot be permanently relieved until the blood is purified. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It goes down to the very root of the trouble, and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter from the blood and enriches this vital fluid so that all the mucous surfaces are supplied with nutritive, healthful qualities, instead of being constantly irritated and inflamed by impurities in the circulation. Then the symptoms begin to pass away and when S. S. S. has entirely purified the blood, Catarrh is permanently cured and the general health greatly built up. THE COST OF THE SALOON

Pastor Says Duluth Spends $10 for Every Dollar Received.

Discusses Liquor Problem From on Economic Standpoint

"No man would be willing to have his boy ruined in order to bring $181,000 into the city treasury," said Rev. J. S. Kirtley in discussing the liquor question at the First Baptist church yesterday. "The taxpayers will not want to have it so and they will some day abolish the whole business as an utterly indefensible waste of money and manhood."

DR. J. S. KIRTLEY.

Mr. Kitrley took for his subject the loss of Duluth through saloons. The liquor business has become a great economical question, though it has not ceased to be a moral issue and never can, he said. He pointed out that Duluth receives $181,000 a year from her 169 saloons and twelve hotels, 2 per cent or $3,610 going to the state inebriate home.

"We have in the city 1,043 men engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing and selling liquors. They are engaged in a non-productive business, for in consuming the liquor we do not utilize these values as we do when we consume bread, but we destroy the values.

"Those men," he continued, "would be worth as an estimate $1.75 a day in some productive employemnt or $568,075 a year for all of them. The sixty-four teams employed in distributing liquor would be worth $4 a day or $79,360 a year in some other employment. The police department and municipal court cost $75,000 a year to conduct and at least one-third of that cost would be cut off by the abolition of the liquor business. Thus we have a total expense and loss of $97,435 per year in order to get $181,000 and that is not all of the loss, for at least 27 per cent of all the poverty which our charitable organizations relieve and 40 per cent of what our poorhouse relieves and 80 per cent of the expense of the penitentiaries and over 50 per ent of the expense of our insane asylums are due to liquor.

"But this is not all. Hundreds of children are having their productive powers for the future lessened by the poverty and hard labor and ill-usage which drunkenness imposes on them. Here we have an additional loss, and if we could get in all the items we would probably find that for every dollar gained in licenses, we lose ten. Yet we have left out of view the chief fruit of the traffic in the degraded manhood, the crushed womanhood and the blighted childhood."

DARWIN AS AN EMANCIPATOR

Scientist Freed Religious Thought From Dead Tradition.

"This battle of life, in which the weaker and less fitted are gradually eliminated, so that a higher type may take their place, is from the standpoint of nature a sifting process, accomplished by selections; that is, the individuals are chosen for survival on account of their inherent fitness; their fitness selects them for survival," said Rev. George R. Gebauer at the First Unitarian church yesterday.

"Now this law of natural selection as propounded by Darwin is certainly a most important feature in the development of animal life, though by itself it seems too small a nail to carry the entire weight of physical and psychical evolution. But, however it may fall short in solving the riddle of the universe, evolution itself is an established fact, and as a theory of life it has opened new vistas for mankind and has been of immense pragmatic value. The world since Darwin's days is not looking backward, but forward. There is no field of human pursuit and thought which has not been quickened by this fertile thought of development. In every department of life it is recognized, and the rational study of all human conditions is based upon it. Everywhere the fine, but strong thread of evolution guides us through the labyrinth of life. History receives a new interpretation through it, and literature a new meaning. Every science bears witness to its influence, and education is supremely indebted to it. And though the organized church may have suffered by its onslaught on its worn out doctrines, religion itself has been blessed by it. Darwin, in a very true way, has become the emancipator in religion; he has come with a gospel of salvation from dead tradition. He has brought us a freedom which is not limited by any book or laws. He has given us the freedom of truth. What a barking and everlastingly protecting faith Unitarianism was, until the vaster gospel of evolution illumined it. We protested with beliefs found in the Bible against dogmas drawn from the same book. But the larger thought of divine revelation takes us outside of scripture.

"Again the thought of Divine Providence how sublime it is in the light of a divine development. All the wrong and evil and pain and sorrow, which we could not reconcile with a loving God, now has its place in the world. What we call evil is but God's inevitable way of bringing about what we prize as good. We see that divine nature sifts and eliminates the unfit that the fit may inherit the truth. We see for the first time clearly that not even a sparrow may fall to the ground without the knowledge of God. A grander world opens before us, a higher inspiration comes to us by this wider, vaster conception of God, who is in all and through all, and works in us for a far off divine event. And when we realize what is still of greater satisfaction, that we may become God's co-workers by recognition of nature's divine laws; we may become sifters and selectors of the fit; we may make our own fitness and train our children to fitness. We are no longer the plaything of conditions, even if such be dicine, but in some way we may help to direct our destiny to our highest best.

"Darwin did not see these inferences of his theory; he remained an agnostic to his end. His eyes looked too keenly at outward nature to discern her inner spirit. His soul was not elastic enough to take that leap of faith which once taken gives us a standpoint from which the world is seen in greatest glory and nature the grand expression of the divine spirit."

LACK SYMPATHY FOR THE NEGRO

Pastor Says the Two Races Will Never Mingle.

Under the general theme, "Our Old Elevator," Rev. S. Banks Nelson, pastor of the Park Avenue Congregational church of Minneapolis, covered a multitude of subjects in an address to the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. He discussed the negro problem, the doctrines of Christianity, the darwinian theory, Scotch and Irish history and Unitarianism. Mr. Nelson's address was interesting and not tiring, for he covered each subdivision of his general subject briefly and completely.

"There is no place for a black man in a white man's country," was Mr. Nelson's summing up of the negro problem. "I have no prejudice against the negro," continued the speaker. "I love him as a brother, but no one sees more plainly than I do that the white race of this country is constitutionally and radically in want of sympathy with the negro."

Mr. Nelson said it is nonsensical to attempt to graft a black race on a white one, for God has determined the habitation of the negro, as is evident from his treatment at the hands of the white race. The white and black races must remain apart, he said, for although Christianity may dictate that white love black, civilization will not countenance a co-mingling of the races. He reviewed the history of the slave traffic and lauded the fifteenth amendment to the Constitution as a great Christian act.

"Man did not descend from a monkey," declared Mr. Nelson in discussing the Darwinian theory. "Man is one of the world's miracles, just as Christ is a miracle among men. No further evidence of the truth or existence of miracles is necessary."

"Unitarianism," said Mr. Nelson, is a beautiful, intellectual creed but it lacks the dynamic force of other branches of Christianity because it denies the divinity of Christ. He ended with a defense of Christ's blood atonement.

INCARNATION.

Rev. Powell Talks on Real Problem of Christian Church.

The real problem of the Christian church from the beginning has been to preserve the real humanity of Christ, and not to assert his Godhood, according to Rev. John Walker Powell, pastor of the Endion M. E. church, in his sermon yesterday morning. "The Doctrine of the Incarnation" was the subject of his sermon.

He said that men turn away from the old theology with its cold abstractions to the warm brotherliness of a human Christ, because the heart needs to find such human sympathy in its religion. But this is just what the incarnation was intended to teach, that this warm, understanding human sympathy is to be found in God Himself.

WOMEN POLICE FOR DES MOINES

Half Dozen Female Sleuths Are to be Appointed.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 15.—Des Moines is to have women policemen. Councilman Hamery, superintendent of the deparament of public safety, has made this announcement. He expects to appoint half a dozen.

Mr. Hamery's plan is to have some of the women in uniform at railway stations, dance halls and other public places.

Then he proposes to have some of the most attractive women he can hire to be non-uniformed and well dressed.

CATTLE BREEDERS MEET.

Form Association to Promote Raising of Guernsey Stock.

George C. Cooper of Superior was elected president of the Guernsey Breeders' association, which was formed at a meeting held at the Commercial club Saturday. A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the Grand Rapids experiment farm, was chosen vice president, G. T. McKay of Duluth, secretary, and Judge W. L. Windom of Duluth, treasurer.

G. G. Hartley, A. J. McGuire, L. B. Arnold, F. B. McLeran and John G. Williams were elected members of the executive committee. George C. Cooper, Judge W. L. Windom and J. B. McLeran were elected members of the committee on rules.

The object of the new association is the promotion of the dairy industry, especially the breeding of Guernsey cattle. There are many valuable cattle of this breed owned by Head of the Lakes breeders, and breeders scattered throughout the northern part of the state, and to advance their common interests through an organized association the association was formed.

It is believed that the new association will not only advance the breeding of Guernsey cattle in this part of the state, but will facilitate the selling of cattle that are owned here.

DOG SPOILS KIDNAPING.

Barking of Fox Terrier Causes Passers-by to Rescue Boy.

Chicago, March 15.—A doughty fox terrier frustrated the attempted kidnapping of a little boy at Twenty-first street and Calumet avenue Saturday afternoon.

The little victim, saved by his faithful pet, was Omar Miller, the 5-year-old son of Herbert Miller. The child was toddling east with the intention of "seeing the choo-choo cars," when a rough looking man sprung out from an alley. He seized little Omar by the wrist and dragged him away. The boy cried lustily and the man muttered: "Shut up, or I'll kill you."

This threat was not accepted meekly by the dog, for it began to bark and growl furiously, following up every attempted kick made by the kidnapper with furious snaps at his heels. The canine commotion attracted the attention of passersby, who rushed up to where the tiny lad was struggling with his captor. Then the stranger released his hold and vanished, amid a triumphant farewell uttered by the fearless terrier.

THE RIVAL MAGNATES

Waving Millions Before the Straphangers of New York.

Would Build Broad Belt Lines and Huge Traction Tubes.

New York, March 15.—With her traction lords openly at odds and seeking public favor, Gotham has never stood the chance that she does today of having her people bound together by an adequate transit system. To gird this island with broad belt lines and to criss-cross its length and breadth with huge traction tnbes, hundreds of millions of dollars are being waved by the rival magnates gefore the bewildered eyes of the weary strap-hangers of this town. Where years have elapsed for a dollar offered to relieve Manhattan pent-up press of travel, prospective subway diggers now eagerly hawk their plans and backing, like theater ticket speculators. No one remembers another such remarkable case of competition between the local traffic kings here in all history, and everyone believes that it is too good to last. Rivalry has never been found to pay the powers in the transit situation half so well as the combination that chokes and clogs all progress.

Spring's Saint.

As hundreds of thousands of true Hibernians are today preparing to celebrate St. Patrick's day with a fervor that will make the island hum, New Yorkers are shaking themselves out of the toils of a long, damp and bitter winter in preparation for the bright days of spring. Snow seldom has dared strew this island after the great Irish saint's day, and the vivid green of nature has always followed forth after the emerald banners of the A. O. H. Sunlight, showers and budding branches will be a welcome setting for the march of the faithful here this year, for the metropolis has known no more chill and cheerless winter season in a generation. Up at Albany they are trying to create a Columbus day for the loyal sons of Italy, but no race celebration will bring such cheer to Gotham as this Irish spring opening.

Child Citizenship.

News of the summary removal of the boy president of the George Junior Republic at Freeville, who was charged with abuse of his official powers, has struck with envy the boss-ridden citizens of this city today. What these boy and girl "citizens" did on their own initiative, instantly and without question, is a thing which every New Yorker is confessing he does not rise to accomplish here once in ten years. The untrustworthy official New Yorkers have always with them; yet their citizenship has apparently never attained the high pitch which showed in the prompt ousting of this erring boy by children, every one of whom is being started straight afer a crooked beginning in life. The successful reclaiming of hundreds of youngsters at this child community has long been known and appreciated by the people of this city, where every man is taday forced to take off his hat to the citizenship which it teaches.

Celebrated Citizens.

Now that Roosevelt is back chopping wood over in Oyster Bay and Platt chopping coupons in his old sanctum at the express company's office, private life in this town is claiming as its own once more two of its most conspicuous figures. The habts of public places have apparently not yet been laid aside by these two notorious New Yorkers this week for Platt has summoned the scribes to his old "Sunday school" rostrum and Roosevelt has emitted short and snappy interviews to the crowd of correspondents that hover about his wood pile. For the immediate, however, the prospects seem to preclude much public haranguing for either. The ex-president will confine himself to his gun and penning for pay, while the ex-senator has mapped out a business act vity in which he must lose himself to the public eye.

Jeffries Juggling.

With press agents to right of him and pugilist promoters to left of him, big Jim Jeffries is being made to volley and thunder today his equivocal message on a future fight. Urchins infused with awe attend the comings and goings of the big boilermaker, while the gleaming teeth of the black bellboys chatter at his approach. The whole town is set to stage every move of this fighter-actor by as spectacular stunts as ever gladdened the heart of the enterprising circus promooter of publicity. Through it all the great good-natured hulk of a man lies in private retained his simplicity, however, and shown his friends that he is still modest as well as mighty

ORDINANCES ARE DUE TO COME UP

Council Has Other Business Besides Election of President.

Two or three new ordinances are due for consideration at the council meeting this evening, in addition to the business of electing a president and vice president, and sealer of weights and measures.

Alderman Shartel's ordinance making it unlawful for minors to buy intoxicants is due for consideration tonight, and Alderman Moore's ordinance designed to prohibit the overloading of horses may also receive final consideration.

The peddlers' ordinance, designed to replace the one knocked out by a municipal court decision recently, may also come up for a final hearing. An amendment to the building ordinance, to make it unnecessary to change the plans of the building being erected at the corner of First street and Fourth avenue west, is due to come up.

It is claimed that no one is yet sure of the presidency of the council, and it may be necessary to take a good many votes tonight before a selection is made.

ASKS FOR HELP.

St. Paul Appeals to Duluth on the Packing Plant Situation.

In her fight against the location in St. Paul of the big Armour packing plant, the Saintly City has appealed to Duluth for assistance. Alumni of the University of Minnesota in Duluth have received letters from the citizens' general committee of St. Paul, of which Daniel W. Lawler is chairman, urging them to use their influence with local representatives in the legislature, immediately, to urge the passage of Rowe bill, which is aimed to prevent the location of the Armour packing plant on the proposed site.

The letters explain that the committee has looked into the situation with great care, and believes that the stir that would arise from a large packing industry situated but two and three quarters miles away would be a serious menace to the state university.

LID-LIFTING.

Sylvester Mainello and Tony Ayzo Arrested for Selling Liquor.

Sergeant Gillon and Patrolman Masonlast night arrested Sylvester Mainello and Tony Ayzo, proprietors of the saloon at 625 West Superior street, and charged them with selling liquor on Sunday.

The police officers had a suspicion that the place was open for business, to those who knew the pass word, and they effected an entrance. They say that besides the two proprietors, one of whom was acting as bartender, there were five men around a table drinking. The men put up $50 each as bail to guarantee their appearance in court today.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

PLAN SCHOOL FOR SUMMER

Six Weeks of Summer School to be Held in Crookston.

Exellent Corps of Teachers Promised for the Occasion.

Crookston, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. of Schools N. A. Thorson has received a communication from the state superintendent, stating that a summer school would be held in Crookston the coming summer. This information will be received with great approbation by all interested in education, and also by the business interests of the city.

Mr. Thorson stated that he believed the school would be in session at least six weeks, and there is no question but that a very large number of teachers and others would be brought to Crookston to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the school. None was held in the city last year, and there is every reason to believe that the sessions this summer will attract people from all sections of Northern and Northwestern Minnesota.

The superintendent says that the school will be provided with an excellent corps of teachers and instructors, and there is every reason to believe that an opportunity will be given which will be of the greatest benefit to the section. The program and schedule for the school has not as yet been made public by the state superintendent, but there is every reason to believe that it will be announced within the coming few weeks.

PROSECUTOR IS AFTER GRAFTERS

Marinette County District Attorney Petitions for a Grand Jury

Marinette, Wis., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Determined to make good the platform on which he was elected to break up a ring of alleged grafting county officials, and rendered desperate by the turndown received at the hands of the Marinette county board, District Attorney Schwittay of Marinette county, is going from door to door, asking taxpayers to sign a petition requesting Circuit Judge Hastings to call a grand jury.

Every move Schwittay has made thus has been cleverly blocked. The county board, with but two dissenting voices voted not to favor grand jury investigation and city justices discharged the two supervisors he had arrested for graft, on their preliminary hearing. He started a third case before another city justice, but the defendant immediately swore the case away from that official on an affidavit of prejudice.

The latest move of the district attorney started Marinette to its foundations although the city, without a cent in its treasury at present, has been torn by dissensions and factional fights lasting ever since the fall election. The district attorney claims the impoverished city and county treasuries are in that condition as a result of ravages made by former prosecutors and present members of the county board.

In less than an hour his petition received 200 signers.

LAKE LINDEN CHURCH HAVING CELEBRATION

LAKE LINDEN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Lake Linden, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A celebration of much interest to the older residents of this place, and especially to those identified with the Congregational church, began yesterday when appropriate services were held commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the edifice.

Other services will be held during the celebration. Rev. John W. Savage was the first pastor of the church.

FALLS DOWN STAIRS, BREAKING COLLAR BONE.

Middle River, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Willer, son of Adolph Willer of this place, who is employed by the Great Northern at Warroad, sustained a serious injury Thursday morning by falling headlong down a flight of stairs. His collar bone and a couple of ribs were broken and a hip bruised badly besides other minor bruises. The company took him to the Thief River hospital Thursday evening.

RESCUUED FROM WATERY GRAVE BY EMPLOYER.

Menominee, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew Anderson, driver for the Morris & Co.'s local office, was rescued from a watery grave by C. W. Spring of Chicago, the company's agent. Anderson was driving across the river when the ice suddenly crashed to pieces. Unable to swim he struggled to grasp the sleigh, but failed. After he sank twice, Spring, who was on the shore awaiting the team's arrival, leaped into the icy water without divesting coat or shoes and dragged employee to the edge of the ice. Rescuers pulled them both out and also saved the horses.

ROPE IS DRAWN TIGHT.

Copper Country Suicide Made Good Job of Self-Destruction.

Houghton, Mich., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury that looked into the death of Peter Suhonen, who was found hanging Friday near here with all the evidences of suicide, returned a verdict that death was self-inflicted.

Although it was not brought out upon the stand, Mr. Crawford stated later that Suhonen's right arm had been found broken when the body was being placed in the casket. The undertaker's theory is that the fracture resulted from contact with a limb which was broken by the body's fall. The common clothes line with which Suhonen made the noose was so tightly knotted about the dead man's neck that it requored the efforts of two men to remove it.

Suhonen was by no means destitute, as was proven by the fact that over $200 was found upon his person. There was about $48 in American money, checks for 1,100 marks, about $200 from Finland, and a certificate for ten shares in the Calumet & Lac La Belle Traction company. All of his possessions will be held until an administrator is appointed by the judge of probate.

CUTS THROATS OF HER TWO CHILDREN

Wakefield, Mich., Woman in Mad Frenzy, Slays Little Ones With Knife.

Bessemer, Mich., March 15.—In a mad frenzy of religious excitement, Mrs. Mat Tekka, wife of a poor laborer living at the Sunday lake location at Wakefield, near this city, cut the throats of her two little boys Saturday. The boys are dead and the woman, who has no realizing sense of her awful deed, is in jail.

The lads, who were 8 and 10 years of age, were killed with a butcher knife, which had been sharpened almost to a razor edge. No one saw the affair, but there was mute evidence about the room to show that the eldest boy, at least, had made a fight for his life. But the crazed mother had no mercy and, with her superior strength, increased by the madness under which she labored, the cruel knife thrusts soon ended the lad's resistance.

The husband and older son of the woman were away at work, and upon coming home for dinner found the little boys welterig in their blood and the woman praying over the held mangled corpses. When questioned, she invariably replied that she had to do it.

An inquest will be held over the dead bodies and the commissioners of insanity will be summoned to examine the demented woman.

PATRICIDE SENTENCED.

Hurley Youth Who Killed Father Goes to Industrial School.

Ashland, Wis., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Turelle, the boy murderer of Hurley, pleaded guilty to the charge of killing his father, before Judge Parish and was sentenced to the industrial school at Waukesha until he is 21. He was 13 years old when he committed the crime.

The extreme youth of the boy and extenuating circumstances connected with the case had a great deal to do with the sentence inflicted by Judge Parish. The mother of the boy was in court but seemed to pay little heed to the case.

DEER RIVER EVENTS.

Items of Interest in Western Itasca County Town.

Deer River, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ladies' Aid society will give a lunch and program on March 17, the lunch to begin at 4 o'clock and the program at 8 p. m.

The Commercial club had as its guests Saturday night three of the county commissioners, Messrs. O'Brien, Trebilcock and McWilliams. The latter two, with Commissioners King, returned in the afternoon from an inspection trip up north, and Mr. O'Brien just happened in.

Frank Malone, a cook aged about 50, who has been employed at different places about town for the past three years, died at Bena yesterday of heart disease. He was staying with George Gaelbraith's and George is trying to locate his relatives.

Several new members were taken into the Ladies of the Maccabees lodge Tuesday night.

A burglar alarm system is being installed in the First National bank this week by the Electrical Protection company of Minneapolis.

I. C. Johnson of Duluth, formerly of the Bemidji "bunch," was drumming up feed and grain trade here yesterday.

L. M. Hanson, auditor for the Fitger Brewing company, who has of late become considerably acquainted here, was here most of last week on business for his firm.

KITTSON COUNTY FAIR.

Plans on Foot to Hold Annual Show Sometime in July.

Hallock, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the annual meeting of the Kittson County Agricultural society held last week officers were elected and plans laid for holding the fair some time in July.

The matter of having a special corn exhibit was brought to the attention of the society by Andrew Anderson of Red River, and his remarks along this line were enthusiastically received. A special committee, consisting of Andrew Anderson, Eph Clow and J. A. Swenson, was appointed to take this matter in charge and to make arrangements for distribution of a small quantity of seed to farmers who wish to take part in this contest.

Special prizes will be awarded in this department and it is expected that the contest will stimulate interest in corn raising throughout the county and be the means of increased production in coming years, besides bettering the quality of seed.

The following were elected as officers for the coming year: President, John A. Ross; vice president, J. D. Henry; treasurer, T. M. George; secretary, C. I. Moore; directors, J. A. Ross, T. M. George, J. D. Henry, E. Ellis, A. E. Hales, P. H. Konzen, N. P. Lundgren, E. C. Yetter and C. I. Moore

HOME FROM BIG CRUISE.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Small Northwestern Receipts Offset Decline in Liverpool Price.

Chicago, March 15.—Small receipts in the Northwest offset a decline of ½d to ⅝d in the price of wheat at Liverpool, and caused a firm tone in the market here today. There was a scattered demand by commission houses and, after the first few minutes, offerings were not large. The market opened with prices off ¼c to ⅝c, compared with Saturday's close, May being at $1.16½ to $1.16¾, and July at $1.05 to $1.05⅛. Early in the day May advanced to $1.17, while July sold up to $1.05¾.

The market weakened again because of the heaviness of corn, but rallied once or twice in the last half of the day, owing to European war talk and to reports of export sales. The low point for May was $1.16¼. The close was weak with May off ⅞c at $1.16⅛. July closed ¾@⅞c lower at $1.04⅝.

Traders in the corn pit were bearishly inclined, owing to more favorable weather for the movement of the crop. Several of the leading holders were moderate sellers, and demand was slack. Prices at the start were a shade to ⅜c lower than the previous close, May being at 68@68⅛c. Early in the day May sold at 67¾c.

The market was weak all day owing to general selling by commission houses. May sold off to 67½c. The close was weak with May down ⅜c at 67⅝c.

Commission houses were sellers of oats and the market was easy, there being little demand. May opened ¼c lower at 55⅛c and sold at 55⅛@¼c.

Provisions were weak because of a 10c decline in live hogs. Pit traders and local packers were the chief sellers. Prices at the start were unchanged to 7½c lower.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Ruled During Most of Session and Close Was Easy.

Prices Started Lower, Advanced Slightly, But Fell Off Again.

New York, March 15.—Light offerings of stocks caused opening declines in prices running to a point in Erie first preferred and to a large fraction in Ontario & Western, Erie and Northern Pacific. Hocking Coal advanced a point.

The market showed a disposition to advance, but the active inquiry for stocks was limited to a few of the specialties. Reading was purchased steadily and touched 125¾, a gain of 1¼. Consolidated Gas and Peoples Gas also showed unusual animation, and moved up 1⅜ and 2 points, respectively. American Beet Sugar hardened 1¼ and American Smelting preferred 1. American Sugar rallied a point. Lake Erie & Western preferred sagged 2¾, and National Biscuit and Allis-Chalmers preferred 1.

The moderate activity lapsed into semi-stagnation after the first hour, and price sbecame almost immovable. American Ice rose a point. Bonds were heavy.

An abrupt fall of ¾ in Reading following the news from Washington that no decision would be made today in the commodities clause case. Support was offered and it returned to 126, the highest. The rest of the list was neglected. Hocking Valley Coal increased its gain to 2⅝, and Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred also rose a point.

The market closed easy and dull. The level of prices sagged slightly. Detroit Union sold at a decline of 4.

KILLED BY PILE DRIVER

Joe Bellmour, a Frenchman, who resided in Superior, was killed at 1 o'clock this afternoon while at work on a pile driver at Thirty-ninth street, Park Point. He was employed by the Interstate Dredge & Dock company, which has the contract for moving the Duluth Yacht club buildings from the old site, a few blocks from the canal to a point farther down the Point.

The crew of men were preparing to drive a pile, to be one of those used in the foundation for the building, and Bellmour was working about the pile, when the large iron clamp, to be placed over its head, accidentally fell upon him, catching his head underneath it and crushing it. Death was almost instantaneous. The body is now at Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms.

BIG RUSH OF NEW MEMBERS

Apparently the attractions offered by the combined boat and yacht club, look good to Dulutbians, for within the last few days no less than 108 applications for membership have been received. Before the end of the week it is expected that the club's membership will be full, and a waiting list will be established.

When the two clubs joined the limit was fixed at 1,200 of whom 2,000 were life members. This left 1,000 sustaining memberships, and the membership at the time was within 120 of that mark. The club made no effort to fill these vacancies, but the notice of the union of the clubs brought in 108 applications, and there are now but twelve vacancies left. A few more may occur when the time comes to pay up the dues, but there is little doubt but that the club will have a waiting list this year.

MILLER VOTES WITH REGULARS

Washington, March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Clarence D. Miller has announced that he will stand by the administration and support the Cannon rules.

He has emphasized his position in this respect by voting with the regulars, though he says his personal belief is that the rules should be amended. Having, however, entered the caucus, he proposes to abide by its conclusions.

TAFT MESSAGE IS UNWRITTEN

Washington, March 15.—President Taft has had not had an opportunity to write a single word of his tariff message to congress.

His time is still given over to callers and the prospect now is that he will not write the message before early tomorrow.

This naturally will mean a comparatively brief message expressing in general terms his views and in no manner going into details.

BIG FOLEY FIRE.

Foley, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A disastrous fire has again visited this place, and the plant of the New London Milling company is in ruins, involving a loss of $50,000, partly covered by insurance.

The 200-barrel mill, the warehouse and the elevator, in which were 75,000 pounds of flour, the office and the corn granary were destroyed. A Northwestern freight car, half loaded with flour, was also destroyed.

It is expected the company will rebuild.

GAVE FOUR MEN A HARD BATTLE

Insane Man Breaks Away From Guard, But Is Recaptured.

Four jailors had a fierce fight with a crazy man shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. It was all the four men could do to subdue him.

Victor Storms, jailed for insanity, was being taken from the jail to probate court, to be examined as to his sanity, when he suddenly made a break for liberty and escaped the guard.

He got only a few steps, however, before he was overtaken. The guard grabbed hold of him, and a battle royal followed. With the strength of the insane, Storms probably would have escaped had not reinforcements arrived from the jail. Three jailors joined the guard, and the four men finally were able to get the man under control.

JANGLE OVER LICENSE.

Middle River in Quarry Over Outcome of Election.

Middle River, Minn., March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—This village has been in something of a jangle ever since election day, March 9, over the outcome of the vote on the license proposition. A ruling from the attorney general is awaited, but the prevailing opinion among citizens generally, and also the expressed opinion of Judge Watt is, that license will be legal the coming year.

The question was voted upan last spring, and license carried by a big majority, and inasmuch as the statutes clearly stipulate that any decision rendered by the voters upon this question stands until changed by a reverse vote, theer really seems to be no grounds for the contention that license is down and out in Middle River.

Wrecks a Drainage Dredge.

Menominee, Mich. March 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Determined to fulfill his threat to put the Peshtigo drainage canal—In the course of construction—out of business, John Quick of Peshtigo wrecked a construction dredge belonging to Contractor John Martin so badly, that it is unfit for use. Quick has been arrested on a malicious destruction charge.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

ENGLISH ARE POOR SPORTS

Canadian Curlers Not Any Too Well Used, Says Hurdon.

But the Scots Entertained the Visitors Like Kings.

Englishmen are poor sports, according to Harry Hurdon of the Duluth Curling club, who has just returned from Scotland and England, where he played with the thirty-six Canadians, who represented the curling clubs of this continent in match games with both Scotch and English rinks.

"In England," says Mr. Hurdon, "curling is played very differently from the way it is played in Scotland and America. Instead of using brooms to sweep the stones, the Englishman uses a push brush. This brush is almost the same as the ordinary brushes with the long pole attacked, which are used to sweep out buildings. They run along even with their stone and sweep lightly ahead of it. It really does not good and I don't see why they use anything at all.

"They refused to allow us to cut cleats in the ice to make a foothold and insisted that we use their iron standing places although none of us had ever used them before. Our stones were put in the clubrooms until it came time to use them and by that time they were hot. No consideration was given us along this line and we played under many disadvantages. They would not give our stones time to cool, neither would they loan us stones that were thoroughly cool. It takes a curling stone some time to get cold all the way through, and every time we threw them they went just a trifle easier. At that they only beat us out by two points.

"I had the time of my life. There were thirty-seven in the party and it was one continual round of pleasure all the time we were gone. We played at many points through Scotland and in each town school was dismissed, so that the children could get a look at the 'Indians' from the other side of the water.

"The Scots on the other side are royel entertainers, as well as thoroughbred sports in every sense of the word. They took us all over the country in special trains and did everything they could for our comfort and enjoyment. There was not a dull moment all the time we were there, and all the other boys feel the same as I do about it.

"We won the Lord Strathcona cup and brought it back to America with us. It will be on exhibition in a number of Canadian cities. When it is in Winnipeg we will try to have it sent to Duluth for a short time.

"Out of the twenty-eight game we played in Scotland, we lost two.

"The year after next the Scots will send several rinks to America, and we hope to have them play at all the different clubs. They enjoyed the games greatly and many were enthusiastic about coming to America."

WELCOMED HOME.

Chicago's Darktown Population Receives Johnson With Open Arms.

Chicago, March 15.—The Ides of March hereafter will have a significance to Chicago's colored population other than that given it by Roman history, for today Jack Johnson, the first colored champion of the world, appeared amongst them.

They were at the railroad station, where Johnson was expected, and waited patiently for two hours until the delayed train arrived. The welcomers were arrayed in polka-dot hosiery, peg-leg trousers, boldly designed shirt fronts, the masculine of cabriolet hat, and other garments accepted as the latest dictate of fashion, as promulgated from the sartorial throne of the so-called black belt. There was a hush as the conqueror of Tommy Burns alighted from the Pullman. His eye was keen; his step jaunty. There was lithe strength apparent in every movement, and his smile showed appreciation of mingling again with his old friends.

"He's wearing a gray fedora," whispered one of the crowd, "just like mine. And look at the field glasses over his shoulder. Reckon he wants them to look for Jeffries."

For the rest of the champion's attire, it was gray, Australian gray, and the cut was English.

Those who boasted a previous acquaintance approached the ring here, proudly accosted him as "Jack," and slapped him heartily on the back. Less fortunate individuals were gravely "proud to meet Mr. Johnson," and then stood back at respectful distances.

An automobile was waiting. In it Johnson was whirled away to the home of his friend, J. B. Williams, in a section of the city where many colored people make their homes.

Johnson's white wife was not with him. She left the train at Milwaukee, it was said, to visit friends. The champion had nothing new to say with reference to a fight with Jeffries.

RACES DECLARED OFF.

Carl Alroth Is Notified That Contests Have Been Cancelled.

There will be no skating races at Milwaukee this year, as was originally planned, and Carl Alroth, the local skater, who was unable to attend the Saranac Lake races, is much disappointed.

For the past month they have been unable to freeze ice in the Wisconsin city, and Mr. Alroth was notified this morning by letter that the races had been declared off.

Next year the Milwaukee people will have an artificial ice plant, so that ice can be had at any time.

WILL PLAY FINALS.

Last Game in President's Event Between Hall and Dinham.

The finals in the President's event will be played off this evening at the curling rink. Hall and Dinham are the contesting rinks and there is much interest in the outcome.

At 6 o'clock Hall meets Dunlop, in the Bagley event, and Alworth meets Dinham in the same event.

Play for the board of trade buttons will begin tonight, at which time the C Class rinks will play down bonspiel style to see who lands them for the season 1908 and '09. Jacobi meets McLennan, Hall meets Dinham, and Oldham meets Deetz.

In this event the rinks will either play or forfeit their games.

The season is now all but over, and it is expected that everything will be out of the way by Saturday evening, and the curling season finally closed.

Will Talk to Umpires.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 15.—President O'Brien of the American association of baseball clubs today notified his staff of umpires to report to him in Milwaukee on April 12, two days before the season opens for the purpose of receiving instructions with regard to various plays which may come up during the season. In addition strict rules will be laid down governing rowdyism, it being Mr. O'Brien's aim to rid the national game in the American association of all unpleasant features.

JOHN PANTON IS OPTIMISTIC

Business Outlook Better in West Than in the East.

John Panton, president of the Panton & White company, and all the buyers for the Glass Block store, have returned from the East, where they have been buying goods for Duluth shoppers.

"Conditions in the East are still rather quiet, and it is my observation that business is a great deal livelier in the West and that prospects are better in the West," said Mr. Panton this morning.

"To my notion," continued Mr. Panton, "this summer is going to see a great deal of building in Duluth and throughout this section, and the recent cut in steel prices should help. Building means business for everybody. It gives the structural workers employment, the building material people orders, and the merchants come in for furnishings and such things.

"Our buyers bought larger stocks than in any previous spring, which shows the confidence we have in the prosperity of Duluth. I expect a great year here. Duluth people seem to have money to buy merchandise with and they demand the best and we try to give it to them."

While in the Eastern markets, the buyers picked up all the novelties for the local trade, as well as standard stocks. They bought Taft 'possums and such things. There are novelties in laces and embroideries, too, the most marked being the gold, silver and Oriental laces These are sort of a superior brand of tinsel material that promise to become very popular for neck yokes and the like. They are expensive costing $5 a yard.

The buyers say, too, that the day of the high collar for women has passed, for the present, at least. The ladies will have to wear the Dutch collar, which is a low, lacy affair, if they would be in style this summer.

Do You Know That

Real estate is cheaper today in Duluth than in any town of its size in the United States?

And that in percentage of gain in building last year over 1907, Duluth was one of the few American cities that blossomed to the top!

And that there are fewer vacant houses in Duluth than in any city of its size. The city is growing faster than the residences go up.

Taking these things into consideration, do you fully realize what a splendid investment Duluth real estate is today?

TARIFF TINKERERS GET DOWN TO BUSINESS; TAFT SENDS MESSAGE TO EXTRA SESSION

THE STEEL CORPORATION HAS MADE PLANS FOR A $25,000,000 PLANT HERE

House Committee Says Corporation Is Acting In Good Faith.

Getting Ready for $10,000,000 Plant to be Enlarged Later.

Expected Ultimately to Give Work to Ten Thousand Men.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The unanimous report of the special committee of the house which went to Duluth to inquire into the progress made on the steel plant was made to the tax committee last night. It was unanimously adopted and was presented to the house today:

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee on Taxes and Tax Laws of the House of Representatives: Gentlemen: Your sub-committee appointed to examine into our report as to the progress made by the United States Steel corporation toward the construction of a steel plant at Duluth, and to make such further investigations and recommendations as in its judgment seemed wise, begs leave to report as follows:

Your committee visited Duluth on Monday, March 8, 1909. Several representatives of the United States Steel corporation appeared before your committee, among whom was Kinnie C. Hoxie, engineer in charge of construc-

SHOOTS A HUGE MOUNTAIN LION

California Farmer Lays It Low With One Shot.

Petaluma, Cal., March 16.—A California mountain lion measuring several feet from nose to tail was shot on a ranch near here today by Robert Cook. For some time the farmers have been losing calves, sheep and other stock and the depredations have been laid to coyotes. Cook was out with his pack of hounds looking for three animals when he trailed the lion to its den. One shot which lodged in the neck of the big beast, killed it instantly. The lion wore an immense mane like its African relative.

SALVADOR ENTERTAINS AMERICAN SAILORS.

Washington, March 16.—Minister Mejia of Salvador has received a cablegram from President Figueroa stating that the American armored cruiser squadron is at anchor off the port of Acajutla, and that Admiral Swineburne and his officers are guests of the nation at the capital.

CONCILIATE INSURGENTS

Older Senators in Minority on Selection of Committees.

Six of Nine Members Are From the West, Too.

Washington, March 16.—The composition of the senate committee on committees as announced by Senator Hale, chairman of the Republican caucus of the senate, is generally accepted as indicating a distinct purpose to conciliate the "youngsters" of the senate, as the band of insurgents is called.

Senators Aldrich, Kean, McCumber and Crane of the old guard form but a minority of the nine members, Senators Flint, Southland, Curtis, Borah and Dixon all being of the younger element, yet it is realized that in this membership there is enough conservative sentiment to prevent any domination on the part of radicals should an effort have been made by them to do so.

The fact that the West predominates in the committee is also noticeable, six of the nine members being from beyond the Missouri river.

HALL BILL IS PASSED

Senate Favors Taking the Lid Off Campaign Expenditures.

"Full Crew" Bill Killed After a Brisk Fight.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate this morning passed the Hall bill, taking the lid off campaign expenditures by repealing that part of the corrupt practices law which fixes a limit upon the amount of money candidates can spend to get themselves elected. As originally introduced the bill repealed the entire corrupt practices act, but so much opposition developed to it in this shape that it was changed so as to preserve the present regulations as to the purposes of campaign expenditures and

DENIES GUILT AT ELECTROCUTION

Italian Put to Death for the Murder of His Cousin.

Auburn, N. Y., March 16.—Salvatore Randazzio, who was convicted April 3, 1908, of the murder of his cousin, Pietro Randazzio, at West Salmanaca, Jan. 11, 1908, was electrocuted in Auburn prison this morning.

Randazzio claimed to the last that he was not guilty. In a letter to his father, written yesterday morning, he said the murder was the work of Silvio Baretta.

Baretta and Randazzio were section men at West Salmanaca, occupying bunks in a box car. It was shown at the trial that the murder was a part of a plan to rob Pietro Randazzio of $50.

WINS TWO DUELS; KILLS HIS FOES

German Civilian Puts Army Officers to Death.

Eisenach, Germany, March 16.—A civilian fought two duels here today with officers of the army and killed both opponents. Pistols were used.

The civilian's name is Schutzbar Milg and he is a wealthy land owner residing near Hohonaus. His opponents were a lieutenant named Von Buttlar and an army surgeon, whose identity has been concealed.

Herr Milg's wife is an American. Jealousy prompted him to challenge and fight both officers on the same day.

STRIKE IS A FIZZLE

French Government Employes Fail to Act in Unison.

Telegraph and Telephone Service Is Badly Crippled, However.

Paris, March 16.—The strike of the telegraph, telephone and postal employes of the state voted with so much enthusiasm last night is turning out today to be anything but effective, and unless there shall come some sudden change for the worse it promises to be of short duration.

An overwhelming majority of the day shifts in all branches of the service reported for duty this morning. Hundreds of men present at the meetings last night concluded, after sleeping over the matter, that they would not run the risk of losing permanent employment.

Nevertheless, the various services are more or less crippled or demoralized today. The main defections occurred in the telegraph and railway mail services. At the Central Telegraph offices most of the operators are today sitting behind their keys with crossed arms on the pretense that their instruments are out of order. The telephone system appears to be working normally, but the deliveries of mail occurred with some delay.

The government shows no signs of yielding. On the contrary, Mr. Simyan, undersecretary of posts and telegraphs, announced this morning that such a revolt on the part of the servants of the state cannot be tolerated. Every official refusing to work or disobeying the regulations will be dismissed.

BASEBALL PRESIDENT, WHO DISAPPEARS, IS FOUND.

Chicago, March 16.—Charles H. Morton, former president of the Ohio & Pennsylvania Baseball league, who disappeared from Cleveland, Jan. 12 last, has been found by his brother, H. U. Morton of Chicago. The former baseball official was not in possession of his proper senses and was wandering aimlessly about the streets of Chicago.

Washington, March 16.—President Taft this afternoon sent to congress his much anticipated message on tariff revision. He did not begin writing the document until this morning. It reads:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I have convened the congress in this extra session in order to enable it to give immediate consideration to the revision of the Dingley tariff act. Conditions affecting production, manufacture and business generally have so changed in the past twelve years as to require a readjustment and revision of the import duties imposed by that act. More than this, the present tariff act,

AUTHORESS DIES ON HEALTH TRIP

Mrs. Lane Wrote "Kathelean" and "Mills of God."

Lynchburg, Va., March 16.—Mrs. Elinor MacCartney Lane, the novelist, died here late last night. She had been ill for several days and was on her way South with her husband, Dr. Francis R. Lane, to recuperate.

Mrs. Lane was born in Washington, D. C., about forty-five years ago, and her body will be taken to that city for interment.

About five years ago she established her reputation as a writer by publishing "The Mills of God." The success of this novel prompted her to write "Nancy Stair," which was subsequently dramatized. "Kathelean," Mrs. Lane's last novel, which she considered her masterpiece, had just been finished.

March 16.—New trial denied in decision handed down by Judge H. B. Dibell.

By an order handed down shortly after noon today, Judge H. B. Dibell in district court denied the motion of William Schreiber for a new trial. Schreiber was convicted Dec. 11 of the murder of Frank Massapust in a settlement about twelve miles from Ashawa, now Cook, Feb. 9, 1908.

Schreiber, who was in court attended by G. W. C. Ross, of Ross & McKnight, his counsel, was present in court when Judge Dibell gave his decision. He was affected in a slight degree. Tears came to his eyes, but he did not break down. Assistant County Attorney Warren E. Greene moved for an immediate sentence. Mr. Ross objected and asked for a stay. County Attorney John H. Norton contended that sentence could be passed and an appeal taken after sentence if the defense so wished, but Judge Dibell, without granting the stay, said that the matter of sentence could be taken up at a later date.

Mr. Ross said after the proceedings that the future action in the case is

INDIAN IS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

District of Columbia Court Punishes Him For Murder.

Washington, March 16.—For the first time in the annals of the criminal court of the District of Columbia, an Indian, Robert McCulic has been sentenced by Justice Gould to twenty years in the penitentiary on his plea of second degree murder. He was indicted for murder in the first degree in connection with the killing of Carl Fink last October by hitting the latter over the head with a billet of wood.

WILLIAM SCHREIBER,
Who is now 25 years old, was born in Russian Poland, coming to the United States with his parents in 1897. The family settled in Wisconsin and Charles Schreiber, the father of the murderer, now lives at Underhill in that state. As soon as he attained his majority, in March, 1904, William Schreiber went into the Ashawa district and filed on a homestead. He was married in March, 1905, and lived on his homestead with his wife until arrested for the crime, of which he was convicted by a jury in December. He has two children.

REMOVES TUMOR FROM A BRAIN

Clever Feat in Surgery Performed in Georgetown Hospital.

Washington, March 16.—What is pronounced a feat in surgery, is an operation on the brain of Russell Dolin, an 11-year-old lad, performed in Georgetown hospital.

The boy's brain was seriously impaired because of a tumorous growth and this produced something akin to a paralytic condition. The surgeon made an incision in the scalp and drilled an orifice in the bone of sufficient size to enable him to use his forceps.

The tumorous growth was removed, and it is said the child's brain may assume its normal functions.

WAR MAY YET COME

Austrian-Servian Crisis Has Reached Acute Stage.

Turkey Wants to Know About Storing of Supplies.

Berlin, March 16.—Advices received at the foreign office today concerning the strained situation between Austria-Hungary and Servia indicate that the crisis is still in an acute stage.

It is affirmed that Austria-Hungary is about to make another effort at Belgrade with a view to bringing Servia's views into accord with her own. The nature of these representations is not disclosed, but it can be said that the dual monarchy will demand a clear explanation of Servia's intention.

Officials say that if Servia concedes this, the negotiations will pursue a peaceful course, but if not hostilities are inevitable, and the only task of the powers will be to localize the conflict.

The report that Turkey will demand an explanation of Servia's intention with regard to the large quantity of war supplies now lying at Saloniki has been officially confirmed. Should the reply be unsatisfactory an embargo will be placed on the supplies at Saloniki. In the meanwhile Servia has arranged to procure munitions of war and stores via Bulgaria, but pressure will be brought upon Turkey to prevent the passage of military supplies through the Dardanelles.

BOY CANNOT COLLECT CLAIM

Settlement With Drake & Stratton Company Must Stand.

By an order of the probate court, an order directing the Drake & Stratton company to show cause why the proceedings, by which Lewis C. Newcomb was appointed guardian of Dominick Mazzittello should not be set aside, was vacated on account of the court having no jurisdiction over the Drake & Stratton company, a West Virginia corporation.

Mazzittello, who is now 22 years old, was injured while in the employ of the Drake & Stratton company in 1906. In his petition for the setting aside of the proceedings, he said the company offered to settle with him for $200, telling him they could not be held responsible in the courts. He says the settlement was totally inadequate, but he did not know it at the time.

He says Lewis C. Newcomb was appointed his guardian and negotiated the settlement without his knowledge or consent, and Newcomb acted for the Drake & Stratton company and not for him. He wanted the court to set aside the proceedings so that he might sue. The court having no jurisdiction over the Drake & Stratton company, the proceedings must stand unless the boy proceeds in some other manner to collect the claim he believes he has against the company.

A SHORTAGE IN THE FUND

Fire Hall Improvements Will be Limited This Year.

Lakeside About the Only Place Money Will be Spent.

The fact that the council last night authorized the board of fire commissioners to purchase a site for a fire hall on Park Point, not farther down than Twentieth street, and that the board was also authorized to plan for a fire hall there not to cost more than $2,600, does not necessarily mean that the lots will be purchased and the hall built this year.

In fact, there is said to be practically no chance that the building will be erected during 1909, because of a shortage of funds. Not only this, but there is such a small amount of money available for improvements of this character that it is considered extremely doubtful if improvements planned for fire halls in the city proper will be possible this season. The money for work of this kind comes from the permanent improvement fund, and as there is only $53,000 available for this fund, where last year there was $87,000 in the permanent improvement fund, an uncomfortably close limit will be placed on improvements.

There is not a fire hall in the city that is not in need of some improvement, and there is urgent need of two new buildings. It was hoped to build a new hall in the vicinity of the corner of Eighth avenue east and Fifth street, this year, and it seems imperative that the hall at Lakeside be rebuilt during the summer. It is in such condition that it is almost falling to pieces, and is said to be beyond all hope of repair. Halls No. 2 and 3 are also in very bad need of repair, and the other buildings used for housing the fire fighters are more or less in need of repair.

Probably the first step will be the reconstruction of the Lakeside building. If that isn't taken care of this summer, it is claimed that the department in that end of the city will have to be abandoned altogether. With the other urgent demands being made upon the permanent improvement fund, such as the construction of a city hospital for contagious diseases, it looks as if the fire department would get no more improvements than the one at Lakeside, if it gets any at all. Improvements along this line have been put off so long, that they now all come in a bunch.

PERSONAL INJURY SUITS SETTLED

Workmen Injured on Courthouse Adjust Claims Against Contractors.

The personal injury suits brought by Hans E. Hansen and Thomas Hansen against the Landquist & Illsley company have been settled and dismissals were filed with the clerk of the district court this morning.

Thomas Hansen sued for $10,000 and Hans E. Hansen for $2,000.

The two men were hurt by the falling of a derrick on the new courthouse, Nov. 2 last year. It was claimed the accident was due to the improper setting of the boom, which fell on a number of workmen, who were directly below it when it fell.

WANT QUARTERS IN COURTHOUSE

Local Spanish War Veterans Outgrow Their Present Home.

Camp John G. McEwen, No. 6, Department of Minnesota, United Spanish War Veterans, mustered a class of recruits at their hall in the Kalamazoo block last evening.

The camp has been growing so rapidly of late that larger quarters must be secured. There has been an impression among the comrades of the camp that the county commissioners will provide a room in the new courthouse the same as has been planned for the G. A. R.

Commander Simon was instructed to confer with the county board and ascertain their attitude toward the proposition. The camp will entertain the members of Camp Hector Smith of Superior at an early date.

The general committee on Memorial day arrangements is making plans to hold the memorial service of the United Spanish War Veterans in all the cemeteries adjacent to Duluth, and the graves of all the dead are being located. The camp will offer its services to the G. A. R. in assisting them on Memorial day.

The camp appointed a committee to await on the G. A. R. posts and offer an escort of a Spanish war veterans to accompany the G. A. R. speakers to the schools.

The resignation of Quartermaster William L. Peirce was accepted and J. B. Gibson was appointed successor. Martin C. Miller was elected trustee for a two-year term.

ELM TREES ARE RUINED

No Protection to Trees Along East Superior Street.

Horses and Wagon Wheels Getting in Their Work.

George M. Smith, general agent of the Omaha railroad at Duluth, as a taxpayer of the city of Duluth, asks why the city and property owners have been so negligent in the care of the trees that have been brought to this city and planted with so much expense.

Mr. Smith points out that most of the elms, the trees that line Superior street, from Eighth avenue east to Twenty-fourth avenue east, were purchased at the Rose Hill nursery, near Chicago, brought to Duluth at considerable expense, planted at more expense, and now are utterly neglected by the city, and in many cases allowed to be ruined.

Mr. Smith says he has ridden along Superior street, from Twenty-fourth avenue to Eighth avenue east, and has observed that nearly half of the tall elms along the street have been barked and otherwise injured, some of them already ruined, and others nearly ruined, by horses gnawing at the bark, scraping wagon wheels, where the trees are set close to the curb, or in other ways.

In raising the question, Mr. Smith discusses the question of how much a large elm tree is worth, after it has attained a growth of ten years or more. It has probably cost the city $3 or $4 at a conservative estimate, to plant the small trees. When that tree has attained a large growth, Mr. Smith says it is not exaggerating the matter to say that the tree is worth over $100.

He says it would cost but a trifle for the city to provide guards for the trees. In this way hundreds of dollars worth of property could be saved. Some of the trees along Superior street, Mr. Smith asserts, have been ruined simply because of the fact that the city has taken no precautions against their destruction. He says that some of these trees are the finest and largest that have been planted along the street.

"Most of the citizens are extremely anxious to see Duluth beautified," said Mr. Smith. "I am one of those who, as a citizen, would do all that I am able to help make Duluth a beautiful city. I believe that we should save what beauty we have, and I think it nothing less than a shame that such negligence should be permitted.

"A ride over the city will reveal many cases where neglect has resulted in the destruction of trees. It is not only wasting money; it is wasting trees that have required years to attain their growth, and which it will require years to replace. It is a matter that would only require simple means to prevent, and the department that has charge of this matter should be made to adopt these protective measures.

"If these protective measures are not adopted, the city will have to replace many of these trees."

INSISTS ON HAVING JOKE

Judge in Cooper Trial Not Ready With Charge.

Dismisses Crowd, Declaring He Wants Larger Audience.

Nashville, Tenn., March 16.—Although no definite time had been set for the delivery of Judge Hart's charge to the jury in the Cooper-Sharp trial for the murder of Former United States Senator Carmack, there was a large crowd in attendance this morning when Hart arrived. He announced that he would not be prepared to begin his charge until 2 p. m., if then.

"I will excuse you all until 2 p. m.," he said to the audience. "Those who have other business to attend to may go until that hour, but come back then and I'll tell you when to return again. Anyway the crowd is too small for me to deliver the charge. I want at least as large an audience as the other fellows had."

Counsel for the defense were represented, but there was no one at the state's table. The jury was not brought in.

ARE LUCKY IN SEATS

The Minnesota Congressmen Fare Well in the Drawing.

Miller Has Good Place to Hear and be Heard.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The drawing of seats in the house of representatives was concluded at 1:45 this afternoon, and was accompanied by many humorous incidents, which greatly amused the crowded galleries.

The first name called was that of Cy Sulloway of Vermont, the tallest and heaviest man in the house. The last name to come out of the box was that of Charles R. Davis of St. Peter, Minn. Being last, he had to take a "way back" seat in the section set apart for the Republican overflow on the Democratic side of the chamber.

Hammond, the only Democrat in the Minnesota delegation, was lucky and secured a choice seat. "Jim" Tawney was lucky and retained his old seat. Fred C. Stevens drew well and has one of the best seats in the hall. Clarence B. Miller of Duluth was fortunate and has an advantageous seat to hear and be heard.

Steenerson did not fare so well, but Nye, Lindbergh and Volstead all fared very well. In fact, taking all in all, the Minnesota delegation has no cause to complain.

GIRL TELLS HER STORY

Edna Stahbrodt Relates History of Alleged Assault.

State is Presenting Its Case Against Alphonse Laurin.

Stahbrodt, on the stand in district court this morning told the story of the assault she alleges Alphonse Laurin committed on her on the Hermantown road Feb. 19 of this year. Laurin, who is 20 year old, is on trial before Judge Cant on an indictment charging the assault. The girl is 23 years old.

She told of meeting Laurin on the road on the evening of Feb. 19, when she was walking to her home on the Hermantown road. He accompanied her for some distance, she said, and then he suddenly threw his arm around her neck, at the same time striking her on the right temple. She fell down and was unconscious for a few minutes. When she came to consciousness, she said she struggled, but Laurin assaulted her.

When she arose, she said, he would not let her proceed home, but made her walk with him toward the city. About 100 feet along the road, she said he again knocked her down and assaulted her. The jingle of bells on an approaching sleigh frightened him away, she said, and he ran through the fields toward Duluth. She ran toward the sleigh and found that the Decker girls occupied it. They took her home where she told the story to her father.

She said her face was swollen where her assailant had struck her and there were finger marks on her throat. He also bit her on the hand and she showed the marks of teeth to the jury.

Dr. J. B. Weston testified to the marks on the girl's body, indicating violent assault and Chief Troyer told of the report of the case to him and Laurin's arrest.

Laurin was arrested on the night of the alleged assault. He was home in bed when arrested. After the girl had told the story to her father, he gave chase with a shot gun. He met Laurin on the road and attempted to fire the gun at him, but it failed to explode and the young fellow escaped. Mr. Stahbrodt then reported the affair to the police.

FIREMAN WANTS HEAVY DAMAGES

Hip Broken When Engine Passed Over Uneven Rails.

Before Judge Dibell in district court, the suit of John L. Madden against the Duluth & Iron Range railroad was taken up for trial yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff was still engaged in putting in his side of the case up to noon today.

Madden sues for $30,000 for injuries he alleges he sustained through the negligence of the defendant while he was employed as a locomotive fireman Dec. 19, 1907. He was firing on a train carrying rock between Allen Junction and Blwablk. The engine was backing up and he claims was proceeding at an excessive rate of speed. He was shoveling fire into the firebox and he says the engine passed over a rough spot in the track, causing the engine to lurch and throwing him against the bench in the fireman's side of the cab with such force as to fracture his hip bone.

He claims that he has been disabled since the accident and will be a cripple for the remainder of his life.

STREET FIGHT FOLLOWS GAME

Rivalry Between Superior Schools Couses Demonstration of Rowdyism.

A street fight which took place last evening in Superior, following a basket ball game between the Nelson Dewey and Blaine high schools, played at the normal school, was so violent and vicious that three members of the city police force were called to the scene to disperse the mob.

The Nelson Dewey team defeated the Blaine five by a score of 17 to 13. It was the biggest game of the season between the teams, and rivalry between the two schools was very keen. The victors in the game won the right to represent North Wisconsin in the Appleton state basket ball tournament. The game was witnessed by the largest crowd that ever gathered at a Superior basket ball game, fully 800 rooters and spectators being present. The excitement during the playing was intense, and it was evident that there was very bitter feeling on both sides.

While the Dewey supporters and school children were leaving the building, following the game, a mob of Blaine students formed on either side of the steps and sidewalk, and entered into a free-for-all combat with their rivals. Their attack was indiscriminate, and fell upon disinterested women and girls as well as the boys.

It was a most rowdy demonstration. The fighting was not confined to using fists, but stones and clubs are said to have been hurled. Even when the visiting rooters had boarded street cars for the East end, they were not safe from attack, for the ruffians pulled off the trolleys and threw missiles into the car. One of these missiles struck Miss Jeanette Vinje, daughter of Judge Vinje, and it was feared for a time that her nose had been broken. Several other persons were slightly bruised with stones. Referee Thompson of Duluth, whom the Blainites claim gave a number of unfair decisions in the game, had to be spirited through one of the schools's basement windows to escape the vengeance of the mob.

Lieut. Scoon, Sergeant Osbourne and Detective Meade answered the hurry call, and succeeded in scattering the crowd, though they made no arrests.

Old Man Weeps in Court.

When Joe Huck, 71 years old, was confronted in the Superior municipal court yesterday with the charge of assault and battery brought against him by his wife, who is but a few years younger than he, tears streamed from his eyes.

Judge Parker asked him to plead but the old men explained that he never before had been in court and did not understand its proceedings. The judge explained what was required of him, and Huck, still trembling from his grief, denied that he had ever mistreated his wife, though oftentimes she imagined that she was badly used. He said that he feared that his aged wife sometimes acted "queerly."

Huck had his wife examined for insanity some time ago, but the physicians then reported Mrs. Huck to be mentally sound.

A plea of not guilty was entered yesterday, and the case went over a week.

Joseph Sullivan Dies.

Joseph Sullivan of 1525 Tower avenue, one of the oldest residents of Superior and well known throughout the city, died today at the home of his son John, with whom he had made his home for a number of years. The cause of death was cancer of long standing.

Mr. Sullivan was 66 years old, and is survived by a wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Stanley of Pickford, Mich., and four sons, Samuel, William and Joseph, all of Duluth, and John of Superior.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 from the undertaking rooms at Sixth street and Broadway.

Music Company Must Pay.

It was decided by the jury in the superior court yesterday that the Hall-Kreidler Music Company of Superior should pay Elof Kronlund $30 for repairs he had made on a piano, which he had bought from the music company and then returned.

HARRY MITCHELL'S EDITORIAL

Fit is the Main Thing

The difference between tailor-made and ready-made clothes is in the fit. Most of the clothing stores have beautiful pictures of men's clothes in their advertisements. Good pictures are all right—I use them myself—but don't be guided by good pictures alone.

Many a man has gone into a clothing store with a splendid fashion drawing in his pockets, but has come away with a "gunny" sack on his back. For, unfortunately, the man who makes the pictures does not make the clothes.

No man can be perfectly fitted except by having his clothes made to his own measure. No ready-made clothier can carry the assortment of styles, materials, etc., made possible in clothes made to measure.

Why should a man buy hand-me-down clothes anyway—and more especially when he can get his clothes made to order with a guarantee of perfect fit and satisfaction in every respect or no pay, for the same price or even less than he can get in a ready-made store.

For $15, $20 and $25, I'll make a suit that will equal any other tailor's $30, $40 and $50 kind, and you can't get their equal in a ready-made store at any price.

I carry more fabrics and more styles than all the clothiers or tailors in Duluth put together. I have more satisfied customers than all the other fellows. My new Spring Materials are now in and ready for your inspection. Come and take a look.

Yours truly,

HARRY MITCHELL,

Store 18 East Superior St.

OUT-OF-TOWN-MEN: I can make your clothes no matter where you live and guarantee fit and satisfaction. All you have to do is to write me a letter and tell me the kind of clothes you are thinking of getting, and I will send you by return mail, latest style samples and my perfect system of self measuring, together with fashion plates and tape line. For $15, $20 and $25, I will make you a suit as good as you can order from your local tailor for $30, $40 and $50, and you can't buy their equal in a ready-made store at any price. Write me a letter today. Address your letter to Harry Mitchell, 18 East Superior street, Duluth, Minn.

PUT PLATFORM ON THE BRIDGE

Aerial Ferry Will Operate on Forty-Minute Schedule.

To allow the workmen an opportunity to build a platform along the top of the aerial bridge, from one side of the canal to the other, the ferry will be put on a 40-minute schedule tomorrow, from 9 a. m. to 12 m. and from 1 p. m. until 5 p. m. The remainder of the day the car will operate as formerly, giving a 10-minute service morning, noon and night.

Two or three weeks ago the council authorized the construction of a platform at the top of the bridge, alongside the trucks, so attendants could more easily work at the top of the bridge, and walk from one side of it to the other. The platform will be lifted into place, section by section, and probably a week will elapse before the work is complete. The 40-minute schedule will continue until the platform is all in place.

THE ANNUAL ASSESSMENT

City Assessor is Planning to Value Personal Property.

Coal on the Docks May be Included This Year.

City Assessor Rakowsky's force is getting ready for the regular spring personal property assessment work. The assessors will not start on their rounds until the first of May, but everything is being arranged early enough so they will not be handicapped when they do get started.

Last spring there were thirteen personal property assessors employed. Rakowsky says he does not know yet just how many men he will need this spring. That detail will be decided upon later.

The real estate valuations are fixed every other year, but personal property must be assessed every spring. The assessments this year will be upon practically the same basis as 1908, it is expected. In 1908 personal property was assessed at one-third its real value.

The Wisconsin supreme court recently handed down a decision whereby it is made possible in Superior to assess all the coal on the docks as personal property. The coal companies claimed that the coal on the docks should be exempt on the ground that it was in transit. The supreme court decision knocks out this contention. The understanding in Duluth is that coal on the docks can be assessed in the same manner. Up to the present time it has been unnecessary to take the matter into the courts.

An effort will be made this year to get as complete a personal property assessment as possible. It is a difficult task to secure an equitable assessment of all personal property, for the majority of people seem to think they have a perfect right to dodge a tax of this kind and do so at every opportunity. They generally tell the assessor of only about half their personal property and usually he is lucky if he gets that much from large holders of stocks, bonds, etc.

Rakowsky is still hoping that the city council will allow him a large enough appropriation to prepare a complete revaluation of Duluth real estate before the spring of 1910. He feels that a much fairer valuation can be obtained than that now on the records in this office. The idea is to have a practical real estate man visit individual pieces of property throughout the city and learn their real values so the assessments may be fixed in a manner fair and just to everybody concerned.

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperhan, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble, and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Sold by all druggists.

IS EXTRADITED TO FACE EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

Kansas City, Mo., March 16.—A charge of embezzling $15,000 awaits R. M. Nichols in Corydon, Iowa, arrested here last night by Iowa officers. Requisition papers have been honored by Governor Hadley, and M. J. Evans, deputy sheriff of Wayne county, Iowa, will take the prisoner to Corydon tomorrow. R. C. Mullen, who was associated with Nichols at Corydon, was extradited from New Mexico and passed through Kansas City last night bound for Iowa.

Until three months ago the two men, it is charged, lived in Corydon, and represented themselves as agents of the Southwestern Smelting & Refining company, capitalized at $1,000,000.

After they had been in the city a year and had sold $15,000 in stock, the company went into receivership, it is claimed. Both men left Iowa and a grand jury indicted them.

SKUNKS AS WOLF BAIT

Lakewood Man Captures Wolf Within the City Limits.

Used the Body of Skunk To Bait His Trap.

"Skunks make the best kind of wolf bait," said Walter Grey of Lakewood, in making out an affidavit before City Clerk Cheadle this morning, that a wolf pelt in his possession was shot inside the city limits.

"I caught this fellow in a trap baited with a skunk. You probably have noticed the tendency of dogs to roll in offensive smelling things, at certain seasons of the year. Wolves are the same way. They never miss an opportunity to roll around on a dead skunk, and the more offensive its smell, the better they like it.

"I caught some skunks during the warm spell last month, and kept them to bait my two wolf traps with. I caught this fellow by placing one of the dead skunks in a cleft in the rocks and covering my trap in such a way that an animal could not get to the skunk without setting off the steel springs.

"This is a brush wolf, somewhat smaller than the timber variety. I caught him half a mile this side of Lakewood. There are quite a number of brush wolves in that vicinity, but they are very wary and hard to catch or shoot. I could tell by the tracks in the snow that two others were with this one at the time he was caught in my trap. Often they travel in bunches. They seem to like to hunt in packs."

WEST END

COMMITTEE HARD AT WORK

West End Hillside Improvement Club is Busy Taking Names.

The committee appointed by the West End Hillside improvement club to secure the additional signatures to the petition for the grading of Piedmont avenue has started its work. The members are making a house-to-house canvass and they expect to have 300 names on their lists by a week from Friday, which is the time they will report and turn in the signatures.

The committeemen secured ten names yesterday and are well pleased with the showing. The club has already secured a majority of the signatures and it is the work of the committee to bring some of the property-owners, who have been hanging back, into the project.

Property owners will bear a small share of the cost of the grading, but most of them are willing to do so, so anxious are they to get an easier grade on Piedmont and the extension of the West Third street car line.

WOMAN KEEPS MONEY.

Fails to Produce Purse She Picked Up in Street Car.

David Davidson of Piedmont avenue put a purse containing quite a sum of money in his trouser's pocket, where there was a hole, permitting the purse to fall through. He dropped it on the floor of a street car in the West end, and a woman picked it up, and has decamped with it.

He did not notice his loss when he dropped the purse. He got off the car, and then he discovered his coin was missing. He waited for the same car to come back, and when it did, he was informed that a woman had picked up the pocketbook and had refused to let go of it. The woman told the conductor she was going to turn the purse in at the car starter's office, but thus far she has failed to do so.

HALL BIL IS PASSED

the present requirement as to reports of campaign expenses.

The so-called "full crew" bill, requiring railroads to have an extra brakeman on all trains above a certain size, was killed in the senate this morning, 20 for and 32 against. There has been a brisk fight over this bill, part of the railroad employes asking for it and part, notably the conductors, being opposed to it. Senators Pugh and Laybourn of Duluth voted for the bill, and Senator Vail was not present.

The house spent most of the morning fighting over the Nolan bill putting street railways under the railroad and warehouse commission. Considerable opposition has developed to it in its present form, in the Twin Cities, mainly Minneapolis, and Representative Burnquist asked that it be referred to the judiciary committee for a public hearing and for amendment, if necessary.

Part of the Twin City members favored the motion and part opposed it as dilatory and obstructive. Nolan, author of the bill, and Wells, one of its defenders, said that the cities are opposing this bill as they did the Jacobson bill, increasing the gross earnings tax on railroads and by the same methods.

Finally L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis, who favors the bill said that it was possible an amendment might be made that would satisfy the opposition, so he advocated referring it to the committee. It was finally decided by the house to refer the measure with directions that a public hearing be had and the bill reported back by Saturday morning. In the meantime it will retain its place on the calendar.

Representative Rowe of St. Paul endeavored to kill the bill allowing clubs to dispense liquor to their members without paying a saloon license by moving its indefinite postponement. The motion was lost, 39 for and 54 against, so the bill retains its present place on the calendar.

On motion of Representative Grant of Duluth, the house passed, under suspension of rules, the senate bill allowing the city of Duluth to issue $60,000 in bonds to pave Garfield avenue, which is in bad shape and cannot be fixed under ordinary methods because so much of the property it fronts upon is railroad property, and therefore exempt from paying assessments. The bill now goes to the governor.

The house judiciary committee recommended the bill prohibiting the marriage of first cousins, with an amendment making it effective Jan. 1, probably with a view to taking care of pending contracts of that character.

The senate passed the Dorsey house resolution asking congress to establish a ship canal from Lake Superior to the Mississippi.

Sullivan and Canfield joined in a bill which is a compromise on the Canfield primary election system. Leaving all other officers to be nominated by the people, the bill proposes that state officers and congressmen shall be nominated by conventions made up of delegates selected at primary elections held under the Australian ballot law.

The Cashman distance tariff bill will come up for final action in the senate Friday, having been made a special order for that day.

Senator C. A. Johnson offered a bill providing half pay pensions for all employes of state institutions, who are 70 years old, who have served thirty years and who are not getting over $50 a month.

The following bills came into the senate: Fosseen, prohibiting the purchase of grain from minors, who have obtained it unlawfully; Fosseen, allowing courts to bring before them for to punishment those who have contributed to the delinquency or dependency of children: Thorpe, authorizing the board of grain appeals to grade and sample grain scrapings; Thorpe, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of adulterated and misbranded goods, aimed especially at dealers in stock foods.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

SOO PLANS NEW DEPOT

Substantial Structure to Be Erected at Thief River Falls.

To Enlarge Roundhouse, Preparing For Duluth Business.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nothing in the way of railway improvement in this portion of the state carries greater significance than the announcement, just made public, of the intention of the Soo railway to construct a modern, two-story, brick depot here, to replace the present wooden one.

The new depot will be constructed this spring, and will be 200 feet long by 40 feet wide. The first floor will be utilized for the ticket office, the waiting rooms, freight and express rooms. While the second story will provide office rooms for the train dispatchers, road masters and superintendent and master mechanic and other officials, who make this city their headquarters.

It is also authoritatively given out that ten additional stalls will be added this summer to the present round house. All these improvements are but preliminary to the construction of the connecting link between this city and the head of the Lakes. This last branch will not be constructed until next year, but these contemplated improvements will be necessities before that time arrives, and will be ready when the line is built.

INDIANS READY FOR INVASION

Will Welcome Whites in Settling of Standing Rock Reserve.

Standing Rock Agency, N. D., March 16.—The 5,000 Sioux who get their mail and magazines at this agency—where they were wont to draw rations—are spending their last winter, as segregated people. In making plans for the reception of the white invasion of the reservation next summer or fall when the immense tract—nearly 3,000,000 acres, including the Cheyenne river reservation—will be thrown open for settlement.

Nearly all the Indians here have relatives on the lower Missouri river reservations which have already been opened and they are quite wise to what the coming of the whites means to them. They now subsist themselves by freighting for the government, and for private parties, by chopping wood and by doing such other chores as they can get paid for, but they are not without information as to the possibilities of the immediate future when the greater part of their inheritance will be given to whites. They expect and will probably get their share of the money that will be brought in by the whites.

Develop Business Sense.

They have developed a good deal of business sense; they are sons of the men who fought the best soldiers in the United States up to the last quarter of the last century. With the passing of Sitting Bull, Gall, Rain-in-the-Face and the other chiefs who gained national fame on the battlefield or about the council fires there passed the last vestige of savagery from these people and they came to know they must live on terms with the white man and get their share of the fruits of the earth by the sweat of their brows. They did not take to sweating rapidly, but the rising generation retains a good share of the high order of intelligence which for so long distinguished the Teton Sioux, after the other plains Indians had laid down before the tide of white progress and the intelligence is being applied to questions at ways and means.

Here at the agency they gather in groups and discuss the prospects. Over yonder, just outside the abandoned post of Fort Yates, Sitting Bull lies at rest, but he is not more dead than the spirit he strove to keep alive. These Indians at the agency talk of where the towns will be and what they may get out of the rush for claims in the ceded portions of the reservations.

Power to Resist

Infectious and contagious diseases depends most of all on the health and strength of the white blood corpuscles.

They are microscopic bodies whose important function is to destroy disease germs that invade the system through the air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat, and otherwise.

If you are pale, nervous, easily tired, with little or no appetite or if you are troubled with any humor your white blood corpuscles are not healthy and strong and you should begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla at once.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. These ingredients are the very remedies that successful physicians prescribe for the same diseases and ailments. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

TWO VETERANS ARE SUMMONED

John Lanson and Leonard Illiff, Both of Ironwood, Dead.

Ironwood, Mich., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Sanson, a pioneer resident of this city, died here Friday morning. Sanson's death was caused by asthma, from which he had been a sufferer for many years. He was 67 years of age and leaves a wife and three grown up children. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served in Company D, Eighty-second Illinois infantry for three years. The funeral took place from the home on Mansfield street Sunday afternoon, attended by the local post, G. A. R., of which the deceased was a member.

Leonard Illiff, an old resident of this city, died at his home on South Suffolk street Sunday of heart failure. He had worked all day Saturday and felt as well as usual upon retiring Saturday evening, and had talked to Mrs. Illiff shortly before his death.

GREAT NORTHERN ON PAN.

Road's Affairs Being Looked Into at Rate Law Hearing.

St. Paul, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Special Master C. E. Otis, who is conducting the rate law hearing case, is hearing testimony relative to the Great Northern railroad.

A. V. Hogeland, the chief engineer, was on the stand till yesterday morning, under examination by Hale Holden of Chicago, attorney for the road.

His testimony was relative to the value of the company's property in Minnesota, and dealt largely with what it would cost to reconstruct the road. He placed the total figure at $57,348,856, and stated it would have taken eight years of work if it had been started June 30, 1908. This figure is about 50 per cent higher than the estimate of value placed on the property by the state.

In Minnesota the road has 2,056 miles of main track and side track sufficient to raise the mileage to 2,779 miles for a total.

Minot, N. D., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mammoth linen mill which will manufacture linen from flax straw, may be located here.

The Oxford Linen mills of North Brookfield, Mass., which has been in correspondence with Minot parties for some time, has discovered a process by which the finest grade of linen can be made from flax straw, which goes to waste in such large quantities in North Dakota.

The firm has established a plant at North Brookfield, Mass., and at present is bending all its energies getting the home factory on the best business basis.

After the home field is developed to the fullest extent, branches will be located in other sections of the United States, and Minot, which is one of the greatest wheat centers in the world, stands an excellent chance to get one of the branch factories.

Thomas Shepherd, who has been in communication with the mills, has just received a letter in which the firm states that after it gets its home field thoroughly developed, it will branch out and that Minot will be considered as a point for a branch factory.

CROOKSTON FEELS LID.

New Pool and Billiard Ordinance in Effect Last Sunday.

Crookston, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recently adopted pool and billiard hall ordinance was in effect Sunday, and the result was very apparent. The pool rooms were closed tight during the entire day and no effort was made to run counter to any of the provisions of the Wright ordinance. Time and time former patrons of the several places tried the doors, only to walk away disgusted and somewhat disappointed.

The pool room men even went so far as to close their cigar stands and counters, and in order to avoid any chance for controversy, kept their front, side and back doors locked and the curtains on their windows drawn aside so that there could be no controversy as to the place being closed. It is probable that no effort will be made to run counter to the ordinance.

Senator Isidor Rayner of Maryland.

Senator Nathan Bay Scott of West Virginia.

Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N., retired.

Theodore P. Shonts, late of the Panama canal.

Old People Made Young

Hill's Rheumatic Pills are a Godsend to any person over 50 years old. By their gentle, natural stimulation of kidneys, liver and bowels they throw off the poisons which clog the system, causing the twinges, aches and pains which make old age hard to bear. When these poisons are removed there is no more pain—the muscles and joints become supple—you eat and sleep better and feel thirty years younger.

When old age comes the sewers of the body become clogged—kidneys are inactive—the liver is torpid—the bowels do not act freely. The waste matter is kept in the system. It's POISON. The result is the same as though the house pipes had clogged and the sewerage was backing into the cellar.

Hills Rheumatic Pills

remove these poisons by restoring these vital organs to health. They are purely vegetable—they contain no calchates, no iodides, no mineral poisons of any kind. These things injure the stomach and cause indigestion. Hill's Rheumatic Pills stimulate the appetite and strengthen digestion. These wonder-working pills are made the same today as they were 73 years ago. We have letters in our files from over 18,000 grateful people who have been relieved from pain and made to feel young again by this marvelous preparation of healing herbs and roots. Yet during all this 73 years Hill's Rheumatic Pills have never been advertised until now. They have been recommended from one to another until today, by their own merit alone, they are used in thousands of homes, to be taken occasionally as means of prevention by those who were in agony from Rheumatism and have been cured.

TEST THEM FREE

We realize that there are hundreds of worthless nostrums on the market—that you may have been deceived into trying them and derived no benefit. If so, you have a right to be suspicious. To all such we will give a liberal sized package of Hill's Rheumatic Pills for a letter or postal describing their case. Address the letter to Helden & Copp, the makers, Dept. 108, Minneapolis, Minn. The package will come prepaid. Pay nothing then or at any time. When you find the aches and pains going, and see yourself becoming better and stronger each day—then you will KNOW and BELIEVE, and will be as anxious to continue the remedy and be cured as we are to relieve your suffering.

You can secure these Pills from your home druggist. Lenox Drug Store, Lyceum Pharmacy.

JAMES SEVILLE PASSES AWAY

One of Duluth's Pioneer Citizens Dies in Minneapolis.

News was received in Duluth today of the death of James Seville, one of Duluth's earliest settlers, who passed away in Minneapolis Sunday.

Mr. Seville was one of the most prominent of the early pioneers in Duluth, and was very well known among the earlier settlers here. He served several terms as alderman from the First ward, and was a prominent member of the First M. E. church. He started what is now the National Iron works, and later had a coal and wood business. He left Duluth about eight years ago.

Mr Seville had ten children, but only one survives him, his son Charles, at whose home he died. Mrs. Seville died about twelve years ago. Mr. Seville also leaves a grandson, Frank Seville, who lives in Duluth.

The funeral is being held today in Minneapolis, and later the body will be sent to Milwaukee for interment in the family lot there.

HOLIDAYS TOO MUCH FOR HIM

Mrs. Underferth Says Husband Celebrates Too Freely.

Mrs. Theresa Underferth alleges that her husband, A. F. Underferth, has a habit of celebrating holidays by getting gloriously drunk and beating her on arriving home with his load. She filed suit for divorce in district court yesterday afternoon.

In her complaint, Mrs. Underferth says they were married in Duluth, and their married life has been marred by Underferth's love for the flowing bowl. On Christmas eve of 1903, she alleges, he came home with a jag, threw her against a sink and tried to hit her with a glass. On Labor day of the same year he carried a load home and chased her with a razor.

Mrs. Underferth wants an absolute divorce and alimony. She also asks a restraining order to prevent her husband from selling property worth about $1,000. He is a collar maker and able to earn $15 a week, she says.

"THE THIEF."

Bernstein's Masterly Play Presented by Capable Frohman Company.

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart,
'Tis woman's whole existence."

Every woman who loves her husband wholly, and whose happiness is dependent entirely upon the love of her husband, is constantly haunted by the spectre of losing his love. No matter how secure she may be in his affections, and how complete her happiness, this spectre is constantly in the background. The man with his business, and his outside interests plays the game of married life with a trump hand. The woman, whose love is her whole existence, has laid her cards upon the table.

It's not a very pretty idea this, but it is the theme that Henri Bernstein has taken for his play, "The Thief," which was presented at the Lyceum last evening by a Frohman company headed by Margaret Wycherly.

"The Thief" has apparently lost little in the translation from the original French. The logical climax of the play is reached in a simple, direct manner, without waste of meaningless words, and without halt of the action.

In writing the play, the author has pictured a young woman married to a man of charming personality, who has had his little fling before his marriage. This his wife knows, but she is desperately in love with her husband.

She sees with the sharp eyes of love. She studies her husband as only a woman will study the man she loves. Always in the background, haunting her, driving a shadow across her life, is the fear that she will lose the affection of this man; the man who represents life, love, everything to her—her husband.

She sees when other women would not have seen. She observes her husband comparing her appearance with that of other women whom he meets. She knows that these women are dressed better than she, and she knows that her husband observes this. She is fighting her own battle; she is assailed by a thousand fears. Goaded to desperation by the fear that she will lose the love of her husband, she becomes a thief in order that she may be better gowned—not for the love of finery, but from a desire to be more attractive in her husband's eyes.

The play is logical, interesting, well written. Its ending is strong, in keeping with the action of its three acts. Were Henri Bernstein less a master of his craft, he would have portrayed the erring wife, a weaker woman with less sentiment, with less virtue. As it is, you have a pity for Marie Voysin, a feeling that at heart she is a good woman. You feel that her act was not an ignoble one.

There has not been a play in Duluth this season that has been better presented than has "The Thief." The greater part of the work falls upon the shoulders of those two excellent artists Margaret Wycherly and Charles Dalton.

It is very doubtful if Mr. Bellew or Margaret Illington gave any finer presentation of the two leading characters, than did Mr. Dalton and Miss Wycherly.

Miss Wycherly's work is repressed, artistic. Her voice is beautiful, expressive, sympathetic; her enunciation clear. She has before her work in the present play, forced her acceptance as one of the artistic actresses of the modern stage, and her work in the present play only serves to add to that reputation.

Miss Wycherly depicts Marie Voysin as a woman, tender, true, sensitive; a woman of strong love, of deep and subtle feelings; a woman haunted by a goading fear; a woman who errs, yet who in the end redeems her fault by a sense of truth and decency that lifts her above petty meanness.

Charles Dalton portrays Richard Voysin as a sturdy, strong man, who loves truth and honor as only strong men do. He is a man who is tender, yet hard as iron; a man who is master; a man of the world, a man who has had his fling; a man who loves his wife deeply; yet the kind of a man whom a woman instinctively feels must be charmed, must be kept interested.

Edward R. Mawson, as Raymond Lagardes, is all that the role requires. He is natural, has a most pleasing voice, and fits into the artistic atmosphere that pervades the play. Mrs. Hillary Bell, as Isabel Lagardes, the wife of Raymond, does all that a role which calls for but little more than straight acting, demands. Mrs. Hillary Bell has acted many roles and has done few inartistic things.

Leonard Ide was at times too "ranty" as the son of Raymond Lagardes, but in his more quiet moments, was good. Arthur Lawrence, as Mons. Gondin, the magistrate, had a neat bit of work in the first act, and for the way he did this he received a generous hand.

The mounting was in keeping with the work of it's artists. "The Thief" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night, with a Wednesday matinee.

"THE BRITISH EDISON."

"Wizard of the North" Heads Good Bill at Bijou.

Carl Herman, known as the "British Edison" and "the Wizard of the North," is certainly the human live wire. He just plays with electricity. He heads the bill at the Bijou this week, and his novel act is a whole card in itself.

His performance is marvelous. Some of it is comedy and more is mystifying. He lights tissue paper with his fingers, ear or tongue. He allows strong electric currents to pass through his body without so much as a tremor. He lives in an electric atmosphere and seems to like it.

Cal Stewart is very, very funny. He sings his farmer songs and tells stories in the quaint dialect of "Uncle Josh," and he does it all well. There isn't a dull moment during his act.

Williams' and Walker's "Chocolate Drops," four colored women, and King and Bailey, have a singing, dancing and talking act that combines good comedy with real music. Dick Richards and Mildred Grover do a comedy musical act, in which Mr. Richards drags music from a piano without any effort, and Miss Grover does a few clever imitations. Cowboy Williams, a juggler with some new stunts, is entertaining during the few minutes he occupies the center of the stage.

Isadore Silver sings "It's Always Nice Weather Indoors," and the usual moving pictures close a very entertaining bill.

"The Girls From Berlin."

Corinne will be seen at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday matinee and night, in her new play, "The Girls From Berlin," by John McNally. William Jerome and Jean Schwartz. Corinne's part is a quaintly humorous character, strictly within the straight comedy lines. The musical numbers consistently belong to the situation in which they are placed. There are many catchy songs, and a large cast and beauty chorus.

Emma Eames.

To be heralded as an American singer has its advantages. It arouses one's patriotism. To be an American singer who has triumphed in the world's musical centers is an honor that seldom comes. Emma Eames, who is to sing here on Thursday evening, has claim to both. She is queenly in appearance. Her voice is beautiful. Gounod it was who leaped with pleasure the first time he heard ser sing and declared her to be the ideal he sought for his "Marguerite." Had she visited Bayreuth in Wagner's day he would assuredly have chosen her for a Wagnerian role, notwithstanding she has gained many triumphs in Wagner music and in the French school.

with the other sources of government revenue, does not furnish income enough to pay the authorized expenditures. By July first next the excess of expenses over receipts for the current fiscal year will equal $100,000,000.

Pledged to Revision.

"The successful party in the late election is pledged to a revision of the tariff. The country and the business community especially expect it. The prospect of a change in the rates of import duties always causes a suspension or halt in business because of the uncertainty as to the changes to be made and their effect. It is therefore of the highest importance that the new bill should be agreed upon, and passed with as much speed as possible consistent with its due and thorough consideration.

"For these reasons I have deemed the present to be an extraordinary occasion, within the meaning of the Constitution, justifying and requiring the calling of an extra session.

"In my inaugural address I stated in a summary way the principles upon which, in my judgment, the revision of the tariff should proceed, and indicated at least one new source of revenue that might be properly resorted to in order to avoid a future deficit. It is not necessary for me to repeat what I then said.

"I venture to suggest that the vital business interests of the country require that the attention of the congress in this session be chiefly devoted to the consideration of the new tariff bill, and that the less time given to other subjects of legislation in this session, the better for the country.

THE ENTERING WEDGE.

Yesterday's victory of the "insurgents" in the house, whereby the house rules are to be amended in several important particulars, is more decisive than appears on its face. It was achieved in face of the opposition, either expressed or taken for granted, of President Taft to any fight which would result in embarrassment to his program for tariff revision. In view of this fact the insurgents did well to hang together as firmly as they did. While radical action was not secured, the country is probably as well satisfied that it was not. The changes made in the rules make it possible for any member to secure recognition upon the floor, for any member to call up any bill in which he is interested and for any member to secure a vote upon any measure upon which he demands it. Under the old rules all these matters were at the pleasure of the speaker. For a member to do any of these things, he must first have secured the consent of the speaker. The speaker is still left with great powers, more than simply the power to expedite business, it is generally believed, but he is no longer absolutely despotic.

As to the main contention, that the speaker be shorn of his power to appoint committees, such power being given to a committee of the house, the country is not yet convinced of its wisdom. The plan has certainly not given any more satisfaction in the senate than the plan of having the speaker appoint the committees as in the house.

The insurgents have secured a decisive victory and the house is today more of a representative body than it has been for years. The changes that have been secured are the entering wedge for such a revision of the rules as will make the house an actual representative, deliberate body.

Incidentally, the failure of Congressman C. B. Miller of this district, to give any support whatever to the insurgents in their fight, will be a great surprise to the people of the district. Mr. Miller, during the campaign, committed himself unreservedly to the revision of the rules. His total repudiation of the principles for which he stood during his campaign will come as a decided shock to the people of the district. It is impossible for a man to be more rationally zealous for reform than was Mr. Miller during the campaign; yet it is impossible for any man to more thoroughly repudiate reform, root and branch, than did Mr. Miller by his complete and unequivocal alignment with the standpatters in the house yesterday. That which he denounced upon the stump, he now embraces. There can be some excuse for Mr. Miller's vote for Mr. Cannon, because the latter's re-election to the speakership was a foregone conclusion, but when he voted against the revision of the rules which made Cannonism possible, he betrayed the trust reposed in him by the people of the Eighth congressional district.

BABIES AND THE BALLOT.

There is no such thing as a free and unlimited suffrage. The ballot does not belong to all men alike; it belongs only to certain men who, the best wisdom of which we have yet been capable has decided, shall vote for all of us.

The rights of the ballot do not extend to women, except in certain limited cases; the male kind under 21 years of age are not allowed to vote; most black men do not vote, the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States notwithstanding; and even white men, of lawful age, may exercise the right of franchise only upon certain conditions. It is apparent, not only that there is no free and unlimited suffrage, but that there never will be. In fact, there are reasons to believe that the ballot may in time be denied to many who now have it.

Among the contributions to the discusion of woman's suffrage in this country is the declaration of "a courageous woman," as the Outlook calls her, that suffrage should be given to woman, but that it should be given only to married women who are mothers. First produce a baby or no ballot! The reasoning of the "courageous woman" is that suffrage is already too widely extended and that the highest good of the whole people demands that suffrage be restricted, not extended. The state should be governed by those best fitted to govern, she declares. Mothers, having a deeper sense of responsibility than other women can possibly have, are the only women who should have the ballot.

But whether the baby should be the sine qua non of the ballot for women, the suggestion touches nearly a matter which is of concern to every one who desires good government. We may safely start from the assumption that suffrage will always be restricted; there will always be some who may vote and some who may not vote. By what rule shall those who are to have the ballot be separated from those who are not to have it? If the wisdom of time has shown us that some restrictions must be made, it is possible that with greater wisdom we shall decide on still further restrictions. For instance, conditions under which the right of suffrage is now exercised, as was recently pointed out by The Herald, are such as to make it practically certain that the most ignorant and the most corrupt shall cast their ballots, but that the best intelligence of the country, the men whose influence is most desired in each election for good government, shall be largely prevented from voting. Commercial travelers and men whose business frequently take them away from home lose their votes by the thousand in every election, but the bum and the loafer is right on hand with every opening of the polls. If a man is known to be an enemy of good government, ought he be allowed the ballot? Ought we not to remove restrictions which prevent a large proportion of our best citizenship from voting?

The question of woman's suffrage is a question which women themselves must settle. It is not so much for men to give women the ballot as it is for women to take it or not to take it, as they shall determine. But as to whether the ballot shall be confined to women who are mothers and to men of adjudged fitness is a far broader and a far more difficult question. Certain it is that restrictions exist, and that the pressure is rather for still other restrictions than for more universal suffrage. The best government is the government in which the greatest number intelligently and honestly participate and it is to such, and such only, that the ballot ought to extend.

IT'S SORRY SHOWING

No measure which has been made a matter of general public thought has ever made so sorry a showing in Minnesota as the proposed tonnage tax law.

The tonnage tax proposal comes up in the house tomorrow for final discussion, and it comes up the most discredited measure ever seriously proposed upon the floor of that body. Although it has now been before the people of the state for four years and although it presents a method of securing money for the state's expenses that is very alluring and greatly desired by a large portion of the state because it will relieve so large a proportion of the people of the state from any tax whatever for state purposes, every argument by which it has been sought to justify this measure has been riddled through and through in discussion and has been abandoned by its proposers, until the bill for a tonnage tax now comes up in the house for final disposition supported only by desire, by prejudice and by the pledges of those who promised their constituents to vote for it before they knew of its injustice and unwisdom.

The Herald realizes perfectly the difficulty of many representatives in the house. The tonnage tax as a measure of justice or wisdom has been completely disproved and there are very, very few members of the legislature who are today in favor of the proposition. But the state, and The Herald grieves to state, its newspapers have not been so thoughtful. The sentiment for a tonnage tax in Minnesota is not as strong today as it was two years ago, but it is still strong. Many people have looked into the matter and have become convinced of the folly of the tax but many others have given no thought to it beyond its desirability and have disposed of every argument showing its injustice with the comforting thought that nobody is concerned but the steel trust, which ought to be "soaked" on general principles. A good many newspapers have prated of the desire of the state and of their own desire to "simply do justice" in this matter, but most of them, when confronted by arguments showing the injustice of the tax, immediately resort to loose assertions about the "state's heritage," "diminishing wealth," "the strange persistency" of the newspapers of the iron range country and Duluth and the iniquity of the steel trust. Thus public opinion is inflamed by prejudice and by a total ignoring of the real facts in the case, so that it still demands in many districts the enactment of a tonnage tax law and imputes dishonesty to any man who has the courage to stand by his convictions that the law is unjust. The position is certainly a difficult one for many members of the legislature and they will need to be men of courage to vote as they think.

The tonnage tax bill will be beaten. No measure of such gross injustice, supported by not so much as one iota of legitimate argument, will ever be permitted upon the statute book of Minnesota. The Herald cannot blame those who have advocated the tonnage tax. The proposition certainly did "look good." It asks nothing but an honest and earnest examination of the question; those who have given it such an examination have abandoned the tonnage tax as an unjust, unwise measure and it has today not a single sound leg to stand on. The people of Minnesota will never shame themselves by enacting into law such a measure.

MAKING THE DEFICIT A BOGY MAN.

There is a very deliberate attempt being made to use the deficit of the current fiscal year as a means of justifying only a partial revision of the tariff. The attempt is not yet been made openly, but comment upon the necessity for wiping out the deficit is being judiciously encouraged and a statement of the deficit is usually found in close juxtaposition to a statement of the difficulties of tariff revision.

In this connection it is well to know just how alarming the deficit is. A deficit is naturally always alarming. To have one's income running behind one's expenses is cause for immediate thought and action. But the fact that the nation has a deficit is not necessarily proof that it has been given over to reckless expenditure or that it is going helter-skelter to the demnition bow-bows of finance. In fact in the past ten years we have had almost as many years of deficit as we have had of surplus. Here are the figures for the decade:

Year.	Receipts.	Disbursements.
1899	$ 515,960,620	$ 605,072,180
1900	567,240,852	487,713,792
1901	587,685,338	509,567,353
1902	562,478,233	471,190,858
1903	560,396,674	506,099,007
1904	540,621,749	582,402,321
1905	544,274,685	567,278,913
1906	594,454,122	568,784,799
1907	663,140,334	578,903,748
1908	599,895,763	659,552,124

Says the New York Sun: "Here are six years of surplus and four years of deficit, with a surplus of about $200,000,000 for the term. The probability is that unless congress shall indulge in inexcusably extravagant appropriations or unless there shall come an unusually prolonged series of crop failures, the revenues of the country will be adequate for all proper purposes. The deficits of lean years will be balanced by the surplus of fat years."

A brief view of the actual condition of the country as to population and wealth, will show that there is absolutely no reason to be seriously alarmed over a deficit in any one year. In thirty years the expenses of the country have doubled. In the same time the population has doubled, and the wealth of the country has quadrupled. With the means at our disposal we are able today to meet expenses twice as great as the expenses we are having and yet be no more heavily burdened than was the preceding generation.

The expenses of a nation increase quite steadily with its growth, but a nation's income increases irregularly. By reason of poor crops or a financial panic the revenue of one year may even fall below that of the preceding year, or by reason of particularly favorable conditions it may increase so rapidly as to create an undesirable temporary surplus. During the past decade we have struck a pretty fair average, leaving us at the end of the period with a sufficient, but not too large, surplus. We may expect that history will repeat itself in this respect.

Percy Augustus Gardner certainly had his nerve.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Gilbert is going to grow faster than any of the rangetowns the coming year, for the town of Sparta, is moving bag and baggage over to our town," said C. Garnet at the Lenox hotel yesterday. "The effect of this exodus of the citizens of Sparta to Gilbert, is that the property in Gilbert has been increased, is still increasing, as a matter of fact, and that many new buildings are under construction at the present time.

"Most of the business men who have moved over to Gilbert have already constructed their stores and business buildings, or they have them under course of construction. Many of the people who have transferred their business to Gilbert have made arrangements to construct homes there. All the citizens who at the present time are conducting their business in Gilbert, have not constructed homes there. However, they will this summer, when the real growth of Gilbert will begin.

"There won't be very much left of Sparta by next fall. The Steel corporation owns the entire site of the town and will use it for exploration purposes. What is Sparta's loss will be Gilbert's gain. The fact that all of Sparta is going to move over and join us, will make us one of the hustling towns of the range. It will increase our business, advance the value of real estate, and in general work for the betterment of Gilbert.

Here is a story that W. P. Plant, who represents a Chicago clothing house told at the St. Louis last night:

"There was an attorney by the name of Strange. Suddenly he was taken seriously ill. He grew worse, and there was a consultation of physicians. The verdict came forth that there was little chance here below for Strange.

"Then Strange called his attorney in. He informed him what he wanted upon his tombstone, the conditions of his will, etc. Strange insisted that the following should be inscribed upon his tombstone:

"'Here lies an attorney, who was an honest man.'

"'But why, insisted his attorney, do you want such few words upon your tombstone? No name, have you, or anything definite.'

"'When people read that inscription, they will remark, that's strange,' replied the sick attorney."

An Englishman was telling the same story.

"There was an American barrister, don't you know, old chap, who was blooming sick, old fellow.

"This chap's name was Strange, don't you know. Strange name, I say ha, ha, ha, ha.

"He was very ill, old fellow, and he sent for this lawyer, chap.

"'Hi say, lawyer, fix out me will and place me tombstone one,' He lies an attorney who was an honest man.'

"'But why not something more, a name, something definite, old chap?' asked his attroney.

"'Because, when they see that, they will say, that's extraordinary, don't you know, old fellow.'"

"Tommy" Michaud yesterday received a letter from "Jim" Sargent. In his letter Mr. Sargent unfolded the fact that he was some pumpkins before the state legislature. He informed the manager of the St. Louis that he was garbed out in a brown derby hat, patent leather kickers, a suit of clothes that could almost talk, and an open faced smile.

Mr. Sargent, you know, is before the state legislature in the interests of the people. That is, he is down there to tell the solons certain things about the railroads. There are certain railroad bills pending, so the officials of the Northern Pacific, with a natural solicitation for the welfare of the people, believed that it would be expedient to have some practical railroad man before the legislature to dispense information as to the art of running a train, etc.

If such a man were needed at the legislature, why not have this man an employe of the Northern Pacific. Sure, why not?

"Some people don't know it, but we have the biggest lumber mill in the world, right at Virginia," said Harry Sander of Virginia, at the Lenox hotel yesterday. "The mill owned by the consolidated Rainy Lake & Virginia company is now the largest lumber mill in the world. Taking into consideration the amount of lumber controlled by that company, and the amount of lumber that will be cut at the mill at Virginia, that city may be said to one of the big centers of the fast vanishing Northwestern timber belt. There will be an immense amount of timber cut at Virginia in the near future, because of the immense amount of lumber controlled by the Rainy Lake company."

A. N. Miller of La Crosse, Wis., one of the towns in the new Minnesota-Wisconsin league, is of the opinion that the new group of towns will prove a financial success to the backers of the league. He says La Crosse is greatly enthused over the new league, and that Winona, where he was the other day, is greatly worked up over the prospects of some fast ball this summer.

Winona has always been a good baseball town, and Mr. Miller is of the opinion that if that city is given good baseball, it will prove one of the best drawing towns in the circuit.

THE WEATHER.

The Palm Beach weather sneaked away last night, leaving Duluth colder than it has been for quite a little while. It was 8 degs above zero here last night. This morning the wind whistled around the corners and many Superior street show windows boast coats of frost. The temperature was 8 degs. below zero in Devils Lake and Minnedosa registered 20 below last night.

The weather was pretty crisp a year ago today.

This morning the sun came up at 6:19 and is scheduled to go down at 6:14.

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"The central high pressure area still overspreads the Middle West from Saskatchewan to the gulf, with centers over the Texas coast, Kansas and Saskatchewan and Manitoba. During the past twenty-four hours, light rain or snow has fallen over Saskatchewan, Manitoba the lake region, the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio valleys and over Florida, due to the movement of the low pressure area now central over Upper Michigan and overspreading the entire lake region. Another disturbance is approaching over British Columbia. Temperatures have not changed much since Monday morning, except over the North Central border states, where the weather is considerably colder this morning."

Dad's Trophies.

You long to be an athlete, Son,
An agile lad of brawn;
You long to box, to run, to row,
And win a Marathon?

'T would be a satisfaction, yes,
'T would bring you some renown;
But nature might not stand the stress,
And then you would break down.

I'm not athletic—never was.
And never longed to be;
The man who follows nature's laws
Keeps well and muscle-free.

But he who trains to fight or run,
For trophies or for gold,
Soon finds it work instead of fun,
And soon grows stale and old.

When I was young I had a pard—
A bravery youth was he;
With physique pink and muscles hard;
Quite the reverse of me.

He was an athlete beyond doubt—
A giant lithe and strong.
But his exertions wore him out—
He didn't thrive for long.

When he was full of life and vim,
He many times did claim
Because I was not strong like him
I had myself to blame.

I was a bloodless looking chap;
Pasty and short of breath —
A sickly atom on the map
Striving to side-step Death.

At least, that's what the athlete said,
Yet, I'm now sixty-five—
I've reared you and nine others, Ned,
And still am much alive.

As for my pard of long ago,
Who medals won and wore,
And of his strength made so much show—
He died when twenty-four.

No trophies did he long enjoy—
I hadn't any then,
But I have plenty now, my boy,
You are but one of ten.

Scare Head President.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: Mr. Roosevelt's salutatory as an editor associated with Doctors Abbott and Mahlie contained too much fine scorn for the editors he does not like to seem like a truly fraternal greeting to the journalists of the land. Nothing was said about the craven, the weakling or the mollycoddle, but the yellow editor and the high brow scoffer in the sanctum that emits wit, cynicism and mendacity in equal parts were drawn and quartered. Several amusing comments on this deliverance have been called forth, and some doubt has been expressed as to the purity of Mr. Roosevelt's English style. It is surprising, perhaps, that the yellow editors have not yet retorted with a very obvious tu quoque. How easy it is to show that of all the presidents of the United States since No. 1, Mr. Roosevelt was most conspicuous and successful in using the principles of yellow journalism in his methods of administration and government. If we ever had a "scare-head" president, it was No. 26.

Regret.

When I remember something which I had,
But which is gone, and I must do without,
I sometimes wonder how I can be glad,
Even in cowslip time when hedges sprout,
It makes me sad to think or ill—but yet
My days will not be better days, should I forget.

When I remember something promised me,
But which I never had, nor can have now,
Because the promiser we no more see
In countries that accord a mortal vow;
When I member this, I mourn—but yet
My happier days are not the days when I forget.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Clay County Herald: They are going to amend the penal code so that whisky can't be shipped labeled as "varnish," in spite of the fact that a lot of it ought to be.

Virginia Enterprise: The worm may turn, but in a few weeks more he will not turn quick enough to escape the watchful eye of the man who is hunting for fish bait.

Willmar Journal: It is a fact to be commended rather than one to criticise, that Theodore Roosevelt had high ideals. That he did not reach his ideals is not a disgrace, either. He was the kind of a person that kept his ideas so high that the striving to attain them resulted in bettering of conditions. Just think, if one ever attained his ideal, there would be nothing more to strive after.

Little Falls Herald: To be sure, Taft won't talk about judges the way Roosevelt did. He was one himself. Yet Roosevelt had the great example of Lincoln and Jefferson, who never hesitated to criticise the highest court in the land when in their judgment it was wrong.

Moorhead Independent: Brace up! It's only a matter of time until you will have to buy a straw lid.

Winona Independent: Mr. Roosevelt is reported to be out with an ax chopping down trees every day. Some one will be certain to accuse the ex-president of inconsistency in thus refusing to conserve his natural resources.

Two Harbors Iron News: The bill abolishing capital punishment was defeated by a very narrow margin in the house this week, and legal killings will continue for a short time longer. Barbarism in the human family has a slow death.

Monticello Times: A prominent physician advises us to accept the demands of our appetites and eat what we want. Patrons of the free soup kitchen and followers in the bread line should take notice and act accordingly.

Cannon Falls Beacon: This is Lent. If you can't be good, be as good as you can!

Waverley Star: The Belle Plaine Herald truly remarks that "no community is so small but that it can boast of the best home talent performers ever seen on the local stage."

The Gang's all Here.

Philadelphia Times: Not very long ago several high school girls living uptown formed a sewing circle. Everything went along swimmingly, and occasionally, when gossip and refreshments were exhausted, the girls did a little sewing. But the other day a void began to make itself felt in the circle—the club was incomplete—the girls had no yell!

"Our Dick belongs to a club," remarked Edna, a charter member, "and they have a bully yell. Something like this, 'Hail, hail, the gang's all here. What the'—er—well, I don't remember all of it, but that's the way it starts."

The other girls had heard something of the sort, too, and it was unanimously agreed that a better pattern could possibly be selected. A dozen very pretty heads were put together, with this startling effect:

Stitch, stitch, the gang's all here,
What the hem do we care,
What the hem do we care,
Stitch, stitch, the gang's all here,
What the hem do we care, tuck!

Traveled an Unusual Route.

Nebraska State Journal: George T. Oliver, the new senator-to-be from Pennsylvania, has accomplished the rare feat of prying his way into high office with a paper lever. Mr. Oliver was originally a lawyer, but left the field for the more remunerative steel business. Twenty years of that leaving him ready to conquer new worlds, he bought the Pittsburg Gazette, and now he goes to the senate. Were his success not known to be exceptional we should have millionaires in every state buying newspapers to blow them into political office. Unfortunately for them it is only in the least wide-awake communities that this plan works. Among knowing people a newspaper loses its influence when it is known to represent a particular business or political interest. There the man who buys a live, influential newspaper to use for other than journalistic purposes finds it a dead sea apple in his hands like the late Chicago Chronicle in the hands of John R. Walsh. Anywhere but in Pennsylvania the people would feel obliged to buy some other paper than Mr. Oliver's in order to get some other estimate of him than his own.

"Madam, your husband is a lawyer. I want to know about his physical condition, not his professional habits."

Cleveland Leader: The Magnate—You will succeed, sir—you are a genius.

The Inventor—No, I'm not. If I were a real genius, practical men like you would consider me a darned fool.

Kansas City Journal: "Do you believe in inspiration?"

"Oh, yes. Gounod probably wrote his brilliant 'Jewel Song' the day the new cook arrived."

London Pick-Me-Up: Maud—I understand that you have a new typewriter.

"Didn't. Other fellow had it."

Philadelphia Record: Scribbler—The artistic temperament is such a commonplace expression. Give me a synonym for it.

Senator Smith's Strange Mission.

Boston Transcript: One of the new senators comes into office with a distinctive mission. E. D. Smith of South Carolina is not likely to be as inconspicuous as Tilman's colleagues usually have been, since his mission is to secure "15-cent cotton" by Federal legislation, and to that attainment he will bend all his energies.

He is said to be a man with one idea. By talking on it in season and out, he has reached the senate. That idea is that the government ought to "do enough for cotton" to put it to 15 cents and keep it there. Mr. Smith will represent in the senate a movement which has stirred Southern agriculture for years. Its effort has been to raise the price of cotton by reducing the acreage or by forcing a scarcity. Human nature being pretty much the same everywhere, so many have planted cotton in the belief that they would get the advanced price that the "movement" has had just the opposite effect from that intended. So much cotton has been raised that the price sticks in the neighborhood of 10 cents for spot, and will not advance above that figure.

The law of supply and demand is one of those statutes that obstinately refuse to be repealed, and the Cotton Growers' association cannot see that if the staple is raised to a very high price here, the price itself will tempt other nations to stimulate its cultivation with the result that their last estate will be worse than their first. Their idea is a survival of the old belief on which the South was once wrecked, that cotton is King, a despot whose fiat rules. As an exponent of their creed in the senate Senator Smith may be interesting but not influential.

Mr. Dickinson and the Canal.

Chattanooga Times: Mr. Dickinson surrenders a lucrative position of great responsibility to accept public service, sacrificing his own personal interests in the exercise of a high patriotic resolve to devote himself to the welfare of his country. He has shown himself to be a man of large attainments, keen perception, and sound judgment, and is eminent as a lawyer and adviser in the management of one of the largest railroad properties of the country. Especially, therefore, will he be of tremendous service in pushing forward the Panama canal, the enterprise of supreme importance to the South, coming directly under his supervision and care.

Went Off All Right.

Pittsburg Gazette-Times: Fortunately the inaugural ball was one feature of the celebration that didn't call for snowshoes and ulsters.

THREE DISPENSATIONS NECESSARY SO ETHEL BARRYMORE COULD WED

Boston, Mass., March 16.—Miss Ethel Barrymore, the actress, appearing in "Lady Frederick" in the Hollis Street theater, and Russell Griswold Colt of Bristol, R. I., son of Col. Samuel Pomeroy Colt, for many years president of the United States Rubber company, were married at the rectory of the Roman Catholic church of the Most Precious Blood, in Hyde Park, according to the announcement by the actress' manager.

Several church dispensations were necessary, as Mr. Colt is not a Catholic, his bride is a resident of another diocese, and it is not the custom of the church to marry in Lent.

tion of the new plant to be located at New Duluth; Mr. McGonagle, consulting engineer and director of the two transfer railway companies, the Spirit Lake and Inter-state Transfer companies, and also vice president and general manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and Joseph B. Cotton, the general solicitor of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel company in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, general solicitor of the Inter-state Transfer company and the Spirit Lake Transfer company, and vice president of the two railroads. Each of the gentlemen appeared before the committee and were sworn upon oath. The shorthand reporter (Mr. Farmer) taking the testimony, was also sworn to take down such testimony as the committee deemed material and transcribe the same into longhand.

Mr. Hoxie's Satement.

Mr. Hoxie was the first witness examined. He came before the committee with between 500 and 600 large sheets of drawings and gave a detailed statement of what had been done to establish the new plant by his department. The first set of drawings he was instructed to prepare was for a plant which, he said, would meet the requirements of the agreement or pledge made to the people of Minnesota at the session of the legislature of 1907, and which was to cost about $5,000,000 or $6,000,000; that he was working in conjunction with John Reis, assistant to the president of the corporation, and whose duties, among other things, was to determine the market territory tributary to the Duluth plant; that after the plans had been partially prepared, through Mr. Reis' report, the Steel corporation came to the belief that the market tributary to Duluth was greater than was first believed, and thereupon he (Hoxie) was instructed to prepare new plans for an enlarged plant, to be double the capacity of the one first planned, and which would cost $10,000,000; that thereupon the first prepared plans were abondoned and the plans for the enlarged plant were put under process of preparation; that the instructions to proceed with the preparation of plans for the enlarged plant were received by Mr. Hoxie from President Corey of the corporation; that on land purchased by the company in the vicinity of New Duluth he (Hoxie) commenced a topographical survey; that the intention was to locate the plant on the part of the land nearest to the city of Duluth, but an investigation at that point showed that it was impracticable; that, thereupon, a topographical survey of the land near to New Duluth and borings to test the soil every 100 feet were made over a space of over 190 acres, and that the result proved that it was an ideal location for the plant; lying sixty feet above the St. Louis river and being so level as to, practically, require no grading; that in making the borings they discovered that under the surface were large banks of sand and gravel, which was very important to them, as the plan of the buildings is to be of steel and concrete construction. Since making this discovery of sand and gravel, the company has purchased five concrete block-making machines, with the capacity of 1,000 blocks per day, and which are to be used in the making of the concrete blocks for the buildings.

A $25,000,000 Plant.

After he, (Hoxie) had partially prepared the plans for the $10,000,000 plant, Duluth was visited by a large number of the officers of the Steel and subsidiary corporations and they arrived at the conclusion that conditions justified the building of the plant with the view of increasing it to a $25,000,000 plant in the near future and he (Hoxie) was instructed to prepare the plans along the line providing ultimately for the $25,000,000 plant, which plans your committee obtained a copy of with the privilege of showing the same to the whole committee; that to prepare all plans to ultimately enlarge the plant to the capacity ordered, required a rearrangement of the location of the various buildings, and since that time he has been busy developing the plans and specifications, according to the lines of the instructions herein specified. In answer to the question as to what progress would be made in the construction of the new plant, Hoxie stated, "I think that work could be done this year to the extent of $1,000,000 if they would give me the work to do and let me go ahead; the plant would be practically completed in two years, our gravel and sand will be right at hand and our railroads will be ready before construction is complete." In answer to the question if the advisory committee and Mr. Corey had approved the plans for the $10,000,000 unit which had been shown us, Mr. Hoxie answered, "yes sir, Mr. Corey told me to proceed with the plans, that is the first and second unit." This unit is described in the evidence of Mr. Hoxie, which is hereto attached.

Can Begin in May.

We interrogated Mr. Hoxie as to his qualifications. His statement was that he had been connected with this class of business for fourteen years and had been with several independent corporations before becoming connected with the Steel corporation. He answered your committee's questions in a candid manner, and from his statements we learned that his department will have the plans ready so building can commence the first of May next; that it was the purpose of the corporation to have the plant completed by the beginning of the year 1911; that when finally constructed that it would be of more up to date construction and would be constructed faster than any other plant of like capacity, as the railroad facilities and sand and gravel conditions would greatly hasten the construction of the building.

The Railroad Situation.

W. A. McGonagle was the next witness examined. After stating his position and duties he produced a map, a copy of which will be found hereto attached, showing the railroad situation around Duluth and Superior and pointed out the proposed line of railways now under consideration, one of which is a Minnesota corporation running from Adolph station on the main line of the Missabe road to the St. Louis river near New Duluth and other a Wisconsin corporation connecting at the St. Louis river with the Minnesota railway and extending to Wisconsin Point where the corporation has three miles of dockage; that when the Steel corporation concluded to put up the plant they found it necessary to have this road for the purpose of bringing the ore down to the plant and also for the purpose of connecting with all the roads running into Duluth or Superior and that these two proposed railways, when finished, would make such connections; that the cost of these railways, including the bridge that connects them at St. Louis river, would be $2,500,000, the bridge alone costing $500,000. Further details of other connections of these railroads will be found in his evidence as well as other reasons why these railroads were a necessity. He also detailed to your committee the difficulty and expense of construction caused by topographical conditions, the surface of the land between Adolph station and the location of the new plant being very rough and much of it being of solid rock; that the delay which might be apparent about the construction of the road was on account of the necessity of securing an act of congress permitting this bridge to be constructed, and securing the approval of the bridge plans by the war department; that it is being built of the double-deck, double-track combination steam and electric railroad bridge construction, allowing accommodations for pedestrians and teams as well as for steam railroads. The grade has been made from Pokegama station to the St. Louis river, and a portion of the track has been laid. The Wisconsin abutment to the bridge is partially complete, and work is now going on, although it will take a year to complete the bridge, as at least nine months is necessary in which to fabricate the necessary steel. The main span of the bridge is to be 300 feet long, and a clear arm of 125 feet on each side of the center pier, and will be 50 feet from the water to the base of the rail; the entire structure, including main span and approaches, when completed will be, approximately, 2,400 feet long; that there is already running through one part of the land the Fond du Lac branch of the Northern Pacific railway, and a new branch more than two miles in length has been built from this line to where the buildings are to be erected; that these railroad companies have already expended $200,000 in cash in the railway propositions, and that he (McGonagle) has authority to purchase such further necessary rights-of-way and terminal grounds as the entire project may require, and that work is now proceeding in a systematic manner on both railways, and that the entire project has been fully approved by the executive committee of the United States Steel corporation.

Mr. Cotton's Statement.

Thereafter, Joseph B. Cotton was examined, and in connection with his examination it was agreed that he should reduce to writing a statement in the form of a letter, which should be historical in its nature, of the work done about securing the real estate for the use of the corporation, both for location of the plant and right-of-way fr the two connecting belt line railways. Mr. Cotton stated that the site of the plant consisted of, approximately, 1,600 acres, and that he was the party who directed the negotiations for the purchase of the same, and was also familiar with all things that had been done, and which was, in the near future, intended to be done about the construction of the proposed plant and railways; that his letter goes into detail to such an extent that we believe that the committee will find it more valuable to attach the letter to this report, and which is done; that in his examination Mr. Cotton testified that they were not only to give to Minnesota what they had agreed to, but a great deal more, including the initial plant and railway, an investment of $12,500,000, within two or three years, and an ultimate expenditure of, approximately, $25,000,000; that if the plant be once located, no tonnage tax tax being imposed, they would endeavor, by all fair means, to break down the so-called postage stamp rate which for many years past has been the main barrier against large manufacturing industries locating at the head of Lake Superior; that the initial unit of the plant would employ approximately 4,000 hands, resulting in a gain of approximately, 15,000 population, not counting such other labor and increase of population which would naturally follow by building other plants, which it is natural to suppose would be established in close proximity to the steel plant, for the purpose of obtaining part of its product without reshipment of freight expense. In explanation of the postage stamp rate your committee was informed that for a good many years past a rate of 75 cents per hundredweight has prevailed between Pennsylvania points on Lake Erie, Lake Michigan and Lake Superior points, and from most points on the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. Thus while the head of Lake Superior is several hundred miles nearer the Pacific coast than any other points east of Chicago herein named, all the freight charges have been exactly the same, thus robbing this westerly location of the natural benefits it for years has been entitled to. By having this advantage re-established, we are convinced that Lake Superior points of shipment will come into their own, thus gaining a large advantage over a great many localities east of the St. Croix and Mississippi valleys.

Would Use Low Grade Ores.

Mr. Cotton also testified that by having a system or rolling mills located at the head of the Lake Superior and in close proximity to millions of tons of low grade ore, both on the Mesaba and Cuyuna ranges in Minnesota, for which ores, there had, in the past been no market, these ores could be used to good advantage and at a considerable profit both to the holders of the ore lands and the Steel corporation and other manufacturers. The low grade ores on the Cuyuna range are, to a large extent, held in small holdings and by people residing in Minnesota. Mr. Cotton also stated another particular reason why the enactment of a tonnage tax law at this time would be inexpedient is, that the Steel corporation, as well as the people of Duluth, are very anxious and desirous of having the full complement of mills, as well as all by-product plants and other plants naturally coming in the wake of a system of mills such as it is intended to construct, be located on the Minnesota side of the St. Louis river, thus creating in Minnesota an additional large amount of taxable property and such advantages as the increased population and trade would naturally produce.

Visit to the Site.

After the examination of the witnesses your committee proceeded to New Duluth, driving through the 1,600 acres of land purchased by the corporation for this site, and also examining the line of railway on the Minnesota side and the location of the new bridge and from their own inspection state they are now working on the new bridge; that about 160 acres has been cleared for the buildings; that there is a large boarding camp on the grounds; that there is evidence of the borings being made as stated in the testimony of Mr. Hoxie; that from the location of the new railways and the line of the Northern Pacific railway now running through the grounds to the proposed site of the buildings and the extent of the land acquired by the corporation, your committee is of the opinion that the corporation is in the position to carry out the improvements as represented and that it has accomplished what it claims to have done up to this time, and considering the matter of acquiring the title, getting acts through congress, getting the approval of the war department to bridge plans, complying with the various requirements of the state of Wisconsin, that the corporation has been diligent in attempting to comply with its agreement, and that from all we saw and heard it is the unanimous opinion of this committee that the corporation is acting in good faith and the plant that it proposes to erect within the next two years will be at least double the size of the plant that it agreed to erect, that the amount of money it will spend will be about two and one-half times the amount it had agreed to expend, and that, as soon as the market justifies it, the corporation intends to put a $25,000,000 plant into operation and that such a plant would employ at least 10,000 men and add from 30,000 to 40,000 to the population; that this would mean the building of many houses and improvements such as store buildings and all those other things that go to accommodate an increase of population to that extent.

Your sub-committee ascertained that the total expenditure made by the Steel Corporation pertaining to the purchase of a site, making plans, obtaining right-of-way, building bridge and railroads, etc., is approximately $1,300,000, and, as shown by the testimony, the engineers have authority to proceed with the construction of the plans as fast as possible.

GLASS FARMING.

Great Success in Raising Lettuce Gives Hint to Duluth.

To the Editor of The Herald:

On Sept. 14 last you published a short letter from me devoted to the consideration of glass farming, as exemplified in greenhouse construction and operation at Grand Rapids, Mich.

At that time these people were securing from 300 to 500 dozen cucumbers per day, which produced a very handsome and satisfactory return for their labor and investment. They now have under glass, nearly ready to cut, about two acres of lettuce, containing in the aggregate many tons. The current price of lettuce is $280 per ton, so that it would appear as if there might be enough in this one crop to cover a large investment.

It seems to me that this success ought to induce some of our local people to enlarge their operations. Why should Duluth go elsewhere for her lettuce? She ought to produce at great profit to her gardeners, not only all that can be marketed here, but enough to supply many surrounding towns and cities. If the hill, now well along toward passage by the legislature, to authorize the street railway companies of cities to connect with, receive from and deliver to suburban lines both passengers and freight, becomes a law, it seems likely that some electric railway construction will be made reaching back from the lake into some portion of the country around Duluth. If this expectation is realized, a means of transportation will be found for country produce of all kinds into Duluth, and for the transformation of manures, fertilizers and other merchandise required by the farmer and the gardener.

This ought to give a great impetus to all kinds of producing activity, and not only be of great benefit to the city, in enabling it to procure its supplies in a fresh and attractive condition, but it ought to make the growing of these supplies a business of great and certain profit. One cause retarding market gardening has been the long climb required to reach the best locations for market gardens and truck farming. When the time arrives that we can avail ourselves of electricity and steam rails, instead of depending upon horses and highway, the hill difficulty will vanish.

I cite the example of lettuce growing above mentioned to show what great and sure rewards await the intelligent prosecution of work of this kind, besides giving congenial employment to many people, and stimulating the gardening and agricultural interest.

HOW A BUSINESS MAN KEEPS IN GOOD HEALTH.

A friend commenting on the healthy looks of a man who handles a large amount of business, asked him how he stood the strain so well. "It's a simple matter with me," he replied. "I keep fairly good hours, eat about what I like, and make a practice of taking one or two Beecham's Pills generally before I retire. I certainly owe my good health, in a large part, to Beecham's Pills. They keep the stomach and bowels in order, and have a good effect on the liver and kidneys. I had been troubled a bit with insomnia, but Beecham's Pills make me sleep, and so long as a man sleeps and eats well he's all right.

LONG, PAINFUL JOURNEY.

Sawmill Man Injured at Bear River Has Very Tough Experience.

Hibbing, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Riding forty miles with one of his arms so badly mangled that amputation was necessary, L. K. Snyder, who operates a sawmill at Bear River, was brought to the Rood hospital last night after the harrowing experience of the long and painful journey. Mr. Snyder's arm was caught in the machinery at his mill, and as soon as it was bound up, he was hurried here, there being no physician at Bear River. The arm was taken off below the elbow last night, and it is expected he will survive, although he was pretty weak from the painful journey when he arrived here and the shock of the operation.

Miss Rebecca Snyder, who is attending the Duluth normal, was summoned here to be with the unfortunate man during the first few days in the hospital.

TWO HARBORS RESULTS PROMISES TO BE CLOSE.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is election day and the candidates and their friends are not overlooking anything tending to induce the festive voter to visit the polls and do the proper thing. With three tickets in the field and each loyally supported the indications for a big vote either way are not apparent at noon.

While the Socialists make great claims for their ticket, the Public Ownership, there are many who think differently. A large vote is being polled. The weather is clear and cold with indications that the lirrge registered vote will nearly all be cast.

museum. In his outfit, which is somwhat similar to Roosevelt's, are several lion traps. Mr. Roosevelt is taking none of these, relying upon his rifle for suitable specimens of these animals.

Ex-President Roosevelt today remained at Sagamore Hill preparing a number of articles which will appear under his name after he departs on the hunting expedition next Tuesday. In this series of articles he will treat of a number of questions of national importance. Large quantities of letters continue to come to the ex-president to which he is unable to reply because of the pressure of other matters. Tomorrow night Roosevelt will attend the regular meeting of the Matinecock lodge of Masons.

In recognition of the splendid showing made at Washington in the inauguration by the Republican delegation from Nassau county, in which Oyster Bay is situated, Roosevelt has invited those who went to Washington to come to Sagamore Hill on Thursday afternoon, when he will entertain at an informal reception. The delegation which numbered 250, and was designated at the inauguration as "Theodore Roosevelt's neighbors" paraded at Washington, each wearing a silk hat and cravenette rain coat, and carrying an umbrella. They will come to Oyster Bay from their home towns dressed as on inauguration day and, headed by the band which accompanied them in the Washington, will parade up to Sagamore Hill.

TARIFF BILL OVER A DAY

general good fellowship was apparent. The drawing of seats was the first business to be transacted and this proceeding, although rather monotonous to spectators, commanded the intense interest of the members.

Speaker Cannon and Champ Clark, the minority leader of the house swapped tart remarks about each other at the White House today. The speaker called upon President Taft early in the morning and when he was leaving the executive office made this answer to a question as to the fight in the house yesterday:

"The amendments to the rules have greatly improved them. All this stuff about the speaker being a czar is the purest tommyrot. There has never been a time when the majority could not control the house. What they wanted to do was to make the committee of fifteen czars, dominated by Champ Clark and La Follette. That is also tommyrot. La Follette is a fake."

When Representative Champ Clark called on President Taft later in the morning and was told what the speaker said he answered briefly:

"Uncle Joe has paresis."

Clark would not comment further except to say that the amendments to the rules adopted yesterday amount to very little.

STATE TWINE IS IN GREAT DEMAND

Orders Received by Penitentiary Warden in Excess of Supply.

Stillwater, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notwithstanding that the state prison output of binder twine this season will be considerably larger than ever before, the indications are that the supply will not meet the demand of the farmers of Minnesota.

Already Warden Wolfer has received orders for 12,500,000 pounds. This is far in excess of the amount of orders for this season of the year. Additional orders from individuals and clubs of farmers are being received daily.

Existing conditions point to the demand for the entire output of the season before harvest. The amount that may be made this year will be about 16,000,000 pounds. Of this total the new prison factory will turn out about 2,000,000 pounds. As the factory at the new prison was not started until half of the manufacturing season was over only about half the capacity of that institution for the year will be available.

Based on the past experience, Warden Wolfer believes that when the two factories are in full operation for the full period each year, it will hardly be possible to meet the demands of the farmers of Minnesota now, and will not meet the requirements of a yearly growth in demand.

Mrs. James Davidson of Fort Ripley Brought to Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. James Davidson of Fort Ripley was stricken with paralysis at her home in Fort Ripley Sunday shortly after noon. She is in a critical condition, and there is said to be little hope for her recovery.

AIRSHIP MAKES EARTH LANDING

Count Zeppelin Disproves Assertion Machine Was Handicapped.

Friedrichshafen, March 16.—Count von Zeppelin's new model airship, with the inventor and four other men, made a successful descent in a field on the shore of Lake Constance today. It has been asserted that the count could not land on the ground without an especially built platform, but this has now been disproved.

The airship came easily to earth and after remaining for some time reascended and returned to the balloon shed on the lake.

One of the steering planes was slightly damaged by contact with a tree, but it was repaired on the spot.

WENT CRAZY ON TRIP.

Blackduck Man, Who Lost Reason in Wisconsin, Dead at Asylum.

Bemidji, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. A. Clark, judge of the probate court, has received word from the state insane asylum at Fergus Falls that James Anderson, at one time a resident of Blackduck, died in the institution last Friday.

Anderson, who was for many years in the employ of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, became insane while on a trip to Wisconsin with his wife in 1905. He was committed to the state asylum at Oshkosh, where he remained for two years. The state board of control of Wisconsin ascertained that Anderson was a resident of Blackduck and took up the matter with the state board of control of Minnesota, with the result that Anderson was returned here and Dec. 20, 1907 Judge Clark, recommitted him to the asylum at Fergus Falls.

Anderson is survived by his wife, who has lived in Wisconsin ever since she went on the trip with Anderson, in 1905, at which time Anderson lost his reason.

Anderson is well known in Beltrami county and especially at Blackduck and also in the vicinity of Thief River Falls. He worked many years for the Thief River Falls Lumber company and had many friends.

Chicago, March 16.—The defense in the trial of Luman C. Mann, charged with strangling Mrs. Frances Gilmore Thompson to death last summer, came to an end today with the testimony of a hand writing expert, who swore that the writing on the register of the rooming house where the murder occurred, bore no resemblance to that of Mann.

Police Inspector Wheeler, with whom Mann alleged he shot craps, was the state's first witness. Wheeler declared that he had never indulged in the game in his life.

IRON WORKERS NOT TO ACCEPT

Will Not Stand for Twelve Thousand Salary Cuts

Rading, Pa., March 16.—Delegates to the Eastern district of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel & Tin Workers' association held another meeting here today and wound up their business after deciding against accepting the reduction in wages of 12,000 iron workers, recently announced by the manufacturers in this district. National President of the Amalgamated Association C. J. McPardle of Pittsburg and National Secretary-Treasurer John Williams, also of Pittsburg, attended.

James B. Mincher, vice president of the Eastern division of the Amalgamated association says:

"From reports of delegates, we find that the unorganized, as well as the organized, iron workers are clamoring against the proposed reduction.

"Market conditions do not warrant a cut in wages. The markets are remaining the same as for months, and there is positively no reason why there should be a cut in the price now being paid iron workers."

The three were taken to International Falls to be given a preliminary hearing before George H. Walch, judge of the municipal court there.

WHAT THE INSURGENT REFORM IN THE HOUSE MEANS, WHEN ANALYZED

Washington, March 16.—As analyzed by parliamentarians, the amendment to the house rules forced through by the insurgents yesterday makes three important changes.

First, it establishes a "calendar for unanimous consents, the effect of which is to enable a member to have a proposition brought before the house without having to go to the speaker for recognition. This change, they say, will be a relief to the speaker.

Second, when consideration of a bill is concluded and the previous question is ordered the rules heretofore have provided for a motion to commit with or without instructions. It has been the practice to recognize a member of the majority party to make this motion and thus prevent the minority from offering such instructions as it may desire. The new rule gives the minority the preference in making such a motion and thus enables them to get a record vote on propositions which would otherwise be settled in committee of the whole, where no record vote is possible.

Third, it protects the calendar Wednesday by requiring a two-thirds instead of a majority vote to set it aside.

Fourth, it is also claimed that the amendment will have the effect of preventing favoritism by the action of the committee on rules in special cases.

Committee of Fifteen.

A prominent feature of the Clark resolution is an amendment providing for a committee of fifteen members to revise, amend and codify the rules and much of the opposition to it was because of this fact. As adopted, the Fitzgerald amendment makes no change in the present method of the selection of the committee on rules, which is made by the speaker, nor is there any change in the method of selecting committees. The Fitzgerald amendment is as follows:

1. Amend paragraph 61 of Rule 11 by adding thereto the following:

"The committee on rules shall not report any rule or order which shall provide that business under paragraph four of Rule 26 shall be set aside by a vote of less than two-thirds of the members present; nor shall it report and rule or order which shall operate to prevent the motion to recommit being made as provided in paragraph four of Rule 16.'

"2. Amend Rule 13, by adding the following paragraph to be numbered 3, as follows:

"'After a bill which has been favorably reported shall have been upon either the house or the union calendar for three days any member may file with the clerk a notice that he desires such bill placed upon a special calendar to be known as the calendar for unanimous consent. On days when it shall be in order to move to suspend the rules, the speaker shall immediately after the approval of the journal, direct the clerk to call the bills upon the calendar for unanimous consents. Should objection be made to the consideration of any bill so called it shall immediately be stricken from the calendar, for unanimous consent, and it shall not thereafter be placed thereon.'

"3. Amend Rule 16, by adding at the end of paragraph 4, the following:

"'After the previous question shall have been ordered on the passage of a bill or joint resolution one motion to recommit shall be in order and the speaker shall give preference in recognition for such purpose to a member who is opposed to the bill or joint resolution.'"

"4. Amend paragraph 4 of Rule 26 so that it shall read as follows:

"'Wednesday of each week no business shall be in order except as provided by paragraph 4 of rule 24, unless the house, by a two-thirds vote on motion to dispense therewith, shall otherwise determine. On such a motion there may be debate not to exceed five minutes for and against.'"

Clark Not to Be Consulted.

Only five committees will be named by Speaker Cannon for the present. Those will be ways and means, rules, printing, mileage and accounts. The other committees will be announced about the time the special session is ready to adjourn.

In making up the committees, the speaker will consult with every member of the house who desires to discuss assignments with him.

This means that Minority Leader Clark will not enjoy the privilege accorded his predecessor, John Sharp Williams, of selecting the minority members. Cannon, after a trial of six years, has reached the conclusion that the plan is not the best, and henceforth he will not shift any of the responsibility for committee assignments to the minority leader.

The attitude taken by the Democrats at a caucus last night, after the house adjourned, is in sharp conflict with the new policy of Speaker Cannon. A resolution was adopted to prevent members of the minority accepting committee appointments without the approval of Minority Leader Clark.

"My 3-year-old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. Sold by all druggists.

COUNCIL DEADLOCK ON QUESTION OF PRESIDENT

City Fathers Fail to Agree After Casting Ten Ballots.

Election of City Sealer Postponed For Six Months.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Adjourned without electing a president.

Postponed election of sealer of weights and measures for six months.

Postponed action on ordinance prohibiting minors from buying intoxicants.

Authorized purchase of lot for fire hall on Park Point.

Voted against transfer of saloon license from John Shea to Charles Langbridge.

Decided on repairs for Sixth avenue viaduct, but will ask railroad to stand part of cost.

Granted use of the council chambers to the Political Equality club.

Gave first reading ot ordinance making is compulsory for van companies to leave at the city hall a record of all people who change their places of residence, showing where they moved from and to.

Received Duluth-Edison Electric company's promise to lay its wires in downtown streets underground as soon as the frost leaves the ground.

The city council failed to agree on a president last evening, and adjourned after ten ballots had been taken. The aldermen also failed to agree on a sealer of weights and measures, and after four ballots, the motion of Alderman Bloedel that the matter be postponed for six months carried.

Alderman Shartel led in the balloting for president. On the fourth, sixth, eighth and ninth ballots he had seven votes, and on the other ballots he had six votes. The remaining votes were scattered about among the other aldermen, one man getting three votes on one ballot, and none on the next. Every man in the council got a few votes at some time during the balloting.

The balloting for president was put off until all the other business of the evening was over with. At the conclusion of the other business, the Republicans made a motion to adjourn. Nine votes were necessary to carry, and only eight were secured. A motion that the council proceed to ballot for president was lost by the same vote, 8 to 7. This left the city fathers at a deadlock. They could neither adjourn nor vote. Then a five-minute recess was decided upon, and when the council was again called to order Alderman Merritt of the Seventh ward swung over from being opposed to balloting for president and voted in favor of it, giving the nine votes necessary to allow the aldermen to proceed with balloting.

Aldermen Storey and Merritt were appointed tellers, and the voting began. On the first ballot Shartel led off with six votes, and did not fall below that mark on any of the ten votes. After two or three ballots had been taken it became evident that no agreement could be reached, and a ballot for a sealer of weights and measures was taken. There are five candidates for this place. Noble Sampson got six votes on all four ballots, with the remaining votes scattered about equally among the other candidates. On one ballot George E. Duren had seven votes. Alderman Bloedel moved that the election on sealer of weights and measures be postponed for six months, and the motion carried.

After disposing of this matter, the aldermen again turned their attention to the presidency, and continued voting until ten ballots had been cast. Then the aldermen gave up in discouragement, and a motion to adjourn carried.

Alderman Moe, a Republican, was not present last night, which left the Republicans with six votes and the Democrats with nine. Evidently there are three Democrats who have made up their minds that they do not want to see Mr. Shartel in the president's chair. The votes on the presidency were taken by secret ballot

The Political Equality club had in a communication asking the council's permission to use the council chambers the second Wednesday evening of each month for meeting purposes. Dr. Mary McCoy, president of the club, was present and put in a few words in support of the petition, explaining the objects of the club by saying that it was non-political and non-partisan. Some said distinguished speakers would be brought here from time to time. The request for the use of the room was granted. The communication explained that it was desired to keep the club dues as low as possible, so anybody interested might join, and therefore it was thought best to secure a free meeting place.

Park Point residents offered a petition objecting to the aerial bridge service, setting forth the claim that a competent mechanic has not had charge of the bridge, and asking that a change be made in the management in future. The petition was received and referred to a committee.

An ordinance was given its first reading calling upon all people engaged in the moving business to keep a record of every family moved, showing where the family lived, and where and when a removal of the household effects were made, transferring this record, showing old and new address, to books provided for the purpose at the city hall, at the end of every week. The Merchants' Credit association is particularly anxious that such an ordinance be passed.

The Duluth-Edison Electrical company notified the council that, as soon as the frost leaves the ground, it will place its wires underground on the following streets and avenues: Michigan street from Fifth avenue west to Third avenue east; from Third avenue east to Fifth avenue west in First alley; in Second alley from Lake avenue to Fourth avenue west.

The Zenith Telephone company notified the council that it would be impossible for it to comply with the order to put wires underground because of a lack of necessary funds, and said that if the city insisted upon the work being done, it would amount to a confiscation of the company's property. This matter will be investigated later.

City Engineer McGilvray reported that the Sixth avenue viaduct was badly in need of repair. The council directed that the repairs be made, the railroad over which a part of the viaduct stands to stand a part of the expense.

Alderman Shartel's ordinance making it a misdemeanor for a minor to get a drink of liquor in a saloon by misrepresenting his age came up for a second reading. Alderman Shartel called for a vote on the measure, but there were strong objections from Alderman Moore, and finally it was decided to lay the matter over for one week.

Alderman Moore said it did not seem to him a proper ordinance; that it was legislating to get boys into trouble, and discriminating against boys in favor of grown men.

"We might just as well pass a similar ordinance for habitual drunkards," said Mr. Moore. "It is against the law for a bartender to sell liquor to a drunkard. Why not make it against the law for a drunkard to buy a drink? That would be just as wise as this minor ordinance, making it a misdemeanor for a boy to buy intoxicants.

"This would give too much protection to the bartender, and too little to the boy. The saloon men, under this measure, would feel perfectly safe in selling to minors, for they would know the minors could not testify against them, for by so doing they would be convicting themselves, and would be liable to a jail sentence. The boy would be forced to lie in favor of the bartender in self-protection."

Alderman Shartel took a different view of the situation. He said that under existing conditions the saloonkeeper had no protection from minors who looked and claimed to be 21 years of age, but who were not more than 19 or 20 years old. He believed the saloon keepers were entitled to be protected from this class of young men, for, he said, the penalty for selling to a man one month under age is as great as if the sale had been to a youth of 15 years.

Huntley & Bede were the lowest bidders for printing the annual reports of the city officers and will get the contract. Their bid was $545.14.

The board of fire commissioners was instructed to look up a site for a fire hall on Park Point, not below Twentieth street. A suitable lot will be purchased, and a fire hall, to cost not more than $2,600, will be built on it.

An amendment to the theater ordinance was passed, making it necessary for moving picture operators to have an operator's license from the city electrician.

A resolution providing for the transfer of a saloon license in the Sellwood building from John Shea to Charles Langbridge was voted down.

The mayor's annual message was not ready for reading.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

VERDICT FOR THE COMPANY

Widow of Miner Burned in Mule Barn Gets Nothing.

A jury in district court yesterday afternoon returned a verdict for the defendant in the case of John Mestnik, administrator of the estate of Joseph Mestnik, against the Malta Iron company.

Mestnik sued for $5,000 on behalf of the widow and children of Joseph Mestnik, who met his death in the Malat mine at Sparta, being suffocated when a mule barn underground burned. His escape was cut off by the burning barn.

The contention of the plaintiff was that the barn was located so that the escape of the men in the lower levels was cut off and the company was consequently negligent. The defense claimed that the barn was located in the best place that could be found for it in the mine, and the fire and the death of Mestnik was due solely to the carelessness of a fellow workman of the dead man. The fellow workman fell asleep in the barn with a lighted cigarette, it appeared, and the cigarette set fire to the barn.

I Cured My Rupture

I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was practically helpless and bedridden for many years from a double rupture. I wore innumerable different kinds of trusses and appliances. Some of them were tortures, some positively dangerous, and none would hold the rupture in its proper place. The doctors told me I could not expect to have it entirely healed unless I would consent to a surgical operation. I fooled them all, however, and cured myself completely and permanently by a simple method which I discovered. Anyone can use it, and I will gladly send the cure free by mail to anyone who writes for it. Fill out the coupon below and mail it to me today. I will send the cure by return mail, postpaid.

ONLY ONE MORE DAY

The Big "Ben Hur" Contest Closes at 6 o'Clock Wednesday.

The Educational Contest Has Proved to be a Big Success.

Tonight The Herald issues its last call for "Ben Hur" essays. If there is a boy or girl in the seventh or eighth grade of the public schools, or in any of the four years of the high school who wants to attend the big Klaw & Erlanger production at the Lyceum, Monday night, he or she has a chance to do so, free of charge. The Herald has purchased 150 seats in the parquet for the Monday night performance. They are the regular $2 seats, as good as any in the theater, and they will be given away to 150 school children of the city who will be the guests of The Herald at a theater party next Monday evening—the largest theater party ever given in the city. The only requirement is that the boy or girl write one of the best 150 essays on the story of "Ben Hur" submitted to the "Ben Hur" editor of The Herald. The essays will be judged by a committee of school teachers, whose names have been published, and the winners announced. None of the essays will be published, so that the decision of the teachers will be final.

It is still too early to tell how many essays will be received, as tomorrow, the last day, will probably bring in a very large number, but it is not believed that more than 300 to 400 will be sent in. This gives every boy or girl competing about an even chance of securing a ticket. Any boy or girl who is willing to spend some time on the essay, and give it some thoughtful study, is practically assured of winning a ticket. There are twenty-five tickets for each grade, and twenty-five for each class in the high school, so that all will compete on an equal basis, and the high school pupils will have no advantage. There are no coupon attachments to the offer, and no conditions to it. Neither do the children attend in a body, each being given his own ticket. It is simply a theater party to Duluth school children. For obvious reasons The Herald could not include every pupil in the city in the invitation list, as the theater would not begin to accommodate them. The essay contest was, therefore, decided upon as a means of selecting those who most desired to see the performance. Those who want to attend enough to spend an hour or two hours preparing their essays will probably win a seat. The essays should not be over 150 words in length, a simple story of the book, told in the best English that the writer knows how to use.

At 6 o'clock tomorrow night the contest will close, and those who have failed to get their essays in by that time will have lost their chance to see the greatest show that will visit Duluth this season.

Today the final chapter of the serial story furnished the teachers by The Herald was read and explained to the children, and many of the teachers are taking time to allow the pupils to write their essays during school hours. All the scholars are taking a deep interest in the contest, and it is expected that on the last day a big batch of essays will be rushed into the office.

BARRELS OF BOOZE WILL BE EMPTIED INTO THE BAY

The prohibition forces will win a partial victory in St. Louis county soon. In the basement of the county jail, many quarts of beer, whisky and wine are reposing, awaiting the action of the court. The court will probably order the destruction of the booze and Sheriff Bates will empty it into a sewer. Therefore, a portion of the available supply of joy and misery producer in St. Louis county will have been done away with without being consumed.

The raid on the immoral houses and blind pigs at Hibbing last week resulted in a rather large haul of the plunder, which always attends the invasion of the law in the operation of such places. After the prisoners were brought to Duluth, a couple of wagon loads of stuff arrived in Duluth and were stowed away in the basement of the county jail.

There are cases of beer, whisky and wine; cash registers, beer pumps and other paraphernalia, which are illegal when kept in an unlicensed place, where liquor is sold. They will probably be used in evidence, when the prisoners now in the county jail are brought to trial and then the court will decree the disposition of the junk taken by the officers.

The booze and beer have to go. In the basement of the jail, above which wrecks of humanity brought there by booze are awaiting the expiration of their terms, the stimulants will be poured into the sewers, to be carried into the bay and lost to the traffic.

PENNSYLVANIA STEEL COMPANY CUTS WAGES

Harrisburg, Pa., March 16.—The Pennsylvania Steel company, one of the largest independent steel companies in the country, has announced a reduction in wages approximating 10 per cent, effective April 1. The order states that the reduction would be made pending "a return of normal business conditions." The order was somewhat of a surprise to the 6,000 employes. Nine thousand men are employed at the plant when it is running full time. J. V. W. Reynders, vice president of the company, says:

"Wage reductions on the part of the various steel interests have recently been announced in the papers and others are in contemplation. Throughout 1908 our wages and salaries were maintained on a high level although the steel trade was passing through a depression. Until December, the indications tended to the likelihood of an early and well rendered resumption of business. The prominence given to the tariff discussion during the public hearings of the ways and means committee, however brought about a waiting attitude by the buyers. The disappointing reduction in the volume of business and a consequent straining for orders forced the steel market into a condition of demoralization.

"Normal conditions can only be restored gradually, after a satisfactory conclusion of the extra session of congress and the enactment of a tariff bill drawn up with the fixed purpose of conserving the American market to Americans on the basis of American conditions and the standards of living.

"Pending the resumption of normal conditions we must look to the loyal co-operation of our employes in our efforts to compete successfully for new business with the certain expectation that all such efforts will hasten the time when wages and salaries may satisfactorily be restored to the old basis."

HALL'S RINK WINS TROPHY

Defeats Dinham's Quartet in Final Game in President's Event.

Dinham Also Loses to Alworth in Bagley Event.

After getting his C class rink down to the finals in the president's event, Dinham was last night defeated by Walter Hall's A class rink in the final contest for the trophy, and the individual prizes that go with it.

The game was a good one, and at one time Dinham was six up. Hall's men played the steadier game, however, and the final score was 14 to 8.

Earlier in the evening Dinham was defeated by Alworth by a score of 6 to 8. The game was in the Bagley event, and was one of the best of the year. The result was in doubt until the last stone was thrown.

Two games were played in the bonspiel for C class rinks for the possession of the board of trade buttons. E. R. Jacobi defeated Jim McLennan by a score of 12 to 11 and E. W. Deetz had the better of John Oldham by a score of 11 to 8.

ENTHUSIASM AT BOWLERS' MEET

Elks Have Big Time During Their Day at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—"Elks' Day" and "Wheeling Night" injected a great deal of enthusiasm into the first day's session of the closing week of the ninth tournament of the American bowling congress. The largest crowd that has yet attended the sessions of the tournament made Duquesne Garden ring with song, cheer and shout of encouragement for favorite teams. Elks were out in force with their ladies to bring success to their fellowmen, while the bowlers from Wheeling, W. Va., were accompanied by two trainloads of enthusiasts, besides many friends from this city.

More than a score of cities were represented in the matches yesterday and last night.

The scores of the individual and two-men team contests during the day were not up to the general average, but one change occurring in the highest ten scores in these two events. H. Dean and C. W. Turner of St. Louis, in the second double event, advanced into second place in the honor roll in this event, making a score of 1,259, beating the record made by the Kiene-Chalmers team at Cincinnati last year, but failing short of the mark set up by the Schwoegler brothers of Madison, Wis., last week. For a time it was thought the new record of 1,304 would be broken, but the men weakened somewhat in the last game. Turner made a score of 267 in his first game, this being the alley record.

Four five-men teams of Elks from Pittsburg, Wheeling, W. Va., and Tarentum, Pa., rolled one game each last night for the trophy offered by the Elks of Cincinnati, a score of 814 made by the men from Wheeling being high.

The Elks' team from Milwaukee last Thursday rolled a score of 880, thus winning the trophy.

The highest ten scores in all events since the opening of the tournament are:

Individuals—F. Bruggeman, Sioux City, 691; Larry Sutton, Rochester, N. Y., 691; E. Peterson, Chicago, 672; Henry Hoyer, Sioux City, 663; Fred Ebert, Milwaukee, 660; J. Blouin, Chicago, 651; Mat. Tyser, Rochester, N. Y., 648; Gus Steele, Chicago, 646; Frank Fox, Indianapolis, 646; Harry Steers, Chicago, 637.

Two-men—Al Schwoegler and Tony Schwoegler, Madison, Wis., world's record, 1,304; Dean-Tucker, St. Louis, 1,259; Steinmiller-Lippert, Chicago 1,209; Fick-Novak, Toledo, 1,201; Koehl-Meling, Columbus, 1,198; Ellis-Rosenbach, Grand Rapids, 1,193; Selbach-Collins, Columbus, 1,192; Selner-Garden, Cincinnati, 1,190; King-Murphy, Akron, Ohio, 1,187; Green-Moon, Hamilton, Ga., 1,187; Hopkins-Tinney, Cleveland, 1,183.

HAYES IS DEFEATED

Dorando Pietri Wins From American in New York Marathon.

Now Little Doubt As to Who Is the Better Man.

Madison Square Garden, New York, March 16.—Before 10,000 spectators, a large majority of whom were his countrymen, Dorando Pietri last night defeated Johnny Hayes in the match for Marathon supremacy. The race was at the regulation distance, 26 miles 385 yards, and was run over a 10-lap track in Madison Square Garden.

Both men were in excellent condition, and Dorando proved himself to be the master of Hayes at the game of long-distance running.

From the starter's gun to the end of the race the Italian led the American boy, throughout being spurred on by the cheers and plaudits of his emotional countrymen.

In the seventeenth mile Dorando started a heart-breaking spurt which Hayes was unable to follow, and before a half mile had been run the foreigner had gained a lap. Again in the eighteenth mile, after he had taken a breathing spell, the Italian set out at a pace Hayes was unable to equal, and annexed another lap. Thenceforward to the finish Dorando merely jogged behind Hayes, winning the race by two laps in easy fashion.

Hayes won the pole, but two seconds after Sheriff Tom Foley sent them away at 9:22:30 o'clock Dorando shot to the fore and was leading by a couple of feet at the end of the first mile. The official time was 5:06.

The runners passed the second line mark in 10:42, which is thirty-six seconds better than the time made on Thanksgiving eve by them. Dorando still was slightly in the lead and Hayes permitted him to do the pace-making throughout the third and fourth miles. The time at the end of the third mile was 16:30 and at the finish of the fourth mile 22 minutes flat.

Both Dorando and Hayes were running easy at the fifth mile, and what betting there was was at even money. Hayes trailed two yards behind the Italian at this point in the race. Time for five miles, 27:38.

Dorando also led at the end of the sixth mile, but in the first lap of the seventh Hayes sprinted and took the lead. Amid loud cheers the American circled the track at a rapid pace, but then slowed down and Dorando again went to the front.

The enthusiasm as the runners jogged around the saw dust and clay track, was intense, the Italian vieing with the Americans and Irish-Americans in cheering on their participants.

Two bands in the arena, one Italian and the other American, knew their cues well, for when there came a lapse in the applause for the runners they blared forth martial airs or rag-time. The best of humor prevailed everywhere throughout the great building.

There was a terrific burst of cheering from the 10,000 spectators when Dorando led Hayes by a couple of yards past the ten-mile mark in 56:46.

In the running of the fourteenth, Hayes made a sprint which to the spectators looked to be a tryout to ascertain just how much the Italian held in reserve. Several times the runners changed positions, but the Italian would not be denied and led Hayes across the line at the end of the fourteenth mile. Dorando also held the lead at the finish of the fifteenth, his time being 1:27:05.

Dorando after finishing the sixteenth mile in 1:33:20, sprinted away and amid terrific cheers lapped Hayes inside of a half mile.

Dorando's time for seventeen miles was 1:38:22 2-5, and was the fastest for the distance ever run in America.

During the running of the eighteenth mile Dorando gained another lap and then settled in behind the little Irish-American, whom he followed step by step with dogged persistence.

The nineteenth mile was passed in 1:53:07. The former record for this distance, made in the Shrubb-Longboat race, was 1:54:26.

From this stage of the journey there was little doubt as to the result, as Dorando simply jogged in behind Hayes and in the final miles romped away from the London Marathon winner, defeating him by half a mile in 2:48:08.

Eastern Team Wins.

New York, March 16.—The first night's play in the billiard match between the amateurs of the West and the amateurs of the East, now being played at McGraw's billiard academy, resulted in a victory for the East, the team representing New York winning out by a score of 50 to 48.

James B. Lair started for New York, but gave way to D. Ballou after the fifty-seventh inning. At this point Jordan Lambert of St. Louis, representing the amateurs of the West, was sixteen points in the lead, but Ballou caught up with him and finally beat him out by two points.

Yusiff Wins a Match.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 16.—Yusiff Mahmout struck the hardest match of his American tour last night when he ran against Henry Ordeman, the big Minneapolis blacksmith. The Turk won in two straight falls, the first after one hour's incessant wrestling, and the second in ten minutes, after Ordeman was exhausted by the struggle of the first bout.

Keyes Outpointed.

New York, March 16.—In a ten-round bout before the Marathon Athletic club in Brooklyn last night, Johnny Frayne, the California lightweight, outpointed Bert Keyes of this city by a good margin. The local boy started the fight in rushing style, but after the first round Frayne managed to hold him by clever work and outpointed him except in the sixth and seventh rounds.

White Sox Have Three Contests Booked With Callahan's Team.

Duluth Management Will Sell Admission Tickets in Advance.

Three important games have been added to the strong schedule already prepared for the White Sox on their spring training trip. They will meet the fast Callahan team of Chicago in three contests although the dates have not yet been decided upon. The games will all take place in Chicago.

Mr. Kuehnow announced this morning that he has secured as one of the crack twirlers of the team, J. H. Guthrie. This young man will work out with the Sioux City team and will report in Duluth in time to join the team in the first game. Mr. Kuehnow this morning received a letter from Darby O'Brien, playing manager, and he is very enthusiastic over the prospects for a winning team.

In order to raise the $3,000 necessary to start the team on its spring trip and start the season, the Duluth management will begin at once to sell ticket books. These books will sell at $5 and $10. The $5 books will contain twenty-two tickets and the $10 books will contain forty-four. The tickets will be transferable and can be used at any time either in the grand stand or any other part of the grounds.

There is quite a little enthusiasm over the new league idea by the fans generally, and it is expected that no trouble will be experienced in disposing of the tickets.

AWAITS END OF INQUIRY

La Follette Will Make No Early Move Against Stephenson.

Senator to be Guided by the Results at Madison.

Washington, March 16.—The action of La Follette yesterday in presenting to the senate the credentials of Mr. Stephenson and in accompanying him to the desk of the vice president to take the oath of office as senator, is without significance as to the course that may ultimately be taken by Mr. La Follette concerning any contest that may be determined upon over the question of the regularity of the action of the Wisconsin legislature.

The legislature is investigating these preceedings and should this result in the finding of serious irregularities in the election of Stephenson, Mr. La Follette may introduce a resolution calling for an investigation by the committee on privileges and election as to the right of Stephenson to retain his seat. A senator's credentials properly signed by state officers have always been accepted by the senate as prima-facie evidence of his election until a contest is entered.

Ames Received $900.

Madison, Wis., March 16.—A. E. Ames, who conducted the campaign in Dane county for Isaac Stephenson, testified before the legislative senatorial primary investigation committee that he received $900 from the Stephenson fund. Of this amount, $500 was for salary for himself, the balance going to poll workers and other small items of expense. He said he took no active part in the legislative campaign. He "devoted his whole time to the work and got results," he said.

C. C. Wellensgard, assemblyman of Green Lake county said he received $250.80 from the Stephenson fund. He arranged with Mr. Sackett to do work for Stephenson the same time as he was working for himself and was told by Sackett that he (Wellensgard) would be reimbursed for Stephenson's share of the expense. He frequently hired the same man to circulate Stephenson's and his own papers.

MARIE DRESSLER SELLS GEMS TO PAY ACTORS' SALARIES.

London, March 16.—The liabilities of Marie Dressler, the American actress, who recently reopened the Aldwych theater, but was compelled to abandon the enterprise within a few days, amount to $10,000, and the assets to $3,000, according to estimates presented at a meeting of the creditors today. The liabilities, however, do not include the unpaid salaries of her company.

Miss Dressler's solicitors said that she had sold all her jewelry to meet the salaries, which were paid at the end of the first week, and offered to make over one-quarter of her future earnings to the amount of $7,500. The meeting adjourned pending an attempt to secure a better offer.

RESISTS EVICTION, SAYS FARM BELONGS TO LORD.

Noblesville, Ind., March 16.—Layton Randall, a tenant on the farm of Scott Lester, has been bereft of his goods and his ten children, but refuses to be evicted, because he says the farm belongs not to Lester but to the Lord, and he has instructions to stay. Lester tried to get rid of his unprofitable tenant for two years, but was invariably met by Randall's prayerful refusal to move. So far as the landlord was concerned, the tenant's prayers were successful until now. Randall is living in the barn. Neighbors are caring for his children pending further developments.

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED TO SCHREIBER, CONVICTED OF MURDER OF MASSAPUST

problematical. Schreiber is without funds, the counsel having been appointed by the court, and unless friends come to the aid of the convicted man, it is not likely an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

The Court's Memorandum.

Judge Dibell's memorandum to the order denying the motion for a new trial is as follows:

"It is a provision of the statute that no person shall be convicted of murder or manslaughter unless the death of the person alleged to have been killed and the fact of the killing by the defendant, as alleged, are each established as independent facts, the former by direct proof, and the latter beyond a reasonable doubt.

"Frank Massapust's cabin was burned on the evening of Feb. 9, 1908. The trunk of a human body was found in the ruins. The rest of the body was substantially consumed; but the outlines of where it lay were discernible and a few charred bones remained. There were no means of facial identification. Near the body were the watch and chain and charm which Frank Massapust customarily wore. Across it lay his gun. He was in the cabin alive a few hours before the fire. There were a few other items of direct proof tending in a minor way to show identity: and upon the whole evidence there was no reasonably debatable question as to the fact of his death. There is no fair question, but that the body found in the cabin was the body taken to New Ulm and there interred, and subsequently disinterred, and that it was the body of Frank Massapust.

"It appeared that by direct proof that a blood clot had formed in the left pleural cavity, almost completely filling it; that the lung tissue was crowded out of place, and that the heart over the displaced. The blood clot was formed during life. Violence or disease caused it. A blood clot of less extent was found in the right pleural cavity. The lung tissue was apparently there in place. Several of the ribs on the left side were broken or cut straight off, and one was splintered. The ribs on the right side, except one, were intact. The corpus delicti was sufficiently established, under the holdings of substantially all the authorities.

"The evidence was legally sufficient to justify the jury in believing beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant killed Frank Massapust. The facts about to be recited were either undisputed, or reasonably might have been found by the jury."

Here follows a brief story of the case as it came out at the trial, and the memorandum continues:

"On the stand the defendant admitted being at Washburn, and admitted what the state claimed occurred there. His explanation was that shortly after noon of the Saturday before the fire, Frank Massapust came to his place and left with him, for safe keeping, the two certificates; that on the Monday evening following the fire, he hid them in the barn; that he took them to Wisconsin and used the one for $329.25; that he returned the $211 certificate to its hiding place, and that when he was arrested in April he instructed his wife to burn it.

"He went to Washburn, he says, because it was a place where likely Frank Massapust was not known. He admitted that what he had told so many about having seen Frank Massapust last at George Carter's dance was untrue, and that what he had said about never having seen the certificates and never having been in Washburn, and never having seen Landraind or Maxey was untrue. He says that after his confinement in jail he experienced a changed attitude, and that while he had told things before about the matter which were untrue, he would not do so now.

"This claim should have had, and doubtless had, respectful consideration by the jury, but they were not required to believe his testimony tending to exculpate himself. He claimed that when he learned from Rudolph Massapust that he found trace of no money except the $211 certificate, he believed that the Virginia bank intended denying the existence of the $329.25 certificate and that if he took a deed to the Wisconsin land in the name of Frank Massapust some time Missapust's people would run across it and thus he would save the money to them and prevent the bank working the intended wrong, and that this was his purpose.

"Jurors are not required to give credence to such a claim or to such testimony. Ordinarily they do not. The defendant was directly contradicted by worthy people of his neighborhood on material facts unfavorable to him. The jury were not required to credit his claimed present disposition to tell nothing untrue. They were justified in believing that his account of how he came by the certificates was entirely untrue. If they believed that he really thought the bank was defrauding Massapust's people out of the $329.25 certificate they may have concluded, he thought, the bank would cash it when sent on for collection and keep still.

"They saw him and noted his appearance. They may have taken him to be a rather aggressive man, of perhaps a cruel type of countenance, somewhat domineering, and one who would carry out resolutely a purpose once formed. He was bold and shrewd and cunning in a way. He was ignorant of business ways and, of course, he blundered. They saw the attempt made to break the identification of the defendant as the one who assumed to be Frank Massapust at Washburn; and they may have believed that if a fair question of his identity had been left, so that he might fairly hope or expect that they would credit his testimony, he would have denied on the stand having seen Frank Massapust later than the George Carter dance, denied having seen the certificates, denied having been at Washburn, and denied having seen Landrainf or Maxey, all as he had denied before. If the evidence produced does not justify a conviction, the killing of another, unless there is some one who sees it, is quite safe.

Trial Was Fair.

"Even if the evidence justified a verdict of guilty the defendant should have a new trial if the one had was not in every respect fair. Counsel for the state prosecuted vigorously but not vindictively. The defendant was ably and vigorously defended by counsel appointed for him. All the witnesses he wanted were procured. There was nothing in the atmosphere of the trial prejudicial to him. He was not restricted in the evidence he chose to offer. He was allowed to put everything before the jury. The state was restricted, whenever he objected, to the narrowest limits. What instructions he asked were given. The jury were cautioned relative to circumstantial evidence; the requisite degree of proof was explained; the presumptions surrounding him were stated; and the general charge was altogether in his favor. The trial was in every respect fair to the defendant.

"Notwithstanding the sufficiency of the evidence and the fact of a fair trial the court would now assume the responsibility of granting a new trial if it were of the opinion that likely the jury went astray. It would not hide behind the fact that the jury after a fair trial found him guilty upon sufficient evidence and refuse further consideration. With this attitude the court has gone over the evidence.

"Dealing with remote possibilities it might be conjectured that Frank Massapust committed suicide. There is no reason apparent why he should. He was prosperous, friendly with his brother, with whom in a way he made his home, and was attached to his brother's children. The physical facts attending his death negative suicide. He may have been stricken with disease or have come to his death by accident. The physical facts attending his death again negative such an explanation. The jury might have conjectured that such conjectured possibilities were real impossibilities. Some minds refuse to believe that one will kill another for a few hundred dollars. Few kill for money. Some do, even for a few dollars. The books gives numerous authenticated instances; and often such killings are in sparsely settled frontier communities.

"The men best qualified to find truly the fact of the guilt or the innocence of the defendant were the twelve jurors who were sworn to try the issue, who heard every word of the evidence as it came to them, and who were charged with the responsibility of making a finding. The jurors were an intelligent body of men drawn from different walks of life. They were attentive and circumspect throughout. The defendant's family was present. The jury knew the meaning of a verdict of guilty. No hasty impulse prompted a verdict finding guilt. The deliberate judgment of a jury, given under such circumstances, ought to embody the truth. It is far better than the judgment of the trial court. It is better than that of any one who now reads the testimony. The jurors necessarily concluded that the evidence, weighed cautiously and gradually as they were told to weigh it, and weighed it with a due appreciation of all the safeguards and presumptions making in favor of the defendant, proved his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. My judgment accords with theirs."

The motion for a new trial for Schreiber was argued, Dec. 19, by G. W. C. Ross of the firm of Ross & McKnight, attorneys for the accused man, Mr. Ross based his motion on the contention that the state had failed to establish a case against Schreiber. He claimed that the corpus delicti had not been established—that is, the state had not shown by direct evidence, and as independent facts, that Frank Massapust was dead; that the body found in the ruins of the cabin was Massapust's, and that the person, whose body was found, had come to his death by violent and criminal means.

Mr. Ross contended that the circumstantial evidence, on which Schreiber was convicted, was not strong enough. He said everything that seemed to point to Schreiber as the guilty man could be explained away on some other logical hypothesis, and under those circumstances, the verdict was not justifiable.

In his argument on the motion, County Attorney Norton reviewed the evidence, and pointed out to the court wherein he believed the state had established the guilt of Schreiber beyond a reasonable doubt. He claimed the evidence was sufficient to have established the corpus delicti, and the case of the state was strong enough to justify the jury in returning the verdict they did.

The Crime.

The murder of Frank Massapust, as the story was told at the trial of Schreiber, was an atrocious crime. It had all the earmarks of a carefully planned and deliberately carried out shooting down of a man for his money and the burning of his cabin to conceal the crime. The circumstantial evidence brought out by the state tended to show that while Massapust was alone in his cabin, he was killed by a shot fired through a window, and his murderer had then set fire to the cabin, that the body and all traces of the crime might be effaced.

The scene of the crime was a little settlement about twelve miles from Ashawa, now Cook, where eight or ten families lived on homesteads within a few miles of each other. Massapust's cabin was about in the center of the settlement, and Schreiber's cabin was about a half mile to the east. John and George Carter lived some distance north of Massapust's cabin, and other neighbors were scattered at various points around.

Frank Massapust was last seen alive on the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 9, when George Carter visited him at his cabin. At the trial George Carter testified that he left Massapust in good spirits. That night, about 9:30 o'clock, he was awakened by his brother, John Carter, who said there was a fire to the southwest. They went down and found Massapust's cabin almost burned to the ground. The interior was all aflame, and through a window on the west they could see nothing that looked to be a body, they claimed.

The testimony of the Carter brothers was a strong factor in establishing the case of the state. They said after looking into the burning cabin and hunting around for Massapaust, they thought that he had probably gone over to one of the neighbors, so they started eastward to investigate. They said they called at Schreiber's house and George Carter knocked at the door. Mrs. Schreiber answered and Carter asked if Frank Massapust was there. She said he was not and they went on farther down the road. Schreiber did not speak if he was in his house.

On their return in fifteen or twenty minutes, the Carters said that the door was opened by Schreiber almost as soon as they knocked. "He was as white as any ghost I ever seen," is the way George Carter described Schreiber's appearance in his testimony. Schreiber joined the party and they went back to the burning cabin, the Carters testified that as soon as they looked in the window again, Schreiber pointed to a spot and said, "What's that there?" They said the charred trunk was found in that spot the next morning. When they passed around to the front of the house, fresh tracks in the snow were seen leading across the snow from the path leading south from the cabin to that leading east. Both of the Carters testified positively that the tracks had not been there when they first visited the scene.

Various matters were brought out at the trial, on which the state laid stress and which were contended to point to Schreiber's connection with the crime. Statements made by Schreiber, such as he being glad that he wasn't the first to discover the burning cabin "because the law is queer in this country" and his asking if one could cash a certificate of deposit without being identified, were brought out in the testimony. It was claimed by the state that before the burning of Massapust's cabin, Schreiber had been in desperate financial straits and testimony as to statements to that effect by Schreiber was introduced to support the contention. On the other hand, it was shown that Schreiber had paid $10 for a cow and had expended other sums of some magnitude in March of last year.

Schreiber was not directly connected with the case, however, until in April, when he made a trip to Washburn, Wis. He negotiated with William Landraind, a Bayfield county man, for the purchase of a piece of land and the sale was arranged. At the Bayfield county bank of Washburn, Schreiber represented himself as Frank Massapust and signed Massapust's name to a certificate of deposit on the First National Bank of Virginia, made out to Massapust, obtaining $75 on it. He was also seen in possession of a certificate of deposit for $211. The Washburn bank refused to advance any more than $75 on the certificate and it was dishonored when it was sent to the Virginia bank.

Arrested for Forgery.

Schreiber returned home, and on April 28 he was arrested, ostensibly for the forgery. He was held in the county jail and later the murder charge was placed against him, the September grand jury returning an indictment charging him with murder in the first degree.

The trial of Schreiber was an interesting one. The state's case was substantially as given. The settlers in the district where Schreiber and Massapust both lived testified to the evidences of the crime and the circumstances surrounding the murdered man and the man accused of murder. Witnesses from New Ulm testified to an autopsy performed on the body, which was exhumed Nov. 12 for that purpose. A blood clot, which might have been caused by a bullet was found in the left pleural cavity, and several ribs were broken, as though by a bullet. Mr. Landraind and officers of the bank at Washburn testified to Schreiber's forgery of Massapust's name and his possession of the certificates of deposit of Massapust.

Schreiber's defense was based on the almost unsupportable testimony of the accused and his wife. Schreiber maintanied a firm demeanor on the stand, denying all knowledge of the crime. He claimed on the night of the burning of Massapust's cabin, he had retired at 6:30 o'clock and had not heard George Carter when he first pounded at the door. The possession of the certificates of deposit, he explained by saying that Massapust had given them to him for safe keeping, as Massapust intended to go out again to work on Feb. 10. He made a full and free confession of forgery, saying that the First National Bank of Virginia had told Frank Massapust's brother that Massapust had only taken out one certificate of deposit, that for $211, and he wished to put the other in circulation so that Massapust's heirs would have the benefit of it.

Schreiber claimed that on Feb. 9, 1908, he had $70 in the house, saved from wages he earned the previous fall, and from the receipts of two cows he killed, and the butter and eggs sold by Mrs. Schreiber. He said he had borrowed $40 from his father in March and the expenditures to which the state referred were not unusual. Schreiber's wife corroborated his testimony and his father also told of the loan of $40.

The case was given to the jury Dec. 9. It was afterwards brought out that the first ballot stood 8 to 4 for acquittal. After forty-seven hours' deliberation, in which every phase of the testimony was discussed from every viewpoint, the twelve men decided that Schreiber was guilty of the murder and they returned a verdict to that effect.

The verdict was something of a surprise in view of the long session of the jury, and it caused something of a sensation. Rev. J. T. Moody came out with a statement in the newspapers, in which he condemned the verdict on the ground that it was not justified by the evidence. Others upheld the juror's action, contending that the twelve men who had listened to all of the evidence, had seen all the witnesses, had lived in the case for almost two weeks and had spent nearly two days in conscientious consideration of it in every phase, were best qualified to judge.

Schreiber an Enigma.

As a character study, William Schreiber is an enigma. There is something wonderful in his mental and constitutional make-up. Be he innocent, or be he guilty, no normal man could have stood up under the strain to which Schreiber has been subjected. Yet today, with the exception of being a little paler and a little stouter, William Schreiber is the same as he was the first day he stepped into the county jail.

Worry and he are evidently entire strangers. During the long months before the indictment was returned, he exhibited not the least anxiety. He said he was innocent and he depended on the grand jury to free him. He got religion and gave himself over to studying the Bible. He shifted his hope from the grand jury to the prospective jury of his peers, before whom he would be tried, and he never faltered.

During the trial he was just as calm as he ever was in his life. On the witness stand he told a connected story, and through a gruelling cross examination he stuck to it in every detail. He never missed an opportunity to declare his innocence and the twists and turns of the county attorney in the cross examination failed to shake him in the slightest.

Only once during all this time has he lost his composure. During the two days the jury held his fate in their hands, he was not worried in the least. His supreme confidence held up until the clerk read out the verdict declaring him guilty of the murder of Frank Massapust. Then he went into a paroxysm of grief and disappointment, weeping bitter tears for about two hours. When the shock wore off, he had another hitch in his courage, shifted his faith once more from the jury to the judge, and went on as though the noose were not hanging over head or the prison doors yawning to take him for the remainder of his natural life. The strain of waiting for the decision of the court on the motion for a new trial has not visibly affected him.

Trapper Drives Trained Animals Home; Hunger Impels Them.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special to the Journal from Saskatoon, Sask., says: A weird tale of the North has been brought to Saskatoon by Fred Allingham and James and Mack Curtin, who have been spending the winter around Moose Lake.

A trapper had secured several young timber wolves which he trained for driving. On one occasion he had been away on a long journey and was finishing a hard day in which the animals had not received any food, as is the custom of treating dog teams while traveling. When the driver and the team approached the shanty that was their home, his 3-year old daughter ran out to meet them and the famished animals jumped on her and in flash she was dead, before the father could lift a hand.

With an ax the father went after the wild creatures and never stopped until he had killed them all.

COURT AT BEMIDJI.

Nelson Murder Trial Expected to Come Up This Week.

Bemidji, Minn., March 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of Barney Nelson, charged with killing Morris Fuller near Fowlds, last January, may be reached in the district court today or tomorrow.

The trial of the case of the state against Thomas Bigster, charged with grand larceny in the second degree, begun Saturday, was on yesterday.

In chambers, Judge Stanton listened to arguments on motion to vacate an order previously made for taking depositions, on the ground that the service provided for in the order was not properly made, in the case of Greenfield & Co., vs. J. A. Clark. This is an action for $20,000 damages claimed for alleged failure to convey perfect title to real estate purchased, the lands being located in Cass and Itasca counties.

Judge M. A. Spooner of this city appeared as attorney for the defendant and moving party in the motion and C. L. Pratt of Grand Rapids and T. J. Brennan of Superior represented the plaintiff. The case has been pending in Itasca county court for more than a year.

HAD SALT RHEUM FOR FOUR YEARS

Began Like a Ringworm on Hand —Though Treated, Washing Irritated It and It Spread Over Arm and Face—Kept Growing Worse.

CURED TWO YEARS AGO BY CUTICURA

"A little over six years ago I had a sore come on my hand. I consulted a doctor. He told me it was a ringworm. It kept on getting worse so I went to another doctor. He called it salt rheum. I kept on taking his treatment for some time but every washday my hand would break out and be worse. It continued to spread till it got over my whole hand and up my arm, also on my face. I suffered with the disease about four years when a friend of mine told me to try Cuticura. I got two cakes of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent. When I had used them up, I was cured and I haven't seen the least sign of the humor since. Mrs. Linda Winslow, Wyalusing, Penn., July 13, 1908."

FACE BADLY BRUISED

And Cut by Fall. Now Healed without a Scar by Use of Cuticura.

"On January 31 I fell from a wagon, landing on my face and head against the curb and gutter. I was about the worst looking person that ever had a face. After about two hours' careful washing I got the blood stopped and the dirt off and my face pretty well covered with Cuticura Ointment. You may know that I was pretty well skinned up by the fact that both lips were cut inside and out and the skin on my nose and both cheek bones cut. Part of my face was healed over in a week and the scales came off and while the cheek is still sore there are no marks to prove that I was ever scratched. I would also say that I use the Cuticura Soap for shaving and my face is always soft. W. H. Dean, Newark, Del., February 24, 1908."

BLACKMAIL IS DEFENSE

"God Help the Man a Woman Accuses," Says Fryberger.

"God Help the Woman a Man Defiles," Retorts Jenswold.

Arguments were made in the $15,000 damage suit of Marie Clausen against Harry W. Johnson in district court this morning, and the case was given to the jury. The girl, who is 17 years old, claims damages on account of an alleged criminal assault she claims Johnson committed on her when she was in his employ in a restaurant at Twenty-sixth avenue west and Superior street Dec. 9, last.

"God help the man a woman accuses," was H. B. Fryberger's summing up for Johnson.

"God help the woman a man defiles," was Attorney John Jenswold's reply for his client. Both appeals to the jury were sensational in their way, one pleading for a rebuke of blackmail, the other appealing for damages for a crime.

Fryberger characterized the case as one of blackmail pure and simple. He pointed to the evidence to prove that Johnson had gone home early every night during the week of the alleged assault and contended that he could not have been at the restaurant at the time the assault was committed. He said the breeding of the girl hadn't been such as to place her above the bringing of the suit, and asked the jury for a verdict for his client.

Jenswold's plea was in words of biting sarcasm and invective. He vigorously denounced the man who would stoop to the assault of a defenseless girl and attempted to riddle Johnson's alibi. He asked the jury to believe the story of the girl and to give her such damages as to compensate her for the injuries suffered through the assault.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

As petticoats diminish in number, the outer skirt grows decorously long in proportion and those who dictate fashions say that by the autumn woman will be trailing around in skirts which lay upon the ground four inches to a foot or more. Stenographers will sweep into their employer's office in a swirl of dust and grace, gained for the time from a skirt of long lines and extra length, woman will again appear to the world somewhat lopsided from stooping to lift the dust gathering, germ breeding skirt.

As it is, right at this moment, the person who insists upon the short skirt of the most ultra type, does not dream of having it any shorter than an inch and a half from the ground.

The days of woman's emancipation, when she insisted upon her skirts being between four and five inches from the floor, are passing away and she is again entering the thralldom of the skirt that catches he rankles at every step and of the one which must be lifted for every step that is to be taken.

The advance of the evil has been insidious. First, all of the comfortable width was removed from skirts and woman came forth a slim thing of no proportions at all to speak of. While she was alternately blushing and admiring, the fashion maker dropped the length of the skirt a few inches. The general appearance was all right, so woman said nothing. The next season rolls around, and many of gowns and costumes are made en train. To cut it off ruins the entire effect. To leave it on is a menace to health and hygiene, but no one doubts of course, which will triumph.

This is a mere word of warning. The spring openings with their color and charm of novelty and advance season beauty, are so apt to close one's eyes against the dangers that lurk within them.

But the long, dragging skirt is almost here.

SELECT PICTURES.

Committee Chooses Those For State Exhibit.

The committee of selection for the annual exhibition of the State Art society has chosen from the pile of pictures sent in by the painters of the state, those which will be shown in the St. Paul Auditorium, March 20 to 28. About sixty pictures will be hung and twenty were put aside to be returned to the artists who sent them. Most of those returned were copies. The society wants original work. Others were not considered of sufficient artistic merit to be exhibited.

On the committee for selection are Miss Grace McKinstry of Faribault, R. D. Herrick, Gustave Goetsch, Harry Rubens of Minneapolis, and W. J. Conway and Mrs. Jessie Neal of St. Paul, and Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour of Duluth. There is not so much space at the disposal of the committee this year as last, so that the number of pictures shown will not be as large as at other exhibitions.

The exhibition will also be shown in Faribault, April 13 to 23, and not until then will the prize winners be announced. The jury of award includes five members, three non-residents of the state who will be elected by ballot of the exhibitors. Prizes of $100 each will be made for the best painting, sculpture and architectural design, and there are six prizes of $20 each for art handicraft and one for artistic photography.

In addition to the work of the state artists and craftsmen there will be a collection of oil paintings from Philadelphia and one of water colors from New York. One of the strongest clubs in Philadelphia will loan artistic photographs.

Robert Koehler is the president of the State Art society; Hannibal Choate, vice president; R. D. Herrick, secretary and treasurer.

WANTED: A WIFE.

Homesteader Asks Mrs. Forgy to Choose One.

It is now Mrs. Margaret Forgy, the children's best friend, and the first aid to men in search of wives. A lonely man of 45, who in the hurly-burly of city life never missed the sweet companionship which might be possible in the married state, has discovered that in the wilds of North Dakota, while one is "holding down" a claim, there is nothing so desirable and seemingly so unattainable, as a wife.

The North Dakota homesteader is in town, and to Mrs. Forgy he went and poured forth his innermost desires.

"I don't drink," he said.

"No," she said; "I know you don't."

"And I work hard," he said.

"I'm sure you do," said Mrs. Forgy.

"I'm shy," he said.

"Oh," said Mrs. Forgy, deprecatingly.

"And I want a wife. You get her," he said in an ingratiating manner.

In talking the matter over later, Mrs. Forgy said, "I never did such a thing before in my life, but he is in such earnest that I told him I would look around." And so applications are being received by the assistant humane officer, Duluth 'phone 1075.

The man in question is of the gallant tribe of Irishmen, and surely this is the first time in history that an Irishman has asked to have his wooing done by proxy, but three years of lonely life on a homestead has developed a timidity which other men have often felt in asking wives. He would prefer that his prospective wife have blue eyes with long black lashes, blue-black hair and a complexion similar to Kathleen Mavourneen, all of that combination, of course, going with an Irish girl, but these are not essentials, and any woman of any other nationality who feels that life on a homestead offers a very good chance for happiness, may apply.

The homesteader has 120 acres of land and is thinking of buying more. He will be in Duluth for another month or six weeks, so affairs would not have to be unduly hurried. He is 45 years old, just a nice age.

Every one is hoping that the matter will end in the metaphorical marriage bells, and all applications will be regarded with the most sacred confidence.

Alliance Meeting.

The Women's Alliance of the Unitarian church will meet tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Daniels of 613 East Fifth street.

The plays that will be studied next year will be "Othello," "Romeo and Juliet," "Julius Caesar" and "Macbeth."

The class will continue meeting weekly during the remainder of March and in April.

St. Patrick's Dinner.

Mrs. S. E. Catherall will entertain at a St. Patrick's day dinner tomorrow evening at her home at Lakeside in honor of the seventeenth birthday anniversary of her daughter, Ruth.

Mission Meeting.

"Awakened Turkey" will be the subject discussed at a missionary meeting to be held Thursday evening, at the parlors of the Pilgrim Congregational church. A picnic supper will be served at 6:15 o'clock, to be followed by the discussion of the missionary subject, with Mrs. W. W. McMillan, Andrew Nelson, George Gray, and E. D. Field as speakers.

AMERICAN GIRL

In Grand Opera—Now Receives Credit.

The ideal prima donna must compass three things to deserve her name: head, heart and vocal cords. And no two are worth much without the third! says Oscar Hammerstein in the April Delineator.

It is strange that no woman reaches her full meaning in the world, especially if she expresses that meaning musically, without passing through a harrowing, engulfing past! It is that which molds her. It is the speech of the soul in the child-song, the mother-song, the hero-song, that shuts out the world and helps us to breast the tides which bear us to some new and truer sense of life's vast possibilities. This soul-speech is never learned save through one teacher—experience; and, alas, by the time the pupil is perfect in the lesson and knows what it is all good for, she is no longer young!

All the possibilities are embodied in the American girl, never heard of in grand opera fifty years ago, but with a record during the latter half of the nineteenth century which foreshadows the future. A few more years will see her a radiant combination of character, beauty, dramatic ability and voice—the ideal queen of song.

A generation ago, when an impresario ventured to present an American singer to her countrymen, he did so on the strength of a European reputation, and gave a foreign twist to her name. When Lillian Norton made her first appearance with Italo in the old Academy of Music, she attracted very little notice; but the Italianized Nordica and a halo of European glory won long and loud applause. Twenty years have radically changed that situation, and Geraldine Farrar's own honest name does not imperil her supremacy.

When the great people of America—not a few capitalists and devotees of fashion—demand grand opera and make its support the same serious business which continental Europe has done for three centuries, we shall not send abroad for our dramatic singers. It was in A. D. 1691 that Tuscan Margarita de l'Epine inaugurated the fashion in England so industriously copied by Patti in America—an annual "positively last appearance." In A. D. 1991 Mary Smith may just as reasonably be expected to hold the Italian populace in thrall by the magic of her American voice.

At the conclusion of a busy life I have chosen the giving of opera as a vocation, an aim, never a "business." Perhaps I am a musical philanthropist, for I want to give the great public a love for opera which it does not know, as well as stimulate its affection for that which it does know.

I want music-lovers to demand established opera in all our cities of any importance. Then American voices will be discovered; requisite training will not be the difficult, costly, remote thing it is today, and the American prima donna will be in possession of her kingdom.

ENJOY LIFE.

Wealth of Enjoyment in Each Day.

Half the joy of life comes from getting the good out of things as we go along, says the Philadelphia Bulletin. Some of us are always putting off our enjoyments. After a while we expect to take a rest, see a friend or read a book; but after a while never comes. The good time we are looking forward to lies as far ahead as ever. All life is spent in meaning to overtake it and enjoy it. Meanwhile we trot, drudge and grow old, passing by with unseeing eye the happiness we might get out of every day.

Yes, every sordid, commonplace day has its wealth of enjoyment for us, if we only took the trouble to get it out.

There are the friends we love, and who love us. If we stopped to think of it, this consciousness would gladden life.

There is the beauty of the earth. Did we only open our eyes to see it we should be made glad in spite of ourselves. There are people who have lived on earth thirty or forty years, who could scarcely tell you the color of the sky from their own observation. They take it for granted it is blue because they hear so!

There are dozens of simple pleasures we might enjoy. Ten minutes every day with a fascinating book; an inexpensive little jaunt with our family or a congenial friend; fifteen minutes of bright, intelligent conversation with the home folks on some other subject than the sordid details of making ends meet, a few minutes in an art gallery, just to look at one good picture—these are some of the little every day happiness we might take and don't, not because we are too poor, but because we haven't thought them worth while. We are too busy aiming at some big, expensive pleasure in the future.

We shall never enjoy life until we learn to enjoy the little happinesses of every commonplace day as we go along.

Long Umbrellas.

The general adoption of Directoire modes has created a demand for umbrellas that shall be in keeping with this style of custom. And so short-handed umbrellas are accessories of the past, for in their place we see the nattiest looking models, with handles from forty to fifty inches long.

The carvings and decorations on many of the handles are exceedingly eccentric, and in some cases grotesque. For example, a parrot, by no means small, in all its natural brilliant plumage, hand-painted, is seen clinging to the end of one, while another is finished with a flat plate three and sometimes four inches in diameter, on which is portrayed in enamel the face of an animal, such as a cat, owl, dog, etc., with most realistic-looking eyes of mock jewels.

Flowers on Hats.

The flower-trimmed hats are of medium size in white and delicately tinted flowers, with flat, regular brims, low crowns, much built up with flowers.

Lilacs, wistaria, sweet peas, hyacinth and the finer flowers seem more smart than roses.

The Charlotte Corday hat holds its own wonderfully for very dressy wear, and is made with a drapery of net, edged with lace, over a brim that looks for all the world like a lattice work of wire covered with white ribbon with tassel ends.

Crinoline will be much used for between-season hats.

Some call it horsehair, and it appears in plain and lace weaves.

Whole hats are built of it, including the most marvelous rosettes in two and three tones of one color.

the EVENING STORY

THE PARDON

By Joe H. Ransom.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Number Twenty-seven, trusty, rested his head wearily upon his hand. About him stretched the prison yard, bright in the sunlight, the flagstones reflecting in their narrow space the light which flooded over the high encircling walls of the great pile of grayish stone. Suddenly a door opened and, as it clanged to, broke the quiet sharply.

"Moore, Mr. McGregor wants you in the office."

"All right, sir." The convict rose and followed slowly.

"You may go, Sims.'

The superintendent looked up from his desk and motioned the convict to approach.

"I believe," he said quietly, looking over his spectacles at Number Twenty-seven, "that your name is Moore—James Moore; is that correct?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you have been here now—" He hesitated, turning to his desk.

"Seventeen years, sir."

"And your term?" He looked up at the convict again, questioningly.

"Life." The voice was without emotion.

The man at the desk turned his revolving chair and looked out of the window. The season was early spring and the freshening earth stretched its panorama across the view in awakening beauty. In a distant field a man was plowing, and beyond him, where a cluster of trees were just putting out their buds, stood a house with a cow-lot behind and a woman hanging clothes in the yard.

"Moore!" the superintendent turned suddenly toward the convict, surprising the yearning in his eyes; he, too, had been looking out of the window. "Moore, your record has been good here. You've been privileged now for some time."

"Five years, sir."

"Have you ever made application for a pardon?" The man's voice was low and clear, and he looked closely into the other's eyes.

"I felt that I did, sir; but it's been a long time now. It's no use. I was dead poor, and what friends I had didn't seem to remember."

"I see—I understand," said the man of authority gently.

"Sit down here, Moore," the superintendent said, kindly; "I want to have a talk with you. Would you mind—I would like for you to tell me about yourself, how you came here. Your crime was, I think—"

"Murder," finished the other quietly. "I killed a man, sir. He was a big bug. I was dead poor. The jury said it was murder in the first degree. I couldn't tell them what was the reason. So I'm here, sir, for life."

"Is there anyone?" came the voice of the superintendent, softly, "out there you would like to go back to? Did you have a—any loved ones, Moore?"

Across the face of the convict flitted an expression of such exquisite pain, such profound and tremulous sorrow, that the man was almost sorry he had spoken. The reserved, practiced coldness was gone, and the face was softer, and a new light was in the eyes.

"Yes," he began, and the superintendent leaned forward to catch the words. "There is, there was, sir, unless—." He faltered.

"I understand," the man spoke gently, almost in a whisper. He noticed that the convict's face had gone pale and his lips quivered painfully.

"I'd been a tough sort," the man began again, speaking very slowly. "mixin' round with the boys, workin' some, drinkin' some. I didn't have no folks, and I didn't know what a home was. Then come Jinnie, with the sun kinder hidin' in her hair and peepin' out in spots, and when I saw the light sparklin' in her eye and the smilin' face hendin' down over her old mother, kinder tender and lovin' like, a big knot seemed to come risin' up in me and chookin' me. And I quit the gang and settled down, and got to be Jinnie's steady."

"I worked hard, sir, and the boss took a kind of fancy to me and things begun to lookin' up. And then, about a year after our little Jinnie had come, brinin' some of heaven with her, I—this man came. He'd known me in the old days. He thought he had me in his power, and I reckon he did, but not like he understood—it. There wasn't nothin' else for me to do. I killed him. And he did—have me in his power. So I'm here, sir, and Jinnie and the little one—"

The man's voice was husky, and now it broke and he leaned his head on the table as his body quivered with repressed emotion. So still was the room that a sparrow, chancing to alight upon a bar of the window, felt the weight of it and flitted away to the gladder world.

"And when they brought me away," the convict broke in suddenly upon the culet, "I knowed I'd never see Jinnie and the kid no more."

Again the man had fallen into a way of talking to himself, as it were, speaking aloud the things within him, whispering a recital of the sorrow which before had lived within his heart.

"She was brave, was Jinnie, brave at the last, tryin' to smile at me as comfort through the tears. And she held the little one up to kiss the dad she wouldn't see no more, the dad who was going to be buried for a while before they buried him for good. And I didn't want her to know where her dad was, her dad who was a murderer and a jailbird, and I made my Jinnie promise she would never come here to see me, nor let the little Jinnie know—"

He ceased abruptly, brushing his hand across his face as if to put from him the memory of the shattered, hopeless past. The monotone of the prison routine had worked in him a peculiar patience, and the pictures his own words brought back stirred again the depths wherein lay treasured the memory of a three years' happiness.

The man who had called forth this narrative sat motionless, his arms resting limply upon the desk, his face turned to the window.

A servant entering brought the two men back to the present, and the convict rose. As he stood silently by while the superintendent dismissed the servant of the force of the seventeen years asserted itself and he came to the attention of the prisoner before his jailor. But the other stepped forward and took his hand and looked into his eyes.

"I'm sorry, Moore. It's hard—hard. But thank you for telling me."

When the door had closed upon the man in stripes, the superintendent resumed his seat at the desk and took up his pen, as he looked out upon the gathering of night. He turned to the desk again and pressed a button for the light. And then he wrote, wrote long and rapidly, to the man who had called him here, the man who was not merely a friend of politics, but of the years gone by, the man whom he remembered ever as a boy of whom he could say that he had lived unbesmirchingly. He told the story of him who was known as Number Twenty-seven, trusty; of James Moore, the convict. He painted the picture of a prison's hopelessness, of the outlook of one to whom it is decreed to spend his days within its walls. He pleaded the man's record, his patience, his uncomplaining silence before an agony suffered for a crime whose enormity must be extenuated by the very silence which had brought its punishment. And in the name of Him who also suffered silently he begged for clemency.

The months dragged through the summer and early fall, and now from the outer world came an evil which brooked no imprisonment and defied stone walls, and the prison hospital was filling with men stricken with a foul, infectious fever, whose ravages were working havoc in the world without. The position of the superintendent became a grave one. Daily the men were stricken down. The two surgeons of the institution maintained manfully their position as fighters of this most powerful adversary, but they stood almost alone, unaided by the necessary assistants, fighting desperately their unequal fight. Dismay fell upon the man in charge. Then came the convict Moore and volunteered his services in the pest room. The act was purely voluntary. There was no power which stood behind him now. This power had striped him and shaven his head and marked him to his fellow man "unclean." But now it was the will of the man—of the fearless man who dared to stand before the face of death and fight, and the power was forgotten.

Passed weeks of conflict, silent, methodical, patience.

As the evening of a December day came creeping upon the world, its fantastic shadows advancing their weird shapes along the snow drifts. James Moore sat by a window of the hospital ward, looking out upon the fading landscape which soon would be but a sheen of white. He felt as one upon whom an enemy creeps in stealth, as the victim of some venomous reptile, charmed by the very presence of the danger lurking near, yet without power to resist. Closer came the presence, stealing nearer, while he sat fascinated and defenseless, and even as he lifted his head and peered about it was on him from the shadows and he felt its clutch and the levilish burning in his brain. Then he knew no more.

Seven days he fought, and the doctors watched and worked and knew what the end must be. On the seventh day the fever cooled and he lay weak, defeated, fought out, catching in his breath at intervals, fighting weakly for the air. And as the day weakened and aged and the light retreated from the windows at the warning of the night, the superintendent sat by the convict's side and watched this last fitful fight for life.

Suddenly the eyes of the stricken one opened, and between the gasps the superintendent caught a question, the question of the day of the year. And when the man of power had answered gently that the morrow would e Christmas, a smile came quivering upon the contorted face before him, and his straining ear caught sounds which might, which must be words, and the eyes looked far past the prison wall and the careworn rnan by the bedside.

"Jinnie—the little one—come—Christmas—" faint, inarticulate mutterings, as the mind went groping back along the pathway of the past.

The superintendent reached to the pocket of his coat and took forth an envelope of imposing shape and official bearing, and as he watched the man before him, held it idly in his hand. Far into the night he sat, listening to the murmuring of the man until, at last, upon the face came peace and the shadow of the fever sped away before a greater shadow.

Then he rose and put the official document back into his pocket.

"He didn't need it," he whispered, gently.

SPRING STYLES BEING SHOWN

Duluth Women Attracted By Silberstein & Bondy Opening.

In spite of the whirls of dust driven by the March winds, Duluth women stopped long before the windows of the Silberstein & Bondy company today for the first glance at the spring showing of beautiful garments. Each department of the simply dressed windows was an added delight to the woman who loves beautiful clothes. A costume illustrating each of the most distinctive and leading features of the spring season of 1909 is shown.

The costume suit which promises to be one of the prominent styles of the season is illustrated with a model in broadcloth in one of the beautiful tones of gray. The gown fashioned after the long and simple lines which prevail has as its only ornamentation effective trimming in a narrow braid of the same color, applied in a quiet design. The coat completes a very modish costume of quiet elegance. These costume suits, consisting of the one piece gown and a coat, are a leading feature of the season, and many of them are shown for the more formal occasion for which a plain, tailored suit is not quite the thing.

The tailored suits are very interesting as shown at this house. The English idea prevails, that of a severely tailored suit, cut on straight uncompromising lines and depending entirely for its style and attractiveness upon the cut and make. Serge is a popular material to be so made up, and among the suits shown are some especially beautiful ones in the new colors, raw sienna tints, browns of the cocoa and vanilla shades, dull copper, etruscan, reddish plum, wild duck, canard, fir greens and pastel shades of blue.

The evening gowns and the afternoon frocks are of the softest satins in the delicate shades which seem a feature of the season. The straight lines continue to be the most remarkable feature of these gowns. The bits of net and the trimmings employed are such as to emphasize in the most delicate way the beauties of color and design.

The separate wraps, in plan style for street wear, in the modified directoire for dressier occasions and the long evening coat on military lines with a large hood, are among the charming models shown. The new waists are also very attractive.

Only the tailored hats for early spring were shown in the millinery department as the formal opening for this department will not take place until next week.

The opening will continue tomorrow.

WAS SEEN IN FLOUR CITY

Duluth Man Saw Norman Patton in Minneapolis.

Met Him in Hotel One Week Ago Sunday.

The first news concerning Norman Patton, the Panton & White buyer, who so mysteriously disappeared nearly two weeks ago, was learned today from Ray W. Fenton, assistant secretary of the Trade News Publishing company, who returned yesterday from Minneapolis, where he claims to have seen Patton, a week ago Sunday, just four days after he was last seen in Pittsburg.

The first Mr. Fenton knew that a search was being made for Patton, was last evening, when he read The Herald. The newspaper account immediately recalled to his mind that he had seen the missing young man, with whom he is acquainted, in the lobby of the Nicollet Hotel in Minneapolis.

He was walking through the lobby on Sunday, March 7, passed Patton, who appeared to be in a great hurry, and very much preoccupied, for he did not respond to Fenton's nod of greeting. This did not impress Mr. Fenton much at the time, but since he has learned of the strange manner in which the missing man has neglected writing to his young bride, and the company by which he is employed, he remembers that Patton, had an unnatural look in his eyes, as if he did not see anything that was going on about him.

Mr. Fenton last evening telephoned Mrs. Patton and told that he had seen her husband. The clue furnished by Mr. Fenton is now ten days old, and her husband is probably many miles away by this time.

The story told by Mr. Fenton, and the fact that Mr. Patton appeared to be greatly worried, leads many to believe that the young man is not in his right mind.

Two Buildings Burn.

By the bright red reflection in the sky at about 1 o'clock this morning, the West Duluth firemen were made aware that there was a fire somewhere in West Duluth, several minutes before they were called to 124 North Sixty-first avenue west, where two small buildings were destroyed by flames.

The reflection of a fire on the sky is so deceptive that the firemen dared not leave the station in search of it, but were forced to remain at the hall until a call was turned in.

The fire started in a Finnish bath house and spread to an adjoining barn, both buildings were burned to the ground. There was no one living in the bath house, and the two cows quartered in the barn were saved without any difficulty

Dynamiters Will Meet.

The annual gathering of the Dynamite club will be held tomorrow night, with its usual burst of fireworks, at Wade's hall.

The annual banquet of this well known and historic organization is the big event of the year in West Duluth, not even excepting the West Duluth commercial club and Republican club banquets, so the members of the Dynamite club assert.

The members arrange for it quietly and few know that trouble is brewing until, on the night of St. Patrick's day, they are brought to the realization that the dynamiters are abroad in force, and it is no time for small children to wander out of doors.

The dinner and celebration of tomorrow evening promise to outdo any of the ten preceding annual affairs.

Curling Games.

The games are being played off in all possible haste at the Western Curling rink, so the Bagley event will be finished before warm weather. Last evening there were four games in this event. Play began at 8 o'clock, and two games were played before 10 o'clock, and two after. The last game was not finished until after midnight.

The following games were played: Wad defeated Donald, 19 to 8; Hewitt won from Scott, 13 to 9; Meldahl won from Wade, 12 to 7; and Filliatrault was defeated by Mickish, 13 to 7.

SAYS ANTE WAS RAISED

Madison, Wis., March 16.—Assemblyman C. Wellensgard, who took the stand in the senatorial primary investigation late yesterday, resumed his testimony today. Witness received $250.80 from the Stephenson fund and spent about the same amount for his own campaign. He said he kept his accounts in two small books, but not separate them, because he did not receive any Stephenson money until after the primaries. His bill against Stephenson was estimated. He promised to send for his memoranda.

In the senate today the joint resolution extending the time for investigating the senatorial primary was concurred in.

A hot debate ensued at the primary hearing over a motion that the sergeant-at-arms of the committee be sent after W. H. Hatton. It was said Hatton told the sheriff of Waupaca county he expected to be subpoenaed, and was willing to appear at any time. When the sheriff sought to serve Hatton today at New London he was not in his office, and it was believed he had left the city. The motion to have the sergeant-at-arms go after him was lost.

C. H. Russell, defeated candidate for congress in the Second district, testified to having received $450 of the Stephenson fund to be used in Stephenson's and his own interests. Most of the items of expense were small. One of those to whom he paid money turned against him because his opponent "raised the ante."

WILL RECOMMEND JUDGE.

The members of the Duluth Bar association will meet at the rooms of the Commercial club next Tuesday evening for the purpose of agreeing upon some candidate for the fourth judge, for the eleventh judicial district.

There are several attorneys, who are mentioned as possible candidates. Among those considered most likely to receive the recommendation of the bar association, are Martin Hughes of Hibbing, Frank Crasswelle, C. O. Baldwin and L. C. Harris of Duluth.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

"KID" SKIP. A WONDER

Will Dinham's Two Rinks Have Made Great Records.

William Dinham, known to all the curlers as "Bill," is one of the youngest skips in the Duluth Curling club, and his record this year is little short of phenomenal.

He has succeeded in getting his rinks

WILLIAM DINHAM.

—for he skips both B and C class rinks—down to the finals in three events, and has held the Board of Trade buttons for some time past. He is an enthusiast in every sense of the word, and this year attended both the St. Paul and Winnipeg bonspiels.

Both his B and C class rinks got down to the finals in the President's event, being defeated by Hall's rink, and both his rinks got down to the same point in the Bagley. Both rinks are also squad winners in the Manley, and in at the finish.

RECORD BROKEN.

St. Louis Women Break Bowling Record Made at Cincinnati.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—The world's record in the double event for women bowlers was broken in the ninth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress in session here today, when Mrs. M. Kern and Miss Berdie Kern, both of St. Louis, rolled 1,024.

The previous record made at Cincinnati by Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Ross Kopf of Chicago, was 964.

CLOSE OF SEASON IS NEAR AT HAND

Tonight at the curling rink, Hall meets Dunlop in the Bagley event, and the winner of the game meets Alworth in the semi-finals.

For the board of trade buttons, R. D. Bradley meets Feetham, and Hall meets Dinham in the same event.

All the events are rapidly nearing a close, and by the time the sun begins to shine too brightly for the good nature of the admirers of the Scottish game, the events will be finished.

There is a great deal of interest in the bonspiel being played off between the C class rinks for the final ownership of the board of trade buttons, and tonight begins the second night of play.

CLOSE IS BUT FOUR DAYS OFF

Pittsburg, Pa., March 16.—With the close of the ninth annual tournament of the American Bowling congress, but four days off, interest in the meeting continued unabated. Large crowds surrounded the different alleys at every session and scores threatening the records are greeted enthusiastically. Eastern men and teams predominated in today's events, New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo and Wheeling figuring prominently in the games. Tonight Jefferson and Saunders of St. Louis will roll three games to decide who is entitled to the gold and silver medals given by the congress for the highest scores of the year. Each of them has rolled 300 scores in matches at St. Louis.

High scores in the first double event today:

Schwebke-Shiman, New York, 1,167; Serrell-Cook, Philadelphia, 1,137.
Jones-Gehman, Philadelphia, 1,137.

High second double event:

Cochran-Smith, Martins Ferry, Ohio, 1,152; J. Nolte-A. Nolte, Wheeling, 1,139.

Third double event:

Jarrett-Pump, Jr., New York, 1,249; Helttes-Haller, New York, 1,132.

The board desires that people who want streets in front of their property sprinkled, or who do not want such streets sprinkled, make their wants known this week, because delayed requests along this line, coming in after the districts are arranged, cause a good deal of trouble, and it is hard to satisfy them.

Want Storage For Logs.
The Duluth Log company has had a car of poles in storage for over two years. The company thinks the storage is worth $200 and suit was brought for that amount in district court this morning against E. B. Brand and M. P. Flannery as sole surviving members of the firm of E. B. Carney Co., and Ellen M. Carney as executrix, and W. J. Carney as executor of the estate of B. J. Carney. The poles were stored with the Duluth Log company Nov. 1, 1906, and they have been there since.

VACATION BEGINS NEXT SATURDAY

Spring vacation for Duluth school children and teachers will begin this coming Saturday and continue until Monday, March 29, nine whole days of freedom from books and lessons.

The spring vacation is somewhat earlier this year than usual. Next week has been selected as the holiday week regardless of Easter. This is done so as to make the second and third school terms as nearly the same length as possible. The second term as it is now arranged ends next Saturday, and is eleven weeks long, and the third term, starting March 29, will be one week shorter than the second, or ten weeks. If the vacation was put off until Easter time, the last term would be too short for effective work.

Verdict Too Large.

Unless Walter Blakney consents to a reduction of his verdict against the Red Cliff Lumber company from $1,000 to $650, the company may have a new trial, under a decision filed in the district court this afternoon.

POSTAL REPORT SHOWS INCREASE

The total receipts at the Duluth postoffice for the month of February were, $22,881.28.

This is an increase of $249.31 over the corresponding month of last year. The receipts for this same month in 1908 were, $22,632.97.

These receipts are from the sale of stamps, stamped paper and other incidentals furnished by the government.

Considering the fact that February is the shortest month in the year, and that business is not in any way rushing, the postoffice officials think the report a very fair one.

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Market Is Heavily Sold on This Side of the Atlantic.

Flax Is Dull and the May Option Closes Unchanged.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 16.—The trade was selling wheat again today, and prices declined in a very active market. Closing cables were up, but the domestic situation was regarded as bearish.

Receipts in the Northwest were very large, most of it being No. 1 and No. 2 northern.

AD MARKET

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The disappointing American cables yesterday, together with the unexpected increase in the American visible supply stimulated some disposition to realize at the opening and values were ¼d lower, although the undertone was steady. Following the opening, the market developed decided firmness and values gained 3/8@⅝d. Offerings at this time were light and shorts nervous, due to the political trouble between Servia and Hungary, private reports stating that a break is imminent. London was reported a heavy buyer, aggregating nearly 1,000,000 bus. Sellers in this market were few, and although La Plata houses were reported to be offering freely, leading pulls supported. At midday the market was strong and ⅝@¾d higher than the opening.

"Corn was steady at the start and about unchanged. Later shorts in March covered in sympathy with the firmness in wheat and the strength in La Plata offerings. La Plata spot being ½d higher. At mid-day the market was firm and ¼@½d higher."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 272 against 51 last year, and at Minneapolis 148 against 353 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 420 against 404 last year. Chicago received 73 against 65 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 450,000 bu, last year 665,000 bu. Shipments 2,250,000 bu, last year 331,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 930,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 504,000 bu, last year 577,000 bu. Shipments 332,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 76,000 bu.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Renewed War Has Strengthening Effect on Wheat.

Chicago, March 16.—Renewed talk of possible war in the Balkans had a strengthening effect on the wheat market today at the start being up ¼ to ⅝c compared with the previous close. Demand, however, was not urgent and trading was rather quiet early in the session. A feature of trade was buying of the July delivery by some of yesterday's short sellers. May opened at $1.16⅜ to $1.16⅞, and for a time, held within that range. July, which opened at $1.04⅞ to $1.05⅜, advanced to $1.05¾@1.05¾.

A heavy tone developed in the final hour owing to selling. May declined to $1.15¼ and July to $1.03⅞. The close was weak, with May off ¾@⅞c at $1.15⅜@1.15½, July closed ⅝c lower at $1.04.

Despite liberal receipts and weather favorable for the movement the corn market was firm at the start. The strength of wheat was the chief bullish influence. Prices at the opening were a shade lower to ⅛c higher, initial quotations on May being at 67⅝c to 67¾c. Early in the day May sold up to 68c.

The market slumped with wheat, May declining to 67⅜c. The close was weak, with May ¼@⅜c lower at 67¼@67⅜c

Oats were quiet and steady, offerings and demand being limited. The firmness of wheat and corn was the chief factor. May opened ⅛ to ¼@¼c higher at 54⅜@55c and held within that range early in the session.

Provisions were firm on a decrease in receipts of live hogs here and at other Western packing centers. The volume of trade, however, was small. Prices at the opening were a shade to 10c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Nervousness Displayed in Wheat—Strength Lost During the Day.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 16.—Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 70,000 bus for three days. Today's wheat market was rather nervous. Minneapolis again followed the Chicago quotations. As the session progressed the market lost strength and May gradually declined to $1.14 and closed at $1.14⅜, 1½c below the opening. Minneapolis today received 148 cars against 353; Duluth 272 against 51; Winnipeg 255 against 30. May opened $1.15½, high $1.15½, low $1.14, close $1.14⅜. July opened $1.16⅝, high $1.16⅝, low $1.14⅝@⅞, close $1.14⅝. Cash wheat was in fair to good demand today. Millers were the only buyers and were not quite as eager buyers today as yesterday. NEW WAYS-MEANS COMMITTEEMEN

Speaker Cannon Names Cushman Harris and Broussard.

Washington, March 16.—Speaker Cannon announced the ways and means committee and rules committee. The new members are: Cushman of Washington, Republican; Harris of New York, Democrat, and Brousard of Louisiana, Democrat.

Many of the members who attended the caucus of Democrats of the house last night do not interpret the resolution adopted there as a "boycott" of all of Speaker Cannon's possible committee assignments of minority members. It was explained today that the resolution was adopted to censure the Democrats who bolted the minority leadership yesterday in the house and to provide a punishment for their act.

The intention of the caucus, it is explained, was to prevent the "bolters" from obtaining any reward for their course. It is believed therefore that Minority Leader Clark will object to the assignment of no members to committees except the twenty-four Democrats who deserted his leadership. In the event that assignments are refused and the house excuses a member from serving on a committee, the speaker may decide to leave the position vacant, thus giving power to the Republican members of the committees. In the speaker's room, it is not believed that any serious embarrassment will arise over the action of the Democratic caucus.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher and Close Was Strong and Active.

Atchison Was Heavy, Following Reports of New Bond Issue.

New York, March 16.—Reading and Chesapeake & Ohio started ⅜ higher today than last night. Changes of the other principal trading stocks were limited to eighths and quarters and the volume of the business was insignificant. American Ice rose a point and Consolidated Gas ¾.

Standard railroad stocks were bought more freely, especially the Harriman group. St. Paul and Reading. Most of the well known specialties also were taken on a rising scale. After a number of stocks had scored good gains the demand abated, but prices held well. American Sugar moved up 1½, Peoples Gas 1¼, and Reading, Union Pacific and American Beet Sugar 1. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis, Chicago Great Western preferred "A," Tennessee Copper, American Malting preferred and Pullman declined a point.

Buying was renewed on intimations that the president's special message was expected promptly. United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper were features, with an advance of 1¼. The movement died out towards noon. Bonds were steady.

Buying of the general list was revived to some extent by the bidding up of the Harriman Pacifics. Southern got up 1 and Union Pacific 1⅝. Very little interest was manifested in the industrials. Wabash preferred, Kansas City Southern and Minneapolis & St. Louis preferred gained a point each.

The market closed strong and active. Atchinson was heavy, following reports of a new bond issue. Later prices hardened again. Union Pacific gained 2¼, Reading 2, People's Gas 1⅜, Amalgamated Copper 1⅝, St. Paul and the United States Steel 1¼, and Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Kansas & Texas, Chesapeake & Ohio, Wisconsin Central preferred, Southern Pacific preferred, Colorado Fuel, Allis-Chalmers preferred and Granby Mining 1 or more.

BILL FOUGHT BY JOBBERS

Duluth Men Opposed to Rate Measure Now Before Senate.

H. A. Earnshaw, traffic manager for Stone-Ordean-Wells company, and Carl Rowe, traffic manager for the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, returned this morning from St. Paul, where both men went to appear before the state legislature in the interest of the Duluth Jobbers.

According to Mr. Earnshaw, the jobbing interests of the Head of the Lakes are threatened by the provisions of the bill introduced by Senator Cashman of Owatonna.

At the present time, for instance, two railroads may reach the same point by very different routes. The case of the Omaha and the Northern Pacific, from this city to Ashland is an example. The Northern Pacific has the shorter route, but as the competition is strong, both roads make the same rate. In other words, the Omaha makes 68 good a rate to Ashland s does the Northern Pacific.

There are other examples throughout the state. In many cases the Northern Pacific reach the same destinations by routes that vary greatly in the number of miles. Yet in competitive territory, these roads invariably make the same rates. The result of this, is that the jobbers from Duluth, or from St. Paul and Minneapolis, for that matter, have the use of more than one line.

By the provisions of the Cashman bill, as explained by Mr. Earnshaw, who with Mr. Rowe, appeared before the senate committee in the interests of the Duluth jobbers, the railroads will be compelled to base their rates to all points upon the mileage basis they establish to a competitive point.

This would result in one road being shut out of the competition, where its mileage was greater to the same destination than that of its competitor.

The Duluth men who were before the senate committee are of the opinion that the bill is nothing less than a blow at the jobbing interests of the large cities.

Minneapolis and St. Paul jobbers, as well as the Duluth jobbers, declare it is an attempt to make every little country center a small jobbing center of its own.

For instance, if the bill went into effect, it would not result in the Northern Pacific, as the short haul to Ashland, reducing its rate, it is alleged, but would compel the Omaha to increase its rate to a proportionate mileage basis with the Northern Pacific, and would shut the Duluth jobbing trade, more or less, off from the Omaha as a route between here and Ashland.

It is probable that Duluth jobbing interests will be further represented before the legislature before the measure is disposed of.

BUILDING UNOCCUPIED.

Choice Site for Retail Store Is Vacant on Superior Street.

Mrs. Webster, who for a number of years past has conducted a restaurant in the east half of the Superior street store occupied by the R. R. Forward Furniture company, has given up her lease and will open quarters upstairs in the same building, where she will continue her business.

The Forward Furniture company will soon move to its new location in the Folz building on Second avenue east and Superior street. This will leave a 50-foot store building on the main street of the city, in the center of the very busiest portion, unoccupied.

So far as can be learned, the owners have not as yet rented the building to other parties for business purposes.

IRON ORE TONNAGE TAX BILL APPROACHES VOTE IN STATE LEGISLATURE

Expected That House Will Give Good Majority Against Bill.

House Passes Bill Allowing Boxing Matches in Larger Cities.

Also Adopts Measure Permitting Clubs to Dispense Liquors.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tonnage tax bill was a special order in the house for this afternoon, and debate upon it began shortly after 1:30, the hour set for the consideration of the Bjorge measure. The prospects were that the arguments would continue until late in the afternoon, but that a vote would be taken today by which the bill would be defeated. The outlook this morning was that it would be beaten at least a little worse than it was two years ago, when there were 51 for and 55 against it.

The house this morning passed the Greene bill, allowing city councils in Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis to permit regulated boxing matches. The vote was 61 to 49.

There was a hot debate over the bill allowing clubs to dispense liquors to their members without paying the saloon license fee, and the measure was adopted, 60 for and 56 against. This

BLUNDERED INTO HOLE

House Worked All Afternoon on Tax Bill Without Result.

Many Measures Affecting Railroads Favored by House Committee.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house yesterday afternoon bravely marched up the hill, and then precipitately retreated down the hill, arriving at the bottom a little further behind than it was at the beginning of an afternoon's hard work.

Three tax bills, recommended by the tax commission, were a special order, and all the house did was to consider one of them, to reject a number of amendments to it, to beat the bill by an overwhelming vote, and then to reconsider its action unanimously and put off consideration of the special order for more than a week.

The bill considered was that providing for the valuation of all property at its actual worth, and assessments at 40 per cent of that basis, in order to provide uniformity in assessments all over the state.

The law now states that all property shall be assessed at its full value in

"STRAY BULLET," YOUTH EXPLAINS

Staggers Into Drug Store With Wound in the Back.

Chicago, March 17.—Robert Schultz, 17 years old, who says he came to Chicago from Milwaukee last Monday in search of work, staggered into a West side drug store this morning with a bullet wound in his back. "I've been shot by a stray bullet," the youth gasped as he sank to the floor.

The police were summoned and removed the wounded man to the hospital, where he is in a serious condition. He says that he was walking on Monroe street near Clark at 3:30 a. m. when he heard a shot and felt a stinging in his back. He saw no one fire the shot.

BROWN ELECTED AS POSTMASTER

Little Falls Contest Is Settled by Popular Vote.

Little Falls, Minn., March 17—(Special to The Herald.)—In the postmaster contest yesterday, Ethan Brown, for the past eight years assistant postmaster, won by a vote of 224 to 90 for the next highest candidate. There were fifteen candidates in the field, thirteen Republicans and two Democrats. The latter received a total of fifty-three votes. Business men favored Brown, and the choice is satisfactory to all. The total vote cast was 896, of which fifteen were thrown out.

Mrs. Clara E. Fuller is the present postmistress, and will hold office until February, 1910.

FRIENDLY TO NEW REGIME

Germany's Attitude Toward Venezuelans Is Made Clear.

Berlin, March 17.—Foreign Minister von Schoen received Jose de J. Paul today and assured the Venezuelan commissioner of Germany's good will toward the government of President Gomez.

Senor Paul thanked the foreign minister for Germany's good offices in the dispute between Venezuela and Holland. Senor Paul probably will be received in audience by Emperor William later in the week. Paul does not believe Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, who is now at Dresden, will return to Venezuelan soil. If he seeks to land in Venezuela he will be arrested; so he probably will land at Trinidad.

The French government, Paul said today, will pay no attention to Senor Castro on his way through France to take the steamer Guadeloupe at Bordeaux, March 26.

CHARGE TO THE JURY

Address of Judge Hart Takes Thirty Thousand Words.

"Innocent Till Proved Guilty," the Jurist Reminds.

Nashville, Tenn., March 17.—Judge Hart took 30,000 words to charge the jury today in the case of the Coopers and John Sharp, charged with the killing of ex-Senator Carmack. The judge said:

"While the indictment contains but one charge upon its face in contemplation of law, it embraces four distinct felonies:

"Murder in the first degree; murder in the second degree; manslaughter, and involuntary manslaughter."

Judge Hart outlined the legal definitions of the various crimes, reading copiously from penal statutes. He concluded by saying:

"Previous threats by the deceased against the defendant, or acts of hostility towards him, or previous abuse of him, how violent soever it may have been, or trespasses upon his property, is not such provocation as the law recognizes as sufficient to reduce an unlawful killing to manslaughter, if the killing was done at such time as had passed after these things

Offers No Lucid Explanation of Departure From Duluth.

Frank T. Sherwin, the missing cashier of the American Express company, whose strange disappearance Jan. 30 attracted the attention of the entire Northwest and threatened to remain always unsolved, is alive and well in Denver, Colo.

George F. Wood pulp free and print paper duties reduced.
Lower duties on sugar and starch.
Coffee free, but tea taxed 8 to 9 cents.
Beer and whisky unchanged. Cigarette tax raised.
Inheritance tax provision similar to New York law.
Tariff made on maximum and minimum basis.
New tariff expected to add $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 to government's revenue.

No Duty on Coffee, But Eight to Nine Cents on Tea.

Provision Made for the Free Admission of Wood Pulp.

Inheritance Tax Proposed Similar to the New York Law.

Washington, March 17.—Downward revision, maximum and minimum provisions, which impose an average maximum duty of 20 per cent in excess of the present tariff, and numerous provisions by which it is estimated that the revenue to the government will be increased from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, are the salient features of the new tariff bill, which was introduced in the house today by Representative Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee.

The recommendations made by President Taft that an inheritance tax be provided and that a limited amount of tobacco and sugar be admitted free from the Philippines, are included in the bill. The measure also provides for the issuance of Panama canal bonds to the amount of $40,000,000, to reimburse the treasury for the original purchase of the canal, and re-enacts the provision for the issue of treasury certificates, the amount being increased from $100,000,000 to $250,000,000.

While there is no duty imposed upon coffee, tea is taxed 8 cents when imported from the country where it is produced and 9 cents from other than the producing country.

The internal revenue tax on cigarettes is materially increased, while the tax on beer and whisky is undisturbed. A cut of 50 per cent is made in the steel and lumber schedules. Iron ore, hides, tallow, cottonseed oil, and works of art more than twenty years old, are placed on the free list.

The tariff on boots and shoes is reduced 40 per cent and on other leather manufactures in proportion. The pottery schedule remains about the same, but the duties on window and plate glass of the smaller sizes, are increased, while the duties on the larger sizes are reduced. The tariff on wool of the first and second class, used principally in clothing, is not disturbed, but on wool of the third class, known as carpet wool, it is reduced on the cheaper grades. A 5-cent reduction is made on the duties in shoddy and waste, while wool tops are assessed 6 cents a pound more than the duty on scoured wool, which is unchanged.

The recommendations for placing wood pulp on the free list and reducing the duties on print paper, with certain restrictions, made by the Mann

CUBAN OUTBREAK CAUSES A DEATH

Former Captain of Rural Guard Shot to Death.

Havana, March 17.—The outbreak in Vueltas, Santa Clara province, has scored its first fatality. Lavastida, a former captain of the rural guard, was shot and killed by the detachment of the guard sent out to arrest him.

Lavastida was reported last night officially as having been arrested at Placetas on the charge of complicity in the insurrectionary movement.

It is rumored the uprising is more serious than the authorities are willing to admit. President Gomez is in receipt of many telegrams from officials, veteran organizations and private citizens pledging loyalty and active support in the maintenance of the republic.

SHOE FACTORIES WILL RUN AS OPEN SHOPS.

Portsmouth, Ohio, March 17.—Portsmouth shoe manufacturers have withdrawn their final proposition of compromise to the striking shoe lasters and announced that factories will be opened and operated as open shops after March 22.

DEMOCRATS WILL BIND

House Members Are To Have Stringent Caucus Rules.

Approval of Committee Assignments Is Left to Clark.

Washington, March 17.—After a stormy debate over the failure of twenty-two Democrats of the house to abide by the party caucus on the rules fight, the house Democratic caucus decided to have a select committee draft more stringent rules to govern future caucuses.

The adoption of the resolution was preceded by one of the most bitter debates heard in a Democratic caucus for several seasons, over a resolution directing Minority Leader Clark to approve Speaker Cannon's appointments of Representative Francis Burton Harrison of New York and Representative Broussard of Louisiana, as Democratic members of the committee on ways and means. Both men voted for the Fitzgerald amendments to the house rules, but Broussard voted with the Republicans on other questions during the rules fight.

The resolution was presented by Representative Pujo of Louisiana. After an hour's debate, Chairman Clayton ruled that the resolution proposed was covered by the resolution adopted by the caucus Monday night, leaving the

SIX KILLED IN DEPOT

Boston & Maine Engine Crashes Into the Windsor Station.

Plunges Through Brick Wall Into Ladies' Waiting Room.

Montreal, March 17.—Six persons were killed and several seriously injured when a locomotive attached to a Boston & Maine train, early today, crashed through the walls of the ladies' waiting room at the Windsor station, here.

The train, which was made up of a locomotive, baggage car, and three passenger coaches, had but few passengers or the accident might have been much more serious.

When passing Highland station, a few miles from Montreal, a plug blew out of the engine and the engineer was thrown from his cab. The fireman tried to stop the train but found the brakes would not work.

Arriving at the Windsor station, the train plunged through several barriers and a brick wall, fetching up in the ladies' waiting room and crashing through the floor.

The fireman was pinned beneath the wreck and instantly killed. A man at work in the room below the waiting room, was also killed. Another victim was a little girl who was sitting in the station waiting for a train.

Mr. Ward Grow, owner of a big orange ranch in San Bernardino, California, has recently sold it and removed to the Isle of Pines. He says that the advantages of the island over California are very marked in the fruit business. The island has no frost, and no need for irrigation. It is close to market, and has water transportation. The climate and soil are ideal. Yet land can be had on the island for about one-twentieth of California prices. GUILTY, SAYS LAURIN JURY

Young Man Convicted of Assault in District Court.

Jurors Took But Twenty Minutes to Reach Verdict.

It took a jury but twenty minutes this morning to find Alphonse Laurin guilty of the crime of criminally assaulting Edna Stahbrodt on the Hermantown road Feb. 19. After brief arguments by the atorneys for the state and the defense, the case was given to the jury at 11:10 and the verdict was returned twenty minutes later.

Laurin went on the stand in his own behalf, but his story wasn't exactly favorable to him. He said he didn't remember anything that transpired on the evening he is alleged to have committed the crime. He said he had been drinking in the afternoon, and had started for home about 5 o'clock. He said he didn't remember anything after that. He said if he committed the crime, he did it while he was out of his head on account of the liquor.

County Attorney Norton asked Laurin if he had told somebody at the jail that he would "fix" Miss Stahbrodt if he got out. He said he had stated he would "fix" Mr. Stahbrodt. When asked if he was of the same mind yet, he said that he was. "I don't know how I'll get my revenge, but I'll get it," he said. "I'll lick him anyway."

While walking home on the Hermantown road on the evening of Feb. 19, Laurin met the girl and walked with her for some distance. In a little hollow in the road, he knocked her down and assaulted her. He compelled her to walk back toward the city with him and a hundred feet back he assaulted her again, she said. Two girls, who came up in a sleigh, took her home and Laurin was arrested that night at his home.

The curiosity squad was out in full force during the trial. The big court room was packed every day, scores standing in the open spaces, taking in every word of the rather sensational testimony.

Buying Now for Spring

MAY REOPEN ARMY OFFICE

Uncle Sam Will Again be Looking for Recruits.

It is believed that the Duluth army recruiting office, which has been closed for over a month, will be reopened within a short time. All the recruiting offices in the country were closed, for the reason that the army had its full complement. Many men will be discharged from the service within a short time, and then it is believed that the various recruiting offices will be reopened.

If the Duluth office is not opened within a very short time, this year's record of recruits will fall behind that of last year by a considerable figure. When the men come in from the woods in the spring time is when the greatest number of recruits are secured. If the office is not opened until after these men leave town, the records of the Duluth office will show a decided shrinkage.

INJURED BY THE "JUICE"

Workman Is Suing the Duluth Street Railway Company.

Claiming that he was severely injured by a shock received while painting a pole at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Superior street, Sept. 21, 1907, Stephen Foster is suing the Duluth Street Railway company in district court, for $20,000 damages.

Foster was in the employ of the company, painting the poles, which hold the cross wires, on which the trolley is hung. He claims that the trolley slipped from the wire, struck a cross wire and a severe electric shock was communicated to him. His general physical condition was impaired by the shock, he says.

Eau Claire, Wis., March 17.—Henry Foss, aged 35, married, who was dismissed from the police force a few days ago for sleeping on his beat, and has since been acting queerly, last night visited the family home and shot and killed his brother, Joseph Foss, aged 34, single, as the latter was eating his evening meal. The murderer then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a serious but not necessarily fatal wound. Eva Foss, aged 16, a sister of the two, was in an adjoining room when the tragedy was enacted, and ran screaming from the house to give the alarm. Henry Foss was hurried to a hospital.

JAIL CELLS FOR OWNERS

Trouble Ahead for Persons Allowing Cattle to Roam Wild.

They Will Be Arrested and Fined in Police Court.

From now on any persons allowing their cattle to roam the streets of West Duluth, will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

This was announced this morning by Lieut. Wilcox of the West Duluth police force. The stray cows will not be placed in the pound until bailed out by their owners, as formerly, but the owner will be located and a warrant sworn out for his arrest.

So many complaints concerning the careless manner in which some cattle owners allow their stock to wander the streets have come to the police recently, that they have decided it is time that a stop is put to the practice.

It seems to be the belief of many people that during the winter, when the poundmaster is not on duty, they have a perfect right to let their cows run where they please, marring lawns and destroying trees. Besides this the animals get on the sidewalks and obstruct the way of pedestrians.

The city ordinance, which forbids owners to let their cattle have the free run of streets and vacant lots about the city, is in effect summer and winter, even though there is no poundmaster at this season to enforce it. There is trouble ahead for those who neglect this ordinance.

THE LETTER THAT NEVER WENT

Missive, Yellow With Age, Found in Old Postoffice.

Some person in the old country has waited in vain for a letter from a loved one in America.

H. C. Brown, contractor, who is remodeling the old West Duluth postoffice, so as to enlarge the present quarters of the Spencer pharmacy, in the Silvey block, in tearing out an old mail box in the office, came upon a letter, yellow with age, and bearing an uncancelled postage stamp. It was addressed to some town in Finland, and judging from its appearance, was written many years ago.

The mail box, which was torn out, was only used when the postoffice was closed, and the mail was dropped from outside through a slot into the box on the inside. In some way, in slipping the letter through the slot, it fell between the box and the partition, and lay there unnoticed, for nobody knows how long. Judging from the letter's appearance, it must have been for years.

Even after being rescued from its hiding place, the letter was doomed to further misfortune. Mr. Brown placed it in his pocket, with the intention of carrying it over to the new postoffice, and giving it a fresh start on its long delayed journey. But Mr. Brown's pocket had a hole in it, and the letter dropped out somewhere on the road between the old and the new offices, and has not been again found. It would appear that the unfortunate letter is destined to never reach its destination.

This man, 'tis said, comes bearing credentials proclaiming him to be the most artful of artful bomb throwers in the old country. It will be a rare treat for the West Duluth members to hear from their branch organization in the land of anarchists.

WAS FRIEND OF SHERWIN

Norman Patton Intimate With American Express Company Cashier.

Strange Coincidence in Disappearance of Two Men.

Norman Patton, the Panton & White buyer, who mysteriously disappeared in Pittsburg nearly two weeks ago, was a particular friend of Frank T. Sherwin, the missing cashier of the American Express company, who has written George F. Kennedy, local manager for the express company from Denver, explaining his strange disappearance from Duluth Jan. 30.

The local police are wondering if there was any connection between the actions of the two men. It is understood that they were boon companions while working here, and that Sherwin was the best friend Patton had. It seems rather queer to the police that both men should disappear in precisely the same manner, suddenly dropping completely out of sight, and leaving no word behind.

Ray W. Fenton, assistant secretary of the Trade News Publishing company, is positive that he saw Patton in Minneapolis a week ago last Sunday, just four days after he was last seen in Pittsburg, and it is thought possible that he was on his way West to join Sherwin in Denver. It is assumed by some that both Sherwin and Patton were not in their right minds when they decided to forsake home and friends in Duluth, but others, who take a somewhat more harsh view of the situation, venture the assertion that the two disappearances were the result of a plot hatched before Patton left Duluth. There is no proof to sustain this suspicion, however.

If the men did meet by appointment in Denver, it would be interesting to know how Sherwin happened to write a letter back to Duluth, telling of his whereabouts.

CHANGE IN THE SUNDAY TIME

Mail to Be Distributed Hereafter Between 10 and 11 o'Clock.

A change in the Sunday postoffice hours that will be welcomed by many people, will be inaugurated next Sunday, when the general delivery and carriers' window will be open from 10 to 11 instead of from 9 to 10 as has been the custom for a number of years.

The change is purely a local one. Postmaster Guy A. Eaton has found that the hours were very unsatisfactory to a large number of people. Not only were the former hours a little early for Sunday morning, but under the old rules it was impossible to give out the Chicago mail. This disappointed many and under the new hours the Chicago mail will be distributed.

The new rule will concern the main office and all sub-stations, and is expected to meet with general approval.

CONTEST A SUCCESS

"Ben Hur" Essays Come With a Rush During the Last Day.

Winners Will be Announced in The Herald Saturday.

The "Ben Hur" contest has been a big success.

School children generally all over the city took advantage of the opportunity given them by The Herald to see the big production free of charge, and several hundred essays have been received.

The contest will close at 6 o'clock tonight and as soon as it is possible to get the judges together so as to mark the papers, the winners will be announced. There will probably be 500 essays to go through but not later than Saturday night a list of the winners will be published.

Today being the last of the contest, the essays came in with a rush, several of the schools sending in packages of twenty-five or fifty.

The Herald is pleased with the success of the contest and its only regret is that all those who sent in essays cannot be given an opportunity to see the show. The papers will be judged impartially by the eighteen teachers, whose names appeared in the paper some days ago, and every child who has submitted an essay stands a fair chance of landing a ticket.

The big theater party comes Monday night. The tickets will be distributed Monday.

IRON ORE IS ON FREE LIST

committee of the house, are incorporated in the bill.

The duty on refined sugar is reduced 5.100 of a cent a pound and on dextrin half a cent a pound. A reduction of half a cent a pound is also made in the duty on starch, with the exception of potato starch. Zinc in ore is assessed 1 cent per pound for the zinc contained. The tariff on pig iron is reduced from $4 to $2.50 per tons.

Lemon Duty Raised.

The principal increases are made in the duties on lemons, cocoa and substitutes for coffee, coal-tar, dyes, gloves and coated papers and lithographic prints.

As was expected, the new tariff bill is made on a maximum and minimum basis, with the provision that the maximum rates are not to go into effect until sixty days after the passage of the bill. Reciprocity provisions are contained in the paragraphs assessing on bituminous coal and coke and on agricultural implements by which these articles are given entry free of duty when imported from countries which permit the free importation of these articles from America.

The inheritance tax provision of the bill is similar to the New York state law. It provides a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances over $500, that are collateral inheritances or in which strangers are the legatees. In cases of direct inheritance the taxes prescribed are: On $10,000 to $100,000, 1 per cent; on $100,000 to $500,000, 2 per cent, and on those over $500,000, 3 per cent. It is estimated that $20,000,000 annually will be derived from this tax.

The maximum and minimum provision of the bill does away with necessity of continuing the foreign trade agreements. The abrogation of these is provided for in a section which authorizes the president to issue notices of the termination of these agreements within ten days after the bill goes into effect. The French agreement would therefore terminate immediately while the German agreement would remain in force for six months. The time that must intervene before the incoperation of the other reciprocity would become effective range from three months to one year.

A provision in the bill is designed to meet the conditions resulting from the patent laws of Great Britain, which requires that patentees must manufacture their articles within Great Britain. This provision applies the same rules to patents taken out in this country by aliens as applies to Americans in the country of the aliens.

Drawback privileges are extended by the bill and the method of valuation on articles upon which the tariff imposes an ad valorem duty is broadened for the purpose of preventing the practice of under valuation.

Explanation By Payne.

The following explanation of the form of the bill is made by Mr. Payne: "The new tariff bill is a minimum and maximum tariff bill. The minimum rates of duty are contained in the first section, and the free list for the minimum rates is in the second section of the bill. The third section contains the maximum rates, which are generally equal to the minimum rates and 20 per cent. In addition thereto and the articles on the free list, is the transfer to the third section, bear a duty of 20 per centum ad valorem as a maximum rate. The maximum rate does not go into effect in any event until six days after the passage of the act. By the fourth section the minimum rates are applied to all goods imported from any country which gives the United States as good terms by way of tariff as that given to any other nation, and the maximum rates are applied to those countries which discriminate against the trade of the United States, or fail to give the United States tariff rates as favorable as those given any other nation. This section is self-acting, making it the duty of an executive to collect the duties whether maximum, in accordance with the terms of the bill, leaving it open to the courts to decide upon the legality of the action."

Regarding the miscellaneous provisions of the bill, Mr. Payne states: "The bill provides for reciprocal free trade with the Philippines on all articles, but limiting the sugar to be imported free of duty to 300,000 tons, wrapper tobacco to 300,000 pounds, and 3,000,000 pounds of filler tobacco and 150,000,000 cigars in any one fiscal year. The excess of sugar, tobacco and cigars to pay full tariff rates. This exception from duty is confined to the growth of products of the islands, however, and does not admit articles imported into the Philippines from a foreign country without payment of full rates of duty on such imports.

As to Patents.

"A section is added applying the same rules to patents obtained in the United States by aliens that are adopted by the country of which these allens are citizens in respect to patents issued there to citizens of the United States. This will either compel foreigners obtaining patents in the United States to build factories and manufacture here for our trade, or eventually forfeit the right to their patents.

"A section is inserted preserving the Cuban reciprocity provisions of the present law.

"Provision is made to terminate the various commercial agreements with foreign countries, according to the terms of said agreements, by notice, and in the meantime keeping faith in those agreements. The provision of section 4, applying the minimum and maximum rates, will take the place of these sections.

"The estimated revenue under the tariff duties prescribed in the bill amount to about $300,000,000.

"The bill provides for a tax on transfers of property, both real estate and personal, by inheritance or succession, and by will.

"It is believed that this provision, when in full operation, will bring in a revenue of $20,000,000, although no accurate estimates can be made.

"The tax on cigarettes is increased, those weighing over three pounds per thousand, from $3 to $3.60, and those weighing less from $1 to $1.50.

"The committee has examined thoroughly all the decisions of the courts and of the general appraisers for the last fifteen years, interpreting the meaning of the language of the tariff laws, and has framed the language of the various paragraphs to meet these decisions. It is hoped that it will prevent much litigation and will in the future give the courts a clear understanding of the intention of congress.

"The bill contains a carefully prepared section extending the privileges of drawback on material imported on which the tariff has been paid and the products of which are manufactured in this country when exported. It is believed that this section carefully guards the revenue and at the same time liberalizes the provision and will stimulate our export trade.

"It is provided that the bill shall go into effect the day following its enactment."

Representative Payne, in introducing the tariff bill, gave out the following statement:

"Section A—One problem that confronted the committee was the question of revenue. The business of all commercial nations has been depressed for nearly two years, and thus has affected our commerce and greatly reduced our revenues, so that we have a large deficit, but the revenues under the present law are improving from month to month as business conditions are becoming better.

"The last normal year of imports was the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906; 1907 was an unusually prosperous year, and the revenues from customs exceeded those of 1906 by $32,000,000. The committee has therefore taken the year 1906 as the basis to form its estimate of the revenue-producing qualities of the new bill. Should the next fiscal year prove prosperous and the normal conditions of 1906 return, on account of the large increase in population, the revenues for 1910 would show a considerable increase over the estimates of the committee.

Foresees End of Deficit.

"With a return to anything like normal conditions during the next fiscal year, it is safe to predict that the deficit will be entirely wiped out, but in case it is not, the bill provides for the issue of Panama canal bonds to reimburse the treasury for the $40,000,000 paid out in the original purchase of the canal. This move relieves us from any deficiency. There is also re-enacted the provision for the issue of certificates to run one year to replenish the treasury, raising the amount from $100,000,000 to $250,000,000, an amount sufficient to provide at any time against two or three years of depressed business conditions."

The statement gives the rates in the present law, the Dingley tariff, and shows the charges that the Payne bill proposes. The abstract of the bill continues:

"The committee has transferred some articles from the free list to the dutiable, and have increased duties on others for the sole purpose of increasing the revenue. Most of these articles on which duties have been increased are luxuries, which have been increased as follows:

"Perfumeries and toilet articles, from 50 to 60 per centum ad valorem. Fancy soap from 15 to 20 cents per pound. Chicory root, raw not dried, from 1 cent to 2½ cents per pound; roasted from 2½ cents to 5 cents per pound.

"Cocoa, crude, transferred from the free list to the dutiable at 1 cent per pound; prepared or manufactured, increased 2 cents on each classification, exscept that valued above 35 cents per pound, which remains the same. Ten percentum ad valorem is also added to schedules assessed on that valued between 15 and 35 cents pere pound. Powdered cocoa from 5 cents to 9 cents per pound.

"Cocoa butter, from 3½ cents to 5 and 5½ cents per pound. Dandelion root and articles used as a substitute for coffee, 2½ to 4 cents per pound.

"Spices, which are now largely on the free list, are assessed an average duty of 20 per centum ad valorem. Furs, dressed on the skin, are assessed 27½ per centum ad valorem.

Duties Increased.

"Duties on the following articles have been increased because the committee found that there was not sufficient protection under the present law.

"Also a small additional duty on lappets. There is also an increased duty on stockings fashioned and shaped wholly or in part on knitting machines.

"Changes in the paper schedule, which include those recommended by the special committee on wood pulp and print paper investigation, are:

"Surfaced papers, covered with metal, from 3 cents and 20 percentum to 5 cents and 20 percentum ad valorem; other surface-coated paper from 2½ cents per pound and 15 per cent ad valorem to 5 cents per pound.

"Plain paper envelopes from 20 per centum to 30 percentum ad valorem.

"The recommendations of the select committee were to permit the free entry of mechanically ground wood pulp from any country not imposing export duty and to reduce printing paper valued at not above 2½ cents per pound, from three-tenths to one-tenth of 1 cent per pound; valued not above 2½ cents a pound from four-tenths to two-tenths of 1 cent per pound."

Reductions More Numerous.

Section B—The reductions in duty are much more numerous than the increases. In the schedule on chemicals, oils and paints, they are:

"Boracic acid, borax from 5 cents to 2 cents per pound; reductions of 2 cents per pound are made on gallic and tartaric acids, borate of lime. "Works of art, including paintings and statuary, more than twenty years old, from 20 percentum to free list.

"The articles mentioned in the remaining paragraphs are rated, substantially, at the same duty as under the present law:

"The duties on women's and children's gloves, not over fourteen inches in length, are considerably increased on 'Schmaschen,' 'Glace' of sheep origin, 'Glace' other than of sheep origin, 'with exterior grain surface removed,' and 'kid of other leather than of sheep-skin.' The rate applied to these gloves is $4 per dozen pairs, and 35 cents in addition per dozen pairs for each inch over fourteen.

"Some further increases under various schedules are:

"Cast polished plate glass increased from 5 to 10 cents per square foot on sizes not exceeding 16 by 24 inches, and on those above that and not exceeding 24 by 30 inches, from 10 cents to 12½ cents per square foot; all above that, 22½ cents per square foot, which is a reduction of nearly all of these larger sizes.

"Keene's cement or other cement in which gypsum is the component material of chief value, from 30 to 35 percentum ad valorem.

"Asphaltum and bitumen, not refined or otherwise advanced in condition from its natural state, to fifteen-one-hundredths of 1 cent per pound on the bitumen contained therein.

"Fluorshor, rude, from 10 percentum ad valorem to 15 cents per ton; crushed or otherwise manufactured from 20 percentum ad valorem to $1.75 per ton.

"Pins with ornamental heads, with a new classification, including those set with precious stones, pearls, or corals, from 40 to 50 percentum ad valorem.

Watch Movements.

"Watch movements with more than seven jewels, from 35 cents each and 25 percentum ad valorem to 75 cents each if more than seven jewels and not more than eleven, from 50 cents each and 25 percentum ad valorem to $1.35 each; more than eleven jewels and not more than fifteen, from 75 cents each and 25 percentum ad valorem to $1.05 each; having more than seventeen jewels, the rates of duty remain the same.

"Watch cases and parts of watches and clocks, the duty remains the same.

"Chromic acid and inctic acid, from 3 cents to 2 cents per pound.

"Tannic acid or tannin, from 50 cents to 35 cents per pound."

One of the most important of the miscellaneous provisions of the bill is that providing for the method of valuation, which Mr. Payne explains as follows:

"The bills adds a new paragraph to section 11 of the customs administrative act; which provides for the appraisement of goods imported by consignment and not by sale where there is no market price at the place of the origin of the goods. After re-enacting the present provisions to ascertain the value the bill adds this paragraph.

"The actual market value or wholesale prices, as defined by the law, of any imported merchandise which is consigned for sale in the United States or which is not actually sold and freely offered for sale, in usual wholesale quantities in the open market of the country of exportation to all purchasers, shall not in any case be appraised at less than the wholesale price at which such or similar imported merchandise is actually sold and freely offered for sale in usual wholesale quantities in the United States in the open market to all purchasers, due allowance by deduction being made for estimated duties thereon, cost of transportation, insurance and other necessary expenses from the place of shipment to the place of delivery and a reasonable commission, not exceeding 10 percentum, if any of the same has been paid.

"It will be seen that this provision is only applied to consigned goods and not to those actually sold for importation."

Check Yonr Fat

Hold it where it is, or take off some. You can do either without disturbing your meals or your ease or your digestive organs. You can do it without physical risk, mental effort or danger of a wrinkle. "Sounds well, but these are words only," you say. True, but these words, so your protest, while natural, is feeble. Prove it. Write to the Marmola company, Detroit, Mich., inclosing 75 cents, or, better still, take that amount over to your druggist and get one of the extra large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets. You will find it generously filled. Take one after meals and at bedtime, and within thirty days you should be losing a pound of fat a day, without disturbance, as we said, of either your meals, habits or organs. Fact is, these statements are not to be denied, for the tablets are an exact duplicate of the famous fat-reducing Marmola Prescription: One-half ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water, which any druggist will tell you is the World's Fair medal winner in its class.

TRIBUTE TO ST. PATRICK

Irish of Duluth Are Generally Observing the Day.

Weather Man Smiles on Sons of the Emerald Isle.

This is St. Patrick's day, and everywhere the green of the shamrock is in evidence. March 17 is looked forward to by newsboys as a time when they can swell their earnings by a sale of the imitation shamrocks, and every youth in town who felt that he had any capacity for selling, and who wanted a little spending money, procured a box of the attractive little pins last evening, and started out to sell them. The little merchants are again at work today, and their sales, together with those of the stores, amount into the hundreds.

The weather man handed out a day worthy of the occasion.

The Irish generally are observing the day in some way out of the ordinary. Many from Duluth will this evening attend a St. Patrick's day banquet to be given in Superior. There is a St. Patrick's day entertainment at Cathedral auditorium this evening, which, it is expected, will be very largely attended, and another entertainment will be given in West Duluth under the auspices of the Irish residing in that portion of the city.

While there is really nothing in the church rules saying so, it seems to be a tacit understanding among Irish-Catholics generally that they shall, on St. Patrick's day, be permitted to largely relax their observance of Lent, and act just about as they would if it were not Lent.

cass. Local assessors, county boards of equalization and state boards of equalization have for generations been blinking at this law, assessing property at 100 per cent here, 50 per cent there, 30 per cent elsewhere, and even 15 per cent.

Now the state has a tax commission, and that body declares that it cannot afford to participate in a direct violation of a law it is sworn to enforce. Unless the legislature provides some other law, it is going to assess all property at its full value, as the present law requires. This would have the effect of increasing salaries that are based on assessed valuation, and of largely increasing bond issue possibilities in many communities. This seeming too great a disturbance, the tax commission suggested to the legislature that it fix a ratio on which the commission could lawfully act without revolutionizing local conditions. So far as taxes are concerned, the result of uniformity is the same, no matter what the ratio. At 100 per cent of actual value or at 10 per cent, taxes would be equal, and there would be a difference only in tax rates, not in actual taxes paid. Hence the bill which the house had up for consideration yesterday.

The commission had suggested 50 per cent valuations, but for fear that would increase county salaries in some cases, the house tax committee made this 40 per cent.

Then, realizing that this would reduce the assessments of banks, which are now fixed by law at 50 per cent and of city property which averages over 50 per cent at present, several members of the tax committee got together with the tax commission and devised a graduated scale, which Representative Stuart of Windom offered yesterday afternoon as an amendment to the bill.

This proposed an assessment of city property and personal property at 50 per cent of actual value; of property outside cities and villages at 40 per cent, and of iron lands at 60 per cent.

Representative "Bob" Wells of Brookbridge was responsible for introducing the tonnage tax fight into this contest. He said that if the valuation of the iron mines were increased in this manner, it would be used against the tonnage tax when it came up today.

Representative Washburn of Minneapolis opposed the amendment because it wouldn't be fair or legal to divide real estate into different classes in this manner.

Representative Thayer of Fillmore county, wanted to give farming property a still greater advantage, and he proposed an amendment to the Stuart amendment, making the assessment of farm lands 33 per cent, instead of 40 per cent. That amendment was defeated by a very decisive vote.

Representative Wallace of Minneapolis, said that Northeastern Minnesota had often accused the southern part of the state of using its power to discriminate against that section, and if iron property were to be assessed upon a different basis than other property, that action would prove the charge.

Representative Stuart said that his amendment would increase the iron valuations to nearly $300,000,000, which would produce more revenue than any tonnage tax bill that could be proposed.

The amendment was voted down, however, 16 for and 94 against, the St. Louis county delegation dividing.

Representative Ware then offered an amendment making the ratio of assessment 50 per cent instead of 40 per cent, and that, too, was lost.

Representative Bendixen wanted to continue the special order for a week, but the house rejected that proposal. The roll call was then taken on the bill, and it was defeated, 40 for and 67 against.

J. N. Johnson then moved that the vote whereby the bill was lost be reconsidered, and asked that his motion be voted down. This is the usual way of clinching action on a bill, but it did not work out this time. If the motion had been rejected, the bill would have been dead, as the motion to reconsider cannot be made twice.

However, Representative Spooner and others called attention to the fact that the house had blundered into a bad hole, and asked that the motion to reconsider be adopted. This was done, without a dissenting vote, and the bill was made a special order for next Wednesday afternoon.

The other two bills, that providing for a county assessor system of valuation instead of the present system of valuation by local assessors, and that increasing the exemption of household goods from $100 to $200 for each head of a family, were continued until the same time.

If the railroads thought their troubles were ended two years ago, they were mistaken. There are nearly as many railroad measures before the legislature now as then, and what is more, they come out of the railroad committees a good deal easier now than they did then.

The senate committee has put before the senate practically all the anti-railroad measures before it, and the same thing is true of the house committee.

The only exception in either body that is worthy of note is the Spooner bill increasing the railroad gross earnings tax from 4 to 6 per cent, which is still lagging in committee.

Yesterday afternoon the house railroad committee turned out a number of important measures, chief among which was the J. N. Johnson bill putting the issuance of stocks and bonds under the regulation of the state railroad and warehouse commission, which the committee recommended to pass.

Two years ago this measure was introduced by J. A. Rockne of Zumbrota, now the speaker of the house, and over it was waged one of the hottest fights of the session. The Great Northern railroad, which is a Minnesota corporation, was particularly active against it, and every lever in its reach was pulled in the attempt to defeat it, which was successful in the end.

Clarence B. Miller of Duluth, who was then in the house, but is now a member of congress from the Eighth district, took a conspicuous part with Mr. Rockne in pushing this measure.

Other railroad bills put out by the house committee yesterday afternoon were as follows:

By Senator Thorpe—Requiring railroads to have suitable cabooses on freight trains, recommended to pass.

By Senator Sundberg—Requiring railroads to keep clean the ditches along their rights of way, recommended to pass.

By Senator Hall—Requiring railroads to give stockshippers transportation for caretakers going and returning, recommended to pass.

By Representative McGarry—Providing for additional right of way over states lands, recommended to pass as amended.

A bill by Representative John McGrath of Barnesville, which was put out of the house railroad committee without recommendation yesterday afternoon, proposes a novel plan. Where railroads abandon lines because of which towns have been built up and property given value, the measure requires that the railroads shall pay suitable damages to the owners of property whose value is affected by the abandonment.

The senate yesterday afternoon passed the bill by Senator T. M. Pugh of Duluth, reorganizing the naval militia of Minnesota to correspond with the organization of the United States navy. The bill advances the chief officers of the Duluth naval militia a grade or so all around.

Other bills passed by the senate yesterday afternoon were as follows:

By Representative Pfaender—Empowering cities to regulate control and license transient merchants.

By Senator Pauly—To prevent the catching or killing of hares or rabbits with the assistance of ferrets; passed, 32 to 16.

T. J. Michaud of the St. Louis hotel and E. C. Ribenack of the Lenox hotel of Duluth, were here yesterday afternoon to appear before the house committee on public health and pure food in opposition to the L. H. Johnson bill regulating the safety and sanitation of hotels. Along with them were about fifty other hotel men, who are up in arms against the bill, but the hearing had to be postponed until today, because just as the committee was getting together the members had to obey a call of the house which kept them the rest of the afternoon, preventing a committee meeting.

The house committee on taxes and tax laws has recommended for passage the Stuart-Kneeland bill, providing a graduated inheritance tax.

The Swendsen bill, repealing the mortgage registry tax law, is before the house, having been sent out by the house tax committee with a recommendation that it pass.

The Wallace bill, exempting municipal bonds from taxation, has been recommended for passage by the house committee on taxes and tax laws. This bill can be used, it is said, to test the proposition put before the house by Representative Stuart of Windom, to exempt credits from taxation. His plan was rejected by the house judiciary committee, because of a doubt as to its constitutionality, and because the committee did not deem it advisable to risk so important a matter as the entire tax on credits upon a doubtful proposition. However, the Wallace bill, if it is passed, will afford a chance to test in the courts the plan of exempting credits without jeopardizing revenues to any great extent.

Representative Thayer's bill to restore the state board of equalization, which was eliminated by the tax commission law, will have a chance for consideration before the house, the tax committee having put it out without recommendation, at the request of its author. The plan is to have the board of equalization continue as a sort of safety valve upon the tax commission. The powers of the two bodies would be practically equal, and there could hardly fail to arise some friction and disturbance if both bodies were allowed to continue.

As a matter of fact, those who favor this plan are really in favor of the abolition of the tax commission, and it is not believed that they are numerous.

The bill introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Fosseeen of Minneapolis, prohibiting the purchase of stolen grain from boys, is aimed to reduce the number of thefts of grain from cars in railroad yards, particularly in Minneapolis, from whence the bill comes. It is introduced at the request of the juvenile court and others interested in the welfare of children, and it is based on a showing from the records that more than 25 per cent of juvenile court arraignments are of children charged with stealing wheat from railroad yards.

The senate yesterday passed the bill by Senator Sageng, increasing the terms of office of members of boards of grain appeals from two to three years.

FRANK SHERWIN, MISSING CASHIER, IS HEARD FROM

not furnish a very lucid explanation for the former cashier's movements since that Saturday evening when, after balancing his books and drawing his salary, he dropped out of sight as completely as if he had been swallowed by the lake.

Sherwin's letter does not give the time which elapsed between his disappearance in Duluth and his awakening in Denver, but it is presumed that he has been himself for some weeks.

"I could not have been just right when I left Duluth," writes Sherwin, in one of the few passages of the letter to Mr. Kennedy in which he refers to the particulars of his weird adventure.

"Was Tired Riding."

"That I stopped in Denver," he says, in another place, "was mere accident, as I had somewhat come to my senses and was tired of riding."

Evidently the anxiety he has given others has been preying on his mind, for at the conclusion of the letter he writes: "Why this world is made so that innocent people must suffer for the mistakes of others, is something I cannot figure out, and I have been figuring on it a whole lot during the last month."

Sherwin says he has a position in view with an express company running out of Denver, and expresses the hope that he will secure it. Evidently he has not worked since he left Duluth. He asked Mr. Kennedy for a recommendation to help him in securing work in the West, and Mr. Kennedy gave it.

"Frank made good in Duluth, and I have no doubt but that he will make good in Denver," said Mr. Kennedy today. "When here he was a good man and there never was anything irregular about his books. Neither had he any entanglements here with women, which might have led him to go away, as some people persisted in saying."

Sherwin says that it is his hope to come back to Duluth some day, if only for a visit, as he considers this city his home. He asked to be remembered to all "the boys" at the express office.

The side-lights on general conditions in Denver show a hopeful vein, and throughout the epistle seems quite rational. It is a good letter, well written and evidently by a sane, reliable man, who made a mistake when something clogged his mental machinery for a short period, but who is now hard at work, being reliable again, and getting a new start.

"Denver is a nice place to live," he writes, "and I guess I will like it all right. Everybody is suspicious about peoples' health, though. The natives fear the inroads of 'lungers' and always ask you if you are healthy."

Sherwin's disappearance created a lot of talk in Duluth. There was such a lack of clues as to the cashier's whereabouts that it afforded ample room for wild speculation.

In Duluth, Sherwin was always a reserved young man of modest ways, never addicted to liquor and when he failed to show up at the express office on West First street Monday morning, Feb. 1, his fellow workers were unable to account for his whereabouts.

He slept in the rear of the office and his personal belongings as well as his books in the office, were perfect and in good order. He took nothing with him but the clothes he had on and the money he had drawn as salary.

The police searched everywhere in the city and Superior was ransacked, but no trace of the missing cashier was revealed. Descriptions of him were sent broadcast but he could not be located. His aged father came from Knox, N. D., to see if he could locate the young man, but he was hidden from the view of all his friends until his letter to his former employer threw light on the case.

AUTOS AS AID IN WAR SHOWN

British Military Office Uses Five Hundred Motor Carriages.

London, March 17.—An interesting experiment was made by the war office today to demonstrate the utility of the automobile as a means of rapid military transporation to supplement the resources of the railroads. Acting on the assumption that a hostile army had landed at Hastings nd the railroad was blockaded with troop trains, a relieving force of 1,000 men, with full war kit and guns, was moved to the scene by automobiles.

Some 500 machines loaded by members of the Automobile club picked up the men and their accoutrements at the various barracks and conveyed them to Crystal palace, whence the start was made. The machines traveled twenty miles an hour over the hard, frozen roads to Hastings. The lighter cars with the men took the lead, leaving the heavier vehicles with the guns and stores to bring up the rear.

Great crowds gathered along the route to watch the column, which was over a mile long. Arriving at Hastings, the cars were drawn up on the sea-front. The relieving "army" will return home this evening.

STILL THINK HE IS DEMENTED

Peterson's Relatives File Information of Insanity.

Though physicians declared that booze and not insanity was responsible for Andrew Peterson's queer actions, his family still believes there is something wrong with his mind. Information of insanity was again filed yesterday afternoon in probate court and Peterson will be given another examination.

Peterson was examined in probate court last week and was declared sane, though addicted to booze. He returned to his home at Winton and immediately began smashing up the furniture again. His wife and children are afraid of him, but he beats them every time he gets a few drinks. They think he is demented and the physicians, who examined him before will be asked to reconsider their decision.

The net earnings of the corporation were $91,-847,711, a decrease of $69,116,963 from 1907.

P. R. M'DONNELL GETS CONTRACT

Duluth Contractor Captures Big Sewer Job at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night let the contract for the construction of the sewer on Demers avenue to P. R. McDonnell of Duluth. McDonnell's bid on the work was $68,-881.05.

His nearest competitor was the Northern Construction company of Grand Forks, whose bid was only $597 higher. The sewer is to be of brick construction. On concrete construction the Northern Construction company had the lowest bid.

Mr. McDonnell last year got away with a large paving contract here which he has nearly completed.

CALLING MAN LIAR IS BREACH OF PEACE DOWN GEORGIA WAY.

Atlanta, Ga., March 17.—To call a man a liar in the state of Georgia is a breach of the peace and means a fight, declares the state court of appeals in a decision handed down today. The lower court, which refused damages to William Ransey, who sued W. A. Bullard for $100 damages for breach of the peace for calling him a liar, is reversed, the opinion by Judge Powell concluding:

"Being to the manner born, the judges of this court take judicial cognizance of the fact that in Georgia to call a man a liar, even without threatening him with a weapon, most generally means a fight. There may be exceptions to this rule, but they are exotics and find little nourishment on Georgian soil and under Southern skies."

It Saved His Leg.

SELLS MANY TUBERS.

Rural Mail Carrier Making Money Raising Potatoes.

Crookston, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. W. Lee, one of the progressive farmers residing on Rural Route No. 1, southwest of the city, has just finished loading 8,000 bushels of Early Ohio potatoes, most of which will be shipped to Kansas City.

He received 90 cents per bushel for them, as they are in fine shape. The price makes the crop a very profitable one, even though last season was not an ideal one for potatoes, lack of moisture early in the season keeping them back.

In addition to the sale, Mr. Lee last fall sold 2,000 bushels, and still has 2,000 bushels for seed.

RECOUNT COMMITTEE IS AGAINST A. E. STEVENSON.

Springfield, Ill., March 17.—After a stormy session, in which there were frequent tilts between the members, the recount committee today, before the convening of the house session, adopted a report holding that the petition of Adlai E. Stevenson for a recount of the votes cast for governor last fall in Illinois did not present a prima facie case. The report was drafted by Former Senator Berry, who represented Governor Deneen in the contest. Counsel for the contestant and the contestee were permitted to file their briefs covering the legal points to be submitted with the report of the committee.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

Doctors Say There is a Harmless, Safe and Sure Way to Remove Superfluous Hair.

Dr. Fowler, who has made a thorough study of superfluous hair growths, speaking of a case in which he used DeMiracle, says: "I applied DeMiracle, and in a few minutes I had her lip devoid of hair without any pain whatever. I instructed her to call again in two weeks, which she did. I found about one-fourth of the hair roots were not killed by the first application, so I made a second application. I saw her again in about a month, and found her lip as clear of any hair as an infant's. I can heartily recommend DeMiracle for all the uses for which the manufacturers recommend it."

It is well to remember that DeMiracle is absolutely non-poisonous, antiseptic and germicidal, therefore it will not produce blood poisoning or eczema which is so common with hair removers. DeMiracle is the only method in the world which is endorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

DeMiracle mailed, sealed in plain wrapper, for $1.00. Your money back without question (no red tape) if it fails to do all that is claimed for it. Booklet free in plain sealed envelope by the DeMiracle Chemical Co., Desk 2, 1939 Park Ave., New York. For sale by I. Fritmuth, corner Lake avenue and Superior St., and all good stores.

CHEAPER DYNAMITE.

Farmers of Beltrami and Adjoining Counties to be Benefitted.

Bemidji, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. R. Mackenzie, vice president of the Northern Minnesota Dairy Farm & Land company, states he has investigaced the matter of furnishing dynamite to the farmers of Beltrami and adjoining counties, and he believes that he can secure the stump-removing explosive at one-third or even one-half the prices being paid by the farmers at the present time.

Mr. Mackenzie says that he has taken up the matter with several big powder companies, and that he has received assurances from each of the companies that they will gladly send demonstrators to this county who will show what can be done with dynamite, the proper way to destroy stumps, and the most economical method of using the explosive.

Bemidji Home Burns.

Bemidji, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire Tuesday almost totally destroyed the home of James Price, causing a loss of about $2,800, partially covered by insurance.

An overheated cook stove started the flames, which spread almost straight upward and destroyed all of the roof and the second floor. The fire department, which quickly responded to the call, did excellent work and saved practically all of the furniture on the ground floor.

TREASURY OUTLOOK IS BETTER THAN IN MONTHS, IS REPORT

Washington, March 17.—Declaring the treasury outlook today is better than it has been before in months, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Coolidge has authorized a statement giving figures to show a marked improvement so far as government receipts are concerned. The statement follows:

"There is no foundation for the widely circulated report that the payment of over $50,000,000 of claims against the government, now due, has been postponed by the treasury for want of ready cash.

"On the contrary, the department is abreast of demands upon it, honoring requisitions, and no necessary payments are postponed for future action.

"All claims are met as fast as appropriations therefor are made by congress. While the appropriations and expenditures of the government are increasing annually and the expenditures for the current fiscal year are largely above the revenues for the year, the available cash in the treasury is equal to all demands that may be made upon it for some time.

"The revenues from imports have recently shown substantial gains and, should these continue, the treasury is in good condition to await the approaching readjustment of the tariff.

Big Improvement.

"So far from the treasury being in a desperate way, the outlook is better today than it has been before in months. The revenues for the first fifteen days of March have been $26,430,756, as against $20,785,256 for the corresponding period a year ago, an improvement of over 27 per cent, while the excess of expenditures over receipts for the same period has been $1,509,243, as against $4,374,713, an improvement of over 65 per cent. The revenues for the first fifteen days of March were greater than for any corresponding period in the past five years.

"The excess of expenditures over receipts for the fiscal year to date is $87,871,223, which is slightly in excess of the estimate of Secretary Cortelyou at the beginning of the last session of congress. The average daily excess of expenditures over receipts for the entire fiscal year to date has been $340,586. In January the average daily excess was $501,414. Had this continued, as seemed possible for a time, the outlook might have been less favorable, but since the first week in February, there has been a marked improvement. The average excess of expenditures over receipts during February was $238,841. For the first fifteen days of March it was only $100,616. An average daily deficit of $245,000 for the remainder of the fiscal year will still leave the year's deficiency within Secretary Cortelyou's estimate of $114,000,000.

"The new administration comes into office with the general fund of the treasury in as good a condition as it was at the beginning of the administration which has just come to an end. The available cash balance on March 15 was $135,087,953. On March 15, 1905, at the beginning of the last administration, the available cash balance was $141,498,436, and by Aug. 23, 1905, it had fallen to $123,794,710. The working balance on March 15, 1909, was $60,561,544. On March 15, 1905, it was $36,870,704. The free gold in the treasury general fund on March 15, 1909, was $87,581,825. On March 15, 1905, it was only $57,588,250. The gold coin represented by gold certificates outstanding on March 15, 1905, was $519,619,969. Yesterday it was $852,878,869. The receipts from customs during the first fifteen days of March, 1905, were $12,186,953.

Reports Not Justified.

During the fifteen days of March, 1909, they were $14,378,743. From internal revenue the receipts were $9,776,113, as against $10,511,954. The excess of receipts over expenditures on March 15, 1905, was $189,754. March 15, 1909, it was $534,959.

Thus it will be seen that the condition of the treasury does not justify the disturbing reports which have gained currency.

REALLY PROPER THING IS WAIST LINE SIX INCHES ABOVE KNEE, CORSETS MUCH LONGER

New York, March 17.—There were only two really new things shown at the first session of the Dressmakers' Protective association. One is the "style clerical," a summer costume, made to look as much the French priest's robe as possible, with 500 buttons on it.

The other novelty is the "moyan age" gown, which was first heard from at a Western dressmaker's convention a short time ago. Several specimens of this, which is to be the "really proper thing this summer," are shown today. The exhibitors explained that the waistline in this model is "six inches above the knee, requiring corsets five inches longer than last year."

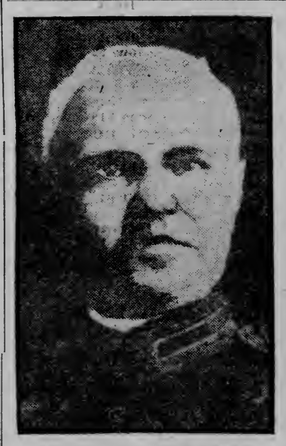
Features of the "moyan age," which is said to follow the costume lines worn by fashionable women of the tenth, eleventh and twelfth "French centuries," are a separate hanging "pocket for pennies," suspended at one side, and a gigantic buckle of red and gold worn at the breast.

The associations' president told her auditors that the favorite color for street wear next season is called "tea green." Then there is a new mustard shade known as "khakhi d'or." In the pastel shades, the favorites will be "peach blossom," "cloud blue" and "cloud gray." Raw silks and a new diagonal silk crepe are to be the preferred materials.

GOETHALS DECLARES CANAL ZONE ONE OF MOST HEALTHY PLACES

Chief Engineer of Commission Makes Another Report.

Strong Defense Is Given of the Lock Type.



LIEUT. COL. GOETHALS.

Washington, March 17.—A strong defense of the present plan of building a lock canal at Panama, not only because it is deemed more desirable than a canal built on sea level, but because of the saving in time and money, is contained in a special report of Lieut. Col. George W. Goethals, chairman and chief engineer of the Isthmian Canal commission, made public today. The report deals with every phase of the canal's construction, and in it Col. Goethals handles without gloves those critics who, he says, are predicting nothing but disaster and failure to the enterprise.

Goethals reviews the whole history of proposed canal construction on the Isthmus and calls attention to the fact that after the subject had occupied public attention for upward of four centuries, it was not until the nineteenth century that any definite action was taken looking toward its accomplishment. "The United States," he says, "not unmindful of the advantages of an Isthmian canal, had from time to time made investigations and surveys of the various routes." He adds that with the view to government ownership and control, congress directed an investigation of the Nicaraguan canal for which a concession had been granted to a private company. The report of the commission to look into the subject was adverse to the Nicaraguan route, he says, and favorable to the Panama route and the lock type of canal.

Much attention is given to the subject of the Gatun dam. This, Goethals says, is to consist of two piles of rock 1,200 feet apart and carried up to sixty feet above mean tide. The space between them and up to the required height is to be filled by selected material deposited in place by hydraulic process. He speaks of the slip which occurred last November, which, he says, amounted to practically nothing. "This slip," says he, "probably would have passed unnoticed, as did the former ones, but for the fact that at the time a flood in the Chagres river had attained such proportions as to cover a portion of the Panama railroad tracks just south of Gatun. A newspaper correspondent, going from Colon to Panama, saw his opportunity for a sensational story and attributed the flood to the dropping of the Gatun dam into the subterranean lake under the dam and locks, which another faker had previously discovered, and the news of the destruction of the dam was cabled to the states." The slip, he declares, did not affect the south slope or side of the rock pile. "It was entirely local," he says, "and did not in any way interfere with the work. As a result, however, the public is told that dire disaster will follow the undertaking unless the present plans are abandoned and the Straits of Panama constructed; that is, a sea level canal across the Isthmus 500 to 600 feet wide. To accomplish this, however, a lock canal must be built first, and subsequently widened and deepened until the tidal is reached. There is no data available for such a canal. With mountains instead of hills to be removed estimates are, of course, impossible; so the most optimistic figures, suitable alone to the ideal, are offered as a bait. In any event, it is claimed also that Bohio should have been selected for the site of the dam in lieu of Gatun." Col. Goethals points out that at Bohio the gorge in its lower strata is filled with water-bearing gravel, and that fact alone, he says, removes it from consideration. "I venture the statement, without fear of contraction," he says, "that the site of no public or private work of any kind has received such a thorough and exhaustive examination and investigation as the foundation of the dam and locks at Gatun. There is no longer a doubt concerning any of the underlying strata; neither the impermeability nor the ability of the foundations to bear the loads that will be brought upon them, can be questioned if the data be carefully and impartially examined. The investigations fail to disclose any water-bearing strata or the existence of that underground stream with a discharge equal to the Chagres river itself, which was recently asserted as a fact on the floor of the senate."

According to the report, the Gatun dam satisfactorily solves the problem of the control of the Chagres, and there should be no doubt in the mind of anyone, who impartially examines the data, it says, that the solution is not only feasible, but absolutely safe.

Reverting to the subject of a sea level canal, Col. Goethals says: "To be sure, the partisans of the sea level type are now proposing to eliminate both the Gamba dam and the tidal lock by making the channel so wide as to reduce the currents that result from the discharge of the Chagres and the different tides, but fail to explain how they propose to control or divert the Chagres, the bed of which will be fifty feet above the water surface of the canal at the juncture. As data is not available for preparing accurate estimates for even such a sea level type as was originally offered, neither they nor anyone else can offer any figures as to time and cost for the construction of such a canal as they now advocate." In any comparison, Col. Goethals adds, "we must confine our attention to the lock type as now building, and a sea level canal as offered by the board of engineers, and not by the idealist."

After declaring the canal zone to be one of the healthiest communities in the world, Col. Goethals concludes: "I assure you that several years hence, no later than Jan. 1, 1915, even the most ardent sea level advocate will, in making the voyage through the canal, admit that the ability to navigate a battleship at a high rate of speed through the lake and wide channel from Gatun to Pedro Miguel, far outweighs the small inconveniences of the safe lockages up to and down from the summit level."

AN AWFUL POSSIBILITY

Thirsty Customers Might Force Bartender to Break the Law.

"Lid" Aldermen Have "Come Back" on the "Minor" Ordinance.

An ordinance, making it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for a man to drink intoxicants in a saloon or other place where liquor is sold, after 11 o'clock in the evening or on Sunday, is now among the possibilities for Duluth.

Such an ordinance will be introduced, it is claimed, if the proposed ordinance, making it a misdemeanor for a minor to purchase intoxicants, goes through the council. The latter measure met with strong opposition when it came up for passage at the council meeting Monday evening, and action in regard to it was deferred for one week.

"If the 'liberals' insist upon passing an ordinance prohibiting minors from buying drinks in a saloon, and providing a fine or imprisonment as punishment if they violate this law, we shall insist on getting a vote on an ordinance making it unlawful for a man to buy a drink after the regular closing hours, or on Sunday," said a "conservative" alderman yesterday. "One measure is just as fair and reasonable as the other. If the bartenders need protection from boys, they must be equally in need of protection from men. Why, the way things are now, two men might seize a bartender after the clock strikes 11 and force him to draw them a couple of beers, and then allow the terror-stricken man to stand by and watch them drink it. That would be awful. They could throw him 10 cents in payment, and he would be liable to a fine for breaking the law.

"Here is another possibility. A particularly thirsty bunch of men might enter a saloon and, thinking their thirst would extend beyond 11 o'clock, a part of them might engage the bartender's attention, while the others set the clock back half an hour. He would sell them drinkables until his clock showed it to be the closing hour, and would therefore be breaking the law unknowingly, but would be liable to a fine or imprisonment, or both, just the same. The customers with the big thirst, however, who would really be the guilty ones, would get off free under the present ordinance, so you see the saloonmen are in need of just such protection as this ordinance would offer.

"When you come to look at it in this light, it seems really more necessary for such an ordinance as this to pass than for the proposed minor ordinance to be adopted."

NO SHAKE-OUT ATTEMPT IN STEEL CORPORATION'S ACT OF ABSORPTION.

New York, March 17.—Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America, appeared before the committee appointed by Governor Hughes to investigate the New York exchanges, and told it about the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company by the Steel corporation in 1907. His testimony was along the lines of that he gave before the senate committee in Washington a short time ago.

When questioned as to the reason for calling Thorne, Mr White said the committee desired to secure information as to whether any attempt had been made to "shake out" the firm of Moore & Schley, brokers, and to force them to sell their holdings of Tennessee Coal & Iron stock.

According to White, the testimony of Thorne was to the effect that no such attempt was made at the time the merger was put through.

"The banks wanted money at that time," said White, "and in order to get it, they proceeded to liquidate their loans on inactive stocks. The stocks of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company were inactive."

STEEL WAGE CUT RUMORED AGAIN

Gary Reiterates No Reduction Has Been Decided Upon.

New York, March 17.—Reports are again current in quarters said to be usually well informed on such matters, that the United States Steel corporation is contemplating a cut of from 15 to 20 per cent in the wages of its 240,000 employes to take effect April 15. The decision to reduce wages, it was stated, was reached at a conference held last Saturday.

E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, when asked regarding the truth of the report, said the question of wage reduction has not been discussed yet, by the board of directors, and that no cut in wages has been decided on by the management. He added, however, that he did not mean to say that a reduction would not be decided on ultimately.

Cut Affects Six Hundred.

Lebanon, Pa., March 17.—A general cut of 10 per cent in the wages in all departments of the Pennsylvania Steel company's plant at North Lebanon is announced for April 1. It affects all local employes, numbering about 600. No notices of a reduction have been posted at the Lackawanna Iron & Steel plant here.

MEET WITH TEACHERS

Parents Will Have Chance to Discuss Children's School Affairs.

Meeting at Franklin School Will be Followed by Others.

Parents who want to know why Johnny doesn't get a better mark in mathematics, or wonder why Sarah doesn't learn how to spell, or think that Mary isn't making the progress in her school work that she ought to, will have a chance to talk matters over quietly with the teachers, if the plan being tried at the Franklin school is carried out in the other schools, according to the wishes of Supt. Denfeld.

Tomorrow night, the parents of children in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Franklin school are invited to come to the school and inspect the work done by the pupils. There will be a short program of music by the school orchestra, and readings by Miss Agnes May Johnson and Ruth Bjorge. This will be followed by a talk from Health Commissioner Patton on the proper methods of safeguarding the health of the children, and a talk on "Co-operation" by Principal Burrell. The girls of the eighth grade will then serve refreshments, and the guests will be shown about the building, and given an opportunity to inspect the work done in all the departments. The teachers will be present, ready to meet the parents, and talk over the individual problems of the students.

Later in the year another meeting will be held for the parents of children in the four lower grades. Owing to the fact that the school has no large assembly hall, all the parents could not be invited on the same night.

The meetings are held in the evening in order that the fathers may attend. The principal and the teachers are anxious to get in touch with the fathers of the children, and talk over the school affairs of the pupils with them as well as with the mothers.

The Franklin school is located at Fifth avenue east and Seventh street.

The plan of holding such meetings has the indorsement of Supt. Denfeld, who has been urging the principals in all the schools to follow it out, and other meetings will be held before the close of the school year.

Many a child has difficulties which he is either ashamed or afraid to tell the teacher of, and many a teacher has wished for an opportunity to talk with the parents of certain of her scholars. These meetings will solve this problem.

Antiquity of Dentistry.

Many persons will be surprised to learn that false teeth, gold caps and fillings and bridges are by no means modern creations. Six hundred years ago and probably long before the dawn of Greek civilization the skill of the dentist had reached a high degree of perfection. Many people will also be surprised to learn that golden grain belt beer is considered the ideal table beverage. It is the one beverag which is as good for the health as it is to the taste. Have it on your home table at all times. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

IS ALMOST TOO STEEP FOR ROAD

Stairway May be Built on Sixth Avenue East.

It is up to the property owners along Sixth avenue east to decide whether they want a paved winding roadway on the avenue between First and Second streets, or a concrete walk and concrete stairway.

City Engineer McGilvray says the grade of the block in question is about 18 per cent, which is prohibitive for teams. If the property owners want a roadway, the only solution is to make it a winding one, which would reduce the grade to 11½ per cent. This would still be pretty steep for teams.

On the other hand, if they decide that a roadway is unnecessary, the concrete walk and steps for pedestrians can be constructed at $6,000 less cost than the roadway. The latter would cost, it is estimated, $16,000, while the former could be put in for $10,000.

"ALL A BIG MISTAKE," SAYS WILLIAM SCHREIBER

"It's all a big mistake; I got one of the most unjust deals a man ever got in that court," said "Bill" Schreiber in his cell in the county jail this morning. He was in just as good spirits today as he has been any day since he was arrested, despite the fact that a new trial has been denied him and he hasn't the means to carry the case to the supreme court.

"The truth will come out some day and when it does, people will know that I am innocent," he said. "Now everybody seems to think I am guilty, but my wife and I know that I am not.

"I'm not worrying about what they do with me. They may hang me if they want, or send me to the penitentiary for life. One is as bad as the other. When a man knows down deep in his heart that he is innocent, he doesn't worry about what they're going to do with him. If they send me to the gallows, I will shout my innocence just the same as I assert it now."

Though Schreiber doesn't worry much over his own predicament, he keenly feels the plight of his wife and children. He says they are alone in the world and when the law disposes of him they will continue to be alone and dependent upon the public for support.

Schreiber isn't changed much after nearly a year in jail. He is a little stouter and a little red mustache, raised since the trial, gives him an older appearance. He will be 26 years old April 26.

CALLOWAY WILL LAND THE JOB

Will be Made General Passenger Agent of Combined Roads.

It is reported here today that W. C. Calloway will be made general passenger agent of the Soo and Wisconsin Central lines, the order transferring J. C. Pond, formerly general passenger agent of the Wisconsin Central, with headquarters at Chicago, to Minneapolis, having been made yesterday.

It was stated in The Herald some time ago that the most likely arrangement of the passenger department of the consolidated railroads, would be that Mr. Calloway would be placed in charge of the passenger department of the two roads and that Mr. Pond would be made his assistant.

Such is the case. It was thought that Mr. Pond might remain in Chicago as assistant general passenger agent of the road at that point. But the Soo officials are making the Minneapolis office the main office of the two roads, and for that reason Mr. Pond will be stationed at Minneapolis.

Fargo Papers Consolidate.

Fargo, N. D., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The consolidation of the Fargo Morning Call and the Fargo Daily News, which has been rumored for some time past, is announced by those two papers. The News takes over the Call and Editor J. J. Jordan retires from active newspaper work.

J. J. Jordan came to Fargo in 1884, since which time he has been actively engaged in the newspaper business, having piloted the Republican, the Argus and finally the Call, which he established in 1889.

WILL PUT WIRES UNDER GROUND

Duluth Telephone Company Planning on Big Improvements.

The Duluth Telephone company this morning submitted a map to the board of public works, showing the streets and avenues upon which it proposes to place its wires under ground, in accordance with a resolution passed by the council a few weeks ago.

The map covers the district lying between Eighth avenue west and Twenty-fourth avenue east. It is proposed to remove practically all the Duluth Telephone company poles in this territory. This includes East Superior street, East First street, Second street from Eighth avenue west to Twenty-fourth avenue east, Fourth street from Sixth avenue west to Twenty-fourth avenue east, Fifth street from Fifth avenue east to Twelfth avenue east, and several of the avenues in the same district.

WHY IT CAN'T BE DONE.

The proposition to change the inauguration day from March 4 to some day in April, say the fourth Thursday, is one that seems just as likely to fail in 1909 as it has failed every four years for the past century.

There are probably few people in the whole country who have any real objection to making the change. That a day in April, with greatly increased chances for fair weather, is more desirable than a day in early March, cannot be denied except by those who feel that the day is not an occasion for pomp of any kind. If indeed, we are to adopt the policy of simply swearing into office the new incumbent of the presidency and letting it go at that, March 4 is as good a day as any other. But despite the love of democratic simplicity, which genuinely prevails, there is a deep desire that so important an event as the inauguration of a new president shall be marked by solemnities befitting so great an occasion, and that such solemnities shall be those which may be observed and participated in, to the fullest extent that it is physically possible, by the whole people. For these reasons it seems fairly certain that inauguration day will always be a day when the people of the United States will flock to Washington and demand to see the new president take his oath of office and hear him state his views upon public questions, there to cheer him and dance in his honor, making the occasion one of democratic simplicity, but one of solemnity and national rejoicing. Such being the case, it is very desirable indeed that a day be chosen for the inauguration when there shall be the best chance of fair weather. Such a day we do not now have; how shall we get it?

The fear of disaster that may come from revolutionary changes in the Constitution operates to make any formal amendment of it almost impossible. The Herald doubts very much whether the people will give their assent to the calling of a congress to propose an amendment to the Constitution to change the day of inauguration, even could the business of such a congress be confined—which it can not—to that one subject. So deep is the distrust of amendments to the Constitution that it has never yet been amended except under practical compulsion. Such were the first eleven amendments made immediately after its adoption and such were the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments made following the Civil war. The Constitution has never yet been amended to secure something that was simply desirable, and we doubt it if it ever will be; it has only been amended to secure something that had to be.

The Constitution is a wonderful document; it has met every necessity that has arisen in more than a century and a quarter, adjusting itself with the most marvelous facility to the most radical changes in society that have ever taken place in any period of equal length in the world's history. The American people are convinced that their Constitution insures them "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that it has a comprehensiveness and an elasticity that will enable it to protect and perpetuate this government of the people, by the people and for the people in any exigency which may arise.

Because of their belief in its inherent sufficiency, the people have ever been opposed to changes of any kind in the Constitution, preferring to bear the trifling ills they have to taking the risk of weakening the bulwark of their liberties in even the slightest degree by amendment. For this reason the change of the day of inauguration, desirable as it may be, appears to be practically impossible.

THE CONSPIRACY OF 1909.

To conspire means literally to blow together, and that is exactly what the enemies of good government are doing this very minute with all the energy that they have and with every art of which they are capable.

The problems of government today are economic problems. The relation of business enterprises to the government is the foremost thought in the mind of every citizen who has any active interest in either politics or business. The phenomenal development of business whereby business has become no longer local but general, each business institution of these times touching not simply the interests of a few but affecting the welfare of all, is a development which has changed business in large measure from a private concern to a public matter. Great business enterprises are no longer private ventures solely, but semi-public undertakings, and as such they are no longer matters for the rules of private control, but have become subject to the necessity of public regulation. Business has become the chief concern of government.

First we attempted to apply the rules of private ownership to our new industrial conditions and we failed. Then we began to seek out stronger methods but our great business enterprises had grown so powerful that they were easily able to resist our feeble and inexperienced efforts to control them. The manifestations of this wonderfully exuberant industrial and commercial life have been so marvelously swift and so riotously strong that business for the time crowded everything else to one side. Slowly the other interests of life have begun to assert themselves and during the past decade considerable progress has been made.

Whatever we may think may have been the mistakes of Theodore Roosevelt, the people of this country are thoroughly convinced that he has honestly given his best and most vigorous effort to the solution of the intricate problem of the adjustment of government to the economic needs of the whole people. Backed by the approval of the people he has made considerable progress, against every step of which progress intrenched private privilege in business has made the most vigorous opposition that it could. With the passing of Roosevelt, special privilege in business sees its opportunity to halt and to turn back the march of progress from the goal of the general interest of all in the control of business enterprises.

Hence the conspiracy of 1909, the blowing together of every special interest in the country to discredit Roosevelt, to cast suspicion upon the Roosevelt policies, to bring about a reaction from these policies. This is the explanation of the clamor in congress during the past few months, of all the widely published reports of estrangement between Roosevelt and Taft, of the fanatical bitterness toward Roosevelt on the part of certain great newspapers which have always supported the selfish interests of predatory wealth. In furtherance of the purposes of this conspiracy President Taft is now the object of the cunning craftiness of the conspirators. Every possible attempt is being made to misrepresent him in the eyes of the country. The ablest writers are being employed to adroitly suggest to the country a thousand misconceptions of the character of the new occupant of the White House. The harp of harmony has been brought forth and the string of tact is being sounded mightily. If flattery, cajolery and subtle suggestion can lull Mr. Taft into complaisance and keep his fingers from off the big stick, what a triumph that would be for the conspirators!

Mr. Taft, and the people, too, have need to rub their eyes and keep their vision clear. There are those who do blow together to raise a dreadful dust about nothing under which things of real moment may escape notice.

ERIN GO BRAGH.

If you have a strain of Irish in you, you are fortunate, for you then have something of loyalty, wit and virile vitality, qualities which make the Irish famous the world over and which stand any man in good stead.

With all these qualities was St. Patrick endowed, even though he may not have been born in Ireland, at all at all. But whether he was born Irish or not, he became an Irishman at an early age when he was caught and carried captive to Ireland by pirates. Escaping, in time he left Ireland for a few brief years, while he studied and became a priest, only to return to his beloved isle, there to give a long life of devotion to its people.

For every blade of green grass in Ireland there is a pleasant legend about St. Patrick. All the world knows how he drove the snakes out of Ireland, and in fact, there was never in all the world, more resolute and persistent enemy of the serpent that tempted Eve than St. Patrick. Such were his labors that they are still bruising the head of the serpent to this day. St. Patrick was a grand missionary. To the redemption of Ireland he devoted his life, and at it he labored with a wisdom that must have been from above. So unusual was his success that he made Ireland, from a land swarming with petty chiefs, constantly warring with each other, into a place that in later years became known as "the island of saints and scholars." Possibly this was putting the case too strong; the Irish people are not yet saints, even with St. Patrick, for they are too human, but that St. Patrick has brought something saintly to the life of every Irishman cannot be doubted. To have done that is to have done a great work, a work worthy of the canonization it received.

The grass is not greener in Ireland today than is the memory of St. Patrick in every Irish breast, and so long as the world shall stand so long shall we have need of St. Patrick and his Irish, so long shall we say with them, "Erin go bragh!"

SHALL ABUSES CONTINUE?

Some quite unnecessary protests have been made within the past few days to the passage of an ordinance fixing the maximum load which horses may be compelled to haul up Duluth's hills.

This is not a matter which Duluth can longer neglect to consider. That every sense of humanity shall continue to be outraged daily and hourly in this matter is not to be tolerated.

The question is not, shall something be done, but what shall be done? That abuses now exist, every hour of the day bears public witness. The alarm expressed by some, who have never been guilty of these abuses, that the proposed ordinance is simply an academic creation certain to be impractical and hurtful to business is entirely unfounded. The jobbers of Duluth, for instance, have nothing whatever to fear from the ordinance. They employ the finest horses to be had, keep them in the best condition, and use enough of them on every load. Diligent inquiry for a month past reveals but one instance in the past six months in which a team from a jobbing house was overloaded. Neither has any complaint been heard against the overloading of vans which are frequently loaded heavily, but to the moving of which sufficient horse power has always been applied. Anyone who stands upon Fifth avenue at Superior street for five minutes at any hour of the business day, however, can see teams that are not strong enough for the loads they are compelled to haul. That there are grave abuses of overloading by certain contractors and others, cannot be disputed.

It certainly ought to be possible to draft an ordinance which will correct these abuses without in any way hampering those who are showing every consideration of humanity to the dumb brutes they employ. If it is not, we must be a pretty poor sort of men here in Duluth.

The "recall" is coming in fashion. That is something for Roosevelt's enemies to think about.

This is Ireland's day, and not one Scot had better hoot, mon, either, if he knows when he's well off.

The Associated Press announces that Joseph B. Foraker is out of politics but it probably does not consider the item a scoop.

Mr. Rockefeller does not need to put up the price of oil to recoup that $29,400,000. Possibly he can find other reasons, however.

Nobody knows just what the administration is doing and the interests hope it isn't doing anything. They have been done enough for a while.

If President Taft should try to do things as fast as Alfred Henry Lewis predicts them for him it would be more effective than taking any other kind of anti-fat.

There is only one subject in the world upon which Mr. Bryan has no opinion. He doesn't care whether the people fix March or April for his inauguration. Either will suit perfectly.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

F. R. Myers of Biwabik, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, is one of the range bankers who believes that the business conditions in this part of the state are going to improve within a very short time. Mr. Myers stated yesterday that business conditions on the range were improving, and that the indications pointed to a further improvement as the spring advanced.

"Things are very quiet on the ranges at the present time, as they are everywhere else," said Mr. Myers, "but there is every indication that there will be an improvement in business conditions. Up at Biwabik, we have noticed some improvement already. Things in general are picking up and business is becoming more active. I look for a good spring. There is nothing fundamentally wrong with the business situation; it is simply that business is backward and we are slow in recovering from the reverse of a year ago."

S. J. Levers from Grand Marais, was at the Lenox yesterday. Mr. Levers says there has been considerable clearing done this winter upon many of the homesteads around Grand Marais, and that many of the settlers have improved their homes, besides clearing considerable land.

Mr. Levers says what damage was accomplished by the fire, has been almost entirely repaired, aside from the trees that were destroyed. Practically all of the homes have been rebuilt, and a great part of the burned district has been partially cleared.

"Artie" O'Dea of Beaver Bay was at the Lenox hotel last evening. "Artie" has been on his claim all of the year. He is going to say nay to the alluring call of the diamond this year, and stick right close to mother nature.

O'Dea has made up his mind that he will spend the present summer upon his claim. He stated that he was thinking somewhat of organizing a league among the settlers u pthat way, so that in years to come he could have the honor of having been the first man who introduced baseball in that part of the country. His name would go down in history, linked close with that of Father La Salle, and other intrepid explorers and blazers of the path of progress.

"Artie" says the settlers up his way are in the need of some harmless and healthy diversion. If he can secure a diamond in the timber and stone belt somewhere, he will proceed to organize the North Shore league. It is probable that the Beaver Bay league, which would be a more fitting name for the organization, by the way, will not start out with a very large schedule of games. Yet those who are acquainted with the methods of Mr. O'Dea can vouch for the fact that he is an energetic organizer. The very fact that he believes there is good timber up in the Beaver Bay district (that is baseball timber, of course,) is a partial guarantee that "Artie" will have his league in working order.

It is not probable that games will be sought with the range towns before fall, as some of the original settlers are a little rusty on baseball, not having played since days when the Ansons, Adrian and his pap, played on the lots of Iowa.

However, the air up there in the Beaver Bay district is fine for the lungs and lends strength and vigor to the arm. If the batters in the Beaver Bay league ever get a batting streak, it will be good night to any of the opposing pitchers. Some of those boys who have been chopping the rough stuff all winter should be able to clout the ball to the forest.

"The father of Beaver Bay baseball." What a proud and imposing title that would be, and it would lend grace and dignity to the name of O'Dea, when that individual gets so he can not clout the ball and pick the low ones out of the sand.

Harry Lyons, who gets to Duluth about every month, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Lyons was at the union depot in St. Paul when the world's heavyweight champion, Jack Johnson, hove in sight, and a cheer went up from a legion of black throats that would have made a welcome to a president seem as fame and as quiet as the announcement of the weekly meeting of the ladies' auxiliary.

Mr. Lyons says there were more colored men on hand than he knew existed in any one country. They were there from the Rondo street district, according to Mr. Lyons, and from the more exclusive circles of colored society.

The Rondo street society is pretty well up, according to Mr. Lyons, but St. Paul has more exclusive circles where the colored brother hangs forth, and from these the swells of black society sallied forth to greet the champion, not only of the colored race, but of the lighter skinned battlers as well.

Mr. Lyons says he saw plaids, tweeds, checks, stripes, cross bars, dots and colors of every conceivable mixture and every conceivable shade, in the clothes of the assemblage that gathered at the station to meet the big pugilist.

It was a sight that made Mr. Lyons ponder upon the glory that comes to the brawny-fisted son of the paddled circle. Those looking for tumultuous glory, and not the quieter fame that comes to those who burn the midnight oil in the elucidation of some knotty problem, should enter the fight game, for glory of a noisy nature lurketh there for the champion, says Mr. Lyons.

THE WEATHER.

Winter's return visit is not likely to be of long duration. There was a decided snap to the air yesterday and this morning, but milder weather, with snow flurries, is looked for tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was clear and cold.

The sun rose this morning at 6:17 o'clock, and will set this afternoon at 6:16, making eleven hours and fifty-nine minutes of sunlight.

R. E. Clark, acting forecaster, makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the past twenty-four hours light rain or snow fell over Oregon, British Columbia, the lake region, the Ohio valley and North Atlantic coast states, due to the movement of barometric depressions central over Alberta and the Upper St. Lawrence valley. Those disturbances have caused warmer weather in Canada, over the Eastern Rocky Mountain slope, the Atlantic coast and Southern states. The Middle Western high pressure area has moved eastward, being central this morning over Iowa and overspreading the entire Mississippi valley. Another area of high pressure is approaching over the Pacific coast. The movement of these high pressure areas has been attended by falling temperatures in the Ohio, Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys, the lake region and the extreme Northwest."

Obedience in Schools.

The following item published in Leslie's Weekly by Dr. Colin A. Scott, professor of the Boston normal school, on "Teach Real Obedience in the Schools," deserves not only the consideration of our Western teachers, but is worthy the consideration and practice of our church leaders. The day has gone by when a human being was regarded as a mere machine to do another's bidding. True it is, faith in another's teaching is essential everywhere, but faith is nothing more than believing what we see to be true without the process of a demonstration. Reason may be said to be a way by which we see the truth by means of a demonstration. Hence, whether with or without a demonstration, it is of the greatest importance that the truth, the right, yea, all the principles of moral rectitude, should be taught in a way that each individual's Lord-given conscience will dominate his life under all circumstances and conditions. As a result of such teaching, each citizen will become a factor in upholding the laws, rules and regulations that are devised for the government of well organized society. The laws of our land would eventually be voluntarily obeyed without the employment of coercive means.

R. M. F.

If the problem of the schools is to take the lead in training up a new generation of citizens, we must have the spirit of citizenship in the schools. This is more important than whether we have prohibition or any other particular measure or not. Nor do I mean self-government in the schools; as far as the employment of force or legal procedure is concerned, this would seem unnecessary and inappropriate to the schools. I certainly include loyalty and obedience as a characteristic of citizenship, but if we have only a one-sided obedience we do not have that. What is obedience in its truest sense? Is it issuing commands to be compelled by force? Is it not doing willingly what other people really want? But if what other people do not also do what you want, it is impossible to continue the attitude and have it real. Obedience if voluntary is never one-sided. To limit the school to a one-sided obedience on the part of children defeats its own ends. It kills real obedience on their part.

New Copyright Law.

Knoxville Sentinel: One of the last acts of congress was the passage of a new copyright law, which seems to satisfy the demands of authors, publishers, musicians and artists. The period of copyright is left twenty-eight years, as before, but the renewal period is lengthened from fourteen to twenty-eight years. This is not the perpetual copyright for which Mark Twain pleaded, but it is as much as anybody hoped for. The provisions about the reproduction of works of a and music are drawn with necessary technical knowledge. English copyright books must be printed and bound in the United States as hitherto, but protection may be secured for thirty days before a copy of the American edition must be deposited. Photographs are no longer required to be printed from negatives made in the United States. The importation of pirated editions of copyright works is forbidden. In case of an unauthorized reproduction by a newspaper of a copyrighted photograph, it is provided that the damages shall not exceed $200, and shall not be less than $50. This award of damages is not to be regarded as a penalty.

What They Will Give Up.

Life: Mr. Roosevelt will not call any one a liar for the entire forty days—except on Sunday. That being a feast day, and not a regular part of Lent, he will indulge himself as usual.

Mr. Rockefeller will abstain from thinking about his good points.

Horace Fletcher will chew gum.

Prof. William James of Harvard will stop talking philosophy, and try to be serious.

A Sizable Package.

St. Louis Times: Under the nine-foot law, the Missourian who gets "three sheets in the wind" will carry quite a sizable package.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Badger Herald-Rustler: It should help us to bear patiently adverse circumstances in life to know how frequently they prove to be blessings in disguise. St. Patrick must have found his six years of slavery in Ireland when a youth anything but pleasant, and probably he never once thought during those years what a good training they were for his after life. But when he became the great apostle of Ireland, one great reason for his success was his familiarity with Irish manners and customs and his intimate knowledge of the Irish language gained during his servitude.

Floodwood Broadax: Uncle Ike Stephenson has been sent back to the United States senate again from Wisconsin. Well, our uncle paid the price, and that seems to be about all there is to the senatorial game.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Chances seem to be against the passage of a reapportionment bill by the legislature. Northern Minnesota seems to have no rights that the south part will respect.

Martin County Sentinel: The legislators who attempted to play peanut politics at the expense of the governor have landed where they belong—in the 30-cent class.

Hutchinson Leader: Senator La Follette makes the startling assertion that 70 per cent of the revenues of the United States are spent on the army and navy. We haven't much of an army, and the greatest warships we build are out of date and nothing but scrap iron ten years after they are launched. How long, O Lord, how long must Christian nations tax themselves to death to keep themselves in trim to lick some other nation?

Red Wing Republican: The governor of Indiana wisely discouraged the erection of a mansion for the use of the chief executive which would cost $150,000. He gave as his opinion that $15,000 or $20,000 would build as good a house as a governor whose salary was only $8,000 a year could maintain, and in his opinion the state ought not to be asked to maintain it.

Princeton Union: In response to an invitation from the state legislature, James J. Hill on Thursday addressed the members of that body in joint assembly. He chose for his subject the preservation of our agricultural resources, and proposed to the legislature a plan which he believed would accomplish great results in the way of realizing the utmost possibilities of the soil and at the same time preserve its fertility. His suggestion was that this legislature appropriate $50,000, to be expended under the direction of the agricultural college, and that 200 graduates of the agricultural school be scattered over the state to give practical demonstrations to farmers of what can be accomplished by scientific methods. Mr. Hill has studied this question of the preservation of agricultural resources for twenty-five years, and is one of the best authorities on the subject in the country. In consequence, his advice is eagerly sought on such matters, and whereso-ever followed, has invariably proved valuable.

Duluthian Jollies Houston.

Houston Post: "Talk about extremes in weather," said M. S. Burrows of Duluth, Minn., who is a guest at the Rice, "the weather in Houston and where I recently came from are in wide variation, and the variation is decidedly in favor of Houston. The climate here is immense. It must be a pleasure to live in a section of the United States where you can feel assured the thermometer will never touch the zero mark. As for Houston herself, there seems enough push and enterprise here to stock a couple of cities. The evidence of building to be seen on every hand are enough to enable a stranger to size up your city."

Laughter.

Worry stalked along the road,
Trouble sneaking after.
Then Black Care and Grief and Goad—
Enemies to Laughter.

But old Laughter with a shout
Rose up and attacked 'em,
Put the sorry pack to rout,
Walloped 'em, and whacked 'em.

Laughter frivols day and night,
Sometimes he's a bubble,
But he hath a deal of might
In a bout with Trouble.

Milwaukee News: Maisie—I'll only marry a man whose fortune has at least six ciphers in it.

Morton—Then I've got a cinch. Mine is all ciphers.

Cleveland Leader: Him—How does she manage to keep her looks?

Her—Keep her looks? Why, she can't get rid of 'em, or she would, I suppose.

Philadelphia Record: Blobbs—Tightwad claims that when charity is needed he is always the first to put his hand in his pocket.

Slobbs—Yes, and he keeps it there.

Chicago Tribune: "I sometimes think," remarked the regular patron, "that the snare drummer should be the best musician in the theater orchestra."

"He usually is," said the drummer.

Life: Weary (lying under the apple tree)—Say, mister, kin I have one of dem apples?

Farmer—Why, them apples won't be ripe for four months yit.

Weary—Oh, dat's all right. I ain't in no hurry. I'll wait!

Chicago News: "I suppose," said the angular spinster, "that you never had a romance?"

"Dat's where youse is wrong," replied the unlaundered hobo. "I wunst had a sweetheart wot wuz a dead ringer fer youse."

"And did she die?" asked the angular spinster as she helped him to another hunk of pie.

"No, ma'am," answered the hobo. "When leap year come 'round she asked me t' marry her—an' I run away from home."

Brooklyn Eagle: The Roosevelt method is not always the Taft method. The new president believes in the power of a soft word and the influence of calm argument. All the week a scramble has ensued for the president's support in the fight on the house rules. A rebel Republican—a newcomer yet to be sworn in—called at the White House, accompanied by one of Cannon's supporters. The president knew all about the new man. Mr. Taft believes that the prompt revision of the tariff will be endangered by a fight on the house rules, and naturally is anxious to avoid any row which will delay revision and continue uncertainty in the business world.

A plump arm was passed through that of the fledgeling representative.

"Now, I am sure," said a persuasive voice, "that you don't want to start your career in the house by getting on the wrong track. It would be a mistake to fall out with your own party. I trust that you will do nothing rash at the outset which you may regret later on."

When the representative-elect left the White House the insurgents had lost an ally.

To Clean Straw Matting.

Before applying water to straw matting, it should be thoroughly swept and then gone over with a dry cloth to remove as much dust as possible. Remove grease spots by applying Fuller's earth made into a thin paste with cold water. Spread the paste over the spot, let it remain two or three days; then brush it off carefully. To freshen and clean matting, wipe it off in lukewarm water to which has been added a teaspoonful of Gold Dust washing powder to a basin of water. The matting should never be made thoroughly wet but wiped a little at a time with a damp cloth and the water should be changed frequently.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The department of home and education of the Twentieth Century club will again secure this year young apple trees for distribution among the school children of the city, at the smallest possible cost. Last year the committee of education of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs secured several thousand apple trees to be distributed for planting to the school children of the state and Duluth children were greatly interested in the work, an order for 1,100 trees being sent in from this city. The work of interesting the children, receiving the orders and distributing the trees, was supervised by Mrs. J. H. Crowley, chairman of the department of home and education of the club. The federation is not undertaking the work this year, and so this department of the club is making arrangements for the Duluth children to order the trees, if they so desire. Correspondence is now going on with the nurseries, and the orders will probably be taken next week and the trees be here ready for planting in April.

At the business meeting of the travel class of this department of the club, which was held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. J. H. Crowley was re-elected chairman of the department, and leader of the class. Mrs. L. A. Larson was elected secretary of the department. The study for next year was informally discussed, and a committee of five will be appointed by the chairman to decide upon the outline of work for next year.

DUE TO SMALLPOX

Was Mrs. H. James' Death in Athens.

Word has just been received in St. Paul of the details of the death of Mrs. Howard James of that city, whose sudden death was such a shock to her many friends in America. Mrs. James died at Athens, Greece, and the details which have just been received relate that her death was due to malignant smallpox and was most tragic. She was seized with the disease suddenly upon her arrival in Greece, and in accordance with the health laws of the community was held in a detention hospital away from her friends, and neither her husband nor little daughter were with her when death came. The laws there demanded that after a hurried funeral the body should be buried in an isolated cemetery, there to remain not less than five years. If her friends desire to bring her body to America, it cannot be done until 1914.

Mr. James formerly lived in this city and he and his wife are well known to many Duluthians.

SLOW IMPROVEMENT.

House Decoration Becoming More Simple.

"We have lived through the hand-painted craze, when nothing was safe from the would-be artist, whether in the form of a rolling-pin or a coal scuttle," says Dorothy Tuke Priestman in her recent book, "Art and Economy in Home Decoration."

"Having survived this stage, the drapery epidemic overtook us; 'tidies' on the chairs, 'draperies' on the mantel and 'throws' on the furniture. Curtains of heavy texture, trimmed and looped, drained the pocketbook and were the terror of discriminating minds.

"Next the bric-a-brac habit overcame us. Dreadful overmantles with cubbyholes were put on the market. They were naturally overladen with useless vases and imitation Dresden figures."

To be sure, as the author points out, the pillow epidemic is still in full sway, yet there are beautiful pillow covers to select from. Well-designed furniture, appropriate to the room where it is intended to be placed, may be had for the seeking, and this point is well emphasized. It is not difficult, nor need it be expensive, to carry out a good color scheme bychoosing a suitable rug, and artistic draperies. More and more there is recognition of the fact that harmony is essential. But, with harmony, the idea of simplicity must be kept in mind.

"Homes are apt to lack simplicity because the furnishings have been chosen without regard for one another. The pictures on the walls, the ornaments on shelves and tables, the carpets and rugs upon the floors, the draperies at windows and doors, contend, as it were, for pre-eminence, and defeat the effect of harmony. * * * The first step toward improving the home is, then, to do away with what is bad. There is more danger of destroying the appearance of a room by overcrowding than by barenss. We have all felt the futility of adding in order to improve.

"A few principles, the importance of which is clearly understood, and which are acted upon as occasion offers, will, ere long, work a happy revolution in surroundings. True home niksionaries are those who, in their own houses, study to make the furnishings serve useful purposes, and, at the same time, educate the taste. Not only are such environments satisfying in themselves, but they are examples, whose influence may be far-reaching."

BORDERED DRESSES

To Be Fashionable During Summer.

The reappearance of borders in all the best shops and among the finer grades of imported and domestic materials shows very clearly that the straight plaited skirts will be much in evidence this spring and summer, says Helen Berkeley-Lloyd in the April Delineator. The borders are so perfectly bewitching that no woman can resist them, and it is really not necessary that she should, for they come in all prices to suit all purses. Among the more expensive materials there are the loveliest things in the world for bridesmaids' dresses and garden party frocks; for the girl who is to graduate, are the new embroidered flouncings. In white and pale colors, that run from forty to sixty inches wide and are deep enough to be utilized in a dozen different ways. The new ginghams are really beautiful, especially the plain blues and pinks with wide band borders of deeper blue or crimson at the bottom. And among the less expensive materials that can be found at absurdly low prices are all sorts of pretty dimities, batistes and muslins that make dear little dresses for small girls.

But for most of us workaday mortals "sufficient unto the day" is the law that regulates our wardrobes, and summer dresses are something of a day-dream at present. The needs of the moment lie decidedly along the lines of spring suits rather than cotton dresses. The new woolen materials have only been in the shops about a month, but already it is easy to see the general trend of popular fancy. Setting aside serges, cheviots and panamas, whose social position never varies from year to year, there are many new and attractive tweeds, hopsackings and wool crashes. These latter are of British extraction and have always been the Englishwoman's first choice for trotteur suits. They come in subdued grays, greens and tans.

The last performance of "The Thief" will be given at the Lyceum this evening. The engagement has been a successful one, and the play has caused no little comment among Duluth theatergoers.

Charles Towle, advance manager for the big "Ben Hur" company, arrived in the city this morning from Winnipeg with ten stage carpenters, and attacked the Lyceum stage. The stage will have to be strengthened and overhauled for the big production. The company consists of 105 people, several race horses and several carloads of scenery. The company will arrive on a special train Monday morning. Klaw & Erlanger, who own the production, refuse to allow it to appear in any city until the stage has been tested and strengthened, if necessary, in order to avoid all possibilities of an accident.

"The Girls From Berlin," with Corinne featured in the cast, will be the attraction at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee. WEST END

WILL EMPLOY NIGHT WATCHMAN

As soon as the West end launch owners replace the brass fittings and machinery in their boats for the coming season, they will employ a night watchman to look after the boathouses at the foot of Twenty-first avenue, where most of the boathouses are located.

At present, there is nothing in most of the houses but the actual hulls of the boats, which are a bit cumbersome for thieves to take away, but when the brass fittings and expensive machinery parts are put in for the summer, the boatsheds will offer as great fields for the enterprising burglars as they have in the past.

Time and again, the West end boat houses have been broken into and valuable parts of the boat equipment stolen. In few cases have the offenders been apprehended or the stolen property restored to the owners.

The launch enthusiasts have figured it out that they will be money ahead if they stop the depredations of the thieves by employing a night watchman as soon as the season opens.

The West enders will organize a launch owners' protective association or something similar and will each bear a share of the cost of hiring the guard.

CONCERT IS CALLED OFF

Mme. Eames and Gogorza Will Not Visit Duluth.

Baritone's Illness in Minneapolis Prevents His Appearance.

Mme. Emma Eames and Emilio de Gogorza will not appear in Duluth. M. Gogorza is suffering from a severe cold, and Mme. Eames feels unequal to giving the concert program alone.

The noted soprano and M. Gogorza sang a concert engagement at Minneapolis last evening, although the baritone was then suffering from a severe cold. He showed a great willingness to come on to Duluth and trust to providence and such remedies as the doctors could give, that he might be able to sing, but his physicians decreed that even if the attempt were made, it would certainly prove a lasting injury to his voice. The management felt that there was nothing to do but call off the Duluth concert.

It is a matter of great regret to the Duluth public and to Manager Marshall of the Lyceum, for this was one of the few musical events that was assured of a packed house. The Lyceum was almost sold out for the concert, and of course the money will be refunded ticket purchasers at the box office.

The present tour of Mme. Eames and M. Gogorza has been enlivened by the New York activities of the latter's wife, who within the week has filed suit for divorce naming Mme. Eames in the suit. The resulting notoriety has attracted much attention to the Western concert tour.

With the return of winter, bright and snappy though it be, interest is revived in mince pies and pork roasts. The cold comfort offered by fish, fine brain food though it be, is even less desirable than usual when the mercury unexpectedly goes down to zero.

Even the commonest vegetables are rather expensive, and squash, which is sold by the pound, is cut up into three or four or five-pound pieces for the accommodation of small households. Cabbage, either old or new, is not cheap, but home grown lettuce is a cent less expensive than it was.

Oranges and grape fruit are very plentiful.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

EASY FOR THE HERALD TEAM

The Tribune Bowlers Fall Down in Three Straight Bowling Games.

The Herald bowlers last night took the News Tribune team into camp on the Central alleys, defeating them by 235 pins.

The men from the evening paper took the three straight games and didn't half try at that.

Since The Herald team has reorganized and spent a few evenings at practice, they now feel confident of defeating the Tribune bunch at any time. That the games might be made interesting so that the men would all show up at the alleys on the occasion of the contests, they suggest that the series of three, which is to be rolled next week be for a purse of from $10 to $25.

The scores made last night follow:

TICKET BOOKS ARE POPULAR

Duluth Management Finds No Difficulty in Disposing of Them.

The ticket books being issued by the Duluth baseball club are going like hot cakes. Al Kuehnow said this morning that if they continue to go as they have up to this time, there will be no difficulty in disposing of all that have been issued and the necessary $3,000 raised.

The tickets are transferable, can be used at any time, and are good for any position inside the grounds. There is quite a saving in buying them in book form, and this is probably the reason they are already so popular.

The Duluth management, in addition to the many other changes made in the policy of the club this year, is considering the advisability of inaugurating the rain check system in this city. In all the big baseball towns of the country, checks are given at each game. If rain or bad weather interferes with the game the holder of the ticket is entitled to see the next game played on the home grounds free of charge. It is thought that this would please the fans greatly, and it is probable that the matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the league to be held in St. Paul Sunday.

It is said that Baker, Koepping and Ness may play ball with the Duluth team this year. The arrangements are incomplete with these players as yet and nothing will be definitely known until some time later in the spring.

COLORED CHAMP CHANGES PLANS

Johnson to Appear for a Week at Chicago Theater.

Chicago, March 17.—Champion Jack Johnson changed his mind again late last night on the subject of his plans for the immediate future. He will remain in Chicago for a week, having signed a contract with a local theater. This disposes of his New York and Galveston trips for the present.

Johnson last night acted as referee in a match in which Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler of the world, threw both Jack Leon and Paul Martinson.

MOTOR RACES ON LAKE WORTH

The Buffalo Courier Wins Mile Event by Eleven Seconds.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 17.—The fifth annual motor boat carnival and races on Lake Worth, under the auspices of the Palm Beach Power Boat association, opened yesterday under favorable conditions. The only event in the morning was the speed trials for the Palm Beach Challenge cup. The cup, however, has to be won twice by the same owner before becoming his bona fide property.

Six trials were given over the mile course. Only three boats entered, the Buffalo Courier, owned by W. J. Connors of the Buffalo Yacht club; the Trente-Sept and Bruiser, owned by George Gingras of the Euclid Yacht club. The race between the Courier and the Trente-Sept was close, the Courier winning the event by eleven seconds.

The first event of the afternoon was a speed contest for Florida designed and constructed boats only, nine miles, no time allowance, for the Pabst Blue Ribbon challenge cup to the winner, and the Rainart cup to the second.

The Trente-Sept, Dennison Third, owned by Christopher Gallagher of the Cape May Yacht club, and the Possum, owned by Lieut. H. L. Willoughby of the New York Yacht club, competed.

The Trente-Sept won an easy victory, running away from her competitors from the start. Dennison Third finished second.

The last event of the day was the Class A open-to-all boats, nine-mile handicap, for the Benjamin Douglas cup. Kitty Sparks won, Trente-Sept second, and Buffalo Courier third.

DOWN TO FINALS IN BAGLEY EVENT

Dunlop and Dinham Will Play the Deciding Contest.

Royal Alworth was defeated at the curling club last night in the semi-finals in the Bagley event by Bert Dunlop. Dunlop will tonight meet Dinham in the finals for the Bagley trophy, and as both rinks are strong ones, the contest will be watched with interest.

In the 6 o'clock draw played earlier in the evening, Dunlop defeated Hall in the Class A finals. This gave Dunlop the right to meet Alworth in the semi-finals.

In the bonspiel being played between the Class C rinks for the possession of the board of trade buttons, Dave Stocking defeated Dinham by a score of 15 to 10, and Feetham won from Bradley by a score of 9 to 8.

BEGIN WORK ON NEW CHURCH

Endion Methodists Will Have New Home by Sept. 1.

It is expected that work will be begun this week on the new Endion Methodist church, at the corner of Nineteenth avenue east and First street.

The work on the building has been delayed some time owing to the building materials not arriving on scheduled time. They are here now standing loaded on cars on the tracks, and as soon as they can be transferred to the building site, work will be begun.

The excavation was made and the foundations laid last November, but during the winter no work has been done, and the congregation of the church have been forced to wait in resignation. The building contract calls for the church to be finished Sept. 1 next, and until then services will continue to be held in the old church, which has been moved down the avenue, to make room for the new building.

The new church will be a handsome structure, built of dark red brick and trimmed with Flemish oak. In this respect it will somewhat resemble the Minneapolis club building. The brick work will extend to the gables, which will be of timbers and plaster. Judging from the plans, the new Endion church will be a structure well in keeping with the beautiful homes in the East end. When it is finished and furnished, the entire cost of the church will be approximately $40,000.

WINS FIVE-MILE RACE.

George Bonhag Also Beats Record Made by Tom Collins.

Madison Square Garden, New York, March 17.—George V. Bonhag of the Irish-American A. C. gave a grand exhibition of his prowess as a runner when he won the five-mile rate at Madison Square Garden last night in 24:59 2-5. This beat the best previous record of 25:19 2-5 made by Tom Collins at the indoor championship here last year.

In the second trial heat of the 70-yards high hurdle handicap, A. B. Shaw of Dartmouth, from scratch, equalled the world's record of 9 1-5 seconds. In the final heat Shaw was beaten by a few inches. Dwight of Princeton, with 12 feet, winning. These few inches deprived Shaw of making a new world's record.

IS APPRECIATED.

Venerable Archdeacon Appleby Attracting Attention in England.

In appreciation of his good work, the parishioners of Wyberton, Lincolnshire, England, recently presented Venerable Archdeacon T. H. M. Appleby, first archdeacon of Minnesota, with a gold pencil and an illuminated address, bearing seventy-six signatures, which was executed in Boston, Lincolnshire. Archdeacon Appleby's native town.

Archdeacon Appleby is coming in for a good deal of attention in England, and on Feb. 28, the occasion of the first visit to Beverly of the Hon. Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of York, Archbishop Appleby was the officiating clergyman at the ceremonials held in honor of his grace. He will return to Duluth early in June to look after some business interests here.

UNUSUAL PROBLEMS

Mr. MacVeagh Grapples Task of Hit or Miss Finance.

Situation Confronting the Treasury Head Analyzed by R. B. Armstrong.

Chicago, March 17.—"Until the United States can have a chancellor of the exchequer, a minister of finance, or a secretary of the treasury clothed with absolute power to control the budget of expenditures, the United States government income and outgo will always be a question of 'hit or miss,'" declared Robert B. Armstrong, formerly assistant secretary of the treasury, in pointing out the unusual problems which will beset the secretary of the treasury during the Taft administration. "A deficit is always a possibility," he said; "extravagances, duplication of work and eccentricities in government expense are ever present and an increasing menace to proper government financial management.

"One of the queer anomalies of the American form of government is that there is no absolute responsibility for government expenditures. We have no budget. The secretary of the treasury must transmit to congress the requests of all executive departments for appropriations. The formula in Washington for an appropriation is this: Find out what you think you want, multiply it by two, and take what you get.

"All of the demands for expenditures are concentrated in the appropriation committees of both houses of congress, and there pressure is exerted without let or hindrance, except the rebellion of the members of that committee. No executive officer of the government has the power to limit or co-ordinate the demands for expenditures. It is the executive department of the government arrayed against the legislative to get it possibly can in the way of appropriation, and then it cheerfully puts the blame upon congress for whatever there may be."

"Hit or Miss" Finance.

Of the problems undertaken by Secretary MacVeagh, a Chicago man, Mr. Armstrong has appreciation from his experience in the treasury during which time he was for several months acting secretary, although the problems have been greatly complicated by conditions which have developed since that time. Mr. Armstrong, now president of the Consolidated Casualty company, of Chicago, called upon to analyze the present tremendous burden taken up by Secretary MacVeagh, pointed out the financing of Uncle Sam is "hit or miss" and the elements that enter into the calculation of the treasury's head.

"Three unusual problems confront the secretary of the treasury now," he said. "A growing deficit, accompanied by a disturbance of income both in internal revenue and customs. The enforcement of the new tariff law. The safeguarding of expenditure in the colossal undertaking of paying for the construction of the Panama canal, with its daily drain of dollars.

"In addition to these abnormal and unusual expenditures, the amount necessary for the ordinary expenses of the government is greatly increased. While the wall erected by the framers of the Dingley tariff was sufficiently high to protect American commerce from foreign invasion at the time it was framed, it has so stimulated the production of the necessities and luxuries within the United States, that some of the possibilities of tariff revenue have been destroyed. This, together with the great increase in the running expenses of the government and the unusual expenditures for the causes above explained has brought about a deficit of unusual proportion. The two most obvious courses left open to him are: First, the issue of bonds. Second, the restoration of some of the war revenue taxes which disappeared shortly after the war with Spain.

Internal Revenue Smaller.

"A widespread wave of prohibition and the relief of denatured alcohol from taxation have tended to decrease, rather than increase, the receipts from internal revenue, and the secretary of the treasury will probably find it absolutely necessary to replace the internal revenue stamp upon telegrams, railroad and steamship tickets, etc., to fill the void caused by the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors in large sections of this country.

"The country has undertaken to conserve its natural wealth; it costs money. The country has undertaken to regulate abuses in business: it costs money. The country has undertaken the greatest engineering problem of the century: it costs money. The country has entered into an ambitious extension of its domain to the Philippines: it costs money. There has been more trouble on the beat of the policemen of the Western Hemisphere: it costs money. The extension of the rural free delivery, the developments of the department of agriculture and the safeguarding of the food products of America, all take money. No one doubts the wisdom of these expenditures, because many of them are an insurance against socialism and they will all pay big dividends to posterity, yet that offers little consolation to the secretary of the treasury, who is face to face with a deficit already for the fiscal year of approximately $90,000,000."

All who suffer from hacking Cough, or any trouble with the Throat and Lungs, will find relief by using Brown's Bronchial Troches. A safe and simple remedy, long held in the highest esteem by clergymen, singers and speakers.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

During the warm Summer months Catarrh sufferers are not troubled with the effects of the disease, as in Winter. This is true because in the heated season every pore and outlet of the skin is open, and a constant, copious evaporation carries off with it a large percentage of the impurities and poisons which produce Catarrh. But at the first sign of cooler weather the sufferer's comfort ends; the skin does not secrete as freely, a congested condition of the system takes place, and soon every miserable symptom of Catarrh is harassing and causing discomfort to the unfortunate ones.

Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, one which no amount of local treatment will ever reach and permanently cure. The beneficial effects of washes, sprays, inhalations, lotions, etc., are only temporary, and when left off the old condition returns because the blood is infected with catarrhal matter and impurities. This inflames and irritates the mucous membrane and tissues and produces the symptoms of ringing noises in the head and ears, mucus in the throat, headaches, watery eyes, partial deafness, sore throat, general impairment of the health, etc.

To cure Catarrh permanently the blood must be purified, and the system cleansed of all morbid matters, and at the same time strengthened and built up. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head, goes down to the very bottom of the trouble in the blood, and makes a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. removes every particle of the catarrhal matter from the circulation, making this vital fluid pure, fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, because they are nourished with pure, health-giving blood, the head is cleared, mucus stops dropping back into the throat, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers and cures Catarrh by driving out the cause from the system. Being made entirely of healthful vegetable ingredients S. S. S. does not contain any habit forming drugs, which really do not cure Catarrh but often ruin the health; nor will S. S. S. injure the most delicate systems. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

NOSE STOPPED UP AND INCESSANT COUGH.

Gentlemen:—I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took a great deal of medicine without any benefit. Several doctors told me I could not be cured.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly.

I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote to you. On your recommendation I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles, I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. I will always be glad to recommend it to other sufferers.

Respectfully, MRS. M. L. WESSIRMAN.
2710 Caroline St., St. Louis, Mo.

CURED OF CATARRH.

Dear Sirs:—At the age of five years I contracted a bad case of Catarrh. It began with a profuse watery discharge from my nose. The matter falling into my throat kept me constantly hawking and spitting, and my breath, too, was fearfully offensive, but S. S. S. has cured me sound and well of the Catarrh and I cheerfully recommend it to the public.

When I began taking S. S. S. it was for another disease which the doctor called Tuberculosis of the bone, and since I began the use of your remedy, S. S. S., four of the five tubercles have healed and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. OSCAR WARB.

LOST HIS VOICE.

Goldsboro, N. C.

I suffered severely with Catarrh for a number of years and for eighteen months the disease was so bad that I lost my voice in consequence of it. I tried various treatments and doctors and was finally given up to die. I then took S. S. S. according to directions and in due course of time my Catarrh was entirely cured. My voice was restored and I have enjoyed good health ever since.
W. H. GRIFFIN.

CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDS S. S. S.

For the past twenty-five years I have been in the habit of taking a course of S. S. S. every spring as a blood purifier, and have always been well pleased with the results. I had Catarrh for a number of years which was cured by S. S. S. I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. as the best blood purifier on earth. Not only did it cure my Catarrh but I have known of its being used in other cases with entirely satisfactory results. LOCK McDANIEL,

NURSE WILL BE EMPLOYED

Active Campaign Against White Plague Begun in Duluth.

Churches and Labor Unions Are Asked to Aid.

At the meeting of the Commercial club of the Duluth anti-tuberculosis committee last evening, plans were outlined for the work of the committee during the present year. It was decided that a visiting nurse should be engaged at a salary of $50 a month and that the duty of this nurse should be to visit and care for the consumptives of the city who come under the notice of the committee.

This nurse will be one who has had experience in the work. It is not the intention of the members of the committee to have pauper cases of tuberculosis treated. Dr. E. L. Tuohy, who has had experience with work of this nature, pointed out to the members of the committee that it had not been found practical to treat these cases in this way, and that arrangements had been made with the poor farm for the care of consumptives who have no homes.

The Duluth committee will be part of the state organization. As such it will contribute part of its funds to the state organization, but will not contribute funds that have been specially contributed to the local organization. The membership fee of the organization was fixed at $1, and it is expected that over 1,000 members will be secured from among the business men of this city. A special committee will canvass the city for members.

It is believed that churches, labor unions, lodges, and organizations of every nature, will lend every assistance to the work of the committee.

B. F. Neff is the president of the Duluth organization. The work is now upon a businesslike basis, and from now on the work of caring for the consumptives of the city will be in the hands of competent persons.

Progress was reported upon the bill before the state legislature, providing for the construction of a county sanitarium for consumptives, and the members of the executive committee were instructed to keep in touch with the bill. The future meetings of the committee will be held at noon so that more of the members of the general committee can be present. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Following are the standing committees:

Finance—P. S. Annecke, G. G. Hartley, B. G. Segog, W. D. Underhill, John G. Williams.

Legislation—George R. Laybourn, R. F. Grant, Dr. David Graham, R. E. Denfeld, H. V. Eva.

Publicity—C. S. Mitchell, J. S. Pardee, S. H. Bingham, George M. Jensen.

Sanatorium site—T. W. Hugo, Dr. W. R. Bagley, Dr. John Jackola, George M. Gray, Mrs. J. L. Washburn.

approval of assignments with Mr. Clark.

During the debate on this resolution the alleged bolt of Democrats was discussed. Representative Kellhar of Massachusetts defended his course in voting for the Fitzgerald amendments. "My people wanted some relief from those rules, and I was willing to give them what I could get," he declared.

Questions were asked of him from several members, and finally the Massachusetts man shouted:

"The Democratic party will not amount to much until it gets more men from the North in it."

Representative Harrison said that he believed he was not bolting in voting for the Fitzgerald amendment.

"I would vote the same way under similar circumstances," he added. "But I am always willing to abide by the caucus of my party. I attended the caucus Monday night that adopted the resolution placing with the minority leader the approval of all committee assignments of Democrats. I shall abide by that action." He was greeted with loud applause.

Representative Broussard attended the caucus but did not speak. Representative Fitzgerald was not present. There were 137 members present.

Another caucus will be held March 22 to act on the rules to govern future meetings of the Democratic members.

had been done, as a reasonable person would have regained self-control, and a killing under these circumstances would be deemed by the law malicious and not the result of provocation, and, therefore, murder. In other words, if there had been sufficient time for the passion to cool the provocation will not mitigate a subsequent killing to manslaughter.

"The question is not whether the blow actually struck in the continuance of passion, but whether there had been a reasonable time for the passion to cool in the case of any ordinary person. This must depend upon the circumstances of the particular case under investigation.

"Involuntary manslaughter is a case of killing where it plainly appears that death was not intended, but was the result of some unlawful act.

"You enter upon this investigation with the presumption that the defendant is not guilty of any crime, and this presumption stands as a witness for him until it is rebutted and overturned by competent and creditable proof, sufficiently strong to satisfy you beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of some one of the offenses which have been heretofore defined and explained to you."

SAVE HORSES FROM BEING CREMATED

Twelve Animals Have Close Call in Eveleth Livery Fire.

Eveleth, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twelve horses came near being cremated, early this morning, when fire was discovered in Wilson's livery barn, and the animals were led to safety.

Four men, who were going home about 2 a. m., saw smoke pouring from the barn and, after turning in an alarm, dashed inside and led out the horses. The various rigs were also pulled out. The fire department found a big blaze in the hay in the loft, that had probably been started by tramps, and soon had the fire extinguished, although it was rather difficult to get at.

The total loss will not exceed $200. If the men returning home had not discovered the fire, the horses would probably have perished.

PATRON SAINT WELL HONORED

Ireland's Patron Saint Subject of Eloquent Address in Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Patrick's entertainment, given last night at Vail hall, was attended by a large audience. Every seat was taken, while standing room was at a premium.

The program was opened by a selection by the Fayal band, and musical numbers were then given by a chorus of mixed voices, singing, "Come back to Erin." Miss Josephine Sterle gave a splendid piano number, "Wild Ride." She had to respond to an encore. Rev. Father Floyd of St. Patrick's church, who had charge of the entertainment, sang "The Wearing of the Green," to the great delight of the audience. The audience demanded an encore.

A song by Miss Gertrude De Noble was one of the best musical numbers of the evening. She, also, had to respond to an encore. A string quartet, composed of A. E. Schneider, first violin; Miss Margaret Murphy, second violin; Miss Bessie Murphy, cellist, and Miss Josephine Murphy, harpist, then gave two numbers, one of which was "Hungarian Dance."

City Attorney James Boyle was then introduced by Father Floyd to deliver the address of the evening. Mr. Boyle told of the greatness of Ireland before the English invaders had ravaged it. He paid a tribute to St. Patrick. Schools and colleges were started by St. Patrick and missionaries were sent forth from Ireland to educate the people of Europe. He said that the Irishman should be proud of his ancestors. The hatred between the Englishman and the Irishman, the speaker said, was dying out. The leaders in England are beginning to see the justice of the Irish demands. There is hope that the old nationality, language and customs will be revived; that the dread disease will soon be stamped out. He told of the various leagues which are trying to accomplish by thorough and quiet means those ends. The speaker lauded the great things done by Irishmen in the Revolutionary war and of the society called "The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick." From a careful study of the situation, Mr. Boyle said the time is not far distant when the Irishman will have life, liberty and all that goes with that, and that home rule will be granted to them by the English people.

The program was then closed by a number of musical selections, a cornet solo by Mr. Osborn and some string numbers.

TWO FIRES FROM SAME CHIMNEY

Fire Department Called Twice to the Exchange Hotel.

The fire department this morning had two runs to the Exchange hotel, 112 East Superior street, where, in another fire six weeks ago, a fireman was killed by bricks from a falling chimney.

The blazes this morning did not amount to anything, and were quickly extinguished. They were due to a defective chimney. The first call came about 6 o'clock, and by the time the fire department reached the scene the flames had gained scarcely any headway. The fire was put out and the department returned to headquarters.

An hour later another alarm was sounded from the same place, and a second run was necessary. The fire in this case was due to the same cause as the first, and before leaving the firemen insisted that the management of the hotel fix the chimney, so as to prevent a recurrence of the trouble.

CHANCE OF A LIFETIME

Duluth Should Not Fail to Secure Rodin Statue, Says House.

Opportunity That Most Cities Would Be Eager to Grasp.

Duluth will miss the opportunity of a lifetime should the citizens refuse to take advantage of the opportunity of securing a work of Rodin, the famous French sculptor.

This statement is an epitome of the remarks made by F. E. House, president of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, before the members of the Commercial club, at the weekly noon-talk today. Mr. House pointed out that the offer of the great French sculptor was one that must be quickly taken advantage of if the citizens of Duluth want the work, as Rodin is 69 years of age and will have, at best, but short use of his great ability.

Mr. House stated that in these days of strenuous commercial endeavor, when so much stress is placed upon the commercial side of life, it was good to get upon an artistic subject, and for that reason he was glad to take up the subject of the Greysolon Du Lhut monument.

He stated that the question had been brought to his attention by a prominent citizen of this city. The subject was talked about for some time, and when Mr. and Mrs. House went to France they met M. Rodin. Through an interpreter Mr. House broached the question to the noted sculptor, and he at once become very much interested in it. Mr. House explained that it would be very fitting that the greatest of living sculptors, himself a Frenchman, should commemorate the great French explorer, Greysolon Du Lhut.

Will Cost $30,000.

The idea caught the fancy of the sculptor. As the negotiations progressed, Rodin was sent maps and photographs of Duluth, and has made the members of the Greysolon Du Lhut Monument association a definite offer. His price is $30,000. One-third of this amount is to be paid when the commission for the work is given; one-third when the work is half completed, and the remainder of the sum when the work is accepted by the city of Duluth, or the Monument association.

Inasmuch as George Bernard Shaw and other prominent men in the world of English art and literature had hard work in persuading Rodin to make an offer upon a monument of Shakespeare, and when he finally made his terms, they were $100,000, the citizens of this city can see what an opportunity they are being offered.

Mr. House stated that when Rodin became interested in the Greysolon Duluth matter, he dropped the Shakespeare negotiations. That is precisely where the matter stands at the present time.

"Now, as to what the Greysolon Du Lhut Monument association has done," said Mr. House. "We have gone about raising a guarantee fund, so we might go ahead and give Rodin the commission for the work. I must impress upon you the fact that Rodin is an old man, and that there is need for hurry in this matter. We have the been as successful as we anticipated, and we have decided to let the matter drop for three or four months, believing that the times will be better, and that we will have more success in raising the fund. Two or three plans for raising this fund are under consideration by the members of the association at the present time.

"We are keeping up the spirit of the association. We are keeping it active, so that when the time comes we will be able to go right on with the work of raising money.

"The plan is to raise the money by subscription. Of course, some one will have to own the statue. It would be the property of the men who furnished the guarantee fund, until it was turned over to the members of the association. It is the wish of Monsieur Rodin that every man, woman and child in Duluth give a little mite toward the statue, and that will be the plan followed in securing the subscriptions.

Want All to Contribute.

"We believe that the bulk of the money will have to be furnished by those citizens who are able to give bountifully, but it is our wish that every citizen give what he is able toward securing this work.

"There are no great works of Rodin's in North America. There is a small medallion of Rodin's in the Metropolitan museum of New York. There is a small work in New England. There are two statues in South America. Letting alone the artistic side for a moment, it can be readily seen that the citizens of this city would be getting a great commercial bargain. The statue upon its completion would be worth a great deal more than the citizens of this city paid for it. It would make Duluth a national center of art. It would attract visitors from all over the country to Duluth. People in other cities with whom I have talked became immensely interested in the project, informing me that if Duluth did not accept the offer of Rodin, we were missing the opportunity of a lifetime.

"I believe that the children of this city should be given certain art advantages. I believe that none better than this could be given them.

"When the king of England visited France, he called upon Monsieur Rodin before he called upon the president of the republic. When Monsieur Rodin went to England, the horses were taken from his carriage and the crowd pulled his carriage through the streets. He is a great man and a great artist. Because he is a great man, and is above pecuniary considerations, he has given us an opportunity to secure a great work at a cost below its commercial value, and we are making a great mistake if we do not take advantage of it."

Mr. House was introduced by W. E. Magner, president of the Commercial club.

Receipt That Cures Weak Men—Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man, who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So, I have determined to send a copy of the prescription, free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor-failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man, anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what, I believe, is the quickest-acting, restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so, cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4671 Luck Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid receipt, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, free of charge.

Principal Lynch of the Blaine is investigating the affair as thoroughly as possible, in order to place the blame for the "muckerism". It is believed by many that the Blaine students were the instigators of the brawl, as it is reported that only members of the Nelson Dewey school were injured.

WOODSMAN IS KILLED

William Hoberg Loses His Life Working Near Leech Lake.

Struck by Falling Tree, He Dies in a Short Time.

Walker, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Hoberg, a woodsman, was killed at the Northland Pine company's camp on Leech lake yesterday, while at work.

Hoberg was assisting in felling a tree and for some unaccountable reason failed to get out of the path of the tree as it came to the ground. He was struck on the back and died a short time after.

He has a sister living at Akeley, who was notified of the accident. The deceased has worked in the woods for several winters past, spending his summers on his small farm near Pine River. He was 55 years old.

LOVE OF MOTHER PROVES UNDOING

Maine Jail-Breaker Is Caught Visiting Parent in Crow Wing County.

Brainerd, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Wilson, who is wanted in Farmington, Me., for breaking jail while awaiting trial for homicide was arrested about three miles west of Pequot, in the northern part of Crow Wing county Monday by Village Marshal Grant of that place on telephonic orders from Sheriff Fred G. Reid of this city, and is in jail here.

Wilson is said to have shot a man named LeRoy Breckler, and escaped from the Farmington, Me., jail while awaiting trial for murder in July, 1904. His mother resides at Pequot and for nearly a year the authorities in Maine and the local officers have been in correspondence about the matter. About a week or ten days ago Wilson came to Pequot to visit his mother. Sheriff Reid at once communicated with the Maine authorities and was ordered by telegraph to have Wilson arrested. Sheriff Reid received a telegram yesterday that Sheriff D. S. Coolidge of Farmington had left for Brainerd and he is expected here Thursday.

Wilson makes no denial of his identity and states that he will return to Maine without extradition papers. He talks freely of the shooting and claims he fired in self-defense. He refuses to talk, however, regarding his escape from the Farmington jail, beyond saying that the jailor, who was accused of assisting him, was innocent. He had outside help he says, but will never tell who assisted him.

MIDDLE RIVER "DRY."

Saloons All Closed as Result of Recent Election.

Middle River, Minn., March 17—(Special to The Herald.)—Although the vote on the question of closing the saloons at the recent election was a tie, the city council, acting on the opinion of the attorney general and the advice of the village attorney, by a vote of three to two, ordered the saloons closed and this village is "dry" for the first time in four years.

The question was voted on a year ago and license carried by a large majority, and section 1528 of the revised laws of 1905 says where a vote is taken upon the question, such a vote stands until reversed by a subsequent election. On this section the majority of the council take their stand. In a written opinion, Judge Watts of this district holds the same view, as do also the majority of the attorneys. The matter will probably be taken into the courts by the saloon men.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Declaring that his conscience gave him no rest, and overflowing with religious fervor, George Watson of Crookston, Minn., entered the Northern Pacific ticket office at Nicollet and Washington avenues Monday, and paid $4, which, with 5 per cent interest, was the sum due the company for two rides which he stole four and one-half years ago from Wadena to Fargo and from Medina to Jamestown, N. D.

Watson declared that he had lately attended a revival given by the Salvation Army at Crookston, and being converted, wanted to make restitution for his iniquities.

THREATENS BANK CASHIER.

Charles Simmons Would Force Little Falls Banker to Make Loan.

Little Falls, Minn., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Simmons of this city was taken into custody Monday on the charge of threatening the life of J. K. Martin, cashier of the First National bank, while interviewing the banker in his office relative to securing a loan of $1,000 on some land in Crow Wing county. Simmons denies the charge, claiming that he was attempting to draw a pencil from his pocket during an animated conversation with the banker, when the latter jumped on him and drew his weapon in self-defense.

According to Banker Martin's story, he told Simmons he would look the land over and would let Simmons know his decision in a few days. He further stated that he would assist Simmons out of the difficulty if possible, and that he might expect an answer promptly.

At this Simmons, he says, became excited and said that it was imperative that he have the money at once. Mr. Martin responded that it was impossible to make him the loan without first looking up the land. Simmons then said that no few days would go, but that he must have the money at once, and is alleged to have pulled out a 38 Iver Johnson. Mr. Martin grabbed Simmons and held his arms while he called for assistance from those in the front of the bank. Simmons was overpowered and relieved of his weapon. He was then turned over to Deputy Sheriff F. X. Heroux and placed in the county jail.

PRAISES WISCONSIN CENTRAL

Canadian Pacific Official Surprised at Road's Good Condition.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific, while here after a partial trip over the Wisconsin Central with President Pennington and General Superintendent Potter of the latter road expressed himself as pleased with the condition of the property.

"I was pleasantly surprised at seeing the good condition of the road," he said. "I believe that with the proper development the Wisconsin Central can become one of the most valuable pieces of railroad property in the country. The road runs through the heart of the farming section in this state, and there is none finer on the continent. As this is my first trip of inspection over the road I can only draw no comparison between its condition past and present.

"As for the plans which the directors have in view I do not wish to say anything at the present time. I know it is not the wish of Mr. Pennington that any plans should be discussed at this time.

Sir Thomas said that the road would be transferred to the Soo inside of a month, following which the proposed improvements would no doubt be announced.

"There is no question that the Wisconsin Central will be strengthened in every department by the strong connection which it will receive by the union with the Soo road," he continued. "It will make a great system, and the old Central road will have a chance to develop as it should and as it deserves."

The Woman Who Worries

Fretful, nervous, worrying women come in for a good deal of censure for the discomfort they cause others, but according to the medical profession they are rather to be pitied than blamed.

Discussing this matter recently, an eminent physician said: "I cure women with the following simple, inexpensive prescription, which any good druggist can fill: Alpen Seal, 2 ounces; Fluid Extract Black Haw, 1 ounce; Pure Water, 5 ounces. A teaspoonful of this preparation before each meal and at bedtime, taken for a few days before, during, and after each period; will stop all pain, soothe the nerves, cure cramps, banish menstrual headaches, and clear the complexion. If taken faithfully as directed by women who suffer needlessly each month, will solve the problem of the Woman Who Worries as a result of painful, profuse, scanty or irregular menstruation."

GOOD, HONEST, SQUARE-DEAL

Medicines like those of Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, warrant their makers in printing their every ingredient, which they do, upon their outside wrappers, verifying the correctness of the same under oath. This open publicity places these medicines in a class all by themselves. Furthermore, it warrants physicians in prescribing them largely as they do in their worst cases.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach and bowels, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), liver, bowels (as mucous diarrhea), or other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine.

For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American, medicinal, forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum. Don't do it.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Closing Prices Are Fractionally Higher Than on Previous Day.

Flax Soft and May Option Loses More Than Point.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 17.—Wheat was on a steadier basis than yesterday and the level was higher, at almost every stage. Closing prices showed slight gains.

There was nothing particularly bullish in the news and receipts continue large in the Northwest, but the sentiment was that the market had been sold enough and that a reaction was inevitable.

Cables were lower as a result of the weakness on this side yesterday. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅜d lower, Budapest ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

The May option closed ¼c higher in Duluth, ¼@⅝c higher in Chicago and St. Louis, a shade higher in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York, ⅝c higher in Kansas City and ⅛c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, a shade higher in Chicago and St. Louis, ¼c higher in Minneapolis, ⅛c lower in New York and a shade lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed 1⅛@1¼c lower in Chicago and ¼d to ⅝d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅝c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The decline in American markets yesterday, together with the bearish Bradstreet's statement, and the continued private reports received from America regarding the winter wheat outlook, stimulated larger offerings here, which resulted in a decline of ¼ to ⅝d. The decline was checked for a time by newspaper talk regarding the unfavorable political situation, and shorts became nervous, but the comparative steadiness of the consols dispelled earlier apprehension and renewed pressure developed. The market on the whole was narrow, and at midday the undertone was easier, with values ⅛ to ⅜d lower than yesterday, with the principal pressure in the far-distant months.

"Corn was steady at the start, with values unchanged to ¼d lower. Later, prices declined ⅛ to ⅜d, with the undertone easy. Pressure resulted from the lower American cabels and a small spot trade."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 40 against 50 last year, and at Minneapolis 92 against 329 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 132 against 379 last year. Chicago received 38 against 18 last year. Winnipeg received 118 against 101 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 396,000 bus, last year 582,000 bus. Shipments 237,000 bus, last year 341,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 136,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 430,000 bus, last year 555,000 bus. Shipments 553,000 bus, last year 551,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 34,000.

Wheat was active during the entire session in Duluth. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.14¾, advanced to $1.15⅜, declined to $1.15¼, reacted to $1.15⅝, went off to $1.14⅝@⅞, rallied to $1.15, declined to $1.14⅞ and closed at $1.14⅞, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.15¼, advanced to $1.15⅞, declined to $1.15⅜, reacted to $1.16¼, declined to $1.15⅛@⅜ and closed at $1.15¼, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet until the last hour, when considerable selling knocked the prices off more than a point. July flax was inactive and closed at $1.62½ bid. October flax sold at $1.37½, declined to $1.35½ and closed there. September flax sold at $1.42½, declined to $1.39 and closed at $1.39½.

Oats closed lower and other coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Falling Off in Wheat Receipts Disheartens the Bears.

Chicago, March 17.—A marked falling off in receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth disheartened the bears in the wheat pit today, and, as a result, offerings were light during the early part of the session and a strong tone prevailed. May advanced 1c from the previous close, and the July delivery made a gain of ¾c. A decline of ⅛d to ¾d at Liverpool tended to check demand. Prices at the start were unchanged to ⅝@⅞c higher, May being or $1.16¼ to $16.16¼, and July at $1.04 to $1.04⅜. Early in the day May advanced to $1.16½, while July sold up to $1.05.

The top for May was reached at $1.16⅝, and for July at $1.05⅛. The market slumped sharply in the final hour on general selling, prices declining more than 1c for all deliveries. May dropped to $1.15½ and July to $1.03¾. The close was weak, although prices were still a trifle above yesterday's final quotations. May closed at a net gain of ¼@⅝c at $1.15.¾. July was a shade higher at $1.04@¼.

The strength in wheat caused moderate firmness in the corn market, despite favorable weather for the movement. Trade was dull owing to the scarcity of offerings. May opened unchanged to a shade lower at 67¼c to 67⅛@67¼c and advanced to 67⅜c.

The market became extremely weak in the last half of the day on general selling by commission houses. May declined to 65¾@⅞c. The close was weak with May off 1⅜@¼c at 66c.

Oats were firm because of a fair demand by some of yesterday's short sellers. The market was chiefly affected by the strength of wheat and corn. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 54¼@54½c and advanced to 54⅜c.

An advance of 5@10c in the price of live hogs caused a firm tone in provisions. Tradin, however, was quiet. Prices at the opening were a shade to be higher.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: All useful classes met with easy clearance and the movement for today would have been much heavier but for the fact that a large number of buyers preferred to wait and fill their orders at tomorrow's big auction sale, when a big run of all classes of horses arrived during the day and will be sold in the ring tomorrow. With the approach of spring work the demand for farm horses will became more urgent. Some big consignments of big logging horses are billed to arrive on the market in a few days, which will meet with ready takers. This market has never been able to get enough of big work horses out of the woods to half meet the demand.

JUROR ASKED FOR A JOB

James M. Campbell forgot for a moment, the responsibilities and duties of a juryman this morning, and as a result the trial of the $30,000 personal injury damage suit of Edward L. Madden against the Duluth & Iron Range railroad was stopped when it was nearly ready to go to the jury.

During a recess, Campbell approached John Shea, roadmaster of the railroad, and asked him about a job as flagman, which he had in sight. When Mr. Shea discovered that Campbell was on the jury in the case in which he was interested, he immediately reported the conversation to C. O. Baldwin and Mr. Baldwin reported it to the court. The trial was immediately stopped.

CASH SPENT IN VOTE SECURING

Madison, Wis., March 17.—H. C. Keller of Baraboo, was the first witness in the senatorial primary investigation today. The total amount he received from the Stephenson fund was $200. He was not manager for Stephenson in Sauk county, but supported him. Keller conferred with Manager Edmonds in Milwaukee and was told to do whatever he thought necessary. Most of the $200 was spent in livery rigs, hotel bills and trips to Milwaukee.

Henry Overbeck, former state game warden, was next called. He said he supported Stephenson in the primary and received about $700 of his campaign fund. He did not keep any account or memorandum of what he paid out.

Witness said he gave three men in Kewaunee county $250 or $260 and $100 to Former Congressman E. S. Minor, in the Green Bay district. The amount to Minor was to be spent in getting votes to the polls. Most of the remainder was spent by himself during six weeks of campaigning.

Overbeck said he "made preliminary arrangements" with a man named Haslan of Appleton. He said he spent $100 more than he received. Asked as to how he knew, witness said he had a "Stephenson pocket" and a personal pocket."

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Started With Trivial Changes, But Became Strong.

United States Steel Rose on Publication of Annual Report.

New York, March 17.—Trivial price changes resulted from the light opening dealings in stocks today and the market showed no pronounced tone. Minneapolis & St. Louis ran off 1¾, and Consolidated Gas ⅝. Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis rose 1, and American Smelting ⅝.

Business increased largely, and there was an active demand for the metal stocks. United States Steel rose to 45⅝ and the preferred to 110½ after the publication of the annual report. The active railroad list did not rise proportionately with the industrials. The entire market eased off at 11 o'clock.

The advance met realizing sales, and prices reacted, and the general level was carried under last night. The market then steadied and become dull. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed strong. The upward movement lost its force after Reading had risen 3 points over last night, and some reaction followed. Westinghouse Electric gained 2, Union Pacific 1½, and Ontario & Western and Hocking Coal 1. Chicago Great Western preferred "B" lost a point. Prices stiffend again in the final quarter of an hour.

HOUSE TAKES HARD BLOW AT NORTHEASTERN MINNESOTA BY FAVORING TONNAGE TAX

Bill Goes Through With Only One Vote to Spare.

Result Made Possible by Many Members Lacking Backbone.

Splendid Fight by St. Louis County Delegation Was Unavailing.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because it had the power, and not because any considerable number of its members believed that they were doing the right thing, the house yesterday afternoon passed the Bjerge tonnage tax bill by a vote of 61 to 57.

This was one vote more than was necessary to pass it, and it was the closest fight that has been made this session. Only one member was absent, and this, too, was an unusual incident, as usually there are from half a dozen to thirty or more members absent on roll call.

One member who voted for the bill said last night, as he walked away from the capitol:

> "I am not proud of it. In fact, it is the nastiest thing that I ever remember having happened to me. I had pledged myself for a tonnage tax without knowing what it was. I have found out that it is unjust, oppressive and tyrannical. Yet to keep my pledge I had to vote for it."

There are twenty or more other members of the house in the same situation. Hardly one of them had the backbone or the manhood to vote his convictions and go home to face his people and tell them that they were

THE ROLL OF DISHONOR.

These are the members who voted last night, after five hours of argument, to impose a tax which robs a needy section of the state for the benefit of a richer and more fortunate part of the commonwealth, and that for a pound of flesh in the shape of tax relief for that large and prosperous section, jeopardizes the hope of Northeastern Minnesota that Duluth may become a great steel manufacturing center:

THOMAS F. COLE RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT OF THE OLIVER MINING COMPANY

THOMAS F. COLE.

Will Sever Connection With United States Steel Corporation.

Will Enjoy Necessary Recreation and Adequate Rest.

William J. Olcott Is Mentioned as His Probable Successor.

Rumors which have been current for some time to the effect that Thomas F. Cole, president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, would resign his position were confirmed by Mr. Cole yesterday. Mr. Cole's resignation will be forwarded to the officials of the Steel corporation today and it will become effective in the near future.

In explanation of his resignation, Mr. Cole says:

"I have been actively engaged in mining and railroad work in the copper and iron districts of Lake Superior for thirty-nine consecutive years, with but little rest.

"The work during the past ten years has been particularly arduous, the major part of my time having been spent on railway trains at night and around and in the mines during the day time.

"The business detail requiring careful attention during this period has been enormous in volume, the entire work taxing physical strength severely. I have resigned to take effect in the near future and have planned to hereafter enjoy necessary recreation and adequate rest.

"I have formed no plans for the Precautions Taken for Safety of Mr. Bishop in Italy.

Foreign Minister Gives Assurance to Ambassador Griscom.

Rome, March 18.—Ambassador Griscom had a talk this morning with Foreign Minister Tittoni regarding the threatening letters addressed to W. H. Bishop, American consul at Palermo, Sicily, in the matter of his activity in running down the men suspected of complicity in the plot against Lieut. Petrosini of New York, who was murdered at Palermo six days ago.

The foreign minister assured the ambassador that precautions to insure the safety of Bishop and the consulate have been taken. The building is being closely watched and Bishop is guarded every time he goes out.

COMPANY ORGANIZED TO BUILD DULUTH EXTENSION OF CANADIAN NORTHERN

Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific Company Is Name of Corporation.

Will Construct New Line From Virginia to Duluth.

Active Operations Will Be Commenced During Present Season.

For the purpose of constructing a railroad from Virginia to Duluth, the Duluth, Winnipeg & Pacific railroad was incorporated today, the papers being filed with the register of deeds.

The capital stock of the company is placed at $100,000, consisting of 1,000 shares of a par value of $100 each. The company is a 1,000 year corporation, and the incorporators are: Wirt H. Cook, president; J. L. Washburn, vice president; W. D. Bailey, secretary; L. I. Feetham, treasurer, and J. F. Walsh. These men also constitute the board of directors.

The company is understood to have been formed for the purpose of building the extension of the Rainy Lake road, now a part of the Canadian Northern, from Virginia to Duluth. It was reported in The Herald a few days ago that the road would in all probability be built this year, and the formation of the company would appear to bear out this statement.

The plans of the company have already been pretty thoroughly outlined in The Herald. The road will come in to Duluth over the hill back of Oneota, and it will have docks and warehouses in that part of the city, having already purchased land for that purpose. There is little doubt but that construction work will be begun this spring and pushed during the summer months, although the officers of the new company are reluctant to give out any information regarding the summer's operations, as they state their plans are not yet perfected.

MME. MODJESKA.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Word was received in this city early this morning to the effect that Mme. Modjeska, the actress, is seriously ill in her home near Newport, Orange county. Her illness is said to be kidney trouble, complicated with an affection of the heart.

COOPER JURY STILL OUT

Up Betimes for Breakfast and Arouses the Deputies.

Judge Will Not Take Initiative in Making Move.

Nashville, Tenn., March 18.—Although the jury in the Cooper-Sharp trial for the murder of former United States Senator Carmack arose before daylight this morning, ousted the deputies and then resumed deliberations, several hours have passed without any intimation that they had reached an agreement.

Judge Hart convened court at 9 a. m., and began the regular grind of criminal cases. In one hour fourteen negroes, accused of minor misdemeanors and felonies, were convicted.

Many in the crowd who had been regular attendants at the Cooper trial, marveled at the expedition with which their cases were handled as compared with the nine weeks devoted to the famous trial which is not yet finished. The jurors had breakfast at 7 and returned to their room. Asked when he would call the twelve men into court the judge replied:

"It is their move. I will not send for them until they send word to me that they wish to see me."

Much loud argument marked the morning deliberations of the jury. At 11 a. m. the voices died away and the jurors sent out for drinking water.

At 11:30, Judge Hart having finished his regular docket, adjourned court till 2 p. m., and announced that he would not receive a verdict before that hour.

STILLWATER MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Glen Downs' Mangled Body Scattered for Fifteen Miles.

Portland, Or., March 18.—Glen Downs, a young logger from Stillwater, Minn., was killed under a train of the Great Northern railroad Tuesday night near Everett, while stealing a ride on the brake beam. His body was found yesterday scattered all the way from Lowell to Monroe, Wash., about fifteen miles.

A leg was picked up at Lowell, part of the trunk near this city, and several pieces with some clothing and a blanket were found near Monroe. A letter and a hospital certificate identified the remains, which were ground beyond all resemblance to a human body.

All day the section crews brought parts of the body from along the track. A cousin of the dead man, E. M. Downs, is supposed to be a resident of Everett.

CASS LAKE VICTORIOUS

Normal School Bill Passes the Senate With Good Majority.

Armour Packing Plant Row Is Again Before the House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bill by Senator D. M. Gunn of Grand Rapids, establishing a sixth state normal school at Cass Lake, passed the senate this morning by a vote of 32 to 25. The bill now goes to the house, where it will no doubt be substituted for the house bill by P. H. McGarry of Walker, now on general orders. There is little doubt now that the Cass Lake bill will pass and become a law. The principal opposition came from Bemidji, Thief River Falls and Warren, and Representatives Opsahl and others back of these towns have apparently abandoned all further effort, except to prevent the establishment of any normal school whatever. The temper of the house, however, seems strongly in favor of the Cass Lake bill.

The senate this morning defeated a bill by Senator Peterson of Moorhead, relating to attorneys' liens, only 6 voting for it and 28 voting against it. There was no opposition to the bill itself, so far as any debate disclosed, and the action seemed largely personal.

• • •

Armour packing plant matters took up a good deal of the time of the house this morning. Lennon of Minneapolis, started the ball rolling by moving the indefinite postponement of the

WILL CONFER ON BALKAN CRISIS

Powers Are All in Favor of Italian Proposition.

Berlin, March 18.—Information received at the foreign office today indicates that the powers are all in favor of the Italian proposition to summon at once a European conference to act on the Balkan situation.

This conference will have a strictly limited program, and will merely ratify accomplished facts. The official replies of the powers to this proposal have not yet been received.

WHERE ANGELS FEAR TO TREAD.

LOS ANGELES TO AIR A SCANDAL

Special Grand Jury Will Probe the Municipal Government.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Twenty-eight citizens of Los Angeles county appeared in superior court this morning in response to summons for grand jury duty. From this number, Judge James hopes to be able to select nineteen, who will constitute a special grand jury, ordered in response to the request of District Attorney Fredericks for the purpose of investigating the condition of the municipal government.

A score of persons have been summoned as witnesses. Among them is A. C. Harper, former mayor, who arrived here from Corcoran yesterday, and Edward Kern, former member of the board of public works and former chief of police.

Alonso Durand, an associate of Nick Oswald, is in jail waiting a call by the grand jury, and is also to have a preliminary hearing on a charge of attempting to evade summons. Oswald is now across the border at Tia Juana, Mex., with William Lawrence, and both are wanted to testify before the grand jury.

TARIFF BILL IS REPORTED

Committee on Ways and Means Makes No Amendment.

Democrats' Refusal Policy Is Causing Much Speculation.

Washington, March 18.—Immediately after the house convened today, Mr. Payne of New York, chairman of the committee on ways and means, reported back the tariff bill without amendment.

Mr. Payne offered a resolution providing for the printing of 30,000 copies of it, 25,000 of which shall be in document form and embodying the views of the minority. After a good deal of discussion the resolution was adopted.

It is not doubted that the tariff question will occupy the attention of the house, to the exclusion of almost any other business, from now on. Mr. Crumpacker, however, is hopeful of obtaining action on the census bill, and he was exerting himself to have it taken up today by unanimous consent, with some prospect of success.

Just how far the Democrats will go in their policy of refusing committee appointments, unless first approved by Mr. Clark, the minority leader, is the subject of much speculation on the floor. There are yet to be appointed two committeemen of the five which it has been decided to name to do business at this session, those on printing and on accounts, and there is the pos-

ROOSEVELT WILL BE OWN BARBER

Will Not Grow a Beard While He Is In Africa.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 18.—Ex-President Roosevelt will be his own barber in Africa during the year he will spend there at the head of the Roosevelt-Smithsonian African expedition. He does not intend to grow a beard as has been reported and pictured recently. The ex-president has purchased a dozen sticks of shaving soap at a drug store here and has been practicing the use of the razor since leaving Washington.

At first it was rather difficult for Mr. Roosevelt to manipulate the razor, because during his seven years occupancy of the White House he has been shaved daily at his office there by a negro barber, who was employed on the executive office staff.

Hundreds of offers of all kinds of articles for use on his African hunt have come to Mr. Roosevelt, but he has refused to accept any of them.

NO MERGER, THEY SAY

Independent Steel Presidents Deny Tale of Combination.

Nothing to Gain by Joining Forces, Is Assertion.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—The report from Pittsburg that an $800,000 independent steel combination is being formed is denied today by men in this city who are prominent in the iron and steel industry.

"There is absolutely no truth in the story," said a high official of the Pennsylvania Steel company.

"I know nothing whatever of such a combination," declared President Powell Stackhouse of the Cambria Steel company.

The Philadelphia representative of a prominent firm of pig iron dealers, who desired his name withheld, and who is in close touch with the steel industry, said none of the companies which had been mentioned as about to enter the combination had anything to gain by it, and that he placed no faith in the story.

Several days ago rumors of a combination among independent steel companies were received here, and at that time emphatically denied by leading officials of the steel companies, among them being E. C. Felton, president of the Pennsylvania Steel company, and Effingham B. Morris, who is a director in both the Cambria and Pennsylvania Steel companies.

TAFT HELPS TO HONOR THE DEAD

Grover Cleveland Memorial Meeting Attended By President.

New York, March 18.—With President Taft listening, the life of Grover Cleveland and its influence upon our national progress and material welfare, will be the theme of speeches by President Taft, Chief Justice Fuller, of the United States supreme court and other well known public men at the memorial exercises in honor of the late President Cleveland at Carnegie hall late this afternoon. Tonight, exercises will be held at the city college at which Governor Hughes, Senator Root and several others will speak. President Taft will attend the exercises at City college, but is not expected to make an address.

The meeting at Carnegie hall today will be presided over by Maj. McClellan and the exercises will be held under the auspices of the Cleveland memorial committee of which Francis Lynde Stetson is chairman. Besides addresses by President Taft and Chief Justice Fuller, an original poem will be read by Richard Watson Gilder.

HE LEARNED SENTIMENT

Wyseman Tells What He Did For Stephenson Cause.

Charles S. French Also Before Senatorial Primary Probers.

Madison, Wis., March 18.—Arthur J. Wyseman of Manitowoc, told the senatorial primary investigation committee today, that he had received $135.88 from the Stephenson campaign fund. Most of his time was taken up in ascertaining and reporting on the sentiment where he went, and in securing poll lists. He stated that Dr. F. H. Gelbe had been asked to take charge of Manitowoc, but had refused.

Charles S. French, an attorney of Lake Geneva, testified to receiving $800 from Mr. Edmonds for Stephenson's campaign expenses. He received word from C. M. Hambright of Racine, to go to Milwaukee and see Edmonds, to arrange for more vigorous work in Kenosha and Walworth counties. He received nothing for his services.

Witness kept no account of his expenditures. Asked how he knew when the money was gone, Mr. French said: "I've been that way before." He admitted signing Cook's nomination papers, but told Cook's solicitor later of his change of heart.

J. E. Morgan of Oshkosh, the next witness, received $2,500 from Senator Stephenson direct. The money, he said, was paid to him after the primary and was to reimburse him for money spent during the campaign. He could account for all but about $200, paid in small amounts to workers.

ATHLETES VERY BUSY

West end athletes are active and the different schools are already getting their players lined up and their schedules framed.

At a meeting of the Adams school alumni held last night plans for the coming baseball season were discussed. The team this year will be fitted out with baseball uniforms. A committee was appointed to pick out several kinds to be submitted for the final selection at the next meeting of the association to be held within a week.

Prospects for a winning team this year look very bright. Many of last year's players are still in the city and several new players have been signed up.

The Lincoln alumni will also have a team this year. While this school has not been actively engaged in athletics during the past year or so, the boys now intend to get back into the game with renewed vigor. They will hold a meeting soon, at which time a baseball nine will be organized and the officers elected.

The Irving school will be in the game this year with as strong a team as ever represented the school. The Tigers always have a good team in whatever line of sport they enter, and they will probably make the other teams hustle to keep pace with them. They will this year be stronger than ever and branch out, playing more of the teams from out of town.

The Longfellow association has been busy for some time and they are now ready at any time to start the season. It will be the first season in some time that they have attempted to get a team together for an entire season's play, and they promise to make up for lost time by entering the ranks of amateur baseball teams this year, with a strong bunch of diamond stars.

The Fairmount boys have secured grounds of their own this year and will play most of their games there. They plan on bringing a number of outside teams to their grounds for Sunday games.

There has been some talk of a league to be formed from among the West end schools, but the plans have not as yet been thoroughly gone over and it is not known whether it will materialize or not.

Besides the teams mentioned there are a number of others in the West end and it looks as though when the season finally opens, there will be enough for each nine to do.

IMPORTANT TO DULUTH

Local Millers Interested in Hearing on Flour Rates.

There will be a hearing before the interstate commerce commission at Minneapolis tomorrow in regard to flour rates, as a result of the attempt made by Minneapolis to have the rate on flour routed from Minneapolis to the Atlantic seaboard lowered from 23 cents per 100 to 20 cents per 100.

Duluth, Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota millers have intervened, and ask that if the Minneapolis-New York rate be reduced as requested, the same differential as at present exists between the Duluth and Minneapolis seaboard flour rates be maintained. The rate from Duluth and Superior at present is 18 cents per 100, a differential of 5 cents over Minneapolis, and if the Minneapolis rate is lowered to 20 cents, intervenors ask that the Duluth rate be lowered correspondingly, which would make the Duluth seaboard rate 15 cents.

Forty or fifty millers through the Dakotas and Northwestern Minnesota have intervened in favor of maintaining the Duluth differential. They benefit by this rate by Eastern shipments through Duluth. Any Dakota or Western Minnesota interest shipping stuff eastward through the port of Duluth gets the benefit of the lower Duluth rate.

J. A. Walter and G. W. Mandeville of the Duluth-Superior Milling company, and other representatives of Head of the Lakes millers, will be at the hearing in Minneapolis tomorrow, together with Charles F. Macdonald, secretary of the board of trade.

IMMIGRATION WILL BE HEAVY

Canadian Officials Expect Big Movement This Spring.

Robert Creelman general agent at St. Paul for the Canadian Northern railroad, who is in Duluth today, says immigration officials expect one of the heaviest years in the history of Canadian immigration, and that already the tide of immigration has set in.

Mr. Creelman was down through Iowa and Wisconsin last week, and says any number of farmers from those two states are moving across the Canadian border. These farmers have sold their farms in Iowa and Wisconsin and are taking their effects across the boundary line to their new homes. They disposed of their Iowa and Wisconsin farms for a good price and are taking hold of the cheaper Canadian lands.

According to Mr. Creelman, the steel for the depot of the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern railroads, at Winnipeg, is up and the work is being rushed forward very rapidly. The freight sheds of the two roads are partially constructed.

GLAD COFFEE STAYS FREE

General Satisfaction That It Is Not to be Taxed.

Minnesota Congressmen Approve the Cut in Lumber.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably the fact that coffee remains on the free list is a matter which gives more general satisfaction than anything in connection with the proposed tariff revision.

The United States has in reality for years been paying an increased price for coffee by reason of the tariff laws of countries producing the little brown berry, and because of the export duty imposed by Brazil, from which country about 75 per cent of the coffee consumed in this country is purchased, we have been deprived of any revenue from coffee tax. Now the Payne bill provides that the United States shall impose the same tax on coffee as equal in percentage as is the export tax of any country from which we receive it, otherwise it will be free.

This provision is inserted in the hope that it may induce Brazil to abolish her export duties. The bill imposes a tax of 5 cents a pound on tea, when coming directly from the producing country and 9 cents when coming through another country. This later provision is aimed at the middleman, notably at Sir Thomas Lipton, the biggest tea jobber in the world.

Data show that the tea can be laid down at our ports at 16 cents per pound. The retail price of first-class tea ranges from 50 cents to $1.25 a pound, and it is now duty free. This enormous difference in price is due to combinations of jobbers. It is not believed the duty imposed on tea will increase the retail price.

Step in Right Direction.

The consensus of opinion among Republican members from Minnesota and Wisconsin is that in the main the bill as reported is satisfactory in its most important details. The members from these states, however, almost to a man, would like to see lumber put on the free list, but the cut which is proposed is at least a step in the right direction.

Reduction of tariff on iron and steel is satisfactory, and free coal is received with joy. The reciprocity feature of the bill is generally conceded to be a good thing and the inheritance tax meets with approval generally.

In reporting out the tariff bill to the house today, the ways and means committee undertakes to give an idea of the important character of the work in which it has engaged, beginning with the statement that the preparation of the bill has been no easy task. The popular demand for the cutting of rates is referred to, and against this is set the Republican policy of protection, whose cardinal principle, it is said, the protection of the American industries and American workmen against the difference in cost of production at home and abroad.

The necessity for more revenue at the present time is also discussed at some length. It is asserted that until the recent depression in business, the revenues under the present laws hav been sufficient to meet the expenditures of the government, and the fact is pointed out that taking the entire period from 1897, the date of the enactment of the Dingley bill, until 1909, there has been a surplus of receipts over expenditures, amounting to $74,555,408. The total receipts for this period, exclusive of postal expenses, was $6,558,220,264 and the expenditures also exclusive of expenses, $6,483664,856. Comment is then made on the effect of the present industrial depression, and in that connection the committee says:

"It is the hope of the committee that with a return of business prosperity the revenues will show a large percentage of increase and prove entirely adequate for any natural and economical scale of expenditures."

Upward Tendency of Receipts.

It is then pointed out that even since the beginning of the present month there has been an upward tendency of receipts.

In explaining the provision for authorizing the issue of $45,000,000 of additional Panama canal bonds, the report says that the belief of the committee is that the entire expenditure for the building of the Panama canal should be met by a bond issue.

Mr. Payne calls attention to the great amount of labor involved in the preparation of the bill now before the house. For more than two years experts in tariff matters have been investigating tariff rates, and consular agents have been studying the tariff schedules of other countries, with a view of rendering assistance in the preparation of this bill. Mr. Payne speaks of the great assistance rendered the committee by the department of commerce and labor and the state department.

TAFT TALKS ON CLEVELAND RULE

New York, March 18.—Speaking this afternoon at the Grover Cleveland memorial exercises, President Taft said in part:

"Grover Cleveland was as completely American in his character as was Lincoln. Without a college education he prepared himself for the bar. His life was confined to Western New York. His vision of government and of the village and town life of the states, affected by New England ancestry and the atmosphere of a clergyman's home. His characteristics were honesty and simplicity, courage of his convictions, with a sense of public duty that has been exceeded by no statesman within my knowledge.

"It was so strong, in him that he rarely wrote anything whether in the form of a private or public communication, that the obligation of all men to observe the public interest was not his chief theme."

"Correct Dress for Women"

HAND OF BASHFUL DAKOTA SWAIN SOUGHT BY SEVERAL LONELY SOULS

That old adage, worn by old age, which has been thrown in the flushed face of many a backward, lovesick youth, which hath it that "faint heart never copped out a blushing lady," received an awful jolt in the material contradiction offered by the case of the Dakota man, who has applied to Mrs. Forgy of the Humane society, to find him a wife, because of the fact that he was too backward to come out and hustle for himself.

Mrs. Forgy, with rare good judgment, chose the want columns of The Herald as the medium through which to find a suitable life partner for the mysterious visitor from the tall and uncut of North Dakota.

But some little trembling woman come forward? Rather, yes. This fellow from North Dakota has started something that he may not be able to finish. Seven women who don't believe that marriage is a failure have come to the rooms of the Humane society and have asked personal questions about "the man from out there."

If the fellow with the bashful streak in his makeup could get a glance of those seven women, all apparently intent upon landing him, what a multitude of thoughts would go coursing through his heated brain. Here are seven women in the love handicap. They are all facing the barrier, and it is up to the chap from North Dakota, who, by the way, has some broad and fertile acres, and some ducats in the bank besides, to say which maiden is the winner in the cupid handicap.

How are they—Mrs. Forgy and the bashful beau—going to decide the winner of the altar sprint? It will be a difficult task. Imagination, comparison, cross-questioning, pertinent questions—all these, will probably have to be indulged in before the chap with the impediment in his self-confidence, can go off alone and make a bluff at wooing. It's a shame to do it, all this business in a place where sentiment, silly sentiment like lovers indulge in, should have the way. But Mrs. Forgy has taken the task of selecting a good wife for the boy with the ranch, and she is going to exercise her best judgment in choosing his helpmate.

Besides the seven women who have applied in person at the rooms of the humane society, Mrs. Forgy has a bunch of letters in her possession, from women who are anxious to be considered in the race for the man.

A FRACTURE OF THE SKULL

William Ames of 32 West Fourth street fell from the fourth to the third floor of the new courthouse building at 10 o'clock this morning, and sustained a fractured skull. At 2 o'clock this afternoon he was still unconscious. There is said to be about an even chance that he will recover.

Ames is a carpenter by trade and has a wife and several children. This morning he was working on the third floor of the courthouse, near a portion of the floor which had not been completed. He slipped on the edge of an open space and fell headfirst to the floor below. Landing on his head, his skull was fractured. Aside from this no bones were broken.

Tells the Same Story.

C. E. Lytle, general superintendent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, is here today conferring with local officials of the road. Mr. Lytle tells the same story that about every railroad official who has come to Duluth this winter has repeated, namely that the railroad business is very quiet at the present time.

Mr. Lytle looks for a heavy logging business along the line of the South Shore through the Michigan timber belt, and says that all through this district the operators are making efforts to get the logs to the branch lines before the snow melts away, cutting out the sleigh roads.

There has been a very heavy cutting in the Michigan timber belt the present year, he says, and there will be a heavy movement of lumber from the Michigan mills.

BEING TRIED FOR BURGLARY

Berger Mitby was placed on trial before Judge Cant, in district court this morning, on a charge of burglary in the second degree. Feb. 11, it is alleged, he and another man entered a boarding house conducted by Mrs. Martha Todd at 605 West First street, and were helping themselves to a quantity of clothing owned by the boarders, when Mrs. Todd discovered them.

Mrs. Todd gave chase, and Mitby ran into the arms of a policeman, it is claimed. He was said to have been wearing some of the stolen clothing when arrested. The affair took place in the afternoon and the case is said to hinge on the question of Mitby's intention in entering the house.

Two civil cases are dragging on in district court. Before Judge Dibell, the suit of Hilding Gradbne against Dr. J. H. Kerr for $25,000 damages, on account of alleged malpractice, is being heard. The suit of Stephen Foster against the Duluth Street Railway company for $20,000, for injuries sustained by an electric shock while painting a pole at Garfield avenue and Superior street, is on before Judge Ensign.

Proves Up on Claim.

Yesterday afternoon Frank LaBoute, a young Frenchman, proved up on his homestead of forty acres in township 53, range 11 west, which is about two miles north of Two Harbors.

Six years ago, when he filed on the claim, after paying for the filing, all he had was $10, which he spent in getting his parents to the claim. He now owns his fram, a cow, a horse, pigs and chickens.

This fall the Aggies will have St. Thomas here, and play a return game in St. Poul the following year. A similar arrangement, though with the playing years reversed, will be entered into with another of the Minnesota conference colleges.

Are Drugs Necessary? Do Drugs Cure Disease? Can Nature be Assisted?

If people were born right and afterwards lived right, there would be no use for medicine. Every doctor knows this. So do other well-informed people.

One thing more. When a person lives wrongly, or acquires bodily weakness by heredity, medicine can do only very little. Medicine cannot cure him. Only charlatans claim that medicines will cure disease. Medicines may palliate symptoms. Medicines may urge the powers of Nature to resist disease. Medicines sometimes arouse the efforts of the human body to right itself against derangements. This is the most that medicine can do.

A man accidentally puts his finger in the fire. Instinctively he wets his finger in his mouth, then blows on it for the cooling effect. This is no cure. He knows it very well. But it makes it feel better for the time being.

People eat unwisely. This produces dyspepsia or indigestion. The only rational cure is to eat correctly. Yet if a palliative is at hand the pains of indigestion can be mitigated, the throes of dyspepsia assuaged. The medicine cannot be said to have cured. It simply palliates disagreeable symptoms. The cure must come through right living.

Take Peruna, for instance. No one claims Peruna is a cure for dyspepsia. But Peruna will stimulate the stomach to perform its function properly. Peruna will increase the flow of digestive fluids, without which digestion cannot be carried on at all. It will increase the relish of food, the appetite.

It is admitted that all this can be accomplished by right living, but there are so many people who either will not or do not know how to eat correctly that a tremendous amount of good can be done by the wise use of Peruna.

A stomach that has been frequently abused performs the function of digestion very lazily. Such a stomach allows the food to remain undigested for some time after it is swallowed. This leads to fermentation of the food. Sour stomach is the result. This goes on week after week, until the blood is poisoned with the products of fermentation. This condition is very apt to produce rheumatism.

It is not claimed that Peruna will cure rheumatism. Nothing will cure rheumatism but correct living. But it is claimed that Peruna will assist a badly abused stomach to perform its work.

If a person would correct his habits, persist in right eating and temperate ways, undoubtedly the stomach would right itself, the blood would rid itself of the poison, and everything would be right. But as said before there are a multitude of people who will not or cannot adopt right methods of living. To such people Peruna is a boon. A dose before meals will assist the stomach to do its work. This prevents fermentation of the food, brings about normal digestion, and all the train of ills that follow indigestion disappear.

In other words, Peruna is helpful to those who live badly, or those who have acquired some chronic weakness. Peruna does not cure, but it assists the powers of Nature to bring about a cure.

The whip does not increase the power of the horse to pull a load, but judiciously used it stimulates the horse to use his powers at the right time, without which he could not have pulled the load.

This illustrates the effect of Peruna, or any other good remedy upon the system. Taken at the right time, it calls forth the powers of the human system to meet the encroachments of disease, and thus cuts short, if not entirely ends, the diseased action.

No one should ever attempt to substitute medicine in the place of right living. In the end such an attempt will prove a disaster. But an occasional use of the right medicine at the right time is a godsend, and no reasonable person will undertake to deny it.

Those who know how to use Peruna find it of untold value. By and by the world will get wise enough so that through correct living no medicine at all will be needed. But that time has not arrived. In the meantime, while the world is approaching that perfection in which all medicine will be eliminated, Peruna is a handy remedy to have in the house.

Slight derangements of the stomach; slight catarrhal attacks of the liver, the throat, bronchial tubes, lungs or bowels; these attacks are sure to lead to grave diseases, and can be averted by the judicious use of Peruna.

Wouldn't you like to read a few unsolicited testimonials from people who have used Peruna, and who stand ready to confirm the above statements concerning it. If so, address the Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio, and we will send some prepaid.

NEW TRAIN LIGHTING.

Northern Pacific Experimenting With New Idea That Looks Good.

Brainerd, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific railroad is testing a system of electric lighting for its passenger trains, and the first trial of the new plan was made on the train between St. Paul and Brainerd Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. It is a combination of an axle-driven dynamo and a storage battery, the current being switched from one to the other automatically. By use of this system, which is the invention of W. J. Bohan, chief electrician of the railway, it is expected that the necessity for train electrician will be eliminated. Mr. Bohan stated that the test was perfectly satisfactory, and though it developed some weak points, it showed that the success of the system was a mere matter of detail now.

Do Children Need Alcohol?

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young.

ENGINEERS ARE SIGNED

Independent Owners Have No Difficulty Securing Men.

Tomlinson Announces His List of Appointments.

G. A. Tomlinson of the Tomlinson Steamship company denies the repore that only the Pittsburg Steamship company has signed its engineers for the approaching navigation season. In confirmation of this statement, Mr. Tomlinson says that he has signed all the engineers he will use the present season, and that other vessel companies are signing men every day.

Mr. Tomlinson says, futhermore, that the vessel owners are experiencing no difficulty in securing engineers, and there will be no delay, from the fact that vessel owners can not find engineers.

Mr. Tomlinson has one vessel for which he has not signed an engineer. He says that he has two applications on file for this position.

In some quarters it is believed that the present navigation season will be very late in opening. From a very reliable source comes the opinion that the present season will be even slower in opening than was the season of 1908.

With the prospect of a late opening of navigation, and very little work for the lake boats until later in the season, vessel owners point out that there is little likelihood that the engineers or the other unions will attempt to force he issue of the open shop. The vessel owners are anticipating little trouble upon this score.

Following are the engineers signed by the G. A. Tomlinson company:

Steamer—	Engineer.
Livingstone	A. R. Fortier.
Berwind	E. J. Jenkins.
F. C. Ball	Thomas F. Birch.
Socapa	Thomas Walsh.

BOGUS MONEY OUTFIT SEIZED

Secret Service Men Make Raid Near Gary, Ind.

Chicago, March 18.—Secret service operatives returned to Chicago today with a complete counterfeiting outfit, seized in the home of Ford Fredom in an isolated woods, seven miles from Gary, Ind.

Fredom and his son, James, were arrested here yesterday, after they had failed to pass a counterfeit half-dollar, and the raid on their home followed.

The operatives discovered that the Fredom home adjoins that of Adam Racke, known to the government detectives throughout the country as the "wizard of counterfeiting." Racke, it is alleged, began counterfeiting in 1886 and has served five terms, aggregating eighteen years, in prison.

He was, it is alleged, sent to prison from Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

Racke denied he had made "any of that stuff" in the last three years. The operatives claim, however, to have unearthed two mold frames in his cellar and declare that the Fredoms learned what they know of making spurious money from the veteran.

PANAMA OPPOSES TRI-SIDED PACT

Balks at Having to Recognize Panaman Independence.

Panama, March 18.—The latest information received here from Bogota, Colombia, indicates clearly that the three-sided treaty among Colombia, Panama and the United States, which entails, among other things, Colombian recognition of the independence of Panama, is meeting with considerable opposition in the neighboring republic.

It is argued in Bogota that the agreement can be ratified only by a national congress legally elected on a popular vote and not by the present legislative assembly, the members of which were all selected and appointed by President Reyes. Another argument against accepting the agreement is the allegation that it was amended by the American congress before ratification.

The agreement was approved by the present assembly at its first reading, and in spite of the opposition, President Reyes is confident of its ultimate ratification.

MUST CLOSE ON SUNDAY

Barbers Must Do No More Shaving on the Sabbath.

State Law Will Hereafter be Enforced in Duluth.

No more Sunday shaving in Duluth barber shops. Chief of Police Troyer has notified all the proprietors that hereafter, in compliance with the state law, they must not remain open for business on the Sabbath day. If the order is not complied with, there will very likely be some arrests.

A delegation of boss and journeymen barbers called upon Mayor Haven yesterday afternoon and asked him to do something about making all the shops stay closed on Sunday. The mayor was greatly surprised, and said he had no idea that any of the shops were running on the Sabbath. He was informed that seven boss barbers have been making it a custom to keep their places open for business on the first day of the week for some time past.

The other boss barbers in the city, as well as the Barbers' union, are strongly opposed to this practice, and so expressed themselves yesterday. It is claimed that the men who work on Sunday do so because they have to hold their jobs, and not because they want to. Some of the shops have been doing a big Sunday business. In most cases they keep open from 7:30 a. m. until noon. The Sunday charges are 25 cents for a shave and 50 cents for a hair cut. At this rate the half day is made a profitable one.

The practice of keeping open on Sunday grew out of the privilege extended leading hotels of the city to operate one chair in a private room for the convenience of guests of the hotel, and no one else. After working the one-chair racket for a while, the St. Louis and Spalding hotels, it is understood, moved their Sunday quarters to the regular barber shop, and for a long time the shops have been accessible to patrons on Sunday any time before noon.

With the removal of Sunday headquarters to the regular shop, it is claimed the proprietors did not confine themselves to the transient trade, but admitted any local man who happened to be so inclined. This led other barbers in the city to feel that the hotels were getting some of their business away from them, and so other shops began to open on the quiet, until seven were in operation on Sunday. From one to three men are employed in each of the offending shops on Sunday.

There is a strict state law against shops remaining open on the Sabbath, and the understanding is that it shall be strictly obeyed in Duluth hereafter.

"THE FURNITURE MAN"

ODD FELLOWS HALL BUILDING, 18 AND 20 LAKE AVENUE NORTH.

DIRECTORS ARE CHOSEN

Officers of the Island Copper Company Are Named.

Original Dummy Directors Are Succeeded by Duluth Men.

As forecasted in The Herald, the personnel of the directorate of the Island Copper company, was entirely changed at the meeting of the company in the office of T. F. Cole in the Lyceum building this morning.

The officers of the company were elected this morning, with T. F. Cole as president. The others officers are: Vice president, George C. Stone; treasurer, Edward J. Maney; secretary, Fred W. Nichols; assistant secretary, Henry B. Paull.

The following constitute the board of directors: T. F. Cole, George C. Stone, G. A. Tomlinson, Henry Nolte, C. G. Barnum, Fred W. Nichols, Ward Ames, Sr., Frank W. Helmick and O. J. Larson.

The directors and officers are Duluth men, with the exception of Fred W. Nichols, who is of Houghton, Mich. The principal office of the company will be in Duluth and a branch office will be maintained at Houghton.

The Island Copper company is a $1,000,000 company, incorporated under the laws of Michigan. The capitalization is divided into 40,000 shares of the par value of $25 each. All of the land on Isle Royale, with the exception of some small tracts comprised in summer resorts, was purchased from the Isle Royale corporation of Liverpool, Eng., by F. W. Nichols and O. J. Larson, who went to England for that purpose. The deeds were taken in the name of Thomas F. Cole and were recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Keweenaw county, of which Isle Royale is a part. The deeds will be immediately transferred to the Island Copper company.

Isle Royale is sixty miles off the coast of the Keweenaw peninsula, through which the copper-bearing lodes of Michigan run. There has been a popular belief that the lodes of the Michigan district continued under the lake to Isle Royale, and the new corporation is expected to make a thorough exploration. The Isle Royale corporation, which formerly owned the land, explored in a desultory sort of way for a time, but the results were disappointing to the English capitalists and they withdrew some years ago. The new company will make a thorough exploration, it is said, with the hope of having the property enrolled in the list of the numerous rich properties in what are known as the Cole-Ryan holdings.

"TARIFF BILL IS DRASTIC"--SCHWAB

Says Iron-Steel Schedules Should Not Be Changed.

Detroit, Mich., March 18.—"The Payne tariff bill is too drastic. The iron and steel schedules should not have been altered," declared Charles M. Schwab in an interview today. Mr. Schwab arrived here to address the Detroit board of commerce meeting today.

"Labor will find itself adjusted to the changed schedules," he continued. "The only cost that enter into manufacture is the cost of labor. Remove the protection from steel and you reduce the status of the laborer. In European steel mills women wheel the coke. We can compete with the world on this basis, too. It is all a question of labor in the end. No, I do not mean that the tariff should be raised. It should be left as it is."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TOOK COIN OF VICTIM

Bena Man Held to Grand Jury for Robbing Lumberjack.

Was Caught in Act of Robbing Victim As He Slept.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Carmoly was arrested at Bena yesterday charged with grand larceny. He was given a hearing before Judge Johnson and bound over to the grand jury.

The crime is alleged to have been committed in the saloon belonging to Fred Crow. The evidence showed that John Swenske, a lumberjack, who has been in the employ of Ernest Fleming, was sleeping in the saloon, when three men who were drinking at the bar noticed Carmoly putting his hand in Swenske's pocket. They didn't think any more about it until a few minutes later, when they noticed Carmoly dividing some money with another party. Then they wondered where he made the "raise," it being known to them that he had been laying around town for several days, broke.

Victim's Money Gone.

When Swenske awoke and felt for his money, it was gone. The police were at once notified and in a short while Carmoly was under arrest. He most forcibly maintained he never went near the man and hadn't seen a dollar bill for a year. When he was brought up before the justice, a swamper in a nearby town saloon took pity on him and called him out for a consultation. When they returned, the justice was notified that the prisoner had an attorney. The attorney attempted to prove to the court that one of the men who had witnessed the prisoner putting his hand in Swenske's pocket had stolen the money himself. He almost scared the life out of the witness, but he lost courage when he came to sum up his evidence. He had entirely forgotten his arguments and told the judge he had nothing to say. Judge Johnson stated the crime was a serious one, and there was little doubt in his mind but that Carmoly was guilty. Carmoly was therefore bound over to the grand jury in bonds of $250. Being unable to furnish bonds, he was taken to the county jail. After the hearing, the prisoner's swamper attorney informed him that he would be at Walker when court meets, and guaranteed to clear him. Shortly after the trial the would-be attorney was given instructions to get out of town as soon as possible. He had been hanging around there for several days.

NO ALLOWANCE IS HARD BLOW

Walker Saloons Suffer By Lack of Ready Indian Money.

Walker, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is consternation among the local business men, particularly the saloon men, over the recent ruling of the department of Indian affairs, discontinuing the Indian from trust funds deposited to the credit of the Reds. There are probably 500 Indians on the reservation adjacent to Walker, who have been receiving this allowance regularly. A greater portion of this money was squandered as soon as obtained and the $500, which has mostly been spent in the saloons, is no longer to be relied upon. As Walker's six saloons depended somewhat on this Indian allowance money, it will not be surprising to note that possibly one less thirst parlor will be in the village in the near future as a result of it all. And the thirsty Indians are feeling just as bad about it as are the saloon men.

CLUB HOUSE FAVORED.

Crookston Commercial Club Decides to Have Its Own Home.

Crookston, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 25,000 Commercial club is now assured a club home.

The board of directors, at a special session, after listening to the report of the special committee which has been canvassing the sentiment of the membership decided that there was practically unanimity of sentiment in favor of the club home, and that it could be established with every indication of being a success.

Already eighty members have signified their intention of supporting an amendment to the articles of incorporation raising the dues from $1 to $2 per month, and the committee has secured subscriptions to the amount of $1,225 to be expended in the purchasings for the rooms.

EXPRESS DEAL BIG ONE.

Many Thousand Miles to be Added to Wells-Fargo Territory.

Calumet, Mich., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. L. Bigelow, chief route agent of the Wells-Fargo Express company, with headquarters in Chicago, is a Calumet visitor this week. He came on a tour of inspection for his company, which is to take over the business of the United States Express company after May 1. Mr. Bigelow is authority for the statement that Supt. C. R. Teas of the Wells-Fargo company expects to come to this section on a tour of inspection in about a month.

In discussing the deal between the two companies, Mr. Bigelow said: "It is a big move, and will give the Wells-Fargo company the express business over an additional mileage of 9,000 miles, in the network of St. Paul railroads between Chicago and Seattle. The Wells-Fargo company has a larger mileage than any other company in this territory, or about 80,000 miles.

"When this move takes effect, May 1, we expect to take over the business of the United States Express company, just as it is, and will retain all our local employes of that company in the service."

BUILDING SHAFT HOUSE.

Work on New Structure of Charlotte Mining Company Begins.

Negaunee, Mich., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new frame shaft house is to be erected at the Mary Charlotte Mining company's No. 2 property, a short distance southeast of the Rolling Mill shaft. Henry Lehman, a local contractor, has been awarded the contract and has already commenced work.

The timber, which is to be used in the structure came from the West, and is already here. The building will be eighty-five feet high by twenty-seven by forty feet. It will be erected a short distance from the shaft and will be moved to its permanent position when completed. Mr. Lehman expects to complete the contract within sixty days.

The shaft at this mine is 360 feet in depth. A few cars of ore were shipped from the property last season and there is now on the surface, a fairly large stockpile.

BIRD MESSENGER KILLED.

Carrier Pigeon Loses Life on Benton County Lightning Rod.

Foley, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A carrier pigeon was killed on Monday morning on the farm of Dave McGregor in the township of Minden, Benton county, by hitting a lightning rod on the big barn on his place.

Upon being picked up it was found that the bird carried a tiny band about one of its legs on which was inscribed "R. D. G.—1907—42." The McGregor barn is one of the landmarks in that part of Benton county, being a large structure, and standing on land that is somewhat elevated from the surrounding country. It is presumed that at attracted the attention of the carrier pigeon which sought it for rest and in doing so struck the lightning rod. There have lately been some carrier pigeon contests in the Northwest. What the letters and figures mean, no one knows.

HIBBING HONORS SAINT'S MEMORY

E. J. Kelly of Duluth Delivers a Very Forceful Address.

Hibbing, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 50 people attended the St. Patrick's entertainment given here last night under the auspices of the local lodge of Ancient Order of Hibernians. E. J. Kelly of Duluth delivered a very able and eloquent address, choosing for his subject, "Ireland and Her Patron Saint."

Mr. Kelly spoke for forty minutes, with telling effect.

The songs by the children, trained by Mrs. Murphy, were well received. Miss Mae Meehan and George Cobb recited in a very masterful manner and were highly appreciated.

The dancing of Miss LaVelle and the singing of Miss Audrey Miller sent the large audience home in a very happy mood. Miss Miller is a young Hibbing girl who possesses a most remarkable voice, and if she should ever decide to chose the stage as her profession in life she will make a great success.

Close's hall was most tastefully decorated in green, with the American flag and Ireland's shamrock showing here and there through bunches of green.

SIXTEEN BIDS WERE RECEIVED

AURORA BOY NERVY.

Injured By Pitchfork Persists on Returning to School.

Aurora, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Knutson, a boy living at Colby, who attends the Aurora school, was quite badly injured Tuesday during the noon hour by being struck in the face by a pitchfork in the hands of Frank Zimmerman, a playmate. The blow was an accident, and happened while the boys were playing in Gerlsch's barn. Two cuts were put in the boy's face, one quite deep. After the wounds were dressed Knutson showed his grit by going back to school, although suffering a great deal.

WORK AT SELLWOOD.

About Fifty Men Are Clearing Away Surface of Property.

Aurora, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Although badly handicapped by the snow, McArthur Bros. are making changes in the surface at the Sellwood forty, north of town. About fifty men are at work. The snow is being shoveled away and the tracks are being laid. An office, a blacksmith shop and a set of camps for the men have been erected.

The work of stripping the property, it is thought, will be commenced soon.

Owing to the lack of stockpile room at the Mohawk mine, part of one shift was laid off Monday.

RUSHING PULPWOOD.

Loggers Working to Clear Up Before Roads Get Bad.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the nearness to the spring breakup, the spoiling of the roads by the soft weather, and the large amount of timber to yet get out of the woods, Colvin & Robb are now working their hauling and loading force at their camps at Summit, day and night to get the pulpwood hauled to the track and loaded onto the cars while the roads are yet in condition. With their output from that and other points along the line they are now receiving between twenty and thirty carloads per day at this point. The wood is to be stored here until navigation opens when it will be shipped via boat to the Hammermill Paper company at Erie, Penn. They will have about 12,000 cords to forward this year. Last season they shipped 17,000 cords. Owing to the breaking camp by many of the loggers and contractors along the Duluth & Iron Range the movement of the lumberjacks toward the cities is now well under way, and all southbound trains are crowded.

Monday about seventy came from the Alger-Smith line alone, and with the many getting aboard at other points, extra coaches are necessary on all trains to handle the traffic. Many carloads of horses are also being sent from the camps for their summer's work at other points.

EVELETH MAY HAVE THEATER

Badly Needed Playhouse Liable to be Erected This Year.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to Hherald.)—If plans now on foot are carried out, Eveleth will have a first-class theater before the year is out.

P. E. Dowling who owns some land on Jones street, about half a block from Grant avenue, is planning to put up a theater with lodge rooms and a dance hall in connection.

Eveleth is in great need of such a place, as many shows that otherwise would play here do not book this town because of the lack of a theater.

F. E. Carpenter, manager of the Lyceum, a vaudeville house is negotiating for a lease if the theater will be built. Vaudeville would then fill in the dark nights. The Elks will probably have their lodge in the contemplated building. On the first floor there would be place for two offices.

Tearing down present old livery stable on the proposed site will probably commence as soon as spring weather sets in.

Owner of Dog Brings Suit For Damages Against Officer.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because of the shooting of his dog by Patrolman Baccka, Judge Prince has commenced a damage suit against the officer in the Virginia municipal court. The judge's dog and another dog were fighting in the street and the officer shot at them, injuring the judge's dog low. The dog was a very large animal and was much prized by the judge. The latter states that the officer had no right to shoot the dog and is therefore bringing the suit for damages. The dog had only recently saved the judge's life by waking him when there was danger of fire from an overturned lamp.

WICKEY HAS GIVEN OPTION, NOT LEASE.

Eveleth, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report in a Duluth paper that Forest Wickey has given a lease on the Wickey lands at Cedar Lake to A. M. Miller, Jr., is unfounded, as Mr. Wickey denies that he has made any such lease, and that only an option has been given to the Wickey Mining company, of which the stockholders are all Wickeys.

Drills have been on the Wickey homestead for some time, and ore has been found at the eastern end of the thirty-nine acres on which the owners hold a patent. Prospects of finding are on the land are very good, and the finding of it will do much to benefit Eveleth.

The delicious flavor of "Salada" Tea is largely due to the care used in the cultivation and preparation. It is packed in sealed lead packets, which prevents its coming in contact with articles that would affect its flavor.

sibility that the speaker will not be so lenient as he was yesterday when he excused Mr. James of Kentucky from serving on the committee on mileage, after the house manifestly had voted to the contrary.

The Democratic members of the house probably will not carry to an extreme their adherence to their caucus pledge to accept no committee assignments unless passed upon by Clark. This pledge was made while the house was acting under the old method of appointing committees, but with the resumption by the speaker of his prerogative to himself to designate all members of committees, some of Clark's friends are pointing out, and the indications are strong, that there will be little more demonstration in support of Clark's right to name the Democratic committeemen.

No more important committeee will be filled for the present, but it is expected this work will be taken up by the speaker as soon as the tariff bill is disposed of, and it is believed that by that time feeling will have sufficiently died out to permit him to proceed without opposition. In all probability, the committee announcements will be made upon the eve of the final adjournment of the extra session, and it would then be practically impossible to in this way relieve from service all of the minority members. The Democratic members are already saying that while they consider it impodtant to maintain party discipline, they are not inclined to carry such inclination to the extent of injuring their usefulness to their constituents and to the country at large.

It is not understood, even among the Democratic members, that Mr. Cannon would decline to listen to Mr. Clark's suggestions, but his contention is that his position as speaker gives him the right to name all the members of committees if he desires to do so. Most, if not all, of his predecessors, have exercised their prerogatives.

Rowe hill, aimed at the Armour packing plant location, and asked a call of the house on his motion. Then he withdrew his motion, on the ground that some of the members did not wish action taken at once, and moved that the bill be made a special order for Tuesday afternoon.

Christensen of St. Paul wanted to make it Thursday, and after a brief debate, Mr. Lennon magnanimously consented to the change, first asking for and receiving a promise from the St. Paul delegation to go to battle on the bill without fail at that time.

Then Ware of Northfield offered a resolution providing for a committee of six members and three senators further to investigate the packing plant matter. He moved its adoption and said he hoped nobody would give notice of debate, whereupon Frank White of Elk River promptly gave notice of debate, sending the resolution over for a day.

Representative Pfaender of New Ulm called up his resolution for a committee of five to investigate the proposition, and on motion of Representative Lennon of Minneapolis, it was laid upon the table.

Representative Krause introduced a bill in the house this morning, prohibiting persons with guns and accompanied by dogs, entering closed fields belonging to others.

At noon the house was engaged in considering the employers' liability bill, introduced by Representatives Stuart, Nolan, F. B. Wright, Wells and Grant, which was a special order.

PREJUDICE TRIUMPHANT.

What passed the tonnage tax bill in the house yesterday was the popular prejudice existing in favor of the measure throughout the state. It is a fine thing to thoughtless people to be able to go into one or two or three counties of the state in which they do not live, and compel the people there to pay the state all the money necessary for the expenses of the government. The other eighty-one, two or three counties in the state are thereby released entirely from state taxation. What a fine thing this is for the eighty odd counties of the state. With the same stone the state also brings down the "steel trust" and the popular thirst for the blood of the hated trusts, whether right or wrong, is appeased.

It was before this blind, unreasoning greed and prejudice that the house bowed yesterday when it passed the tonnage tax bill by a vote of 61 to 57.

There are not a score of members in the house who honestly believe in the tonnage tax principle; you can count on the fingers of one hand the men who have studied the question and remain convinced of its justice. Yet in obedience to the greed and prejudice of their unreasoning constituency, others to the number of 61 voted for the tax.

A splendid, though unsuccessful, fight was made by the St. Louis county delegation under the leadership of C. A. Congdon, and they were assisted by friends from all parts of the state who saw the unfairness and injustice contained in the Bjorge bill and the bad effect which its enactment would have upon the establishment of iron and steel and collateral industries at Duluth.

The Herald thoroughly believes in the honesty of the people of Minnesota, but it is only too well aware of their ignorance and indifference concerning anything pertaining to iron mining. Few of the 2,000,000 people of the state have ever seen an iron mine and they have utterly no conception of conditions which are as different from those under which they live as north is far removed from south. Tell them that iron mining is only in its infancy in Minnesota and that it will last 50 or 100 years and they will listen politely, but you might as well have saved your breath. Secure in their ignorance, they do not believe you. It is in such ignorance that greed and prejudice flourish, and it is to such conditions that the sentiment throughout the state for a tonnage tax owes its existence.

Throughout the state today wherever there is rejoicing because of the passage of this measure, there is thought only of the "millions" that the state is going to gather and of how famously the screws have been applied to "the steel trust." Of the hundreds of business men in the iron country, despairing of the accumulation of years, which they see for the most part swept away in a night, of the thousands of people who will not be able to provide schooling for their children if this bill becomes a law, of the impossibility of the municipalities of the range country paying their debts or maintaining a decent government under the tonnage tax system—of these things the rest of the state thinks not at all. Of the people of the iron country and what they must lose and suffer, the rest of the state does not think. On the contrary, it is an actual fact, that the popular impression among the hundreds of thousands who have never been in the iron country and have no conception of what it is like—the popular impression is that there are no people in the iron country, except a few officials and imported employes of the horrid "steel trust."

The time will come when the people of the state will realize the error into which their ignorance has led them. That time has been coming, and thousands who have studied the conditions that exist in the iron country have entirely abandoned their demand for a tonnage tax. The sentiment for a tonnage tax has been gradually reversing itself and the time will shortly come when men who are convinced of the unwisdom of the measure will not be compelled by a prejudiced constituency to vote for it.

The Herald cannot believe that the bill will pass the senate. Members who voted for the measure in the house, because of pledges made, although convinced of the injustice of the bill, will use their influence to accomplish its final defeat. Moreover, the senate is composed of men who are not pledged and who will have the courage of their convictions in this matter. Before the bill comes to a vote in the senate the iniquity of the measure will be so demonstrated to the people of the state that there will not be honest sentiment enough through the state to demand its final passage.

THE EVIL CASE OF COUNT WITTE.

There are few Russians of note, and dolefully few Russian statesmen, who arouse the slightest admiration in the breast of an American, but of these few Count Witte stands foremost.

America is interested in Witte. He played a bad hand so marvelously well at Portsmouth. And since he returned to Russia he has been playing the man under most adverse conditions.

Where is the man that could have gained so much for Russia in the Treaty at Portsmouth as Witte. The world was agape with wonder that he did so well. Any other would have returned to Russia with nothing saved and with his country's honor draging in the dust. Witte returned with honor and with substantial concessions from the victorious Japanese. The world honors him as a man who accomplished the impossible.

Instead of honoring him as her greatest statesman, as he is, Russia bears him an undying grudge—heaping on his head all its hatred toward its victorious country, all its wrath and shame in ignominious defeat. That is the sort of spirit that moves the Russian government upon all occasions. The word justice is not found in the lexicon of the Russian government.

Witte lives in Russia in privacy while second fiddlers wave the baton in the imperial palace. Naturally they hate Witte as men of little ability, dressed in a little brief authority, always hate a superior. They have frequently plotted Witte's downfall but have never dared to lay their hands upon the man who is so conspicuously in the eyes of the whole world. Recently they accused the Count of disloyalty and summoned him to appear before them with proofs of his loyalty. He sent word that he would not come and that his record was the only proof he would produce; if that be treason, make the most of it. This was some months ago, but up to date they haven't made anything of it, and Count Witte lives on in his retirement in peace.

It is an evil day in any nation when it plots the destruction of its greatest patriot.

WHAT FOOLS THESE MORTALS BE!

Politics makes strange bed fellows and hate makes wise men play the fool. There is nothing that will so unhinge a man's reason and so lead him into folly as hate. Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad.

This simple little psychological law received a curious and almost comical illustration this week, in connection with the insurgent campaign in the house for a revision of the rules. Somebody said that a letter had been received by one of the insurgent congressmen from Dr. Abbott, editor of the Outlook, urging the insurgents to continue their fight no matter what counsel might have been given them by President Taft. The Roosevelt-hating press pounced upon this choice bit of rumor and loudly denounced their hated enemy for interfering with the Taft administration. It is evident, they said, that Roosevelt dominates the Outlook. Look! look! in the current issue of the Outlook is an unsigned editorial warmly approving the insurgent cause. Roosevelt did it! Roosevelt did it! Subtle, sly, insidious villain that he is, he has already begun to influence public opinion by writing under cover. By all the gods at once, upon what meat doth this our Roosevelt feed that he is able to dominate the Outlook as he pleases?

All that was devilish in the hearts of the Roosevelt haters rose up to meet the anger that masters them every time they think of the big stick and the square deal; they tore their hair in a frenzy of mad joy and sputtered like a "nigger-chaser" on the Fourth of July.

But they overlooked three facts. First, Dr. Abbott has announced over his own signature that all of Roosevelt's communications to the Outlook will be signed by Mr. Roosevelt. It is unbelievable that Dr. Abbott should be lying. Second, Dr. Abbott denies having written any letter to any insurgent congressman advising him to any course whatsoever in connection with the fight against the rules. Third, in the same issue of the Outlook in which appeared the unsigned editorial disapproving of the old house rules (an editorial, by the way, which simply reaffirmed a position which the Outlook has maintained for several years) there was also published an unsigned editorial approving the retirement of Dr. Crum as collector of the port at Charleston and criticising such appointments. Therefore, according to the reasoning of the Roosevelt haters, the Outlook was conspiring at one and the same time to enhance the Roosevelt influence and to discredit it, to fasten the chains of Roosevelt authority upon congress and the administration and to destroy the power of Roosevelt with the country.

Naturally, however, the enemies of all that Roosevelt has stood for with the people of this country did not amplify upon the Crum editorial at the same time they debated the cunning wickedness of the insurgent editorial. Today it is enough for them that they can use the Outlook's pages to prove a horrid Roosevelt conspiracy; tomorrow they will use the same pages to prove that Roosevelt is discredited even in the house of his friends.

All the uproar that Mr. Roosevelt's enemies are making does not matter as far as he is concerned. The country has always found him ready to state his views frankly over his own signature when he thought it was time, and it is quite confident that if he has anything to say he will say it so that everybody will know who speaks. But this playing the fool by otherwise wise enough men, serves to point again an old, old moral.

NOW THE DELUGE.

Congress and the country is now in possession of the new tariff bill as proposed by the ways and means committee. It will be vigorously debated in the ways and means committee, on the floor of the house, in the senate and throughout the country. It will be a veritable deluge of discussion, for a tariff schedule hits everybody. No matter how much we may be in favor of revision downward, we are certain to object to decreases in those articles in which we are concerned financially. The new bill will be subject to attack, therefore, from every section of the country, from every interest, from capital and labor alike.

The remarkable features of the bill are the inheritance tax provision, the drawback to manufacturers, the maximum and minimum provisions and the very considerable reductions on iron ore, steel, lumber, hides, and a number of other staples. Tremendous pressure will be brought against the inheritance tax provision from the various states, thirty-five of which now have inheritance tax laws, and from the wealthy classes. The demand for it will be very strong from the people, however. The drawback will meet with general approval as will the maximum and minimum provisions. Strenuous opposition will come from special interests against the heavy reductions on the staples named. For instance, the iron workers are already moving against putting ore on the free list and reducing the duty on steel.

The bill in its present form will undoubtedly provide sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the government; whether it is a sufficient performance of the pledge of the Republican party for a revision of the tariff downward, it will be possible to say only after an extended study of the bill.

Dr. Osler is the only man who has yet proposed an effective means of getting rid of Joe Cannon.

Is it too much to hope that some day we shall constitute our courts so that they shall give us justice and not technicalities?

While some people are blaming Roosevelt for executive ursurpation others are finding fault that he didn't compel the courts to find the Standard Oil company guilty.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

J. A. Munro, who lives about six miles north of Grand Rapids, stated at the Lenox yesterday that the formation of a Guernsey cattle breeders' association, was in keeping with the work that was being done independently by the farmers and cattlemen of the northern part of the state.

Mr. Munro stated that through the effors and work of Supt. A. J. McGuire of the experiment farm at Grand Rapids, much progress had been achieved in the direction of breeding better cattle and cattle more fitted for that section of the state. For instance, Mr. Munro stated, that when he came to that section of the state more than fifteen years ago, it was very difficult to find a true type of the dairy animal. There were cattle of inferior grade, that made no return to the farmer. Today Mr. Munro says the conditions have been altered greatly.

He says that through the aid of the various farmers' associations, which have been formed in northern tier of counties, cows of the representative dairy type have been secured, and better breeding stock has been purchased, with the result that upon many of the better farms in the vicinity of Grand Rapids, the poor cattle have been weeded out and a representative type of the dairy animal substituted.

"The move made by the dairy cattle breeders of the Head of the Lakes, is a very good one, and one that is calculated to greatly improve the type of dairy animal in the northern part of the state," said Mr. Munro. "There have been for the past few years a number of men in Duluth who have shown a great interest in the dairy animal. Credit should be given them for the efforts they have made to improve the strain. These men realize Minnesota will be a great dairy center, and that to hasten this time it is necessary to first improve the general breed of the cattle owned by the farmer.

"Creameries and dairies have been started in various parts of the state, but the thing of greatest importance to the dairy interests of the northern part of the state, is the improvement of the dairy type of cattle. The men who are working toward this end, up around Grand Rapids, think of the proposition, and I believe that is the best way to look at it.

"A number of Wisconsin men have secured a great tract of land, over west of Grand Rapids, with the intention of utilizing this tract for dairy purposes. The bringing to the northern part of Minnesota of a number of good dairymen from Wisconsin would be a move that would help the dairy industry greatly in this state. We want good dairymen in this part of Minnesota, and the farmers in Wisconsin are generally pretty good cattlemen. But even if men from Wisconsin don't come to this part of Minnesota, we are going to, through our own efforts, make a great dairy industry up here, which will become one of the great assets of Northern Minnesota."

N. B. Shank of Bemidji, a lumberman well known to operators of this part of the state, was at the St. Louis hotel yesterday. Mr. Shank says they are standing still in the lumber business, as they are doing in other lines of commerce, and that while conditions in the Minnesota timber belt will be slightly better than last year, the present season has been a very quiet one, due to the inactivity of the market and the slow demand for lumber.

M. A. Torinus of Winton, president of the St. Croix Lumber company, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Torinus says the St. Croix people have done a fair amount of cutting, considering conditions, but that the market is very poor at the present time. Under the present conditions lumbermen say there will be a greatly decreased movement of logs.

J. A. Joyce of New York, at the Spalding yesterday, says the financial pulse of New York can sometimes be fairly accurately gauged by the preparations that are being made by the feminine members of the smart set for the famous Easter parade. Last year Mr. Joyce says the financial cold blanket placed a damper upon the gally plumed procession. There were not so many members of the fancy squad out, nor was the finery of such gorgeous type as in other years.

However, Mr. Joyce says this year it looks like a big Easter day upon Fifth avenue and Broadway. Things are looking better in New York, and therefore the women of that island city are preparing to make Easter day an event to be remembered.

THE WEATHER.

The threatened storm did not materialize last night, but today the sky is still cloudy, and the weather man still predicts snow flurries. A year ago today it was snowing. The sun rose this morning at 6:15 o'clock and will set this evening at 6:17, making twelve hours and two minutes of sunlight.

R. E. Clark, acting forecaster, makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Mississippi valley high pressure has moved slowly eastward since Wednesday morning, being now central over the Upper Ohio valley and overspreading all districts from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Middle Atlantic coast. Another high pressure area, of some intensity, is approaching over Oregon. The movement of those two areas of high pressure has been attended by slightly cooler weather over the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, the Rocky Mountains, Upper Michigan and the Southeastern states. The weather is somewhat warmer over all other districts. A trough of low pressure, with centers over Missouri and Utah, now covers the Middle Western districts. Light rain or snow has fallen over the new England and Upper Rocky Mountain districts during the past twenty-four hours, due to the influence of these two barometric depressions.

The Optimist.

O a bad old world,
And a sad old world,
Is this world of sighs and tears;
With its hopes deceived,
And its hearts bereaved,
And its flood of fruitless years.
But for you and me
'Tis the best can be—
Is this bad old, sad old world.

O a fair old world,
And a rare old world,
Is this world of deeds and dreams;
With its love-crowned days,
And its nights ablaze
With the starlight's glory-beams!
Friend, for you and me
'Tis the best can be—
Is this fair old, rare old world.

Roosevelt as Private Citizen.

Washington Star: Mr. Roosevelt will soon see, if he has not already spied the fact, that he cannot become a private citizen again. When Mr. Lincoln breathed his last, Secretary Stanton said to those at the bedside, "He belongs now to the ages." Some of Mr. Roosevelt's friends believe that he belongs now to the ages. They see for him a fame everlasting. That is open to question, but this is not: He belongs to the age—this age—and while he lives—and may his days be long in the land which the fathers have given him—he will remain a man of activity and public interest. He could not drop out of notice if he would, and would not if he could. There is a bit of coquetry in his talk to newspaper reporters on the subject.

Observe how matters are moving. In about a fortnight Mr. Roosevelt will start on his African trip. Will his departure be that of a private citizen? Nay, nay. Persons are coming from a distance to see him off. These added to neighbors and New York friends will make a crowd. It will be Roosevelt day in town, and the news will carry a long story about it. Nothing short of an earthquake could dispute the way with it.

He will land at Naples. Will he escape attention there? Nothing but a fresh eruption of Vesuvius could crowd him out of the story that day. We shall all be reading the full particulars next day, and unless something of extraordinary moment here at home is monopolizing space the newspapers will display the narrative on the front page.

Then the arrival on the coast of Africa, where preparations to receive him with honors as a great hunter are already on foot. No privacy possible or desirable there.

But then, we are told, privacy will begin. Mr. Roosevelt when he "hits the road" for the jungle is going into executive session. Newspaper reporters are to be shut out. Is that a scheme for getting the best reports of that feature of the trip before the public? Is he taking a leaf out of the book of the United States senate? If so, the senate, which has never loved him, should make him a bow. Imitation is the sincerest of tributes.

Emerging from his long stay in the jungle, Mr. Roosevelt will visit several of the leading capitals of Europe, and there be received with extraordinary demonstrations of interest. Privacy? It is nonsense to suggest it. And then home again, from the foreign shore, and his heart full of joy at meeting his friends once more. And then his own stories of his travels, and public receptions, and all the rest of it.

Never again privacy for Mr. Roosevelt. He and hullabaloo are wedded, and no divorce is possible. Their vows will be kept. Death alone can part them.

Four Ages of Letter Writing.

First age, his childish innocence
Is very plainly shown,
He writes direct to Santa Claus
To let his wants be known.

Next like a furnace does he sigh
And writes his turtle dove
Some thirty pages every day
To tell her of his love.

Third age, though bearded like a pard
His innocence still haunts,
He writes on business, this and that,
And tells just what he wants.

In lean and slippered pantaloon
He last escapes the thrall;
He has acquired some wisdom then
And doesn't write at all.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Princeton Union: William H. Denham, who has just returned to Duluth from California, in a Herald interview blames the agitation against the Japanese on the coast to the labor unions. But why does the blame attach? Are not the members of the labor unions the persons who suffer from the cheap competition of the Orientals, and are they not justified in protesting against the interlopers?

BIG CONTEST IS CLOSED

Last Day Brought Flood of "Ben Hur" Essays.

The Winners Will be Announced in Saturday's Herald.

The "Ben Hur" contest is closed. As was expected, yesterday was the big day. Several hundred came in during the day, and the "Ben Hur" editor's desk looks like a branch postoffice.

Even the "Ben Hur" editor is surprised at the popularity of the contest.

In the beginning it was believed the contest would be the biggest affair of its kind ever attempted in the city, but yesterday the essays poured into the office from every direction. The mails were heavy; messengers from the schools brought many, and after school hours the children themselves brought in the precious stories. The exact number received is not known, but there seems to be room for little else around the Herald office.

This morning they were all gathered together and sent to the Central high school, where they will tonight go into the hands of the teachers, who are to judge them and decide on those that are entitled to seats. Twenty teachers are to do the judging. Their names were published in The Herald some time ago.

Saturday evening The Herald will publish a list of those who are to receive tickets. The tickets will be placed in the hands of Supt. Denfeld of the city schools and they will be given out Monday from his office in the Central high school building.

In point of the number of essays received, the contest has been an overwhelming success, and The Herald wishes to thank those who took part. The paper wishes there might have been tickets for every child who sent in an essay, but even though some did not win, it was well worth the time of any child to try.

Because it might cause some feeling such as "my essay was just as good, if not better than, that one," The Herald will not undertake to publish any of the essays. At first it was planned to publish a few of the best, but upon careful consideration it was thought best to publish none, so the decision of the teachers will be final.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

mistaken. The passage of the tonnage tax bill was made possible by such men as these.

That Northern Minnesota can never hope to hold its own without concerted action was evident long ago. That there is no concerted action is evident from the fact that St. Louis county, in its hour of need, did not get a single vote in the Ninth congressional district. Every one of the members from that district voted for the tonnage tax bill. That there is a ground on which the rights of Northern Minnesota can take a stand together is also made evident by the fact that there was not a vote in the Eighth congressional district for the tonnage tax, and that the upper part of the Sixth congressional district, with scattering votes farther down in the district, stood firmly for justice and fair play.

It is worth noting, too, that the advocates of plundering a minority for the benefit of a powerful majority did not include a single vote in Ramsey county, nor in the Fourth congressional district, of which it is a part, and that only two votes in Hennepin county were cast in favor of the bill.

The battle was not lost because of weakness in the St Louis county delegation. Neither that county nor any other ever sent a stronger. Every man in the house delegation has played his part nobly, and that is amply proven by the fact that against such a powerful array of prejudice, greed and political guile the six from St. Louis county, with their good friends in other parts of the state, were able to roll up a minority only four votes less than the majority which adopted the bill.

The arguments of Chester A. Congdon, chairman of the delegation, and those of other members of the delegation, have utterly annihilated all pretense of argument upon the other side. Battle cries of section against section and of hatred for large and wealthy interests, and political cunning, have taken the place of argument. While the author of the bill and some of his supporters are no doubt honest in their views, even if mentally incapable of grasping both sides of a question and of accepting reason instead of prejudice, their power has been made possible by others far less guileless and far more sordid in their ends.

Before the debate began, the report of the committee that visited Duluth to see about the prospects for the construction of a steel plant was read, and two amendments to the bill proposed by its author were adopted. One puts mines shipping less than 20,000 tons a year into the non-shipping class, to be taxed upon an ad valorem basis. The other provides for dividing the tonnage tax between the several state funds, instead of putting it all into the general revenue fund, as proposed originally.

Bjorge's Talk.

Mr. Bjorge then made his talk for the bill, consuming an hour and a half. He spoke at length in support of the constitutionality of his measure, a point not touched upon by the speakers for St. Louis county. His arguments and those of the opposition to the bill were practically those made before the tax committee, and already reported in The Herald.

Mr. Bjorge made the point that because transportation rates for iron ore on land and lake are high, it is impossible to fix a fair valuation upon iron mines for purposes of taxation. To show that the mines are worth very much more than they are assessed for, he quoted from the prospectus of the United States Steel corporation, put out when the stock was being floated, and it was desirable to show that it was not watered, in which it as claimed that the iron mines owned by the corporation were worth $700,000,000. The speaker also asserted that the iron mines do not pay taxes enough, because the local tax rates in some of the mining locations are low. He also asserted that the mines will be exhausted in fifty years, at the present rate of production, and that under the ad valorem system the taxes will decrease as the supply nears exhaustion.

He thought the best measure of the ability of property to pay taxes is its output. Instead of its value. Most of the mines are owned by non-residents, he said, so the burden would not fall upon the people of St. Louis county. Besides, those who manufacture this ore outside the state ought to be made to pay well toward the support of the state.

Effect on Steel Plant.

Asked by Representative Sawyer of Minneapolis what effect the tonnage tax would have upon the proposed steel plant for Duluth, Mr. Bjorge said there were two different propositions, and should not be considered together.

Representative Washburn of Minneapolis wanted to know why a barrel of flour should not pay an output tax just as well as a ton of ore and Mr. Bjorge thought it was easier to fix the assessed value of the barrel of flour. Then Mr. Washburn wanted to know why the granite, sandstone and clay deposits of the state shouldn't be treated the same way as iron ore, owned by rich outside corporations they ought to be treated the same way.

Mr. Grant Talks.

Richard P. Grant of Duluth made a strong and convincing plea for justice. He showed that because railroad taxes go to the state, St. Louis county and Duluth are burdened already, and that they are burdened further because the government, the state and the railroads own large amounts of land in the county that is exempt from taxation. Duluth cannot pave some of its streets because of this condition, and in one St. Louis county community it has produced a tax rate of 130 mills.

"Mr. Bjorge says the mines can't be assessed properly upon the ad valorem basis," said Mr. Grant, "yet he provides in his bill for taxing them upon an ad valorem basis for local purposes. If it isn't fair for the state, why thrust it upon us for our local purposes? The work of the tax commission shows that the mines can be adequately assessed and taxed upon the ad valorem basis, so there is no necessity for the tonnage tax plan. It is not only unfair to a section, but it is unfair between different mine owners, because it taxes at the same rate, if their outputs are the same, mines containing 10,000,000 tons and 50,000,000 tons, though the latter is plainly worth five times the former. The tax, too, is based upon the percentage of iron, and that is merely a matter of weight, not of worth. Mr. Bjorge says freight rates are excessive. If they are, the state gets the taxes through the gross earnings tax upon the railroads, and under that system it gets all the taxes instead of only a part of them. The argument that the ad valorem system of taxation encourages exhaustion of the deposits is not correct, because production is regulated by supply and demand. He says that when the iron is gone there will be nothing but holes in the ground left. But those holes will be in St. Louis county, not in Becker county, and when they are all that is left, five-sixths of the taxable property of St. Louis county will be gone. We need to have something in its place, and now we have a chance to establish a large steel manufacturing center in Duluth. The market for steel is developing rapidly in the West, the South and the Northwest. If we can make this steel in Minnesota, it means millions of new capital, millions spent in wages, better markets for Minnesota products and cheaper freight rates. A double system of taxation will alarm capital and drive those new industries out of the state. They can easily slip over to Wisconsin, but if they are taxed here as other property is taxed, they will know what to expect, and will come here.

"We are asking the state to help us get these industries, to build up our city and the state at the same time. We don't ask you to tax the mines less than other property is taxed, but to tax them the same, and in the same manner. We are a hopeless minority, and we appeal for justice and fair play."

Practically a Contract.

Lawrence H. Johnson of Minneapolis, who was speaker of the house two years ago, told the history of the promise of the Steel corporation to establish a plant in Minnesota, showing that there is practically a contract between the state and the Steel corporation, whereby in consideration of the acquisition of the plant, the state defeated the tonnage tax plan. He said that two years ago, when representatives of the Steel corporation asked him why that interest did not have the confidence of the state, he told them that it was because the mines did not pay taxes enough and because none of the ore was being manufactured in the state. He insisted upon a higher valuation and the construction of a substantial steel plant, and both were brought about. The committee that he recently headed on a trip to Duluth was unanimous in its belief that the steel plant is coming, and that it will be bigger than was promised at first. It was agreed that it should cost $5,000,000 to $6,000,000, and now it is planned to cost $25,000,000.

"I believe," said Mr. Johnson, "that within twenty-four months there will be established at Duluth the greatest industry that ever came to Minnesota, and that within five years there will be at Duluth a steel manufacturing center second only to that at Gary. But these new plants can easily be driven away, so Wisconsin is near, and is anxious to get them.

Wells Changed Front.

R. J. Wells of Breckenridge, an old and crafty member of the house, with the sharp tactics of the floor at his fingers' ends, made a talk in favor of the bill, though two years ago he voted against it and was one of those who signed a report condemning it upon every conceivable ground. Mr. Wells may be given the credit for having been particularly active in the preliminary fight for the bill, though in the early part of the session he held aloof and took no hand in the contest.

J. F. Rosenwald of Madison, the home town of J. F. Jacobson, made a shrill and excited talk against the bill on the ground that it is a blow at the Steel trust.

John G. Lennon of Minneapolis talked against the bill, saying that it proposed an outrageous injustice, and that if it were not for the political effect some folks hoped to make out of it in the next campaign little would be heard of it. He believed that the construction of steel plants in Minnesota meant more to the state than any tonnage tax.

W. A. Nolan of Grand Meadow also spoke in favor of the bill.

Congdon's Last Plea.

When Mr. Congdon began his last plea for justice for St. Louis county, the hour was late, and he was therefore forced to limit the length of his talk. He said that he believed that the future prosperity of his part of the state would be forever affected by the action of the house. He made it clear again, as he had many times before in his brief and in his talks to the tax committee, that the St. Louis delegation is not trying to protect the iron mines from proper taxation.

"If they are taxed too little, they should be taxed more," he said. "If they are taxed too high, the owners can appeal to the courts. But the mines constitute five-sixths of our property, and we ask you to tax us as you would tax yourselves; to distribute our taxes as you would distribute your own taxes. We are a part of Minnesota. We are not vassals. Treat us and tax us as you treat and tax yourselves. This tax you propose is levied by a powerful majority against a helpless minority. We are six out of 119 votes in this house. If you lower your own taxes at our expense, it will be easy to do it again, and the temptation to do so will be strong.

"You warn us that five-sixths of our wealth is going to leave us soon, but we are aware of it. We are trying to get something in its place. We are trying to make that part of the state a manufacturing center. We have as a start a steel plant being built by the United States Steel corporation, and this is only a beginning if the iron industry is taxed as other property is taxed, and if iron manufacturers can know what to depend upon. Otherwise, Wisconsin is close by, and it it just as well situated as we are. There are to be two great steel manufacturing centers in the West, one at the head of Lake Michigan and one at the head of Lake Superior. The question now is whether this manufacturing center is to be in Minnesota or in Wisconsin.

"The state can lose nothing by waiting two years. Hardly any of the mines can disappear in that time. The loss of valuation by shipment will be about $2,500,000, and in that time taxable property worth $12,500,000 will be added, and it will be of a character that will continue producing and paying wages for many years to come."

Though brief, Mr. Congdon's argument was masterly and aggressive. He practically asked the legislature if it would rather enrich Southern Minnesota by a special tax against St. Louis county's industry, or have steel manufacturing on a large scale established in this state.

The reply was the roll call, giving 61 votes for a tonnage tax and a death blow at Northeastern Minnesota, and 57 votes for fair play and state development.

Representative Bjorge, the author of the bill, then moved that the vote be reconsidered, and asked that his motion be voted down in order that the action of the house might be cinched. He had his wish, 51 to 67.

The Peterson senate bill, designed to force Governor Johnson to reappoint S. W. Leavett to the state board of control, came into the house yesterday and was referred to the committee on military affairs, of which J. H. Dorsey, a Democrat, is chairman. Later it was referred to the judiciary committee.

The bill will not pass, the house Republican steering committee having decided not to let it go through, though it is understood to be a measure of the senate steering committee.

The senate in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar the house bill by the St. Louis county delegation, providing for a county examiner for St. Louis county as well as the house bill creating a commission to have charge of the St. Louis county courthouse. Representative Congdon's bill, providing that county depositories furnishing surety bonds need give bonds only for the actual amount of deposits, instead of for twice the amount of deposits, was also advanced to the calendar.

EXPLANATION BY C. B. MILLER

Tells Why He Voted With Cannon Forces In House.

Washington, March 18.—Representative Clarence B. Miller of Duluth, who was elected on a pledge that he would oppose Cannon for speaker and the old house rules, has offered an explanation why he did not vote with the insurgents in the houses. He says:

"I don't think there has been anything inconsistent with the position I have taken. I came here opposed to Speaker Cannon and in favor of some needed change in the rules to insure freedom of action to individual members. I took my personal views to the party caucus and voted against Mr. Cannon. As a result of the caucus, Republicans were in honor bound to vote for Cannon for speaker, and to cast their vote on the rules with the party majority.

"The plan adopted by the house exactly meets my ideas. I wanted all that this resolution provides, but I did not and do not want a rule which will give a committee the power of naming other committees. The rules adopted by the house insure us a regular calendar day and the certainty that we can get up worthy bills for consideration in the house.

"The so-called insurgents have refused all along to make a fight on Cannon. But the leaders of the movement for change in the rules would not vote against him. I don't think anyone can arrive at the proper ends in this fight by making an unholy alliance with the Democrats. The rule finally adopted is the best that could have been selected."

mous letter in which the writer says he heard a certain man, whom he indicates, but does not identify, utter the threat that if Mr. Bishop continues his activities in the Petrosini case he will return to America dead.

The influence of the Mafia in Palermo is strikingly indicated by the following occurrence:

Mr. Bishop a few days ago concluded a contract with the agent of a shipping company for the transportation of Petrosini's body to America. Today the agent went to Bishop and threw up his engagement. He said he had received warning that his life would be in danger if he in any way became connected with the case and he was fearful of the Mafia's revenge.

Among the men taken into custody by the Italian authorities are two whose connection with the case is thought to be very close. The police maintain absolute secrecy with regard to their identity.

future except as above noted."

It is generally believed that W. J. Olcott, vice president of the Oliver Iron Mining company and president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, will be Mr. Colo's successor, but Mr. Olcott is in New York and no confirmation of the report could be had. Mr. Cole declines to discuss the subject of his successor.

Though Mr. Cole declines to make any definite announcement as to his plans for the future, it is believed he will give himself over to the active management of his extensive copper interests. It is expected he will continue to live in Duluth as his interests center here. He is an extensive owner of real estate in the city and the headquarters of most of the copper companies, in which he is interested, are in Duluth.

Mr. Cole is a director and one of the heaviest stockholders in the American Exchange bank and his numerous mining interests include the North Butte, Greene-Cananea, Calumet & Arizona, Giroux Consolidated Mines company, Butte Coalition Mining company and many others.

It was rumored that Joseph B. Cotton, head of the legal department of the Oliver Iron Mining company, would resign at the same time Mr. Cole resigns.

Mr. Cotton was seen this morning and said that he was not prepared to make any statement regarding his plans for a day or two.

PRESENT SYSTEM IS A FAILURE

Bert N. Wheeler Suggests Some Mottoes for City Officials.

Municipal government in the United States is a failure, according to Bert N. Wheeler, president of the Civic league, who last night delivered an address before the Park Point Improvement club at Mission hall. He mentioned five causes for the failure of such government—the rapid growth of the cities, the lack of patriotism which keeps a large percentage of the voting population from the polls, the extremely cosmopolitan character of the people, and the interference of national politics in city affairs, which everywhere tends to pervert city government.

The speaker said a way to turn failure into success would be for the cities to adopt systems of city government like those used in Brookline, Mass., or in Dallas, Tex.—the referendum system, or the system of government by commission. Mr. Wheeler declared that public discussion and the attention of organized clubs and citizens generally, will do much towards the ultimate adoption of a more satisfactory system of city government. Mr. Wheeler suggested the following as some mottoes for decorating the walls of the council chamber:

"I would rather be right than be president," to be placed in front of the president of the body: "The law-breaker is the foe of American civilization and of republican government, and the worst of all servants is the official who connives at law breaking," to be placed before the mayor; "I will fight it out on this line all summer," for Aldermen Moore and McKnight; "What is morally wrong can never be politically right," for certain other aldermen.

AN UNKNOWN STRANGER DIES IN FARGO JAIL.

Fargo, N. D., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dying, unattended and alone, a stranger expired while an inmate of the city jail. The man was found in an unconscious condition on the street car tracks and appeared in a deep state of intoxication. He was placed in the cell to sober up and was later discovered by a cellmate, to be dead. There was nothing to identify the dead man and his demise appeared to be due to heart disease and alcoholism.

To Bed, to Sleep, Perchance to Dream?

Every one dreams, for there is practically no such thing as dreamless sleep. When dreams are repulsive or end in a catastrophe, and the dreamer awakens frightened and trembling, there is a grave danger that should be guarded against. Dreams of this character sometimes cause disaster.

Violent dreams and nightmares are usually caused by undigested food that remains in the stomach and irritates the whole nervous system. Beecham's Pills are the best remedy in the world to overcome retarded digestion and to strengthen the stomach nerves.

Restlessness, insomnia and terrifying dreams are banished when the stomach promptly disposes of its food, and Beecham's Pills will bring quick relief from all these nerve-racking experiences.

ICE BACKED UP TO WESTERN END

Lake Superior Fields Are Mostly at This End of Lake.

The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that there has been an increase in the area of ice fields over Western Superior, and a decided decrease over the central portion.

From Grand Marais eastward to Whitefish bay the fields extend beyond vision, but are not solid. The ice in Whitefish bay is solid. There has been no change in the ice condition in the St. Mary's river. In Green bay the ice ranges from 12 to 22 inches in thickness, and is covered with snow. In Michigan there is a small field of ice over the extreme southeast portion, otherwise but few fields have been reported south of the islands. At the inches thick, and unchanged. In Huron the fields over the northern portion have decreased decidedly, and no ice fields were reported south of Middle island. In the extreme southern portion the ice fields have moved to the mouth of the lake, and extend beyond vision. The St. Clair river is open to Marine City. The ice in Lake St. Clair has been running out slowly during the week. Some of this ice has lodged at the head of Fighting island. Practically no ice is reported over Western Erie, except around the islands, where it extends beyond vision. Over the eastern portion the fields are light and drifting with the winds; the extent of the fields is about the same as last week. No fields have been reported in Ontario and the harbors are opening.

In comparison with the same period last season there is less ice in Superior, Michigan and Huron, and somewhat more in Erie, and about the same in Ontario. In Green bay the ice is heavier. At the straits the ice averages about 8 inches heavier than last season.

PASSAGE OF TONNAGE TAX KEENLY FELT IN DULUTH

Is Chief Topic of Conversation in City Today.

That Bill Is Rank Injustice Is Opinion of All.

The people of Duluth were somewhat surprised, and very keenly disappointed by the passage of the Bjorge tonnage tax bill by the house at St. Paul yesterday. There isn't any difference of opinion in Duluth or in the whole of St. Louis county for that matter, as to the injustice of the tonnage tax bill. Every man, woman and child in the county was opposed to it. In their brave fight against the bill, the St. Louis county delegates had the united support of their constituents, and the failure of their efforts to head off the program of the supporters of the bill, is keenly felt by the people here.

The action of the house in passing the bill is the subject for conversation everywhere in Duluth today and the condemnation is unanimous. Of thousands of interviews that could be secured from men in all walks of life and all pursuits of trade, The Herald gives a few as a reflection of the manner, in which the house action is viewed by different people.

Attorney John Jenswold, Jr.: "I unequivocedly condemn that method of taxation. The taxing of special interests is a step in the wrong direction. It is but a short step from the levying of a special tax on the product of the iron mines to the special taxation of farm and dairy products and even the products of man's efforts in the professions. The tax amendment is vicious in itself, for it opens the way to dangerous legislation. The arraying of class against class is something to be avoided in every community and commonwealth, and the tax amendment and the tonnage tax bill open the way for just such a condition to be brought about. The whole proceeding is radically wrong.

Judge W. L. Winsor of the municipal court: "If the bill is finally passed by the senate it will be a very great wrong perpetrated upon one of the most promising parts of the state of Minnesota. I sincerly hope that Governor Johnson will have the courage to veto a bill which even its sponsors admit is morally wrong, and not justified upon any possible basis except through a spirit of greed which has been growing in this country for the last ten or fifteen years.

"I have confidence enough in the people to believe that if this bill is inflicted upon us it will be repealed at the next session of the legislature, because the people are inherently honest, and when they realize that it is only a cold-blooded proposition to rob one district for the support of another, they will insist that justice be accorded us.

"If the bill becomes a law the result, in my opinion, will be about this way: The owners of property immediately affected by the measure will undoubtedly go into the courts as soon as possible, and if I am not mistaken, the people of St. Louis county will stand back of them in their fight. The fight in the courts will take four or five years, at least, and the county and state will be without taxes from the mining properties affected during that time.

"In the interim the people who have furnished the political strength unwittingly, will become acquainted with the real facts of the wrong committed, taxes will in justice be restored, and the law will be repealed, the general result being both robber and robbed getting the worst of it."

Mayor Roland D. Haven: "This bill is a damnable imposition. It is absolutely unfair and unjust. I cannot see how any man with any reason or fairness in his makeup could find any possible excuse to vote for the measure. It is purely a matter of prejudice against this section of the state. It is the biggest imposition ever foisted upon the people of this state."

John G. Ross, clerk of municipal court: "It is a question in my mind whether the legislature didn't play into the Steel corporation's hands by passing this bill. The price of steel has dropped; the natural thing for the Steel corporation to do would be curtail production.

"The corporation has iron mines in Michigan. They could run the Michigan mines to their full capacity, and shut down their mines in Minnesota, thereby having to pay no taxes at all in this state. Result: Removing practically the only source of revenue of all the range towns, and depriving the state at large of the enormous tax now paid by the iron companies."

Thomas Olafson: "I believe that everyone is entitled to a square deal, but to my mind the tonnage tax is most unjust, and if the bill is passed, which I cannot believe it will be, it will do a great harm to Duluth and St. Louis county."

• • •

J. Allyn Scott: "It seems to me incredible that the people in the southern part of the state should be so shortsighted that they cannot see that this tonnage tax bill will hold Minnesota back from becoming one of the greatest manufacturing states in the Union. It hardly seems possible that some people have so little pride in the growth of our state as to desire a measure which will discourage factories from locating here. They ought easily to see that such factories would create a market for the products of the whole state."

Capt. T. H. Pressnell: "The United State: Steel company would indeed be crazy to build their great steel plant in Duluth if this tonnage tax passes the senate and becomes a law. They would be foolish to mine any more ore on the range than they are absolutely required to. There are plenty of other places where they already own mines, and just as good as the mines on the range, too. I think this so-called tonnage tax is an outrage, and a direct slap at the progress and advancement of Duluth and the rest of this part of the state."

Jay M. Smith: "I can't quite express my opinion of the tonnage tax passed yesterday by the house. I have never been able to figure out just why the majority of the representatives have always been opposed to anything that would aid or benefit Duluth. It was the same when I was there, and we always had a great deal of trouble in getting any kind of a bill passed that would help this part of the state in any way. The tax, should it pass the senate and become a law, would cripple greatly the growth of Northern Minnesota, and I am hoping that the senate will show better judgment."

Fred J. Voss, city treasurer: "It seems hardly conceivable that the bill will get even as far as Governor Johnson, despite the fact that it has passed the house. It is unbelievable that so grossly unjust a measure will pass both branches of the legislature."

• • •

W. S. McCormick, city comptroller: "The way things are now, St. Louis county is paying over 25 per cent of the total state taxes. Our property valuations in Duluth are placed at 25 to 55 per cent for taxation purposes, and in Southern Minnesota they are 15 to 25 per cent for the same purpose. It is ridiculous that men who profess to have any intelligence at all should vote for the tonnage bill. It is rankly unjust."

City Clerk H. W. Cheadle: "The passage of this bill is in line with the policy of the remainder of the state to at all times give St. Louis county the worst of it."

• • •

C. L. Rakowsky, city assessor: "I hope to see the bill killed in the senate. In the southern part of the state the people have a feeling that Duluth is a covered body and soul by the Steel corporation, and that our every move is governed by the corporation. Prejudice against this section is so strong that the legislators from other parts of the state are willing, apparently, to stand for anything directed against St. Louis county, no matter how unjust or unfair it may be."

SMALL FIRE IN FACTORY

Flames in C. J. Petruschke's Plant Quickly Checked by Firemen.

Fire Department and Ambulance Are Called at Same Time.

There was quite a stir on Central avenue this morning at a little after 10 o'clock when the fire teams went racing down the street, closely followed by the ambulance.

The fire was at Charles Petruschke's box factory, and the ambulance was called on account of an accident at the Zenith Furnace, where an employe fell and slightly injured his back. He was taken to the hospital.

The fire at the box factory is thought to have started under the floor in the boiler room. The floor was partially destroyed and the flames worked from there into the main building and into the roof. No great damage was done, excepting to the electrical apparatus, which was put out of commission. This will suspend operations at the plant for a short time.

The fire department arrived in good season and checked the flames before they had gained much headway. After the fire had been extinguishtd in the building, it was noticed that a small blaze had sprung up in the sawdust on the roof. One soaking from the hose put this out. The roof, which is of the double layer tin, became heated to a high temperature from the fire inside the building, and the sawdust on the roof became ignited.

But a short time before its run to the box factory, the department was called to the home of Charles Hagens, 434 North Sixty-first avenue west, where sparks from the chimney had set fire to the roof. The flames ate a good-sized hole through the shingles before they were put out.

"MARBLE" CLOCK WAS CONSUMED

John Cashin Saw Uncanny Sight on St. Patrick's Night.

John Cashin of 629 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, at an early hour this morning saw his dining room mantel clock suddenly burst into flames. Mr. Cashin says it gave him an uncanny feeling in the region of the spine.

How a fire could have started in a clock, apparently made of massive marble, placed on a high mantel, and without a spark of fire nearer than the kitchen stove, is a mystery, and doubly so when it is considered that it occurred after midnight, when Mr. Cashin had just returned from attending the St. Patrick's day entertainment in the Great Eastern hall. Mr. Cashin claims not to be over-superstitious, but he is seriously inclined to believe that there was something supernatural about the burning of that clock.

He had come into the house and passed through the dining room, where the clock stood peacefully ticking away, to get a bucket of coal. On his return the dining room was suddenly flooded with a burst of light, which was dazzling, and before his eyes his clock, all but the metal parts, went up in smoke. Even though it is admitted that the supposed marble was only celluloid, there still is something mighty strange about the incident. Mr. Cashin played the fireman as soon as he regained his wits, and when he had the blaze out he put on his coat and raced to the fire hall as if he were chased by evil spirits. Capt. Mahan went back to the house with him and arrived just in time to hear the old clock tick its last trembling tick. It died at 12:40 o'clock.

ERIN'S SONS CELEBRATE.

Big Crowd Attends the St. Patrick's Day Entertainment.

Even standing room could not be had last evening at the Great Eastern hall, where the St. Patrick's day entertainment was given, under the auspices of the St. Patrick's day entertainment. The crowd was far greater than the hall could take care of, and many were disappointed by being turned away.

Assistant County Attorney James P. Boyle's address was the feature of the excellent program. He outlined the great part the Irish race has played in the history of Europe and especially this country.

The little one-act comedy, "That Rascal Pat" scored a hit and was received with much applause. It is a humorous little sketch and gave occasion for many good laughs.

The program did not have a dull number from start to finish. The following took part: Overture, Prof. F. W. Riele; "Tipperary," Miss Emeline Brett; "Erin's Flag," Miss Effie Brotherton; address, James P. Boyle; "Kathleen Mavourneen," Miss Clara Kenny; recitation, Miss Mary Shesgreen; "Goodby, Sweetheart, Goodby," Neil Lauermann; "The Guld Land," Ollie Dignus; "Top o' the Mornin' Bridget McCue," Miss Edith Cashin; "Far Away," Messrs. Doyle, Carey and Lauermann.

DYNAMITERS' FEAST.

Big Annual "Explosion" Is Held by the Famous Club.

Another annual banquet of the Dynamite club has been held and West Duluth today appears to be none the worse for the convulsions which accompanied it.

Wade's hall was the storm center last evening. Building Inspector Kieley looked the building over this morning and denies the report that he is about to condemn it. He says the building will stand many more Dynamite blowouts without serious effects.

The affair was a most exclusive and brilliant one. It was held behind locked doors, so really very little of what took place is known. However, all the members asseert it was a most successful event. It also leaked out that High Chief Dynamiter Charles Silger let loose a bunch of verbal fireworks that were well worth the powder. All in all it was a glorious display and one of the largest evenings that West Duluth has experienced in the past twelve months.

The officers elected follow: Charles Silger, chief dynamiter; Joseph Chestook, vice chief dynamiter; George Cruikshank, secretary; W. Lovelace, treasurer; James Sullivan, C. B. F. B.; J. E. Foubister, C. O. D.; M. J. Filiatrault, E. D.; Nels Willner, J. D. D.; E. D. Nickerson, D. D. D.; H. Viou, F. O. D.; committee for next year's celebration, L. A. Barnes, Thomas Sorenson, W. B. Getchell.

HEALTH INSPECTOR BUSY.

City Official Sets Out to Make West Duluth "Spotless Town."

If the health inspector has anything to say about it, West Duluth is destined to become a spotless town.

A vigorous campaign has been started against unsightly alleys, backyards and vacant lots. It is nearing spring house cleaning time, and the health department is taking a whirl at seeing that the city is clean.

In West Duluth the inspector started to make the rounds this week. He goes from house to house, and if he finds any rubbish in an alley or vacant lot, he tries to locate the offender. At each house he instructs the resident concerning the city ordinance, requiring some sort of a receptacle for waste and garbage.

EACH EARNED ONE DOLLAR.

Ladies of Baptist Church Tell Strange Experiences at Social.

Irish wit ran rife last evening at the gathering of the West Duluth Baptist church ladies, at the home of Mrs. George Little, 624 North Fifty-sixth avenue west. The occasion was a St. Patrick's day experience social, at which each member, whether her antecedents were from the Emerald Isle or from Deutschland, told in Irish rhyme how she had earned a dollar to help pay for the church's new furnace.

The color, green, as well as brogue, of course, prevailed. "R's" were rolled, and "bulls" were made in plenty. Every lady spoke her piece and handed over her money in her best Irish fashion.

In every respect the entertainment was a complete success. Every one had at least $1, and some more, and the party was well attended. Over $50 was raised for the new heater.

Some of the rhymes were most amusing. They told of rug beatings, button sewing, and shoe shines. In order to raise money for the church furnace one woman tended her home furnace, so it is said, until her husband was forced to wear his overcoat constantly while indoors.

SUPERIOR NEWS

"EXPERIENCE SOCIAL."

Laboringmen Give Views on Saloon Question at Mission.

A laboringmen's "experience social" was held last evening at the Superior Mission, in order to get expression of the men's idea of the movement in Superior to do away with the saloons.

It was a big meeting, fully 325 men being present. If the sentiments ex pressed last evening can be considered a fair sample of the general feeling on the subject, the days of the saloon are numbered in Superior.

It was an open meeting, and there was no lack of speakers, most of whom had few good words for the saloon. A woodsman who gave his name as B. Oliver, suggested that if the saloons are to be done away with, there should be some place of amusement furnished for the lumberjack when he this town.

At the next meeting next Wednesday evening, the subject of discussion will be: "How Can the Laboringman Build" a Workingman's Home."

Board Is Investigating.

The Superior school board has taken up the disturbance which followed the Blaine-Nelson Dewey basket ball game, Monday night, and is investigating it. A normal school student named O'Neil was suspended yesterday, and a Blaine student was expelled the day before. More suspensions will soon take place, it is said.

400 at Banquet.

The Irish-American banquet held last evening in the Sacred Heart auditorium, Superior, was attended by 400 Irishmen. W. D. Dwyer of St. Paul acted as toastmaster and speeches were made by a number of Irish-Americans prominent in Northwest.

The following officers were elected: President, W. P. Crawford; vice president, Capt. John Monahan; secretary, D. J. Fynn; treasurer, J. J. Murphy. All are of Superior, except Capt. Monahan of Duluth.

Jones swore out complaints against Johannes Hawkinson and Fred McClure, who reside in the northern part of the county, charging them with illegal fishing. Hawkinson failed to pay a fine and was sent to jail for thirty days. McClure had erected a fish house without a license and paid a fine of $10 and costs.

Provided, however, that any President, Vice President or director may be removed from office by resolution passed at a special meeting of shareholders called for the purpose, and a successor of successors may be appointed by such resolutions.

ARTICLE VI.

INDEPENDENT STEEL MERGER REPORTED TO BE COMING---PAY CUT

Gates Mentioned as Backer of Project to Amalgamate Rivals of Steel Corporation.

Cambria Company Announced a Ten Per Cent Reduction in Salaries of Employes.

Iron and Steel Employes Protest Against Tariff Bill---Review Notes Improvement.

Cleveland, March 18.—The Iron Trade Review says today: A very comfortable amount of new business is being received by the steel mills, and prices are for the most part being well maintained. At Chicago, the leading interest received well distributed orders amounting to 32,000 tons, the largest amount for any week in the last eighteen months. Buyers of all kinds of machinery are urging reductions in prices ,and some manufacturers are yielding to the pressure. Some very low prices are being made on fabricated steel, but the price of the plain material seems to be maintained. The closing of nine plants having high production costs seems inevitable. The Eastern district of the Amalgamated association has declined to accept reductions in wage schedules and strikes may result. Although no additional orders for iron ore have been placed, some of the important consumers have made reservations with the understanding that orders will be placed as soon as prices are announced, and it is estimated that the shipments this year will exceed by about 4,000,00 tons those of last year. Leading ore interests are strongly opposed to any reduction of ore prices.

The pig iron market is extremely dull, the only activity being shown in New England, where about 25,000 tons have been purchased. Prices are declining and sales are being made at $11.50, Birmingham, for No. 2, while reports of even lower prices for the Southern product are current. Northern prices also show distress.

There is considerable activity in structural iron.

The demand for sheets has improved in the West, but there is some shading, especially on the corrugated product. The Carnegie Steel company has made a second contract for steel wheels for a Chicago traction interest, which, including a previous contract, calls for about 20,000 wheels. The same company has also contracted with the Pennsylvania railroad for 10,000 steel wheels.

Specifications on steel bar contracts are improving and the price of $1.20 Pittsburg is being adhered to. Bar iron is dull and prices are very irregular. As low as $1.35 is being quoted at New York and Chicago. No change has been made in prices of wire products and sales are not large.

A furnace interest has contracted for 70,000 tons of coke for six months' requirements, beginning with April and a Northern Ohio furnace is in the market for its requirements.

More Wage Reduction.

Johnstown, Pa., March 18.—The Cambria Steel company, which, when in full activity, employs 18,000 men, yesterday announced a 10 per cent reduction in wages, to take effect April 1. The following notice is posted in the plant:

"On account of the recent sharp decline in the market prices of the company's products following the long continued business depression, it becomes necessary to announce a reduction in salaries and wages averaging 10 per cent to take effect on and after April 1, 1909.

"The reduction will affect all employes, from the highest to the lowest. There is a general expectation that this reduction will enable the concern to take business it could not accept with a profit under the old rates, and that increased activity will be the result."

Independents to Merge.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 18.—That an effort is being made to consolidate most of the larger independent steel companies of the country into one big concern which would rival the United States Steel corporation in size and in influence, is confirmed here through a steel manufacturer, approached in regard to his connection with the new concern. The name of John W. Gates is used in connection with the project as a backer. The plan of consolidation had been broached to J. P. Morgan, who declined. Concerns which, it is said, are to form the nucleus for the new consolidation, are the Jones & Laughlin Steel company, the Lackawanna Steel company, the Bethlehem Steel company, the Pennsylvania Steel company, the Maryland Steel company, the Lacelle Steel company and the International Steel company.

Hostile to Tariff Bill.

Washington, March 18.—The workingmen of the country employed in the iron and steel trades view with alarm the Payne tariff bill, according to a statement issued here by Vice President Lewis and John Williams of Pittsburg, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America. The statement follows:

"The tariff bill presents so many and drastic reductions in the iron and steel schedules, as to be viewed with alarm by the workingmen employed in those industries included in the iron and steel schedule, and other industries dependent thereon, especially at this time, following a long period of depression, with hundreds of thousands of American workmen idle and actually asking for bread. The bill as presented literally hands them a stone. Employes of American tin plate mills will strenuously oppose the recommendation in the bill on the drawback feature, as applied to the tin plate, as they believe they should secure the work now done in Wales and imported under the provisions of the drawback feature.

"We are satisfied that there will be a universal protest against the sweeping reductions included in this bill, hence we request the consideration of each and every item, to the end that American workmen shall be protected in their labor."

MOVING PICTURES OF "BEN HUR" ENJOINED

New York, March 18—The United States circuit court of appeals has ruled that a moving picture is a "stage representation," within the meaning of that term in the copyright law. The question arose in a suit brought by Harper & Bros., and Klaw & Erlanger against the Kalm company, manufacturers of moving picture films, to enjoin them from producing exhibitions of "Ben Hur." The film manufacturers, while admitting that the scenes pictured were taken from Gen. Lew Wallace's book, urged that the representation was only an "exhibition of pictures" and not a dramatic performance within the meaning of the copyright law. The court's decision holds that in order to produce a moving picture it is necessary to prepare a synopsis or story which is in effect a dramatization and that the author alone has the right to make or authorize a dramatization

POCKETBOOK WAS RETURNED

David Davidson Is $13 Richer as Result of Publicity.

Owing to the publicity given the loss of his pocketbook, David Davidson of 2004 Piedmont avenue is $13 richer than would otherwise be the case. It came to him quite unexpectedly today, the woman who picked it up with the intention, he believes, of keeping it, having become afflicted with "cold extremities."

The incident of the loss and recovery is rather an unusual one. Mr. Davidson was riding on a West Third street car last Sunday, when he dropped his pocketbook. He did not miss it until after he had left the car. Meantime a woman passenger had picked it up.

The conductor noticed her action, and, noticing that he had noticed it, she told him that she would turn it over to the car starter as soon as she arrived up town. The conductor did not feel exactly right in his mind about not insisting on taking the pocketbook, but allowed his passenger to retain possession of it.

The woman failed to keep her promise, and three days passed by without any word being received from her. Yesterday an account of the incident was published. Evidently publicity was too much for the mysterious unknown, for today the missing pocketbook, with $13 intact, was returned. A little girl ran up to the car starter's box at the corner of Third avenue west and Superior street, quickly shoved her hand through the window and dropped the pocketbook, speeding away again before the man inside had a chance to ask any questions. The loss had been reported, so it wasn't long before Mr. Davidson came into his own again.

ARE WAITING ON THE TARIFF

Business Is Sound at Bottom, Says Charles E. Streeter.

"If congress will start right in on the tariff question, and get that problem out of the way, we may expect a pickup in the business situation over the country," was the statement of Charles C. Streeter, a manufacturer of Moline, Ill., who is at the Spalding today.

"I don't expect a very decided increase in business before June or July. But if congress will only get at work on the tariff question, there would be a great deal of uncertainty removed. The business of the country is really holding back until this question is settled one way or another. If congress revises the tariff schedule, I am of the opinion that the business of the country will adopt itself to it; if it doesn't revise it business will increase, as it is waiting at the present time, to ascertain what conditions it will have to face.

"At bottom the business of the country is good. There is no fear, but the question is being asked, why doesn't business increase? The answer is, that the big business men of the country, the manufacturers, the railroad men, are waiting to see just what congress is going to do with the tariff question. Therefore I say, that the sooner that congress gets at this problem, the better it will be for the business of the country."

Brenks Ribs Catching Train.

Hinckley, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Willard Owens is nursing three broken ribs he sustained during a recent trip to Sandstone, when he fell while hurrying across the track to catch a train. Although in great pain, he made the train and came home.

ONE DAY AFTER THE WILD IRISH ROSES BLOOMED

New York, March 18.—St. Patrick's memory was honored by a parade which surpassed any similar effort in the past. More than 40,000 persons were in line, including members of about 200 organizations. The line of parade, more than six miles long, was lined with enthusiastic spectators.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—March 18.—Brooklyn had a St. Patrick's day celebration all its own which came near eclipsing the Manhattan event. Thirty thousand men were in the long line of twenty divisions.

Washington, March 18.—"Resolved, That we sympathize with those lovers of freedom who are struggling for home rule and the great cause of local self-government in Ireland." This is the St. Patrick's resolution which Representative Edwards of Georgia introduced in the house yesterday.

REUNION OF WAR VETERANS

Fifteenth Minnesota Will Meet in Minneapolis March 27.

The tenth annual reunion of the Fifteenth Minnesota regiment, Spanish-American war veterans, will be held at Minneapolis, March 27. It was ten years ago this month that the men were mustered out of service at Augusta, Ga.

A number of members of the regiment are residents of Duluth, and several of them will go down to Minneapolis to be on hand at the reunion, which will be held in assembly hall of the courthouse. Former members of the regiment from all parts of the country will be in attendance to see their old friends.

FAILS TO SAW OUT FROM JAIL

Lion Tamer Who Once Thus Escaped Cannot Duplicate.

New York, March 18.—After sixteen hours spent in sawing two of the seven-eighths inch bars of his cell with improvised saws made of knicked table knives, Francis Louis Boissanade, a lion tamer, who was set to the task of making an official attempt to escape from the detention prison at Ellis Island, gave up the attempt.

Boissanade last August effected a real escape from the same cell with the connivance, Immigration Commissioner Watchorn thinks, of some of the keepers. Upon his recapture a few days ago, however, he maintained that no one had assisted him and that it was by sawing the bars of his cell for thirteen days and a half hours with table knives that he had succeeded in gaining his freedom. It was to prove if possible the truth of this assertion that Boissanade was made to undergo the test which has just failed. Had he succeeded, Commissioner Watchorn had promised to intercede for him at Washington. As it is he will be deported, and several Ellis Island employes now under suspicion will be discharged.

HARRIS NON-COMMITTAL AS TO UNIVERSITY JOB.

Chicago, March 18.—President A. W. Harris of Northwestern university refused to affirm or deny the possibility of his becoming president of the University of Minnesota upon his return to Chicago from Minneapolis.

"Do not quote me as either saying that I will or will not accept an offer in case it is made to me," said he. "I have not been approached by any one officially on the subject. My visit at Minneapolis has nothing to do with the matter, being merely incident to a trip in the Northwest."

VICTIM OF DOWIE ENDS HIS LIFE BY HANGING.

New York, March 18.—Despondent because he had lost all his life savings in an investment in Zion City, Ill., industries, the city started by John Alexander Dowie, Ludwig Auguszt, 71 years old, committed suicide by hanging himself in his room on Second avenue. Auguszt became a follower of Dowie when the self-styled apostle of Zion visited here and held his famous meetings in Madison Square Garden several years ago. The suicide invested about $3,000 in the lace industry in Zion City and was unable to get any return on his money after Zion City went into the hands of a receiver.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated By Duluth People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one special kidney medicine that cures permanently and there is plenty of proof right here in Duluth.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now states that the cure was lasting:

Capt. M. McLean, 4324 Gilliat street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Time has only strengthened my appreciation of Doan's Kidney Pills. I publicly endorsed this remedy in 1898, after it had freed me from a dull, heavy ache across the small of my back and other symptoms of kidney complaint. There has been no return of the trouble, convincing me that Doan's Kidney Pills cure permanently. I will endorse this remedy at every opportunity."

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

DANDERINE is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

A lady from St. Paul writes in substance, as follows:

"When I began using Danderine my hair would not come to my shoulders and now it is away below my hips."

Another from Newark, N. J.

"I have been using Danderine regularly. When I first started to use it I had very little hair, now I have the most beautiful long and thick hair anyone would want to have."

NOW at all druggists in three sizes 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Danderine enjoys a greater sale than any other one preparation regardless of kind or brand, and it has a much greater sale than all of the other hair preparations in the world combined.

BARRY DEFEATED BY SAM LANGFORD

The Former Was Not in the Best of Condition.

Philadelphia, March 18.—Sam Langford, colored middleweight champion, defeated Jim Barry of Chicago last night in a six-round bout before the Washington Sporting club. Langford was in perfect condition while Barry claimed to be suffering from malaria fever. Langford's most effective blow was a left hook to the head, which he used on the Chicagoan repeatedly. The colored man had the better of the first four rounds, but Barry came back strong in the closing rounds and had Langford doing his utmost at the finish.

MAY HAVE BOXING BOUTS IN DULUTH

Bill Providing for Six-Round Matches Passes the House.

A bill, allowing the city councils to permit exhibition boxing matches in the three large cities of the state, passed the house yesterday.

It is not known at this time what sort of a chance the bill stands in the senate, but if it passes, it will surely bring joy to the hearts of the admirers of the fight game in Duluth.

The six-round bout, the fans claim, furnishes amusement leaving out the objectionable part of the sport and its brutality.

The sporting public will anxiously await the progress of the bill in the senate. The bouts will be under the supervision of the police department, making them purely exhibition affairs.

CORBETT WANTS TO GET KILLED

Issues Challenges to Both Champion Johnson and Jim Jeffries.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 18.—James J. Corbett last night issued a second challenge for a fight with either Jeffries or Johnson. In it he says:

"I am tired of seeing this fellow Johnson going around with his chest out and nobody seems inclined to fight him. So I take the right that any man has and hereby challenge James J. Jeffries and Jack Johnson to box me any number of rounds or to a finish in any club in the world.

"I will forward from Indianapolis today a check for $1,000 to Al Smith, the well known stakeholder, at the Gilsey house in New York, as a guarantee of my good faith."

Pittsburg, Pa., March 18.—The first games of the international events between the 1908 champions of the American Bowling congress, the National Bowling association, the Canadian Bowlers' association and the Middle West Bowling association, drew a large attendance to Duquesne Gardens last night, where the international tournament of the International Bowling congress is being held. Four five-men teams, the champions of 1908 of the various associations named, were scheduled to roll the first three of a series of nine games for the international championship and a prize of $250, but only three teams bowled, the Hamiltons of Hamilton, Ont., the Canadian champions, failing to put in an appearance. The Bonds of Columbus, Ohio, the A. B. C. Champions rolled 2,515; the Brunswicks of New York, the N. B. A. champions made a score of 2,604, and the Desoto Stars of St. Louis, M. W. B. A. champions, totaled 2,635.

High Kick Record Broken.

Southboro, Mass., March 18.—A new world's record in the running high kick was made at St. Mark's school here yesterday by Harold Beebe of Malden. Beebe did 9 feet, 10⅝ inches. Beebe exceeded his mark of last year by two inches which at the time took the honor away from C. C. Lee of New Haven, Conn., who had held the record since 1887 with a mark of 9 feet 8 inches.

BUSY SEASON ON GREAT RED LAKES

Navigation Will Soon Commence With Some More Boats.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—What promises to be the most active season ever known for navigation on the Red Lake river will open this month.

This river is the only outlet for the great Red lakes and their surrounding reservoir in Northern Minnesota, and, consequently, is a stream of no small proportions. It is navigable from the outlet of the lakes to this city, a distance of some 100 miles by water, and at this city it is joined by the Thief river. Below here there are rapids and falls that render navigation impossible.

The rivers and harbors bill passed at the late session of congress carried an appropriation of $50,000 for the improvement of this stream from Thief River Falls to the Red lakes. These improvements will permit of a regular schedule for the steamboats, several of which have for years maintained an intermittent passenger and freight traffic between the points mentioned.

The recent settlement of the great reaches of rich lands of the former Indian reservation along both sides of the river, as well as the establishment of many woods settlements about the Red lakes, create a business which is rapidly increasing as the seasons come and go. The boat-building firm of Eberhardt & Son, and who own one of the largest steamboats on the lakes, is now constructing two more boats. The Farmers' Transportation company of Highlanding, a point some forty-nine miles up river from Thief River Falls, has their large boat ready for the opening of navigation and expect to do a large business this season.

Congressman Steenerson has assurance that the present congress will appropriate $247,000, the amount the engineers estimate necessary for the construction of a dam with gates at the outlet of Red lake, and thus, aid in preventing the annual floods on the Red river toward the Manitoba line.

JURY SELECTED IN MURDER CASE

Barney Nelson Faces Bemidji Jury For Killing Morris Fuller.

Bemidji, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Barney Nelson, indicted by the grand jury on the charge of killing Morris Fuller at Fowldes, in the northern part of the county, Jan. 3 last, is today facing a jury of his peers in the district court, twelve acceptable men having been selected yesterday afternoon and evening, after fifty talesmen had been examined.

The charge against Nelson is murder in the first degree, it being claimed he fired the shot that caused Fuller's death. Fuller and Archie Brown were walking along the railroad track at the time of the killing, when they met another, who proved to be Nelson, the accused. All had been drinking more or less and were walking to Fowldes, when Fuller is said to have tapped Nelson, who was ahead, on the shoulder in a playful mood. This aroused Nelson, so the evidence goes, and, drawing a pistol, he fired, killing the other. The apparent lack of motive for the killing and the fact that all had been drinking promises to make the case a bitterly fought affair, and may prove a stickler for the jury.

Dominick Boyer, who was convicted at this term of court of the crime of robbery in the first degree, was sentenced to serve a term of ten years at hard labor in the state's prison at Stillwater. Boyer, when arraigned, told the court that he was 38 years of age; divorced from his wife; had no children, and has a mother and sister residing at Pintic, Wis.

In passing sentence, Judge Stanton stated that the crime for which Boyer had been convicted was a very serious one and that he would give him a severe lesson, and thereupon sentenced him to ten years' imprisonment at Stillwater.

John Boyce, who pleaded guilty to robbery in the first degree, was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year, the judge taking into consideration his plea of guilty.

The jury in the case of the State vs. Cook, charged with grand larceny, returned a verdict of not guilty.

PAROLE PRISON EDITOR.

Louis Sommers to Leave Penitentiary After Nineteen Years.

Stillwater, Minn., March 18.—Louis Sommers, who for years has been the editor of the state prison Mirror and who filled the position with marked credit, will be discharged from the state prison on parole. As soon as a suitable place of employment has been secured for him he will be released.

His crime was shooting to death with a revolver Mary Dietzen, his sweetheart in Hastings, on Feb. 12, 1890. He pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree. Judge H. R. Murdock of Stillwater was holding the term of the district court in Hastings at that time. He found that there were extenuating circumstances for the killing and imposed a life sentence, instead of the death penalty. Sommers was then 19 years old and a clerk in a hardware store. Sentence was imposed Dec. 27, 1890.

On April 28, 1903, the state board of pardons commuted the life sentence to thirty years. That made the man eligible to parole three years and a half ago. But the state board of control did not grant the parole until March 9 of this year. Since then his friends have been hunting for a position for him, according to the regulations in cases of parole. Almost any day now such place may be provided and he will be released under the usual regulations to report monthly to the prison until the time arrives for his permanent discharge, when the maximum time of thirty years, less good time, expires.

WILL WIND UP HOCKEY AFFAIRS

Amateur League Directors to Hold Final Business Meeting.

The directors of the Amateur Hockey league will meet this evening at the store of the Northern Hardware company for their final meeting of the year.

The reports of the officers will be read and the business connected with the past season's hockey finally wound up.

The league as it was managed this year was very successful from every point of view. While the league made no money, it did not run in the hole. The expenses ran about even all season, and the attendance was very fair. The hockey furnished was of a fair article, and the contests were always close and exciting.

Already plans are being made for next year. It is expected that Duluth will have a real hockey rink by the time snow flies another year, and the league will then endeavor to have at least two more teams entered.

WARREN VOTES WET.

Warren, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The vote on saloons Tuesday carried "wet" by a majority of 16 with a total vote of 290 cast. The fight was one of the most spirited in years and was expected to be close, but the "wets" carried by a big majority for the total vote cast.

Lively Mellen Campaign.

Mellen, Wis., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The municipal campaign here promises to be a lively one. There are four candidates in the field for mayor, or at least four names are "prominently mentioned." They are John Carlson, Mike Collins, A. J. Sullivan and John Quantius. Mr. Sullivan had the distinction of being the first mayor of Mellen, and he has support for re-election, but there are others. The prospects are good for a lively scrap although "harmony" may pull off some of the candidates.

The Selection of a PIANO

Is hard for some people because they make it so. The man of large affairs, the business man, always seeks the best, because he knows that best is cheapest. For a picture he applies to a first class artist, to a famous writer for a good book, and to a first class piano house for a good piano.

Steinway & Sons and Ivers & Pond have a reputation for building the best, and we are their sole agents. By all means, see our Ivers & Pond Grands. It costs nothing to show them.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Throughout America the people most interested in the education of the children of the generation have seen the necessity of vacation schools and systematic training during the summer months for the boys and girls who would otherwise be running wild with little supervision and no one directing their energies into helpful channels. For several years the Women's Council of Duluth has maintained vacation schools, the longest established being a domestic science school for the young girls of the West end. Last summer classes in sewing and cooking were included and two manual training schools were also established.

The Council members however, did not intend to permanently maintain summer schools by public subscription, but greatly desire that the work be taken over by the school board as a part of its legitimate work. At the last meeting of the board a committee from the Council appeared before the members and requested that the work be now undertaken by the board and that the schools be continued, the equipment bought by the Council to be given for the work. There is a willingness to comply with the request if funds are available and the Council members and the club women of the city, generally, are waiting anxiously to learn if the vacation school are to be a part of the Duluth public school system. It is probable that if the board undertakes the work this summer, that it will continue the sessions in those schools already started by the Council and extend the work as rapidly as is practicable. The domestic science school was last year conducted at the Irving school at West Duluth, and a manual training school was also held there. The other classes in manual training were held at the high school building. There is so strong a sentiment in favor of the use of the public school buildings during the summer months that it is possible that the work will never again die out of Duluth.

COLLEGE WOMEN

Are Demanding Concerned Attention From America.

How has she made herself so great and strong, that shrinking little figure which entered Oberlin on tiptoes in 1833, her pretty frock spread over a hoop skirt, her hair done in a waterfall stuffed with jute, a reticule upon her wrist, huddled there alone in the great world, fluttering and trembling-lipped, but standing her ground? asks the April Delineator. She used to be the "misjudged and neglected sex" in those days, and now she is "the women of the university" and appears in convocation with a cap and gown, and sometimes a purple hood. The learned gentlemen who discussed co-education in the early half of the century thought that men and women were too unlike to pursue the same courses of study; they argued that women would lower the standard of collegiate work; they shuddered in their skins for the moral code; and, finally, with the right-hand-thrust-into-the-breast-of-the-frock-coat manner which was used by learned gentlemen in those days, they delivered themselves of the dictum that co-education was against nature, and that was supposed to be the end of that matter.

They thought of nearly everything except the things that have really happened, and not into what attacks of vertigo they would have been thrown if they had foreseen that women were to take over the universities for their own, and drive men out by sheer pressure of numbers; and, yet more revolutionary, that they were to be much in importance, as well as many in numbers, and sit high in the places of honor wherever they chanced to go.

Every university in the country is watching the university girl darkly. "Let there be no more men in colleges," she seems to be saying. Presidents in their annual reports note with dignified trepidation the fact that 60 per cent of their students are now women, a proportion yearly increasing. That of thirteen Western universities shows the women outnumbering the men in seven cases. Minnesota, Nebraska and California have nearly twice as many women as men enrolled. Stanford has hinted its back flatly against the wall, like a pursued creature facing a pack, and arbitrarily limited the number of women who may enter each year to 500. And Tufts is asking for a fund of $250,000 that she may segregate her women and so save herself from becoming a woman's college.

ABOUT OYSTERS.

Ways and Methods of Serving the Animal.

The epicure, even though a germ crank, would never stand for raw oysters whose shells have been smashed open with dire effect on the juices. She would also have a few service don'ts that are too often forgotten.

Don't serve raw oysters out of their shell, even though you have wonderful oyster plates that you hate to hide.

Don't serve them lukewarm. There are guests who can only bolt an oyster from good manners, and should it happen to be of sickening warmth a social tragedy may result.

Don't over-ice. A cold oyster does not mean one given a bath in melted ice, nor should one be compelled to dig through icebergs to find their half-frozen bivalves. To rest the shells on a bed of cracked ice for half an hour before the course will usually give just the right temperature.

Don't make the mistake of serving big oysters at a woman's luncheon. Men may know that a Lynnhaven is juicier and more delicious than the boasted blue point, but the few women who know it will not acknowledge that their mouths are equal to the swallowing feat.

Don't over-condiment or over-sauce. The true epicure uses just a bit of lemon, knowing that more destroys the oyster flavor; the man or woman who does not share the taste of England's George in oysters will go slow on tabasco, horseradish and catsup lest that dreaded bad oyster slip down unawares.

Don't overcook. Many things may go wrong when one forsakes the oyster raw, but most faults are conquerable as long as the stove has not had too long an inning. However cooked the epicure knows that a slightly curling beard is a sign that the oyster is done.

the EVENING STORY

A CLOSE SHAVE

By J. A. Tiffany.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"What is the amount?" in that musical voice, with that luminous smile which, for the last hour, had made me forget the disparity in our years and the great gulf between her social position and mine, the

"Three thousand and fifty dollars," I replied, totaling up the few but costly items of her purchase—chiefly pearls and diamonds.

"Dear me!" she exclaimed, with a little sigh, "I had not intended being so extravagant. I haven't so much money with me—not more than half that; and I can't wait at the hotel for you to send the jewels C. O. D., as I am going away on an early train. I shall have to take what I can pay for now, and do without the rest. It's so hard to decide what to leave and what to take," she went on, picking up some of the gems and examining them lovingly one by one.

"I really can't decide," the lady said at length. "I don't want to leave any of them. Would it be asking anything unusual, or giving too much trouble, if I should suggest that you accompany me in the carriage with these pretty trinkets? You can go with me to the hotel and bring the money back."

Mr. Bronson looked rather doubtful, but I introduced him to my customer (whose name, I found, was Mrs. Huntingford), and all it needed was a dozen words, a single smile, and his consent was gained.

I assisted Mrs. Huntingford to her carriage and took the seat at her side.

"How long have you been with Mr. Bronson?" Mrs. Huntingford asked, after a moment's silence.

"Five years, ma'am," I replied.

"And do you like the business, Mr. Morley?" she inquired.

Mr. Bronson had called me by name, and I was much flattered to think this queenly woman had deigned to remember it.

"I have sometimes thought," I answered, confessing to an ambition cherished long in secret, "that I would like to be a lawyer; but that is impossible."

"Why, my dear," lingering over the word in a way that made my heart leap and bound—then sink like lead as she added, "sir?"

"Because I haven't the necessary education, nor the opportunities for study," I answered.

"But there are always the means of education and the opportunity of advancement for those who have the will, the ambition, to grasp them," Mrs. Huntingford replied. "I should be very glad to see you a lawyer, and some day a judge, Mr. —. What is your name?"

"Morley," I replied, surprised she had forgotten it so soon.

"No—I mean your Christian name."

"Fred," I answered, more surprised than before.

"Ah! that's better than Mr. Morley. You won't mind my calling you 'Fred' for the little while that I shall see you? Really, you know, I am old enough to be your mother."

"Oh! don't say that!" I blurted out, egregiously.

"No?" she said. "Then I won't, Fred, if you don't like it. But if you want to become a lawyer you must do so. I wish I could help you."

"You have helped me, Mrs. Huntingford," I assured her.

"How?" she asked, almost in a whisper.

"By being so kind as to show an interest in me."

"I am glad to hear you say that, Fred. I know that you will make a great lawyer, and a good one. And yet—so much depends on things outside a man himself. Tell me, Fred: Were you ever in love?"

"Never until—" I began; then stopped short. I dared not utter the presumptuous speech that trembled on my lips.

"Never until—" Mrs. Huntingford echoed, encouragingly.

"Never until—" I began—and stopped again.

"Never until—this afternoon?" she asked in tones that scarce were audible.

"Never until this afternoon," I repeated firmly.

"And are you ashamed of it?" was the question she asked me, where I had expected a rebuke.

"No, I am not," I answered, boldly.

"Are you afraid?"

"Oh! why will you torture me by talking of this thing, that I hardly dare think of, even in my inmost soul?"

"My poor Fred," she said. "No honest man need be afraid to love the greatest woman in the world—unless she be his neighbor's wife. And though we may not always gain the object of our love, the loving of itself is good, for every man and woman. Do you really love me, Fred?"

"I—I do not know your name," I faltered.

"You may call be Rachel," she replied.

I took her hand, and she pressed mine for a moment to her heart. I felt its strong, even throb beating out the rich, pure blood that gave her all that glorious glow of health and regal beauty.

"I know not, Rachel," I replied, "whether you would call this feeling love. I know I worship you, and would account it joy to die for you—or yours."

She lay back in the cushions there, pensive and beautiful, and my arm stole around her waist. I was just about to kiss her, when the carriage stopped, and Rachel disengaged herself, laughing gently.

"I have to call here for a package," she said, stepping out into the street. "You careless boy! You are not fit to be trusted with my trinkets. I will carry them myself," she continued, picking up the jewel-case from the seat where I had laid it.

"You may come in with me and carry back a parcel that is not so precious."

Rachel led the way into the hairdresser's establishment in front of which we had stopped, and we went into a small room across a hall from the main room.

"Is everything ready?" Rachel asked, as the proprietor came in and greeted her with a low bow.

Then, suddenly, he and four other men sprang upon me, and for a minute I thought myself the victim of a nightmare. But soon the tones of Rachel's voice convinced me I was not asleep.

"Good-by, Fred," she was saying. "Don't be frightened, dear. These men won't hurt you if you're good. There's no help for it. The doctor says it must be done. I'll call for you in half an hour."

She went out and I remained passive in my bewilderment while the men strapped me tightly into a barber's chair.

Suddenly my muddled brain was illumined with the conviction of treachery, and I writhed and struggled to free myself, shouting:

"The diamonds! Let me go! Stop thief!"

The proprietor came over and gagged me; and then, while the four other men stood by, he began to cut my hair, saying:

"Now, please sit still, sir; or I'm afraid I may cut you."

It seemed dangerous as well as useless to struggle, and I gave myself up to my fate, until the barber having clipped my hair short began to shave my head. At this I resumed my struggles, but found them vain and dangerous as before.

When he had shaved my head so that not a hair remained, the proprietor said:

"Now, sir, will you be quiet and reasonable if I take the gag out of your mouth and untie you, or shall I keep you as you are until your mother comes back?

I nodded in answer to his first question and shook my head at the second, whereupon the man set me at liberty.

Soon as I was free I dashed out of the place and called up police headquarters, telling them of my loss and describing the lady who had got away with Mr. Bronson's jewels. Suspecting the barber of complicity in the robbery, I spoke to a policeman on the street and took him back with me to the place where I had been so vilely misused. The barber, however, professed the utmost surprise and regret when he heard my story. He said that Mrs. Huntingford had called at his store earlier in the afternoon and said to him:

"I have a son, a young man, who has been suffering from brain fever, and the doctor has ordered me to have his head shaved. I will bring him here in my carriage in an hour or two and call for him again when it's all over. He may object and talk strange, but you have enough men here to manage him. Gag him and strap him down, if necessary, but don't hurt the poor boy."

It was beautifully simple. We never got any trace of Mrs. Huntingford. Mr. Bronson offered inducements to the police, but in the end they had to confess themselves beaten.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IS CELEBRATED

Irish Play "Arrah-Na-Pogue" Presented at Cathedral Auditorium.

St. Patrick's day was appropriately celebrated at the cathedral auditorium last evening. Father J. J. O'Mahoney made an address, in which he briefly outlined some of the benefits that had accrued to America, and the world as a whole, through the Irish race.

Father O'Mahoney stated that early Irish civilization kindled the flame of civilization in Europe, and through the literature and art of the ages could be traced the influence of the Irish people.

Coming down to the present day, Father O'Mahoney stated that the Irish had always been an important factor in the history of American liberty. He stated that Irish soldiers were in a great majority in the American revolution; that Edmund Burke, in the English parliament, had always been a champion of the rights of America. In the days when this country was a struggling nation, Pacher O'Mahoney stated that the immigration of the Irish gave it great assistance.

"Arrah-Na-Pogue," a little Irish play, was presented at the close of the evening's celebration. The action of the play deals with Ireland's penal days.

Among those who took part in the play were: William Casey, Miss Ella Stringer, James Lydon, Charles Kelly, Miss Jennie Grady, Vincent Grady, Joseph Belleparche, Joseph Holland, Thomas McGraw, Edward White, John Mackey, Herbert Paul and James Walsh.

Flaaten's orchestra played several selections during the evening, and the Cathedral quartet and sextet gave several excellent numbers.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Bullish News Prevails and the American Markets Show Gains.

Flax Is Very Quiet, But the Prices Are Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 18.—Wheat was active over a range of about a point today and closed with a better tone in all the American markets. Cables were stronger, and the news from Argentina was bullish. The shipments from that country this week are estimated at 4,800,000 bu., which is light as compared with 5,096,000 bu. last week and 6,528,000 bu. a year ago. Duluth, showed the least response to the bulge.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅛d higher, Antwerp unchanged, Budapest ⅝c lower and Berlin ½c higher.

The May option closed unchanged in Duluth, ½c higher in Chicago and New York, ⅝@½c higher in Minneapolis, ¼@⅜c higher in St. Louis, ½@⅝c higher in Kansas City and ⅜c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, ⅜@½c higher in Chicago and Winnipeg, ¼c higher in Minneapolis and St. Louis, ⅝c higher in New York and ⅛@¼c higher in Kansas City.

May corn closed ⅛@⅝ higher in Chicago and ⅛d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅜c higher in Chicago.

Broomrall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The effect of weaker American cables yesterday was offset by the fact of expected lighter shipments from Argentina, and the continued good demand from the continent and at the opening the undertone was firm with values unchanged to ⅛d higher. Following the opening a further advance occurred at which time shorts were nervous and values showed an additional gain of ⅛ to ⅜d with the principal strength in July. London was reported to be a good buyer on further fears regarding the Balkan outlook. Notwithstanding the continued liberal arrivals, stocks show no increase and this fact is keeping shorts nervous. At midday, the market was still firm and ⅛ to ¼d higher than yesterday.

"Corn—March was unquoted, May was easy at the start and ½d lower and later lost an additional ⅛d. The decline was in sympathy with America, poor spot trade, and the fact that harvesting in Argentina has commenced."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 35 against 61 last year, and at Minneapolis 78 against 223 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 113 against 283 last year. Chicago received 75 against 23 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 368,000 bu. last year 408,000 bu. Shipments 172,000 bu. last year 284,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 368,000 bu. last year 480,000 bu. Shipments 256,000 bu. last year 450,000 bu.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Shorts Moderately Active Buyers of Wheat at Opening.

Chicago, March 18.—Shorts were moderately active bidders for wheat at the opening of the market today which caused initial advances of ⅛@¼c to ½c. Early in the day, however, all of the advance was lost and prices declined ⅛ to ¾c on selling by pit traders and commission houses. The principal selling pressure was on the July delivery. The bulge at the start was due to continued light receipts in the Northwest. May opened at $1.16¼, sold at $1.16⅜, and then declined to $1.15⅜. July opened at $1.04¼ to $1.04½, and after touching $1.04⅛@⅜, dropped oack to $1.03⅜.

The market was nervous the last half of the session and prices moved over a range of about 1c. There was considerable covering by shorts late in the day and the close was firm with May up ½c at $1.16¼@1.16⅜; July closed at a net gain of ⅜@½c at $1.04½.

Bearish sentiment developed again in the corn pit following slight firmness at the opening when prices were ⅛ to ¾c above the previous close. A leading cash grain concern was one of the principal sellers. The opening firmness was due to the strength of wheat and to predictions of wet weather in the corn belt. May opened ⅛ to ¾c higher at 66⅛ to 66⅜c and sold off to 65½c.

An improved export inquiry brought out a brisk demand late in the session, and May advanced to 66⅝c. The market closed firm with May up ½@⅝c at 66½@66⅝c.

Oats followed the trend of wheat and corn, opening firm and weakening early in the session. Trade was quiet. May opened a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 54@54⅛ to 54⅛@54¼c, and sold off to 53¾c.

Provisions held steady, notwithstanding a 5c decline in live hogs. Buying of a large line of July ribs by a local commission house offset the weakness of the hog market. Prices at the start were 2½c higher to 7½@10c lower.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Receipts Light and the Conditions in Pit Nervous.

Minneapolis, March 18.—Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 150,000 bushels for five days. The market was again nervous. Receipts were light and made the opening strong. There was only ⅛c difference between the high and low point. May closed $1.14⅝, ⅛@¼c higher than the opening. Minneapolis today received 78 cars against 223 cars; Duluth 35 against 60; Winnipeg 122 against 146. May opened $1.14½@1.14⅝; high, $1.15⅛; low, $1.14⅛@1.14¼; close, $1.14¾. July opened $1.15⅜; high, $1.15⅝; low, $1.14⅞; close, $1.15⅜. Cash wheat was in strong demand. Country and local millers readily bought all offerings. Receipts were light and stimulated the active demand. No. 1 northern sold for 1⅜@2c over May, and No. 2 for ¾c under to the even May price. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.16⅛@1.16¾; to arrive, $1.16⅛@1.16¾; No. 2 northern, $1.14½ @1.14¾; to arrive, $1.14½@1.14¾; No. 3 wheat, $1.10½@1.12¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 61¾c; No. 3 white oats, 50½@ 51½c; No. 2 rye, 73⅜@76⅜c.

This week three less mills are in operation, and the output may drop to 260,000 barrels. Export market is quiet. Country millers reported better business than local millers. Prices were the same. Shipments, 50,681 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.55@5.65; first clears, $4.40@4.50; second clears, $3.10@3.15.

Barley—Receipts, 26 cars today, against 12; shipments, 24. Today's market was easier. Prices were ½c lower. Demand was only fair, with little inquiry for malting barley. Close, 62@63c.

IRONWOOD ELECTRIC LINE.

Ironwood, Mich., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The project talked of for years, an electric railway connecting Ironwood and Bessemer, is assured.

Right-of-way privileges across the lands of the United States Steel corporation and Corrigan, McKinney & Co. have been granted to the Twin City Electric company, and the traction concern has given bond that the road will be completed within the year. Ties are on the ground, and construction work will be started shortly. The company already operates a trolley line between the cities of Ironwood and Hurley. The new extension will traverse a well-settled mining region, and is expected to be productive of heavy traffic.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Was Lifeless and the Close Was Almost Lifeless.

Reading Bid Up, But Declined Again Under Heavy Selling.

New York, March 18.—Small declines were the rule today in the opening quotations for stocks, but there was a sprinkling of gains of which the most prominent was Union Pacific, with a rise of ¼. Atchison and Missouri Pacific declined large fractions. The dealings were only moderately active.

Stocks were sold freely, and this caused sharp inroads on prices, but the supporting orders were put in and a sharp upturn followed. The decline cost Hocking Coal 2⅛, and St. Paul, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Kansas & Texas, Amalgamated Copper, United States Steel and International Paper preferred 1. The rebound put prices above last night again.

Reading was bid up aggressively, but met such heavy selling that its price was driven back. The general list moved in sympathy and became dull at the reaction. Central Leather rose 1⅝, the preferred 2½, American Hide & Leather 1 and the preferred 1½. Canadian Pacific gained 1 and Pittsburg Coal preferred 1⅜. Chicago Great Western declined 1. Bonds were heavy.

Fluctuations were too narrow to afford profitable trading operations and the market accordingly became very dull and uninteresting. Chicago Great Western "A" yielded 1½.

The market closed about steady and almost lifeless. A rise of ⅜ in Chesapeake & Ohio was without effect on the general list, and prices then ran off. Reading lost its rise and low prices for the day were established.

Vote of House on Ore Tonnage Tax Bill Analyzed.

Members Voted In Favor Who Believed It Was Unjust.

Workingmen's Compensation Bill Not Likely to Be Passed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Post mortems on the tonnage tax bill were the order of the day in the legislature yesterday. Its passage was a surprise all around, as it had not been expected that the advocates of the bill could muster enough votes to put it through. Even the author of the bill, though he stated last night that he had been confident of the passage of the bill all along, had expressed doubt of his success, and his friends say that nobody in the house is more surprised than he at the passage of the bill.

Hardly less sore and hurt over the success of the bill than the members of the legislature from Northeastern Minnesota are those who had declared for a tonnage tax in their campaigns, but had found, after investigation, that a tonnage tax was not all that they had believed it to be.

One member from Southern Minnesota, who had openly expressed his

INJUSTICE OF THE TAX

W. D. Washburn, Jr., Deplores Passage of Ore Tonnage Tax Bill.

System of Taxation Imposing a Special Burden on Industry.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative W. D. Washburn, Jr., of Minneapolis, who voted against the iron ore tonnage tax bill, said in an interview today:

"I much regret the passage of the tonnage tax and deeply sympathize with the people of Northern Minnesota, against whom this unjust system of taxation is directed. I have never heard an argument in favor of this tax that, in my mind, is based upon any theory of justice of equality as between citizens of this state.

"It is a special tax laid upon a special product in a special locality.

"After it is collected the whole of the tax is then taken by the state, without any reference to the city, town or county.

"Any one of the above features is wrong. When all combined, they have produced a bill which embodies almost every bad feature of taxation. The tonnage tax is a bald example of double taxation, as precisely the same property is taxed twice the same year—once on the ad valorem basis, and immediately thereafter upon the tonnage basis, when the iron is taken from the ground.

Special Burden on Industry.

"It is, moreover, a special and unusual tax levied upon raw material and a special burden on industry. It strikes right at the base of the production and manufacture, as it lays unusual taxes on the raw material from which articles are produced. The last is one of the most disastrous types of taxation, and is so regarded

Bill Giving Lake County a Representative Is Passed by House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on mines and minerals, this morning, indorsed a resolution, which will be introduced later, to the effect that it would be good business policy for the state to spend about $25,000 on a state mines building at Hibbing, and urging the appropriations committee to appropriate the necessary money.

The house committee on commerce and retail trade recommended for indefinite postponement the Saugstad bill

FIRE CLOSE TO 37-STORY BLOCK

Dunlap & Co. Burned Out in New York.

New York, March 19.—Fire started at 8:40 a. m. today in a six-story brick building at 181 Broadway, occupied on the ground floor by the hat store of Dunlap & Co., and on the upper floors by an optician and tailor. The blaze quickly spread through the building and burst through the roof.

The burning building stood in the middle of a short block of five-story buildings between Courtland and Dey streets, on the west side of Broadway, only a few hundred feet from the thirty-seven-story City Investing building and the Singer building, which, however, were not threatened by the flames.

The injured: Mrs. Francis Hillhouse, burned about the head, arms and body; Bertha Hulzweth, governess for Mrs. Hillhouse, burned about the body; Mrs. J. W. Simpson, burned about the face, body and legs; Miss Minerva Simpson, aged 20, burned about the feet and legs; Mrs. Margaret Merrill, slightly burned; Capt. Leland Potter, fireman, foot crushed, internal injuries, caught between two fire trucks.

Five firemen were injured.

Firemen raised extension ladders to the fourth floor and went by scaling ladders to the sixth, whence they carried down Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mc-Donald and their son, John, and a servant girl.

J. B. COTTON SEVERS HIS CONNECTION WITH THE U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

Tenders His Resignation to Take Effect May 1.

Will Continue to Make His Home in Duluth.

W. J. Olcott Is Likely to Succeed Thomas F. Cole.

Joseph B. Cotton, general solicitor for the Steel corporation at the Head of the Lakes, has tendered his resignation, to take effect May 1.

The announcement was not a surprise, as it has been quite widely rumored that both Mr. Cotton and Mr. Cole would leave the company, and the announcement yesterday that Mr. Cole would resign, bore out this rumor.

Mr. Cotton today confirmed the report, and made the following statement for publication:

"It is true that quite a while ago I voluntarily resigned all connection with the Steel corporation, such resignation to take effect May 1. I did not intend to announce the matter until about that time, but the rumors have been so persistent that I think it best to make the matter public at this time, and especially in view of the fact that Mr. Cole's resignation has just been announced.

"I have been connected with the iron interests in Minnesota and the Lake Superior region for sixteen years the first of May, and as everybody knows, have given my time exclusively to such interests. While the work has

SHARP IS ACQUITTED IN CARMACK MURDER CASE; COOPERS' FATE IN DOUBT

The Jury Has Not Yet Reached a Decision Affecting Them.

Judge Orders Defendants Brought In the Courtroom.

Also Sends for Jurors Who Debated Since Wednesday.

Nashville, Tenn., March 19.—John D. Sharp, former sheriff, was today declared not guilty of the murder of Former United States Senator E. W. Carmack. The jury has reached no decision in the cases of Col. Duncan B. Cooper and his son, Robin Cooper, also tried on the charge of killing Carmack. The jury has been out since Wednesday.

At 12:12 this afternoon Judge Hart sent word to the jury to come into the courtroom, but eight minutes later the jury sent back word that it had not reached an agreement, and that there was no occasion for it to come into court.

At 12:22 the judge ordered the defendants brought into court and instructed the sheriff to bring in the jury.

At 12:25 the defendants were brought in, quickly followed by the jurymen.

The judge then asked: "Have you reached a verdict, gentlemen?"

MASKED MEN DYNAMITE

Fail to Blow Their Way Into Arkansas Bank Vault.

Destroy 'Phone Communication, But Overlook One Wire.

Bald Knob, Ark., March 19.—While some of their number rode about the streets discharging their weapons and holding the populace in terror, others of the band of robbers worked for more than an hour this morning in an unsuccessful effort to dynamite their way into the vault of the bank of Black Knob, abandoned their task, after firing nearly a score of blasts, which demolished the outer door of the safe, but without forcing the inner doors. One citizen was wounded in the parting fusillade of the band as they rode away a few minutes after 2 o'clock.

The first explosion was heard shortly before 1 o'clock. As citizens emerged from their houses they were greeted

MINE SHUTDOWN IS LOOKED FOR

Anthracite Coal Diggers Expect Period of Idleness.

Philadelphia, March 19.—No word has as yet come from the anthracite mining companies regarding the annual reduction of 50 cents a ton in the domestic sizes of coal. Coal dealers and consumers are anxiously waiting for an announcement, but none is expected until after the convention of miners in Scranton next week has taken action on the proposition of the operators to renew the present working agreement. Every colliery in the hard coal fields is working full time and will continue to do so until the end of the month.

Rumors that the mining companies will shut down for an indefinite period pending a settlement of the labor troubles, cannot be officially confirmed, but reports from several important sections of the coal regions tend to support them. The mine workers all look for a shutdown during April.

KIDNAPERS NOT FOUND

Father of Stolen Boy Will Pay $10,000 Ransom.

Inserts Ad in Papers, as Directed by Note.

Sharon, Pa., March 19.—Notwithstanding a rigid search, lasting all night, by officers in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, no trace has yet been found of the man or men who yesterday kidnaped William Whitla, 8 years old, son of James P. Whitla, a wealthy attorney.

The lad's relatives, some of whom are millionaires, are making every possible effort to locate the child and his abductors. No decision has yet been made regarding the ransom of $10,000, demanded by the kidnapers for the safe return of the child. Mr. Whitla immediately complied with terms contained in a letter received yesterday from the men in so far as the insertion of an advertisement in various papers about the country is con-

THE INNOCENT VICTIM.

The Steel Corporation is Aimed at, But the Business Man is Hit.

TO START WORK ON STEEL PLANT

Construction Crews From Gary Have Been Ordered to Duluth.

Boston, Mass., March 19.—The Boston News Bureau says: The United States Steel corporation now plans immediate work upon the erection of its mammoth steel plant at Duluth, Minn. This plant will cost about one-half as much as the new Gary plant, as plans now call for an expenditure of about $30,000,000. The same construction crews which worked on the new steel plant at Gary have been ordered to Duluth to begin active work on this construction when spring opens.

This plant will have the benefit of cheap electric power from the St. Louis river, obtainable from the Great Northern Power company, for which cheap power Boston capital has been largely responsible.

The building of the new city, patterned after the new city of Gary, Ind., will grow out of the present plans. The first installment of $14,500,000 has been set aside by the Steel corporation for this work.

PATTON FOUND IN PORTLAND, OR.

Missing Buyer Meets His Brother Face to Face on Street.

Now Ill With Complete Nervous Breakdown at Brother's Home.

Norman Patton, the missing Panton & White buyer, has been found.

He was met face to face on the streets of Portland, Or., by his brother, who lives in that city and is now ill at his brother's home, suffering from a complete nervous breakdown.

How he got from Pittsburg to Portland is a mystery. He had only $30 in his pocket, it is said, when he left New York.

The case is a mysterious one, and the only way that Patton's actions can be accounted for, are that he was not in his right mind. Other buyers from the store, state that he was not himself in New York. On one occasion he was out driving with one of the other buyers, and suddenly grasping his companion by the arm he said: "My God, man, I must get back to the office." There was no reason to return to the office, as it was Sunday, and Patton's business had all been attended to. He was evidently under a great mental strain, and his companions on the trip all feared that he would suffer a complete nervous collapse. When he took the train for home, however, he appeared to be all right.

He was traced to Pittsburg and then to Minneapolis, and last night his wife received a telegram from his brother in Portland stating that Mr. Patton was safe there. He was found wandering about the streets of Portland, apparently in a trance. His brother met him face to face on the street, and was astounded to see him. He at once took him home, and physicians were summoned.

Mr. Patton visited Portland about six years ago, and frequently referred to the pleasant time he had there. It is thought that when he temporarily lost his reason that he headed straight for the West and finally landed in Portland, although it is a mystery how he reached there on the small amount of money he had with him.

WEATHER—Fair tonight and Saturday; moderate variable winds.

Having What a Man Wants and ought to have is an important feature of this store's service. You will realize how careful we are about this service when you see the definitely different clothes shown here this spring. These are better than the kind you've always thought was best. When you see them you'll wonder why the prices are not higher.

The $25, $30, $35 and $40 Suits

are hand-tailored and are made of the finest imported woolens. The best western tailors can't make these finest grades of ours. They are worth a great deal more than we are asking.

The $15, $18, $20 and $22.50 Suits

are in many instances vastly better than the very best clothes in other stores. Our $20 and $22.50 suits for instance, are greater values than the best you'll find elsewhere priced at $25 and more.

The $10 and $12.50 Suits at the Oak Hall are not to be judged by the prices. Others would ask $5 more for such suits as these. They are really worth $5 more than we ask.

Come in Tomorrow and Pick Out Your Easter Suit. We'll Lay it Aside For You.

KIDNAPERS NOT FOUND

cerned. The advertisement is to the effect that he is willing to pay the ransom of $10,000, but no word has been received from the kidnapers as to when and where this money is to be paid. Early today a squad of Pennsylvania state constabulary reached here from Punxsutawney, Pa., for the purpose of assisting in the search.

The father, dry-eyed and full of anxiety, sits in his office, directing the extensive search. He is in constant communication with nearby towns and orders every clue, no matter how slight, run down. Mr. Whitla refuses to divulge the letter he received from the extortionists in its entirety. He is greatly depressed and said that he would surrender everything he owns if it would effect the immediate restoration to him of his boy. He added:

"I will endeavor to get in communication with my boy's abductors. It looks as though they would put a terrible threat into execution.

"Advice is good, but perhaps time is too short in this case to disregard threats. If money will bring back the boy then I will readily pay the $10,000."

Mother is Prostrated.

The mother is prostrated. She did not sleep last night and today clings pathetically to her daughter, Salina, 10 years old. She refused to allow the girl to go to school today, the same school from which her boy was kidnaped yesterday, and sits with her arms about the child. Anna Lewis, the boy's teacher, who yesterday prepared William for the journey with the abductors, feels her part in the case deeply, although no blame is attached to her. Yesterday a strange man drove up to the East Ward schoolhouse, where young Whitla was a pupil in room No. 2 and told the janitor, Wesley Sloss, the lad was wanted at once at his father's office. Sloss conveyed the message to Mrs. Lewis, who dismissed the child. As she was helping him put on his overcoat she remarked half jokingly:

"I hope that man does not kidnap Willie."

When Sloss appeared with the boy the stranger smiled and helped him up to the seat beside him. He then drove off in the direction of Mr. Whitla's office. Several persons last night said a confederate joined the kidnaper before he had left the town.

Later a letter directed to the mother was delivered at the house by a mail carrier. Mrs. Whitla at once recognized the handwriting on the envelope as that of her son. Opening it, she found the following communication written in a strange hand:

"We have your boy and will return him for $10,000. Will see your advertisement in the papers. Insert in Indianapolis News, Cleveland Press, Pittsburg Dispatch, Youngstown Vindicator. (A. A. Will do as required. J. P. W.) Dead boys are not desirable."

No Reward Offered.

As yet no reward has been offered for the capture of the kidnapers, but the advisability of doing so is being considered. The rig in which the boy was carried away was hired in South Sharon, Pa., at 8 yesterday morning by a short, heavy-set man with a black mustache. He said he wanted to do some collecting and would return it about noon. At Howland Hill, twelve miles west of Sharon and four miles east of Warren, Ohio, Mrs. Thomas Walker, shortly before noon yesterday, saw two men driving along the road. At first glance she thought one of the men was carrying a large bundle on his lap, but, looking again, she saw it was a small boy.

At noon the rig was found deserted at Warren, Ohio. Several persons there claim to have seen the men and boy at the Erie railroad station, and it is believed the kidnapers went to Cleveland.

J. B. COTON SEVERS THE CONNECTION WITH THE U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

been very congenial, and the associations most pleasant, the duties have been arduous and confining. There has been practically no time for rest, or vacation, or for outside business. I find I cannot afford to give my entire time to the Steel corporation interests for the compensation it pays. Some time since I made other business engagements which are most flattering and more remunerative, and I am leaving the company solely in justice to my own personal interests, and to be relieved from the responsibility, drudgery and confining detail work, which have been my lot for many years.

"I shall remain permanently in Duluth. Upon leaving the service, I expect to take a short vacation, and upon my return shall open an office in the Sellwood building. With headquarters here, I shall practice my profession along the special lines of railroad, mining and corporation law."

The successors to Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton are not yet definitely known, although it is generally understood that W. J. Olcott will succeed Mr. Cole. Judge E. H. Gary is quoted in an interview at Boston as saying that Mr. Olcott would succeed Mr. Cole. Mr. Olcott has not yet arrived from the East. He has been in New York and was expected to arrive home this morning, but was delayed until tomorrow. He is expected to arrive in the city tomorrow morning.

Mr. Olcott has been vice president of the Oliver Mining company and president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, and is first in line for the appointment.

The resignations of Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton are expected to result in several changes, and those in line will probably move up a step. Just what these changes will be cannot be learned until the return of Mr. Olcott, as both Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton declined to discuss their successors.

MASKED MEN DYNAMITE

by the bullets of the outposts and quickly ran to shelter while the robbers held undisputed sway, keeping up an almost continuous fire and taking chance shots at any who came within range. In the meanwhile those at work in the bank building continued to explode dynamite but, as it proved, with little success other than to partially wreck the building, as well as an adjoining structure.

Before beginning operations the robbers destroyed telephone communication out of Bald Knob, but overlooked a railroad telegraph wire. A message to Augusta over this wire brought a posse of citizens from that place, who joined several other posses hastily formed here and immediately started in pursuit of the band.

ing split almost into ribbons, yet all escaped serious injury except one girl, whose collar bone was broken.

The tanks contained the entire city water supply and a famine is imminent. The damage will amount to $250,000.

St. John's Lutheran church was demolished, but through its sacrifice many lives were spared and much more damage prevented, as it was directly in the path of the water. The breaking of the tanks is believed to have been caused by some miscreant who dynamited them, as two explosions were heard.

regulating boards of trade and chambers of commerce, and the house adopted the report, thus killing the bill. It provided that grain exchanges must admit to membership everybody applying, unless there is good cause for rejection, that memberships should not cost more than $5,000 and that the railroad and warehouse commission must attend all meetings of boards of directors of such institutions.

The house committee on public accounts and expenditures submitted a majority and a minority report on the row between the public examiner's office and the board of control over certain coal purchases. The examiner found that rebates had been paid by the coal companies to S. W. Leavitt of the board, and in his report to the governor he denounced this method of doing business. Later it was found that the rebates went to the state, and the public examiner was going to modify that part of his report when the house committee demanded the whole report and got it. Both reports exonerate the board of control, but the majority (Republican) report criticises the public examiner's office for over-officiousness and the minority (Democratic) report criticises as dangerous the methods of doing business by a system of rebates. The house will decide between the reports after reading both.

The house committee on municipal legislation recommended for passage the bill allowing orderly baseball games on Sunday afternoon.

On motion of Representative White of Elk River, chairman of the reapportionment committee, the house passed the Congdon-Buck bill giving Lake county one of the two representatives from the Fifty-first district. Mr. McNeill of Minneapolis, who has a similar bill, objected to suspension of the rules, and Frank White said that after the rap the house gave Duluth the other day, it ought to be willing to extend a small favor like this. McNeill said that after the rap those who supported the commage tax bill had received this morning, referring to The Herald, it ought to be the other way. The bill was passed with only one or two votes against it.

Representative Ware called up his resolution for investigation of the Amour packing plant matter, and on motion of John Lennon the house promptly laid it on the table.

The house passed under suspension of rules the house bill by the road and bridge committee appropriating $300,000 for roads in each of the next two years. This is the "pork barrel" bill and the committees are now engaged in dividing up the "pork."

Senator Nelson introduced a bill amending the 2-cent fare so as to let conductors collect 10 cents extra from folks without tickets.

The senate will adjourn until next Tuesday, but the house will sit tomorrow.

Senator Vail had a narrow escape last night and today he is in a hospital with the artery in his right hand cut. Getting out of a bath tub in his room at the Ryan he slipped and thrust his hand through a window, the glass cutting it seriously. It was impossible to get a doctor immediately and Mr. Vail lost much blood before the police surgeon arrived. He is weak, but in no danger.

• • •

The following new bills reached the house: Nolan, amending reciprocal demurrage law to let shippers appeal to the railroad commission against violations; Kneeland, allowing expenses in traveling of district judges and county attorneys; Pfaender, prohibiting the board of control from accepting rebates; Adams, amending the inebriate farm law to allow the purchase of state land on which inebriates can be put to work grubbing stumps; Sawyer, Spooner and Rosenwald, providing for the appointment of all subordinate legislative employes by a board of state officers instead of by the legislature; Washburn, placing all suburban electric lines under the railroad and warehouse commission to compel city lines to give connections to them.

CHINAMAN HERE TO INSPECT MINES

Chu Dar Wong, imperial magistrate of Kwang Si province, China, is in Duluth en route to Virginia, where he is going to make a thorough inspection of the mines, the machinery used in the mines and the American methods of mining.

The young Chinaman is making a tour of inspection of the United States for the purpose of becoming acquainted with American methods of operating and installing machinery. Before he returns to his native country he will order mining machinery for use in some of the mines of his province.

Chu Dar Wong says there are great deposits of ore and copper in China that have not been developed. He says these are just beginning to be worked, and that it is the purpose of securing the best and most modern machinery for this purpose, that he came to this country.

Wong's father is superintendent of education in the province of Canton, and the young man says that English is being taught in many of the schools of the province.

The young man visited the country in 1904, when he accompanied Prince Po Lun, a brother of the late emperor.

MOST ARRANT DISPLAY OF SECTIONALISM EVER SEEN IN ANY LEGISLATIVE BODY

disbelief in the bill, but who voted for it on its final passage, said to The Herald last night, in the presence of other members of the legislature:

"It is the worst vote I have cast at this session. I am heartily ashamed of it. The tonnage tax is wrong, and on its merits it would not have had thirty votes in the house. Had the members been free to vote their convictions, it would have been defeated overwhelmingly."

This is just a sample of the remarks made by many of those who voted for the bill. There is one member who voted for it who has the respect of the opponents of the bill. He had promised his people to vote for it without realizing what it meant and what it involved, but after he had studied the question and had heard both sides of it, he determined that his vote should not carry the bill. So he instructed the reading clerk that if the issue was so close that one vote was necessary to carry the bill, that vote should not be his. In that event, his vote was to be cast against the bill. It happened that there were just enough votes to pass the measure without his, so he was counted in its favor. The pathetic part of this is that there were at least half a dozen others who had gone that far without giving specific instructions to safeguard the result. Had any two of these members voted against the bill—which would have meant voting their honest convictions—the Bjorge bill would have been defeated in the house.

 The action of the house, beyond ***
 any question, was the most ar- ***

With the exception of the vote of J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji, not a single vote was cast in favor of the bill in the regions containing the ore, or neighboring those sections in which iron deposits have been developed.

The votes that passed the bill came from Southern and Western Minnesota, from the richest portions of the state, where the least need exists for help in paying the expenses of running the state.

Beyond any question, the great majority of the house membership was at heart opposed to the passage of the bill because of their belief that it is unjust, inequitable and oppressive. Yet fear of the sentiment at home prompted these members to pass the bill, so the power of the majority was used to oppress and harrass a minority that can only hope to prosper through a sense of fair play and justice that was painfully lacking in the vote of the house on this measure.

Below will be found the vote in the various congressional districts, from which it can be seen how, in spite of the sturdy stand for honesty and justice of a scattering few, greed and cowardice led to the perpetration of the greatest outrage ever imposed by a powerful majority upon a dependent and helpless minority:

Starting in at the southeastern corner of the state with the First district, and swinging around west and north through the Second, Seventh and Ninth congressional districts, the map takes on the greater part of Southern Minnesota, and all of the old-time Populistic Seventh and Ninth districts. In all that territory St. Louis county got but five votes, and there were forty-six votes cast in these districts for the bill. All Southern Minnesota, all Western Minnesota, and the west half of Northern Minnesota, summoned up exactly five votes for fair play, and forty-six votes for the plunder of a weaker section by a stronger and greedier section—the section being that which furnished the forty-six votes.

In the Third district, thanks largely to the spirit of fair play shown by Speaker A. J. Rockne and by Judge M. O. Hall of the tax commission, who opposed the tonnage tax after careful study, there were more votes against the bill than there were in the entire First, Second, Seventh and Ninth districts. The Third district cast eight votes for the bill and six votes against it.

The Sixth district cast nine votes against the bill and five votes for it, the affirmative votes coming from Wright, Stearns, Douglas, and Meeker counties, all of which lie over against the Seventh district in the southeastern part of the district. The upper part of the Sixth district did not cast a vote for the bill.

Nothing more purely sectional was ever perpetrated in the history of the Minnesota legislature.

All it amounts to is this: St. Louis county offered the state a chance to become a great steel manufacturing center, a boon that involved a great increase in population, the upbuilding of a great city at the Head of the Lakes, cheaper steel and iron products for the people of the state, a greater market for the products of Minnesota farms, and cheaper freight rates for the manufactured products of the commonwealth.

But the rest of the state, too intent upon a possibility of grabbing a special tax for its own benefit, refused to become interested.

What does Minnesota care for developing a manufacturing industry, so long as the taxes of the farmers of Southern Minnesota can be reduced?

Though it is probably progressed too late in the session to become a law, the house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar the bill by the house committee on public lands, providing for a revolving fund for the purchase of dynamite to be used in clearing cut-over lands of their pine stumps. The bill appropriates $15,000, which is to be used in buying dynamite to be sold at cost to settlers. The governor, state auditor and the dean of the agricultural college are constituted a board, with power to make the purchases of dynamite and to sell the same to settlers. Sales are to be at cost, with expense of transportation and distribution added.

The house advanced to the calendar in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon the Spooner bill regulating the charges of telegraph companies in this state. They are not to be allowed to charge more than 25 cents for ten words, or more than 2 cents per word for each additional word over ten. These provisions apply, of course, only to messages between points in this state. Telegraph companies violating these provisions are liable to a fine of not less than $50 or imprisonment not to exceed three months.

The special order on the workingmen's compensation act introduced by Representatives Stuart, Nolan, F. E. Wright, Wells and Grant was continued yesterday afternoon, on motion of Frank T. White of Elk River, until next Tuesday afternoon. Mr. White said that it was evident that the members did not understand the bill, and he believed they ought to have time to familiarize themselves with its provisions.

As a matter of fact, though the real author of the bill, D. A. Stuart of Windom, has put much care and thought upon it, it is evident that the belief of the house is that it would be politically dangerous to attempt a hasty solution of this problem. Either the commission plan, proposed to the legislature by the employers and workingmen of the state through Governor Johnson, will be adopted, or there will be no action whatever upon this question at this session.

The senate yesterday afternoon killed the bill requiring public service corporations to pay their employes at least twice each month. The vote was 24 for and 31 against. The bill had passed the house without much opposition, but it met its Waterloo in the senate.

• • •

The senate passed the Pauly bill, providing that certain vegetables and other articles of food shall be sold by weight, yesterday afternoon.

• • •

The senate killed the bill by the senate committee on public health and pure food, authorizing the state board of health to adopt rules and regulations for the protection of the health of persons working for wages. The vote was 12 for and 27 against.

• • •

The house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar the MacKenzie bill, authorizing the killing of game within national forest reserves or lands set apart as breeding grounds by the state game and fish commission. This is the bill which is to perform Minnesota's part in the creation of a 2,000,000-acre game preserve along the boundary between this state and Ontario.

Though the senate committee on public health and pure food yesterday reported for passage the anti-cigarette bill, which passed the house at a night session, a short time ago, the house committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar the Brady anti-cigarette bill. In spite of all these precautions against the cigarette, it is still quite possible that no anti-cigarette bill will pass the legislature at this session.

The Cashman distance tariff bill, which would revolutionize conditions in this state practically destroying many communities, is a special order in the senate today. Yesterday a number of representatives of business houses in various parts of the state, including several from Duluth, were on the ground to protest against the passage of the bill and to show the mischief it would work.

The house judiciary committee has recommended for passage the bill by Frank T. White of Elk River, allowing courts to adopt the probation system for handling criminals convicted of a first offense, the punishment for which does not exceed five years in the penitentiary.

C. E. Richardson, formerly of Duluth but now of Washington, D. C., was in St. Paul yesterday, on his way to the White Earth Indian reservation, to straighten out the taxes levied against some of the Indians for whom he is the attorney. It is claimed that the state authorities have exceeded their powers in taxing the Indians of the state.

INJUSTICE ON THE TAX

by all authorities on the subject. If applied fairly, it should be laid upon all natural mineral products of the state, such as granite, sandstone, limestone, Kasota stone, clay and other similar deposits, which the advocates of this bill call the heritage of the state.

"While I disagree with the objects of the bill I do not feel that the legislature had any intention of striking at any particular section of the state. The idea that in some way the state had some sort of an obscure claim upon iron lands has become so prevalent that it was held that this gave some sort of a claim for a different tax.

"While I am wholly opposed to the tonnage tax, I trust that it will not impede the great development of the iron industry now progressing at the Head of the Lakes.

"Duluth is the one spot where at some time will be located one of the greatest manufacturing centers of this country. I think all the citizens of this state join in the hope that the Head of the Lakes will not only become a great steel center for her own benefit, but likewise a great market for the products of the state.

A Great Combination.

"With the recent development of the iron ranges, we today have one of the richest and most productive states in the Union. With the resources of soil, timber and mineral we have a combination that exists in few localities. With a cold climate and such a great preponderance of northern races it will be our own fault if some day we do not stand at the head of the list in wealth, intelligence and all the things that go to make a great commonwealth.

"We should all stand together, however, in developing all the varied resources of the state.

"What helps one locality helps likewise another, and we should all abstain from jealousy or discord that may affect the general future of the state. Personally I do not think the tonnage tax constitutional, and I do not feel that after further investigation it will ever be adopted or enforced in the state of Minnesota."

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The members of the board of managers of the Children's home will again be the storekeepers at a runmage sale for the benefit of the charity in which they are so much interested. The second annual sale will be held the latter part of May. The rummage sale last year was a great financial success, several hundred dollars being realized for the home at a time when the help was greatly needed. The sale was not a blessing simply for the home, but the clothing, house furnishings, books and dishes found ready purchasers who gladly paid the sum asked for the article which they needed. The prices were low enough to allow anyone who sincerely wanted to get an article to do so. The committee worked arduously and the sale did a great amount of good.

There was much demand for the books which were sent in. The opportunity of clearing out libraries of the books which accumulate and which are not particularly desired as a permanent acquisition was welcomed by many, and every book found a delighted purchaser.

The sale will be held this year the latter part of May, and the women of the board especially request that during house cleaning time Duluthians will remember the home and save every possible article for the rummage sale.

At a recent meeting of the board it was decided that no child would be admitted to the home without a doctor's certificate. This rule was made necessary in order to protect the little ones already there from the possibility of being exposed to a contagious disease.

Beginning with the first Friday of April, the home will be open to visitors twice each month. Two of the board members will act as hostesses on these visiting days, and visitors to the institution will be welcomed.

The donations to the home last month were: Eight gallons milk, Mrs. Hartley; clothing, dishes, pop corn, ribbons, Mrs. Hubbell; mittens from Needlework guild; mittens from Mrs. E. L. McGregor, repapering, new bed linen, dishes, hot water bag for the Agnew room, from Mrs. W. C. Agnew; one bushel apples, one dozen barrels, Mrs. J. T. Davis; 32 pounds mutton stew, George L. Munsey; clothing, Mrs. Cramer; 15 pounds ground malt, Fitger Brewing company; one dozen brooms, Zenith Broom company; half dozen quart jugs from Standard Salt & Cement company; toys and cards, Grayfallant company; 75 valentines, Lakeside Presbyterian church; babies' clothing, Mrs. A. C. Park; fireless cooker, mixing bowl, chopping bowl, roasting pan, two metal cans, five screens, two yards felt, from Mrs. Edward Lee and guests.

Lecture on Darwin.

The regular meeting of the Saturday club will be held tomorrow afternoon at the club room of the library. During the half hour devoted to current events, news from the countries will be discussed by Mrs. H. L. Paddock. French literature from 1515 to 1549 will be the regular study with Mrs. O. A. Oredson as leader. The outline is as follows:

I. Leading influences dominating the literature of the 16th Century.
   a. Renaissance.
   b. Reformation.
   Poetry.
   Miss Ethlyn Abbott.
II Clement Marot.
   Prose.
   Mrs. Oredson.
III. Francois Rabelais.
   Life and Works.
   Mrs. J. M. Barnes.

Cheadle. Mrs. Webster and the men's prizes went to William Yale and H. W. Cheadle.

To Retain Servants.

A respect for leisure is a telling force in maid-keeping. Some women put a premium on slowness. If they get a swift maid, who can do her work quickly and well, they soon teach her to dawdle by inventing duties for a well-earned resting time.

If work be well done, the clever mistress asks not how nor when it is done. Explain your ways to a girl, but also be willing to listen to her ways of doing things. If both seem of equal merit household peace is promoted by not being over insistent as to your own methods.

The long-headed mistress knows the difference between a friendly interest in her maid's life and prying into it. The girl who works in your household has as much right to lead her individual life, provided that it is well within decent rules, as has any other woman. The mistress who infringes on that right is often doing her own chores.

LINENS FOR SUMMER.

Popular Material in This Season's Styles.

Linens will appear earlier than usual this year, and, unless I am very much misled by what I saw on the Riviera a short time ago, they will be the summer fabric par excellence, says Mrs. Simeox in the April Delineator. There are many new weaves that range all the way from a heavy, shantung-like texture to the sheerer, lighter qualities. Their colors are no longer harsh and crude, but take on the same odd, striking shades that are found in silks and cashmeres. White linen will be less worn than formerly, but gray, tan, khaki and even the darker shades—peacock, berri and the rest—are the desirable colors. They will be used distinctly as utility frocks, supplanting almost entirely the separate shirt waist and skirt.

These morning dresses—for, understand me, they are quite apart from the lingerie frocks of handkerchief linen and lace of a season or two ago—will be, for the most part, of the close-fitting princess or semi-princess order, made with short, scant skirts and trimmed heavily with soutache and buttons. The will be worn at first with dashing little coats of light-colored serge, later with suit coats of the linen, and later still, when warm weather is really with us, with sleeveless coats of coarse all-over lace dyed to match the dress, and which add a delightful finish to a summer frock.

There will be some attempt made, I fancy, to introduce the sleeveless coat in the first spring suits of serge and the like. But the idea is absurd and fantastic on the face of it, serge is meant strictly for utilitarian purposes and is much too heavy.

One change that will certainly appear in the spring dresses, whether of cloth or linen, is in the character and quantity of the lace combined with them. The new net lace closely resembles a cluny. Irish or hand-crocheted mesh, with fine, small figures. Nets of this will be dyed to match the dress and incorporated in it as a bodice or part of the skirt. In many cases almost half of the gown will be of lace.

MODIFIED REST.

The Modern Cure for Tired Nerves.

Now, what is true for normal, healthy life is equally true for abnormal, morbid life. The popular doctrine for a long time has been that for nervous persons rest is a necessity, says Rev. Samuel McComb in Harper's Bazar. This doctrine has been embodied in the famous Weir Mitchell cure. And doubtless for certain cases rest should be commended—as, for example, in certain acute exhaustive states of the nervous system, where there is a genuine or physical fatigue, as distinguished from psychical fatigue. But modern students are more and more coming to realize that not absolute rest, but modified rest—that is to say, rest and work combined—is the sovereign remedy for nervous disorders. The great majority of persons who suffer from neurasthenia complain of a sense of fatigue, and they naturally infer that what they need above all things is rest, or cessation from activity; but they forget that, in a vast majority of instances the fatigue does not spring out of any real muscular weakness, but rather from psychical or mental causes.

PLAIN SHIRTWAISTS.

Tailored Models Most in Favor This Season.

The plain tailored shirtwaist, whether of linen or some of the plain white cotton material, is most favored this season. The vogue of the Gibson plait at the shoulders is quite evident, but other waists will have the simple tucks, either in groups or equi-distant, both in front and back.

When these tucks are made in groups the plain space between the tucking is filled in with hand work, the solid embroidery—satin stitch—being a favorite. The same idea is carried out on the collar if it is made attached to the waist.

These waists open in front, the regulation plait being two inches wide. Here there is opportunity for displaying handsome pearl buttons. Three rows and sometimes four are favored. Of course, there are buttonholes for but one set. Sometimes the waists are fastened beneath the opening with smaller buttons.

With the tailored suits coarse mesh net waists will be much worn. The lace will match the color of the suit, and to make it harmonize more fittingly it will be made up with bands or straps of the cloth. The point is to have some of the material of the coat and skirt appear on the waist in some form or other. The sleeves should have a little of the heavier material as a finish.

Speaking of sleeves, the strictly tailored waist has the regulation shirt-waist sleeve, which is exceedingly scant with the plain cuff fastened with link buttons.

For the waist a little dressier, the tucked sleeve is generally chosen. One may suit the fancy as to the depth of the tucks. Half an inch is perhaps the width generally preferred. These tucks are in groups of equi-distant and extend from shoulder to wrist. If the sleeve is not finished with a cuff it is cut in a point, which hangs down well over the hand.

The turnover linen collar, with the tie, bow or jabot, will be worn as of yore. The attached collars, however, will not be discarded. In accordance with present fashion, these collars are a trifle higher at either side than in front or back.

Gold in Trimmings.

Gold, both in lace and cords, is much used as a trimming for new ruffs for spring. A narrow strip of gold is effective used as a band on a white or a black befrilled ruff.

Another way of using the gold is for an edging on a black net ruff of the Pierrot order, made extremely full. A narrow cord sewed to every frill would be most effective.

Long black streamers and loops of black ribbon weighted with gold fringe could be the finish. Of course, a neck dressing so elaborate as this is only for evening or formal day wear.

It would brighten a black toilet if wanted for a day wedding or afternoon reception, etc., especially if a gold rose were added to the black hat.

A pretty ruff for house wear, made from a strip of white frilling facing downward, and another narrower, pointing upward, would be effective if the edges were concealed by a band of velvet ribbon edged with gold cord and large gold dots worked on the velvet band.

The Ideal Kitchen.

It has two windows, and three if possible.

Also, it has a southern exposure, so as to be cool in summer. The fact of its being warm in winter is not important, unless only a gas stove is used.

There should be plenty of room to move things about, and for everything to be stored properly in its place. A kitchen, more than any other place in the house, should be kept really clean, and this is very hard to do in a crowded, badly arranged room.

It should have hardwood floors. They are so much easier to keep clean.

Neither wall papers nor burlaps are good. The steam and heat are said to soften them and make them absorbent of germs and dirt.

Painted walls and ceilings are most hygienic. They can be scrubbed down frequently.

The sink is built several inches higher than is most sinks. This does away with that back-breaking stoop that is enforced upon housekeepers who have to wash dishes.

There should be ample room for two tables. One is never enough.

Finally, the ideal kitchen has nothing in it which warm water could hurt. It is treated to frequent scrubbings with hot soapsuds and an abundance of water. No food particles are allowed to remain about to decompose and endanger the health of the family.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Parsnips, 40 cents a peck.
White turnips, 40 cents a peck.
Rutabagas, 20 cents a peck.
Grape fruit, 10 to 15 cents each.
Mushrooms, 80 cents a pound.
Brussel sprouts, 35 cents a box.
Fresh asparagus, 35 cents a bunch.
Roast beef, 20 cents a pound.
Spare ribs, 12½ cents a pound.

Eggs are down to a Lenten price, cheap, so that there seems no possible excuse not to have them several times a day. Speaking of eggs, why is it that Easter is a festival of eggs. Everybody has had them times without number during the preceding forty days, and why should on the dawning of a beautiful Easter day, a feast of eggs be regarded as a treat? It's very foolish.

The new vegetables looking much more desirable than they are, are in the market, suggestive of spring and home gardens and green salads and other pleasant things.

SUPERIOR NEWS

CENSURED BY CLASSMATES

Blaine Pupils Regret Action of Their Rowdy Associates.

Resolutions have been passed by the students of the Blaine high school, expressing their regret at the outcome of their basketball game with the Nelson-Dewey high school, Monday evening. They also wish to renew good relations with their rival school in athletics. The resolutions also severely censure those who took active part in the riot.

Police Raid an Opium Den.

The Superior police made a haul last evening, about 6:30 o'clock, when they raided an alleged opium den, upstairs at 1710½ Third street, making two arrests and confiscating the paraphernalia.

One of the prisoners was a woman, who gave her name as Belle BeLuern, and the other was Ernest Coughlin. The two alleged dope fiends are being held waiting for trial.

In State Tournament.

The Nelson Dewey high school will be represented by its basket ball team at the Appleton tournament starting April 1. There will be seven other teams at the meet. They will be selected from Eau Claire, Menomonie, Sparta, Mondovi, Appleton, West Green Bay, Oconto, Two Rivers, Stevens Point, Antigo, Grand Rapids, Waukesha, Weyauwega, Sun Prairie, Elkhorn and Jefferson. The winners in the tournament will receive a trophy cup.

An All-Star Game.

It is expected that one of the best basket ball games ever witnessed in Superior will be pulled off in the Superior normal school tonight, between two of the crack teams of Wisconsin and Minnesota, Company I of Superior and Company B of Minneapolis. Both teams are composed of stars.

His Wealth Too Sudden.

Mike Kapston, after hanging around a Superior saloon for nearly a week, without money, yesterday blossomed out and started buying drinks for the crowd. This gave Steve Zatko a 'hunch' that Kapston had found a $10 bill that he lost, and he had him arrested yesterday, charged with larceny. The case was continued until tomorrow.

Goes to Texas.

T. V. Badgley of Central Park, who has lived in Superior for the past twenty-two years, left last evening for Texas, where he will locate and later be joined by his family. He will probably establish himself at Houston, as the climate there is said to be good for the throat trouble from which he is suffering.

The Proper Dress.

The bridegroom and his attendants at a 5 o'clock church wedding, should wear frock coats, gray striped trousers, white waistcoats, white shirts, poke collars, white or gray ascots, with gloves in a shade to match, patent leather shoes, and should carry a silk hat. Also, golden grain belt beer should be served at the table, to insure health. Keen appetite comes from its use. BLACKMAIL IS ALLEGED

M. W. McDonald's Attorney Goes to See Governor of Missouri.

Mineral Lease Worth $110,000 Deeded to Kansas City Woman.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—With Governor Hadley of Missouri as leading man, Jefferson City is the scene of developments in the tangle which has involved Mitchell A. McDonald, Minneapolis millionaire lumberman. McDonald is a prisoner in the Hennepin county jail on a bigamy charge, while H. B. Fryberger of Duluth, his attorney, is in Jefferson City endeavoring to secure Governor Hadley's permission to the withdrawal of requisition papers which have been honored by Governor Johnson of Minnesota. Harvey Grimmer, executive clerk for Governor Johnson, accompanied Mr. Fryberger, at the governor's request, and will investigate the charges that McDonald has been made the victim of a blackmailing scheme.

Mrs. Belle Hamilton of Kansas City, Mo., who says that she married McDonald in Windsor, Ont., in May last, and lived with him in Kansas City for two months last fall, is the secretary of the Ozark Mining company, a Missouri corporation, with offices in Kansas City. Dispatches from Kansas City say that she financed the company and that she is well connected in the Missouri city.

Sued For $250,000.

That Belle Hamilton began a $250,000 damage suit against Mitchell A. W. McDonald, in which she charged that he had inveigled her into marriage by the representation that he was a single man, developed at the hearing before Governor Johnson, on Mr. Fryberger's request, that the governor rescind his action in honoring the requisition papers. The suit was begun for Mrs. Hamilton by the legal firm of Benton, Molineaux & Morley of Minneapolis, and papers in the case were served on McDonald.

At the hearing both Mr. Fryberger and Mr. Molineaux testified that the suit had been dropped, as the result of a written agreement entered into by McDonald and Mrs. Hamilton. By the terms of this agreement, which was shown Governor Johnson by Mr. Fryberger, McDonald deeded a mineral lease, valued at $100,000, to Mr. Molineaux, in trust for Mrs. Hamilton's benefit. Mr. McDonald reserved the privilege of purchasing the lease for $110,000. The contract is said to have contained stipulations that Mrs. Hamilton should drop her civil suit, and that no further payments should be made by McDonald.

Mr. Fryberger asserts that McDonald had lived up to his contract and that any attempt to prosecute McDonald on a criminal action could only be an attempt on the part of the Kansas City people to exact blackmail. Mr. Molineaux, the attorney for Mrs. Hamilton wrote the governor that the contract had not been violated and that he knew of no reason why criminal action should be begun, but E. S. Bennett, a Kansas City attorney, called the attention of the governor to the fact that the warrant for McDonald's arrest was sworn out by Henry B. Swingley, not Mrs. Belle Hamilton, and that the governor decided to postpone action until he had investigated the situation in Missouri.

Two Theories Advanced.

As a result of the hearing before Governor Johnson, two theories are advanced in regard to the bigamy charge which has been brought against McDonald. One of the theories is that Belle McDonald, shadowed by detectives in the employ of McDonald, and believing that McDonald had violated his contract with her, used her influence to have a warrant issued for McDonald's arrest. According to attorneys in the case there is nothing in the contract between Mrs. Hamilton and Mr. McDonald that would prevent the institution of criminal action at any time, and the fact that Mr. Swingley, who swore out the warrant, was named as a trustee under the will of Mrs. Hamilton's former father-in-law, in which Mrs. Hamilton came in for large bequests, and that he was a friend of Mrs. Hamilton's former husband, adds strength to this theory.

On the other hand, Mrs. Hamilton's Minneapolis attorneys say that they have heard nothing from Mrs. Hamilton concerning the prosecution of bigamy charges, and they are of the opinion that the warrant was sworn out by Mr. Swingley without consulting Mrs. Hamilton.

E. S. Bennett of Kansas City said that he was acting for Mr. Swingley. He admitted that he knew Mrs. Hamilton and that he had transacted legal business with her "I did legal business for her when she was living at 1528 Benton avenue, Kansas City," said Bennett; "but I am acting for Mr. Swingley and not for Mrs. Hamilton in this case. Mrs. Hamilton was living on Benton avenue with Mr. McDonald, and she was known as Mrs. McDonald. The charge that this is a case of blackmail is ridiculous. Mr. Swingley is a retired real estate man of Kansas City and is well known. He was a friend of Mrs. Hamilton, and he resents her treatment by Mr. McDonald. It is a case where Kansas City friends of Mrs. Hamilton don't propose to see her mistreated by this man. Mrs. Hamilton is a business woman and bears an excellent reputation in Kansas City."

ROOSEVELT RECEIVES "NEIGHBOR" DELEGATION.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 19.—Theodore Roosevelt yesterday received "Roosevelt's neighbors" of Nassau county, a delegation of 250 prominent men, Republicans and Democrats, whom he had planned to receive at the White House March 3, but who failed, owing to the storm, to reach Washington on time.

Wearing silk hats and dark raincoats, with a red carnation in the buttonhole and carrying umbrellas rolled tightly, the delegation arrived on a special train from Mineola and other towns nearby. They appeared as they did in the inaugural parade in Washington. Headed by a band, the colors and a banner with the delegation's name and an escutcheon bearing a lion, the party marched by fours up Saga-

GAINED FLESH, COLOR AND A GOOD APPETITE

A Minnesota Woman Tells What the Tonic Treatment Did for Her When She Was Weak and Nervous.

Neglect or improper treatment of woman's ills almost inevitably leads to a train of unfortunate results and frequently to a lifetime of misery. In time almost every organ of the body becomes affected, the nervous system is broken down, the digestion is weakened and symptoms of kidney trouble develop.

Women who become pale and lose weight and ambition and are subject to headaches and fainting spells, need such a tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are especially adapted for girls and women of all ages and give just the aid required to bring back health and strength to the nervous and exhausted.

Weak, nervous women owe it to themselves to try this tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The value of the pills is well shown in the case of Mrs. Richard Ahrens, of Columbian Block, Brainerd, Minn.

"I have found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," she says, "to be the best medicine for weakness common to my sex. Owing to a run-down condition of my blood, I suffered for over two years with weakness and nervousness. My nervous system was in a terrible state. I lost flesh and suffered everything a woman could. I had severe pains through the top of my head and across my temples. When these spells came on me I would have to give up and was often confined to bed for a day or so. After these headaches I would feel weak for days. I had no appetite whatever.

"The doctor did not help me much. For a time I would feel better under his treatment and then be worse again. Through reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was led to give them a trial. I soon felt better and gained rapidly. I gained in flesh, had a good color and could eat a hearty meal. I take the pills now once in a while for a tonic and always receive benefit from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. The pills are guaranteed to be safe and absolutely harmless to the most delicate constitution. They contain no morphine, opiate, narcotic nor anything to cause a drug habit.

MINSTREL SHOW.

Many Duluthians Attend Production Staged by Superior Elks.

Quite a number of Duluth people, not all of them Elks, attended the Elks' minstrel show at the Grand Opera house in Superior last night, and three Duluthians, Miss Clara Collier, Fred Hall and Don Cole, contributed a generous share towards the success of the affair. Duluthians were pretty much in evidence, both on and off the stage, in fact, for all the lower boxes had been secured beforehand by sixteen members of the Dy-Wyk club, who attended the performance in a body.

The show itself is one of the best amateur productions ever staged at the Head of the Lakes. The steps and drills of the end men are remarkable, considering the fact that it is an amateur performance, and there is a first-class line of songs, well sung, although not so numerous as is usual in an attraction of this kind.

There are several original specialties, and some of them are novelties in their way. All of them are good. Miss Clara Collier of Duluth and Harry Howell of Superior, appeared in one of these, "A Few Minutes in Musical Comedy." The stunt is original with these two. It is clever, and met with great favor last night. Miss Collier, pretty, graceful and winsome, sang her lines delightfully, and it was a pleasure to witness her dancing. Mr. Howell gave her capable support.

Fred Hall was a big success as end man. His song, "Who? Me?" was a laugh producer, and the manner in which it was rendered brought whoops of delight from the audience. His makeup as an elongated, loose-jointed negro was most effective, and seemed just a little bit better than that of any of the other nine end men. He also appeared to good advantage in several other songs, and he was easy and graceful in the dances.

Do nCole, the other Duluthian, sang "Take Me With You in Your Dreams," and he was a favorite of the evening. His voice is sweet and clear, and could easily be heard in all parts of the theater. Mr. Cole was the hit of the first half of the performance, and was recalled three times.

The performance will be repeated tonight, and will be put on at Hibbing Sunday night.

Following are the names of the Dy-Wyk club members who attended the show: Ed Borgen, James Jones, Richard Jones, V. H. Hawkins, Grant Graham, George C. Cowins, George D. McCarthy, Robert H. Bulloch, Al Mies, Bert Montgomery, Ben Fetz, Charles Dardis, M. F. Murray, C. Roland West, S. A. Paddock, H. L. Dudley and Bethel Robinson.

"The Girls From Berlin."

The Lyceum will have Corinne tonight in the new musical comedy, entitled "The Girls From Berlin," which had its initial presentation in the Liberty theater, New York city, by Klaw & Erlanger, where it remained to capacity audiences for four months. The book is by John J. McNally, while the orchestration and vocal ensemble numbers are by William Jerome and Jean Schwartz. The new play marks the realization of one of Miss Corinne's ambitions—that of playing a serio-comic role. The play is a well-built comedy, not of the type of so-called musical comedy, but having a well-rounded plot with its characters of the flesh and blood variety. In the first act, Miss Corinne will sing her latest song success, entitled "Bright Eyes," and a German song, with the chorus, entitled "Unter den Linden." There are a number of song hits of the lighter variety, including, "I Think of You the Whole Year Round," "I'd Sooner be a Hasbeen," "Beneath the Moon," "Signs," "Just Home From College," "Poor Little Foolish Man," and "There's Not Another Girlie in the World For Me." The comedy is presented in three acts, with scenes which represent the library of the home of a wealthy New Yorker, overlooking the Hudson. The foundation of the complications of the new play are based on two advertisements, one inserted in a Berlin paper and the other in a New York paper. In the former, a lawyer advertises for the heir of a wealthy German, recently deceased in America. In the latter, Mrs. Westervelt advertises for a house servant. The advertisement in the Berlin paper reaches the eyes of the girl, who is really the heir of the deceased German, and she immediately comes to America and calls at the home of the lawyer on the morning of the insertion of the advertisement for a servant. The complications which are begun in these two advertisements are cleverly wrought out by the author, and they will keep an audience convulsed with laughter from start to finish. Some of the principals supporting Corinne include: H. Sullivan, H. Carlton, Franklin Vail, Henry Carl Lewis, Lillie May White, Osborn Clemson, Lillian Wilson, Stephen Stott, Pearl Revare, Nell McKinley and Adele Irish, together with a beauty chorus.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MARCH 21. QUARTERLY REVIEW.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley D. D.

FOREWORD.

The lessons of this quarter cover a period of nine or ten years, probably from A. D. 30 to A. D. 39 or 40. We have seen extraordinary growth from a group of 120, unorganized, save with leaders, to many thousands, comprising priests and plain people, won to Jesus by the active and intrepid disciples, finely organized for evangelistic and benevolent work. We have seen Christianity grow so mighty in Jerusalem as to bring on a bloody persecution, that drove the Christians out on their task of going into all the world preaching the gospel to every creature, according to the parting instructions of Christ. Our review will consider the process of expansion within Jerusalem and then outside, but from Jerusalem as a center.

GROWTH IN JERUSALEM.

1. The first disciples reinforced by a promise from their ascended Lord. i., 1-14.

That promise was a distinct gain to them, the promise of the Holy Spirit. It meant that they would still have Christ with them in the person of His successor; that they had a glorious career to run; that they had each other in a new bond of brotherhood.

It gave them a new hope and a new joy. It led out in the exercise of the new power of prayer. It made them patient to abide God's own time. It gave them the consciousness that Jesus had a plan of campaign for them, which made life both a warfare and a victory. It gave them the sense of partnership with the Holy Spirit in testifying of Christ.

Question—Why can Jesus do His work from heaven better than if he had stayed on earth?

2. Reinforced by the Holy Spirit Himself. ii., 1-21.

They were not disappointed; the promise was fulfilled. The Spirit had been with them for salvation; but now, on the basis of the finished work of Christ, He could do more for them and in them and with them, so much so that it was a new enduement of power for service. His external symbols were fire and wind; His internal work was in their joy and strength; His outer manifestation was in clear, convincing speech and in other tongues. The results were a conviction of sin on the part of many and their subsequent conversion and confession in the ordinance of baptism; the enraging of the enemies of Christ. In Peter's speech we see the fulfilment of Christ's words, that the Spirit would guide them into all truth, for he spoke with the marvelous grasp on the meaning of Christ's life and the Messianic character of the Old Testament.

Question—Have we reason to expect such marvelous effects of the Spirit's presence again?

3. Reinforced by 3,000 converts in one day: That is called "Beginnings of the Christian church," ii., 22-47. That was the day of Pentacost, the day the Holy Spirit took possession of them. That day the Holy Spirit and the disciples gave their joint testimony. "The Spirit and the Bride" said "Come," and as the Apostle Peter spoke the word, the Spirit converted those words into barbed arrows that pierced them to the quick with conviction. The grace of God was equally exhibited, and they sought it with eagerness. The number of conversions is given. They lost no time in avowing their allegiance to Christ in the ordinance which He had commanded. The forgiveness of their sins is one of the facts which Peter, We like to linger. Two facts about the new converts are mentioned. They got together, and they continued steadfast. Their inner impulses would bring them together; a common life and mission and hope and destiny made them flock together. Christ's command was that they do so, and He had arranged an ordinance, a rite we may say, a form of confession.

Question—Why ought every convert to line up with the other disciples?

4. Reinforced by healing power, as we learn in the story of "The lame man healed," iii., 1-26. Christ healed, and He promised that they should do so. No, He promised that He would continue to do so, but through them. He was still the healer. This first case was very fortunate.

Peter and John emphasize several things. One is, that health is better than wealth; another, that Jesus Himself was doing the healing. The most important thing was the spiritual healing, and the case was one in which that could be conspicuous. Miracles were usually called "signs," and this sign was read by many in the temple. It attracted widespread attention to Jesus. It gave Peter a chance to point out their sin in killing their Messiah, point to His glorious resurrection, and show that He was the real author of this merciful deed. It was a great opportunity, as everything Christ does for us brings an opportunity to do something for Him.

Question—Is Christ still ready to empower His people to heal?

5. Reinforced by a prison experience, as "The Trial of Peter and John" shows.

IV. 1-31. The Jewish rulers had them arrested. They were the priests who were ceasing to attract attention and have any influence; the temple police, who had not been able to control the crowd, when the man who was healed began to express himself; the Sadducees, who were maddened at the thought of losing hold of a certain class. They seemed to be ready with the charge of sorcery, on which the Old Testament would allow stoning to death. The reply of Peter was not on the defensive. He preached Jesus as the sole Savior of men. The presence of the man who had been healed, and resemblance of Peter to Jesus defeated them, and all they could do was to release them with the injunction to stop preaching. That gave Peter a chance to reaffirm his purpose. Christianity had made a distinct advance in publicity, and its appeal to the imagination of the people. The cost of a night in prison, and all the abuse, was trivial in comparison with the gain.

Question—What is persecution, and what is its value?

6. Reinforced by rigid discipline, as we see in the lesson on "True and False Brotherhood," iv. 32-v. 11. They had all things in common. That was a local and temporary and voluntary arrangement. It was never known in any other place, and no one was compelled to go into it. But it was contagious, till prominent and wealthy men, like Barnabas, sold their possessions and put the money in the common purse. Trouble was sure to come. Somebody was almost bound to cheat. A man and his wife agreed to sell their property, and hold back part of it, but claim that they had given all. Their object was to get appreciation and reputation, possibly attention, for nothing. They were smitten dead for it, a good thing, as it prevented further such attempts, and profoundly impressed the community with the sanctity of the Christian brotherhood and the necessity of honesty. But to the hypocrite, and ought it not to be more rigid with them?

7. Reinforced by angels. "The Apostles Imprisoned," v. 17-42. This was the second imprisonment. The occasion of this was the stir that followed the death of the two great hypocrites. Respect for the disciples, and desire for healing were widespread. The sect of the Jews most bitterly enraged was the sect of the Sadducees. They were filled to the boiling point with rage, for the double reason that their favorite teachings about the resurrection were put to contempt, and they were losing their control over the people. Something radical must be done. But God is keeping watch above His own, and will give them still stronger proof of His protection, while He will give His enemies still greater amazement and fear. It seems that not even the keepers knew of their deliverance, till the council sent to have them brought. It was like a panic when the officials were informed that at that minute the apostles were preaching in the temple. The weakness of those officials contrasts against the strength of the preachers in their trial and release.

Question—Do angels help us now?

8. Reinforced by martyrdom. "Stephen, the first martyr," vi, 1-8:3. The apostles had to be relieved of the daily distribution of supplies, and deacons came into existence. One of them, who was probably a Grecian born Jew, became so original and effective a preacher, he was the object of bitter attack, and finally of murder. It was his new type of preaching and aggressive way that brought the blow on him. His swan song was a battle cry. They brought charges against him similar to those on which they condemned Christ. He showed the spirit of Jesus in a striking way. In his radiant face and his prayer for their forgiveness. Two things did Stephen: By his spirit and utterances, he brought on himself their murderous hatred; by his spirit and utterances, he sowed some seeds that brought forth fruit. He made a new epoch. Saul's first convictions must have come from that sight.

Question—Is it ever right to cherish a feeling of revenge?

OUTSIDE OF JERUSALEM.

1. "In Samaria," viii, 4-25. It is singular that in these years they had never started out "unto all the earth," though it was only a few miles to the first point. But it was not a matter of distance; it was a feeling. They were busy in Jerusalem. Much of the world was coming there, to the feasts. The Christians kept the Jewish law, and were almost forgetting that the gospel was for Gentiles. It took a persecution to drive them out. It would have been hard to go to full Gentiles at once. But God had Samaria ready with her half heathen race, as a half-way house to the Gentiles. Fortunately, it gave a demonstration of its purity and usefulness, in the summary death of the Sorcerer.

Question—Has anybody a right to have an easy time?

2. On toward "the uttermost parts," in the case of the Ethiopian. viii., 26-40.

The points to be noted are that the Jewish race and religion were designed to be missionary; that God used their dispersion as a means of gaining Gentiles to their faith; that these proselytes were another link between the original Jewish Christians and the Gentiles; that He brings Philip and this prepared man together, and sends the man on to his own country to help spread the gospel further. In this case the work is cut out for the worker and the hand of God moves all the characters in the intricate and far-reaching action. Thus without any wounding of prejudices the Jewish Christians are being broadened out.

Question—To what extent does God plan out every man's work?

3. Reinforced by the miracle of a resurrection in the case of Dorcas. ix., 31-34.

We have seen the gospel taken to the Samaritans, who were partly Jews. Jesus had done much to break down their prejudice, by what he had done for the Samaritans. Then we saw the gospel taken to one who had been a Gentile, but was a Jew by choice. Now Peter is being moved by the hand of God toward a Roman officer at the military headquarters at Caesarea, who will accept Christ and be taken in without first becoming a Jew. Peter is the one to do it, for if his prejudices are overcome anybody's can be. On his way he cures Aeneas and raises Dorcas from the dead. That exhibits the power of the gospel and prepares him for the next step.

Question—Which is the greater and more fascinating miracle, the physical or the spiritual?

SHEVLIN OPTIMISTIC.

Minnesota Lumberman Back From East Predicting Good Times.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas H. Shevlin of the Shevlin-Carpenter Lumber company, who has just returned from the East, said that the next four years are to be years of the greatest prosperity the country has ever seen.

"There are two problems confronting the American people today," said Mr. Shevlin, "the revision of the tariff and the paramount issue of crops. What we need is a big crop of cereals that will make foodstuffs cheaper to the masses and give a bigger tonnage to the railroads, which give employment to people engaged in the transportation of lumber, iron and other commodities and give a market to lumber and iron manufacturers.

"The price of lumber has shrunk appreciably since the recent panic. There has been a depreciation of $6 to $8 per thousand in price, and this depreciation has resulted in no profit to the manufacturer. In many cases it has meant loss.

"Taft's message speaks for itself. Brief and to the point. We have never been so prosperous in the Northwest as today. Manufacturers in the East have been unable to employ many, and those who have had to buy from other sections of the country have suffered greatly. We need more general prosperity. Personally I am optimistic."

TRYING TO SCARE AUNT

Raymond Glenn Says He Did Not Mean to Commit Suicide.

But the Jury in District Court Finds Him Guilty.

Denying that he attempted to commit suicide, and asserting that he took carbolic acid only to scare his aunt so that she would treat him better, Raymond Glenn, who was on trial for an attempt to commit suicide, went on the stand this morning and told his story. But the jury evidently did not take much stock in his tale, as a verdict of guilty was returned this afternoon.

Just what abuse young Glenn was subjected to he didn't make clear. He said during the absence of his father and stepmother he was compelled to keep the house clean, and his aunt sometimes called his attention to his failure to attend to his duties in that respect. Then, he went with company that his aunt didn't like, and she told him about it, so he regarded that as abuse also.

Glenn said that he intended to take just enough carbolic acid to make him sick and scare his aunt. He said he didn't know that he had taken so much that it would have caused death if he had not been given immediate assistance. He said he didn't remember firing a revolver, and if he did shoot at himself, it must have been while he was under the influence of the acid.

Glenn, who is 19 years old, was discovered writhing in agony on Feb. 23 in a room of his home on Sixth avenue east. A physician was called and an emetic saved his life. He had taken a dose of carbolic acid and had shot at himself with a revolver. It was said that he had previously attempted suicide. After a few days in St. Mary's hospital he was able to be around again, and was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of attempting suicide.

Glenn was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., and was reared by his grandparents on a farm near Cleveland. He never saw his father so as to know him until last May, when he met him in Grand Rapids, Mich., and accompanied him to Duluth. His father is a porter on John Millen's car, and is now in Florida with Mr. Millen. During his father's absence the boy has been living with his aunt.

The case went to the jury shortly before noon.

FIFTY FAMILIES NEED CLOTHING

Bethel Issues a Request for Second-Hand Clothes.

The Bethel wants some clothes.

That does not mean that the Bethel officers are in need of new spring suits, but they have on their list about fifty families which are in need of warm clothing. In spite of the fact that the cold weather is about over, there are many people who are suffering for lack of proper raiment. There are many children who have no shoes and cannot attend school for this reason.

The Bethel officers asked The Herald this afternoon to bring this need to the attention of the citizens. Any Duluth women who find in their homes clothing which they can spare are asked to let the Bethel people know of it.

Checks for $25 or $30 to buy new clothing won't be returned.

MAY MARCH INTO SERVIA AT ONCE

Austrian Troops May Have Early War Work To Do.

Berlin, March 19.—A semi-official communication in the Cologne Gazette today describes the situation between Austria-Hungary and Servia as most pessimistic in the matter of maintenance of peace, but it is hopeful that the conflict, should one arise, may be localized. The communication says:

"While attempts have been made in several quarters to aid a solution of the crisis a contrary course is being followed in Servia. Mild advice is not likely to serve any purpose at Belgrade. Severe pressure from the powers especially Russia, is necessary to bring the Servians to reason. The construction placed by Great Britain on the Russian note calling an international conference on the Bosnian-Herzegovina question serves only to stiffen Servia's backbone for resistance. The Russian proposals are not calculated to serve the ends of peace. The military situation is so critical that perhaps only a few days will pass before Austrian troops march into Servia.

"It is questionable whether the honest endeavors of some of the powers yet will succeed in preventing an outbreak of war, but pour parlors between various nations lead to the hope that the conflict may be localized."

Four hundred Cossacks have been dispatched from Baku to Astara, a small Caspian port on the Persian frontier.

REPAIRS TO THE FLEET

Not Dollar Extra If the Ships Remained at Home.

All This Despite the Cruise Made Around the World.

Washington, March 19.—"You may say that the repairs to the battleship fleet will not cost the government a dollar more than if the ships had remained at home."

This surprising statement is made by an official of the navy department whose business is to know what things cost; and while he admits that figures to verify his prophecy are not available, and cannot be for a long time, he says the department is sufficiently informed as to the character of the repairs to justify his prediction.

The reports which have come to the navy department from the yards show a marvelously small list of repairs needed. They are of such a minor character, in fact, that they are not even interesting. They relate chiefly to piping, including boiler tubes; and naval officers say that repairs of this kind, and to an equal extent, would have been made anyway, whether the fleet circled the globe or remained in these waters. The department has not requested estimates as to the cost, but has given orders to commandants to proceed at once to make all necesssary repairs, leaving the cost to be ascertained and the items to be classified and reported later.

Repainted "War Color."

The bureau of construction and repair, under whose direction many of the repairs will be made, works under an appropriation of $8,000,000 made by made by congress about a year ago; and as this was a general appropriation, no figures indicating for what it will be used are obtainable. Had the ships remained at home, they would have been available for repairs twice a month, and this fact is to be taken into account in estimating the actual outlay for repairs because of the world cruise. Except for docking on the Pacific coast, they have not ben repaired at all in fifteen months. The engines have shown no signs of deterioration, and need only the renewal of pipes, rebabbiting and other minor tinkering. The ships will be repainted "war color," but this expense is not properly chargeable to the cruise. The Vermont, New Jersey, Ohio and Missouri are at the Boston navy yard for repairs, which must be completed by June 15. They are joined also by the Illinois, which is one of three ships (the Kearsarge and Kentucky to be taken from the battleship fleet and replaced by the New Hampshire, Mississippi and Idaho, thus leaving the unit of sixteen, as before. The Illinois will be made the subject of a general survey, with the object of putting her out of commission for such alterations as the board may deem advisable. This action is based, however, upon the relatively obsolete situation in which ships of this class find themselves at the end of six or seven years, and has nothing to do with the cruise.

Several alterations and improvements in the ships have just been authorized by the department, and these will be made simultaneously with the repairs, also without cost estimates; although in the final rendering of the accounts, repairs and alterations will be segregated. Reduction of "top hamper" (anything that makes a target for the enemy) is one of the important improvements to be made. This means the removal or rearrangement of bridges, deck houses, boats, davits and other resistance and thus cause explosion of shells. This work will vary more or less, of course, upon every vessel.

System of Fire Patrol.

Another task is to bring the system of fire control up to date. Included in this is the installation of fire control towers, or woven masts, as they also are called, which are supported by a series of tubes, many of which could be shot away without endangering the structure. These are now installed upon every ship, and eventually all will be equipped with two. The remainder of the fire control system will be improved wherever necessary. One important result of the cruise has been to reveal the necessity of greater variety, and less speed in the "training gear" for revolving the turrets. The fleet has been at target practice twice, under almost war conditions, and in respects of this kind the experience has been very valuable. The old scheme was to throw over the guns in a hurry, but this was accomplished at the expense of slow and steady control. The department is now trying to decide between the relative efficiency of an hydraulic and an electric system of control with which it has been experimenting, and as soon as a conclusion has been reached the work will be pushed. Ash injectors will be installed also, as experience has demonstrated that when the buckets were hoisted and the ports and hatches opened to let them through, the forced draft was killed.

While the ships were off California, the 3-pound and 6-pound guns used for torpedo defense were taken off them, and these must be replaced with larger guns. These were sufficient when torpedo fire carried only about two thousand yards, but now that the distance is four thousand yards, a change of armament is necessary. In the modern navy it is calculated that a torpedo defense battery should consist of nothing smaller than 3-inch guns; and guns are being installed of five and even six inches. It is the theory in the navy that torpedo attacks, as a rule, will be made only at night or after a battle, when a ship is likely to be at a disadvantage. The changes in the torpedo batteries will make necessary also a rearrangement of the searchlights.

INSURGENT SENATORS WIN FIGHT; WESTERNERS SECURE RECOGNITION

Washington, March 19.—The work by the committee on committees of filling Republican vacancies on senate committees has concluded, resulting in giving to Western senators much greater representation on the important committees. This is a result of the campaign of the insurgents. It is asserted that never before in the history of the senate have the Western states been so fully represented on these important committes as they are now to be. The work of distributing the Republican assignments has been a concession to the younger and Western senators, so that none of the veterans has increased his committee memberships. In one or two instances the Republican representation on important committees has been increased by the addition of one or two members without a corresponding addition in the Democratic membership. The committee on military affairs has received an additional Republican member. In no instance however, has the number of Democrats on a committee been reduced.

The three vacancies on the committee on appropriations will be filled by the appointment of Senators Curtis of Kansas, Burkett of Nebraska and Kean of New Jersey. Senator Burkett is one of the economists of the senate.

The one Republican vacancy on the committee on foreign relations has been given to Senator Root, who takes the place of Mr. Foraker. Senators Sutherland and Borah will go on the judiciary, and Senators Dixon and Brown will go on military affairs. Senator Crane will become chairman of the committee on rules and Senator Perkins will become chairman of naval affairs.

Senator Flint of California will become chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals, and Senator La Follette will go to the head of the census committee. These are both rapid promotions to the heads of important committees. Senator Burnham of New Hampshire will become chairman of the committee on claims, while Senator Borah will go to the head of education and labor. Mr. Carter of Montana becomes chairman of irrigation and arid lands, while Mr. Root of Utah becomes head of the printing committee. Mr. Daniels succeeds Mr. Teller as chairman of private land claims.

DEBATE ON POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

Bank Employes Decide That They Are Not Necessary.

A debate between the bank employes as to the necessity and the feasibility of postal savings banks, was won by the debaters upholding the negative side of the question, last evening.

John Evans and Isadore Monschine of the First National bank, were on the winning side of the question. D. H. Snyder of the City National bank, and C. J. Grogan of the Northern National bank, were upon the affirmative side.

J. E. Horak, assistant cashier of the Northern National bank, W. W. Wells, assistant cashier of the First National bank, and Colin Thompson, assistant cashier of the American Exchange bank, were the judges of the Head of the Lakes chapter of the American Banking Institute.

Eleven new members were admitted at the meeting last evening. The chapter now has a membership of forty-five, including most of the bank employes in Duluth and Superior.

NEW STATION PLANNED AS THE OLD ONE BURNS.

Louisville, Ky., March 19.—By the destruction at a loss of $400,000 of the union depot, the local terminal of the country's chief railroads, Louisville will probably benefit by a new union station. This was decided by the Commercial club, half an hour after the building at Seventh street and the Ohio river was a mass of smoking embers and debris. Crossed wires are believed to be responsible for the blaze.

HELP THE RED CROSS

Effort to Nationalize the Society Through Sunday Schools.

Ten Thousand Members in America, a Million in Japan.

Washington, March 19.—The new president of the United States is just now the recipient of many kinds of letters, but there is one class of mail which he views with pure pleasure—the stream of correspondence which has lately been sent in to him as president of the National Red Cross society from Sunday school classes. For, by a new development in both the Red Cross and the Sunday school, members of the latter can join the former, and advocates of the plan believe that the result will be marked in both directions.

The movement, which owes its inception to the Rev. Charles A. Brand of the Congregational Sunday school board, is a notable expression of the present tendency to broaden the scope of religious education and activity. It may grow to enormous magnitude, for, as is well known, the Sunday school is the largest and best-organized phase of strictly church work. There are about 13,000,000 members of the Sunday school on this continent alone, and 25,000,000 in all the world.

To Multiply the Red Cross.

This unparalleled field is viewed with covetous eyes by all reformers and protagonists of special causes, who would utilize it for their special ends. The temperance people, after strenuous effort, scored a great triumph when they secured the adoption of a quarterly temperance lesson, which has admittedly been one of the underlying forces responsible for the extraordinary force of present-day temperance sentiment. The mission boards, too, are making systematic attempts to tie up their cause to the Sunday school. This Red Cross propaganda, however, has originated within the ranks of Sunday school workers themselves, and it is regarded as a proper adjunct of the larger educational methods of the Sunday school. The initiative came from the latter, and not from the Red Cross society, although the latter heartily favors it.

The method agreed upon is simple. Entire classes of Sunday school scholars are enrolled as members of the National Red Cross, upon paying the fee of individual membership, which is $1. This entitles all the members of the class to call themselves members of the organization. The class receives the Red Cross Bulletin and one official badge; a badge for every boy or girl may be secured upon a small additional payment. If anything like the expected proportion of Sunday school classes take advantage of this arrangement, the membership of the Red Cross society will increase manyfold, and its educational worth be directly enlarged.

After the Japanese Fashion.

At present, the American National Red Cross society numbers less than 10,000 members. This membership is largely perfunctory, and is merely an accidental result of contributions. Few persons consider it important to belong to the organization, and there is little esprit de corps. All this would be changed by the enlistment of myriads of enthusiastic youngsters, proud of the society and its badge; an inevitable result would be an enlarged increase the adult membership, as well as enhanced interest. In this country, the Red Cross society is merely an efficient emergency organization. In Japan it is a national society. Over against America's less than 10,000 Red Cross members, must be put Japan's more than 1,250,000. This insures the nation's constant interest and co-operation in all the military and civic enterprises of the society. The largest hospital in Japan is the great Red Cross hospital in Tokio.

Will Supplant Bands of Mercy.

Sunday school workers have in mind primarily the educational and patriotic advantage of the new movement. There have long existed among the children of many churches societies after the Band of Mercy pattern, designed to teach gentleness and humanitarianism. Probably the new alliance with the Red Cross will supersede these. This method puts the teaching of humane conduct upon a broader basis. It inculcates also a spirit of cosmopolitanism that is in consonnance with the day's new note of internationalism.

Every great public disaster, like the earthquakes in Messina and San Francisco, the fire at Chelsea or the famine in China, will be brought directly and definitely before the Sunday schools. Apart altogether from the religious and humanitarian lessons thus inculcated, the amount of money given will be greatly increased.

For Patriotism and Peace.

The Sunday school workers who are behind this project are primarily interested in its value as a training in patriotism and Christian citizenship. Every boy is a natural jingoist and militarist. He loves war and the glory of arms. By enrolling him in the Red Cross society, it is thought that this instinctive interest in war and patriotism may be given a new avenue of expression. The helpful, ministering and merciful aspect of armed conflict will be presented to him first. He will be taught the glory of saving life, rather than of destroying it. The worth of sacrifice and service will be inculcated, but in a manner that should make for peace rather for strife.

An appeal to the youthful imagination is made by the Red Cross emblem. It is sacred and inviolable on all battlefields. It is the one international flag. The members of this society belong to a world-wide order. It stands for internationalism in service, a practical world brotherhood and a real embodiment of the spirit of Christianity.

Those persons who have complained that the Sunday school teaching is wishy-washy and impractical, find their objections met by this practical enrollment and education of the young people in this well-organized national agency, of which the president of the United States is the official head.

Can't look well, eat well or feel well with impure blood feeding your body. Keep the blood pure with Burdock Blood Bitters. Eat simply, take exercise, keep clean and you will have long life.

FRENCH HYGIENISTS MAY STARVE PARIS TO DEATH.

Paris, March 19.—After prohibiting tea, coffee and chocolate on the ground that they encourage gout, French hygienists have now placed the ban on milk. What is sold as such is said to be a concoction not to be recognized by any self-respecting cow.

In the case of the genuine article—which is declared hardly to exist—even if the cow is not suffering from tuberculosis, its milk has been contaminated by the hands of the milkmaid.

One specialist insists on the necessity of tooth brushes for cows, whose mouths are "veritable hotbeds of microbes."

Following the example of Prof. Metchnikoof, the eminent biologist, many Frenchwomen now refuse to eat fruit unless it has been cooked or washed in sterilized water. Toilet water is only considered safe after having been boiled two or three times, and the bath should be "purified by flame."

Servants who wait at tables should, it is urged, wear glasses, which are boiled after each meal and dried by hot air, in order to avoid all risk of contamination for the guests, and they should, after washing their hands with soap and boiled water, cleanse them in alcohol.

All animals must be banished from the house if hygiene is to be regarded. Even the canary is considered capable of communicating contagious diseases.

"STRANGE BEAST" KILLED ON THE BOWERY WAS ONLY "PETE," RAT KILLER EXTRAORDINARY TO THE LENOX HOTEL

Sh-sh! A mystery has been solved. The identity of "the strange beast killed" has been discovered.

"Who can tell its name and tribe?" mysteriously queries the morning paper. Its name was "Pete," and it formerly belonged to the Ferret family. Its tribe can be found somewhere in the northern part of the state. The animal that puzzled the animal expert of the morning paper, and also puzzled the sleuths of the police department, was simply a harmless ferret that belonged to the Ribenack brothers of the Hotel Lenox. The little animal lived a quiet life, chasing rats into their domiciles, and ringing down the curtain upon their existence.

The poor, simple little beast, even in its maddest flights of fancy, probably never hoped to attain the great notoriety that it achieved.

The faithful minions of the law—it wasn't a dark and stormy night, to be sure—sleuthed down the Bowery. Alert and ready for any emergency that might present itself, they were. Suddenly athwart his path shot a strange animal. Lo and behold, it was tailless, and, therefore, must belong to some extinct race of long forgotten bipeds. The minions of the law managed to hang one over on the ferret. They snuffed his glim for him. Who killed cock robin still continues to be a burning question, but there is no doubt as to who killed "Pete," the ferret. Officers Gillon and Mason did it.

The animal editor of the morning paper saw the cold form of little "Pete." That person scowled deeply; a frown furrowed his dome-like brow. Then a series of furrows chased themselves over his brow.

"A mystery!" he exclaimed, and the awe-stricken officers repeated his words in deep, rumbling whispers.

Then the animal editor did a Tom Longboat into the engraving room. Soon a picture was made of the cold carcass of little "Pete." Then the story in all of its mysterious phases, was given to an eager public.

The Ribenack brothers, Al, Ed and Henry, though sorrow-stricken this morning upon learning the fate of little "Pete," who never did more harm thatn kill rodents in the hotel kitchen, declined at first to be interviewed upon the subject. But persistence won the day. Calming themselves, for the morning paper story had indeed been a great shock, they unfolded the story of little "Pete."

It runs thusly:

"Little 'Pete,' now cold in clammy death, lost his tail in one of those untoward accidents that sometimes happen to men and beasts—no, that is not quite right, either, for 'Pete' lost his tail. Anyway, one day he ventured from the precincts of the kitchen and skipped blithely, dullcare thrown to the winds, into the lobby of the hotel. He wriggled through the bars of the elevator cage, and wriggled out again, not soon enough, however, to get his tail out of the way of the descending lift. He lost his tail."

So when Sleuths Mason and Gillon picked up the body of "the strange beast that was killed on the Bowery, they pondered in deep wonderment. It must be some strange species; it had no tail. The animal editor of the morning paper did the rest, with the aid of the staff photographer and there you have the history of little 'Pete,' the humble ferret.

What a shame that "Pete" could not have lived to enjoy this transitory fame.

"AND THEN I HIT HIM." "DISMISSED," SAYS JUDGE

He had a richly upholstered eye, colored like a Corot landscape. That eye was a work of art. No common man could have done the job. It was a masterpiece, and looked as if some person had struck the victim with a pile driver. From dark blue, almost black near the center, it gradually faded into light blue, grey, and then there came a tinge of orange and brown around the outer edges. It was beautiful.

"What's the charge?" asked the judge.

"Fighting," said the officer.

"That wasn't a fight. It was a murder," said the court. "Where's the other fellow?"

A descendant of the Irish kings stood up.

"Did you do that?" asked the court pointing to the smoked lamp that decorated the other prisoner's face.

"I did, sor," said the son of Erin, with a decided brogue. "We were drinking together on St. Patrick's day, and he said the Germans always could lick the Irish."

"And then you hit him?"

"No sor, I didn't hit him then. But he said that St. Patrick must have been as drunk as I was to have seen so many snakes in Ireland."

"And you hit him then?"

"No sir, I didn't hit him then. But he said he was an Orangeman, and that he never saw a good Orangeman yet, who couldn't whip seven Irishmen."

"And that's when you hit him?"

"No sor, I'm a peaceable man, and I wasn't looking for trouble. I let that pass. But then he started talking about me ancestors. He went away back to me great grandfather, and came right down to me, telling me what he thought of each. And some of his remarks weren't complimentary. Finally, he came to me, and he called me an Irish gorilla."

"And that's where the trouble began?"

"No sor, I didn't hit him then. I didn't care, so I let it pass."

"But what started the trouble?"

"Well, he got to discussing birthplaces. He said he came from Becker county and his name was Bjorge. Then I hit him."

"Case dismissed," said the court.

THE JOB WAS A HARD ONE

Duluth Teachers Read Several Hundred "Ben Hur" Essays.

Names of Winners Will be Published in Herald Saturday.

The winners in the "Ben Hur" contest will be announced in The Herald Saturday night.

Last night, twenty-one teachers, selected by Supt. R. E. Denfeld of the city schools, met in the board room at the Central high school to judge the papers and decide on those who are to receive the 150 tickets. It is not an easy matter to go through many hundreds of essays, even though a person is accustomed to the work, and it was after midnight before the task was completed.

The names of the winners will appear in the paper tomorrow night. The tickets are to be left Saturday at the office of Supt. Denfeld and he will attend to the distribution, which will be made after school hours on Monday, when the children who have found their names in the list to be published in The Herald, may call for them.

The contest has been very interesting from the very start. The work was taken up in a great many of the school buildings throughout the city, and most of the pupils in the Duluth public schools are now familiar with the story of "Ben Hur." Teachers say that the book was a trifle ahead of the work done in the seventh and eighth grades, and that while some readily understood the story with little explanation, most of the pupils were unable to grasp it until told in simple words. "It was a great thing and The Herald is to be congratulated," said one teacher over the telephone this morning. "The studying of the play and the writing of the composition brought out many of the weak points of the students, and I for one, found out more about the points my children are weak in than in any work yet attempted this year. It was an educational contest in every sense of the word, and the teachers, as well as the pupils, all over the city were greatly interested. It relieved the dull monotony of school life and brightened things up considerably."

INDIAN CHOKES WOLF TO DEATH.

Menominee Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Armed with no weapon but a pair of buckskin gloves, John House, an Indian trapper, and a timber wolf battled to a finish yesterday, and the wolf's pelt is now being tanned to adorn the hunter's hut.

House was visiting his traps in Holmes township early in the morning and as he tossed aside a covering of brush, a full grown wolf leaped at his face. The Indian grabbed the animal by the neck and threw himself to the ground. Over and over they rolled until the trapper, unmindful of the terrific scratching, fastened both hands upon the animal's throat and choked it to death.

"EVERYTHING GOING WRONG;" KILLS SELF

Grand Forks, N. D., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—After writing letters to his father, his sister and his sweetheart Arnold Fjelstad of Belle Plaine, Sargent county, emptied the contents of a shotgun into his body, Thursday, death being instantaneous. In his letters, the suicide said that "everything is going wrong," that being the reason given for the act. He was 27 years old.

CENT LUNCH IS SERVED

Los Angeles School Children Have First Penny Meal.

Soup, Buns and Fruit Comprise Bill of Fare.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 19.—Under the direction of the women of the Civic association, the Ann street school children enjoyed their first penny lunch yesterday, which from now on will be served to the children at cost.

The hungry boys and girls were seated at long tables covered with plain, white cloth with white enamel plates and cups at each place. Each of the children were served with hot soup, fresh buns and a variety of fruit.

The Ann street school was selected for the experiment on account of the urgent need of something of the kind in that district. Although the food served cost about 4 cents for each child, the expense to each will only be 1 penny, and this amount will secure as many bowls of soup and as many buns as desired.

The penny payment is to instill a spirit of independence in each child. Similar lunch rooms will be established in all other city schools.

THOUGHT HOUSE WAS A HOTEL

Alleged Burglar Proves That His Intentions Were Innocent.

Berger Mitby was acquitted by a jury in district court yesterday afternoon of the charge of burglary in the second degree. He was alleged to have entered the rooming house of Mrs. Martha Todd at 605 West First street on Feb. 11, with the intention to commit the crime of grand larceny. Mitby declared he went into the house with a companion, whom he had picked up on the street a short time before. He said he thought the place was a hotel and he had no intention of stealing anything.

SHORTEST BILL IN CONGRESS THUS FAR.

Washington, March 19.—Representative Coudrey of Missouri has just introduced what is probably the shortest bill so far presented during the present session of congress, yet if enacted into law would probably attract more attention than the Sherman anti-trust law.

After the enacting clause the entire bill is as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this act all corporations shall pay a license tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent on their capital."

FREE CONCERT.

Irish Music Will be Featured at the Masonic Entertainment.

The program for the twenty-first Masonic free concert Sunday at 3:30, p. m. will be as follows:

Organ
(a) March—"Old Colonial"..... Hall
(b) "Reverie"..... Roberts
Vocal solo—"Killarney"..... Balfe
Mrs. Leo A. Ball.
Organ
(a) Allegro con brio ..... Beethoven
(b) Largo—"Klavier Concert"..... Beethoven
(c) Rondo ..... Beethoven
Vocal solo—"The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls"... Stevenson
Mrs. Leo A. Ball.
Organ, overture—"Dreams of Erin"

The close proximity of St. Patrick's day suggested the Hibernian character of the vocal selections and the last organ number, although it had been announced that the music of Beethoven would be the feature of the program.

The Beethoven selection is one of the most versatile in style of any of those of the great master; brilliant and virile in style of movement; delicately beautiful and tuneful in the largo, while the last, the rondo, is a typical example of the rondo movement winding up with a presto, which taxes the organ to its utmost, both in power and ability to respond to the quick staccato notes.

Notwithstanding the frequent reiterations that the Sunday concerts are free to any person who takes the trouble to attend, whether Mason or not, inquiries being constantly made regarding this, it is again stated that the concerts are absolutely free to any person who cares to attend.

HURT BY CELLULOID COLLAR EXPLOSION.

West Orange, N. J., March 19.—David Watson, a plumber's apprentice, is recovering from the effects of burns caused by the explosion of his celluloid collar. He was handling some gasoline when flames leaped up around his neck and in a moment the collar was ablaze. Fortunately he was next door to fire headquarters and in he rushed. Firemen stripped the youth of his burning clothing and he was sent to the hospital unconscious.

BLACKDUCK DEDICATES ITS NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

Blackduck, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is an important day in Blackduck, as the new high school, erected at a cost of $25,600 by G. E. Kreatz of Bemidji, who had the contract, is to be dedicated this afternoon and evening with exercises appropriate to the occasion.

The building is an up-to-date structure in every way, has twelve rooms, and is deemed sufficiently large for the town for years to come.

The members of the school board who had charge of the construction are: Rev. F. J. Barackman president; Ernest L. Oberg, secretary; C. W. Conway, treasurer; D. H. Congdon, R. Zimmerman and Mrs. J. M. Freeburg. The corps of teachers are: Andrew B. Jardine, superintendent; Flora M. Kock, principal; Alma M. Swanson, Mildred Grover, Helen M. Boyle, Ella Zimmerman and Minnie Peterson.

TARIFF BILL IS HEARD

Long Document Is Read and Its Consideration Begun.

Clark Will Lead the Fight for Free Lumber.

Washington, March 19.—Formal consideration of the tariff bill was launched in the house today when the reading of the bulky measure was begun.

It is the expectation that when the 254 pages, which comprise the bill, have been read, adjournment will be taken until Monday and on that day general debate will commence. Just how long this shall continue has not been determined.

When the senate met today, the understanding was that there shall be no general business and that an adjournment be taken until next Monday. A number of senators are absent from the city.

The fight for free lumber will be headed by Champ Clark. He has frequently expressed himself in bitter terms regarding the lumber situation in this country. During the tariff hearings he arraigned the lumber magnates and delved deep into the intricacies of stumpage and railroad land grants. It is not thought there will be any serious opposition to the tariff placed on tea.

Unless a gag rule, for the prevention of unlimited amendment under the five minute rule is brought in, the minority members of the ways and means committee will not report a separate bill. Their report will be drafted by Minority Leader Clark, and will severely criticise the wool schedule in the new bill. It is contended by the Democrats that it has not been cut sufficiently to place it on a revenue basis. There probably will be numerous amendments offered and heated discussions affecting them are anticipated.

The inheritance tax, Philippine free trade, internal revenue and maximum and minimum features of the new bill are endorsed by the minority leaders, and there has been much favorable comment upon the measure by Democratic congressmen. Champ Clark today declared that he had sufficient time to look into its provisions to enable him to comment upon them.

RIGHT OR MIGHT?

Which is to prevail in Minnesota, right or might?

Is a tonnage tax law to be enacted in this state simply because the state has the power to pass the law? Is the justice of such a law not to be considered?

Upon the floor of the house Wednesday, the advocates of the tonnage tax spoke for the measure. They argued its constitutionality, they reasoned that it would bring vast revenues to the state, that a tonnage tax ought to be imposed because "rich foreign corporations" would have to pay it. But did they show that it was a fair measure to the people of the iron country? Not by so much as one word. The justice or injustice of the measure to the people most affected by it was not considered a matter worth mentioning. Was any attempt made to show that the tonnage tax is right in principle, that it is a righteous tax, founded upon principles of justice and equal rights for all? No! Not a voice was raised, not a word was uttered in defense of the tonnage tax as a measure of right.

Has it come to this pass in Minnesota that might is to be the only rule and guide for the conduct of the state's business?

This is the matter which is now up to the state senate to consider. The bill has passed the house upon the dictation of prejudice, urged on by a greedy lust for plunder. Not an argument was advanced for the bill; only excuses. Those who spoke for the bill on the floor of the house, and they were so pitifully few, excused it on the ground that it taxed nobody but "rich outside corporations;" many of the rest of the sixty-one excused themselves in private on the ground of the unreasoning prejudice of their constituents.

Will the senate adopt the course of the house, or will it consider this thing on its merits? The Herald confidently believes that it will take the latter course; it believes that the senate is composed of men who have the courage of their convictions, and that they will speak and vote as they believe, confident in the ultimate good sense and sound judgment of the people of the state.

While the spirit of narrow sectionalism dominated the house, the vote shows that men are breaking away from this narrowness to view the question in the broad light of its justice or injustice. With many from all parts of the state, it was a straight, out-and-out contest between might and right. The bulk of the vote for the bill came from the Ninth congressional district and from the rich agricultural section of Southwestern Minnesota, but of the fifty-seven who voted against the bill were men from every quarter of the state, except Northwestern Minnesota, and a very considerable proportion were from Southern Minnesota. Men voted as they believed or as they were moved by the prevailing sentiment of their constituency, and while sectionalism won the day, an analysis of the vote shows that the disposition to consider the question on its merits has been making headway during the past two years in all parts of the state.

LET'S FIGHT, PEACE TOO EXPENSIVE.

Sometime we almost think 'twere better to fly to ills that we know not of than bear those we have, and by fighting put an end to these peace expenses. Ever felt that way? Of course you have. Whenever you raise your eyes from their diligent hunt for the hard-earned dollar and take a look at our peace establishment expenses, mounting nimbly up the billion hill, you have just that feeling exactly oozing out at every pore.

Why not fight and be done with it? You know what Gen. Sherman said war is. Seems like peace, in point of expense, is getting to be very much the same. Really, is it war we are having, or peace? The Chicago Journal is quite aroused by the proposal to levy stamp taxes on telegrams and bank checks as we did during the Spanish-American war. "This is not war time," declares the Journal. Isn't it? We fear the esteemed Journal has not been reading its Congressional Record regularly and that it doesn't know that congress has just appropriated $160,000,000 for pensions, $130,00,000 for the navy, better than $100,000,000 for the army and a few more millions just for fighting. Half a billion for a war footing and half a billion for peace measures. Whis is it that we are having, war or peace? Again the Journal says, throwing off the suggestion careless like: "We need no war measures." Well, whether we need 'em or not, we've got 'em.

Without undervaluing the virtue of preparedness, for which we stoutly stand, it ought to be an occasion for some thought when our expense as a nation, a comparatively isolated nation at that, is as great each year for war, with never a war in sight, as it is for all our concerns of peace. Granted that we must be strong and that we must be ready, it surely ought not to cost us, the most peaceful nation in the world, as much to be prepared to fight as it does for all our multitudinous affairs of peace. Of course the picture is somewhat overdrawn, as our pension expenses are not strictly a part of our preparations for war, but the comparison is bad enough even at best. In all seriousness, it is perfectly true that any price, save honor, is better than war, but ought it to cost us such enormous sums to maintain peace by being prepared for war? It does not seem to The Herald that it ought. Granting the need of a "greater navy" and of a strong military establishment on land, our expenses for army and navy are too great. We are getting our preparedness by political methods and there is nothing on earth so expensive, so wasteful, so spendthriftful, as political methods. One instance is enough—our useless navy yards. On these we are expending more than $60,000,000 a year, when a fraction of that sum would suffice were the yards meant for the navy instead of for congressional plunder. There are other political methods in our preservation of peace by preparedness for war, and they are just as costly. When we get virility enough as a nation to put a ban on such methods and to lop off such useless expenditures we shall be able to maintain peace at a reasonable cost, and not until then.

THE TOUCH SYSTEM.

President Taft announces that he believes in "the touch system" of government, that system by which the officials of the government shall get into as close touch as possible with the people. President Roosevelt was also a firm believer in the touch system; he kept close to the people by keeping his ear to the ground and listening intently for the ground swell of public opinion. President Taft, however, has a different method; he expects to accomplish the same result by making the government an itinerant government. Mr. Taft is a globe trotter of repute; he is a famous traveler and he has given out that members of his official family must travel some and get in touch with the people. Correspondence from Washington declares: "President Taft believes in travel for the heads of the various government departments, and maintains that it is well for the members of the cabinet to meet the people in all sections of the country, and to learn from them directly their wishes and difficulties, and to hear their criticisms of the work of all branches of the government service."

President Taft while a cabinet officer and during the time that he was governor general of the Philippines probably traveled more than ever did any other cabinet officer or other high official of the government whose work did not primarily involve traveling. He has just recently completed a trip to the Panama canal, a most unusual thing for a president-elect to do; he has announced his intention of visiting Texas soon; he is planning a trip to the Pacific coast and possibly even to Alaska, a possession whose soil has never yet been trod by the foot of a president of the United States. It is evident that the president does not intend to allow his official duties to confine him to the city of Washington. Neither does he propose that his cabinet officers shall spend all their time at their desks. Plans have been made for a visit by the secretary of war to various army posts on the Atlantic and the Pacific, and the secretary will also visit the Panama canal before the summer is over. The secretary of commerce, it is announced, will visit the Pacific coast and gather material at first hand concerning the race problems there. The secretary of agriculture will attend a farmer's institute now and then, will visit the various forest reservations and get into as close touch as possible with the farmers of the country.

So the touch system of government will be continued and the methods which President Taft intends to employ will doubtless be pleasing and profitable to the country. The American people like to see their public servants and the closer those servants get to the people the better for all concerned. The president and the members of the cabinet will be able to find out more accurately and more quickly what the country needs, while on the other hand, the people will gain a better idea of the difficulties of administration by seeing and talking with the men who do the administering. When we have to offer advice to the government, therefore, we shall be in a better position to give good advice, we shall know better what we are talking about and shall be more tolerant of the men to whom we are talking, for we shall have a better idea of their limitations.

An itinerant government ought to make the touch system of government a pretty effective system.

NOTHING DOING.

The antagonists of woman's suffrage are rather gleefully pointing to the results in the four states of the West in which women have the same privilege of voting as have men, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Idaho. They declare that there has been no effect whatever produced upon the government of these states or upon the conduct of elections, and the character of the political campaigns that have been waged. There has never been any special appeal made to women voters in these states except in on instance, when in the campaign of 1904 in Idaho, Henry Heitfeld sought to be elected governor on a platform which peculiarly appealed to women. Heitfeld was nominated by the Democrats for governor. The sole issue was Mormonism and polygamy. The Democratic platform held that Mormons must no longer be allowed to vote or participate in the government unless they first took oath that they had but one wife. The Republican platform was silent upon the subject. Heitfeld stumped the state, appealing for votes in defense of the home, but when the ballots were counted it was found that he had been overwhelmingly defeated. Here, declare the antagonists of woman's suffrage, was a time when the theory that women will range themselves with practical solidity in support of the moral end of all political issues was put to the test, and the result shows that the moral issue does not prevail with women to the exclusion of all other issues, any more than it does with men.

Of course this experience of Idaho and the further fact that no change in government or politics has been effected by the voting of women in the other woman's suffrage states of the West—this experience does not prove that woman's suffrage is unwise, but it certainly appears to refute the claim of the advocates of woman's suffrage that political conditions will be bettered when women vote.

Nevertheless, women can probably have the ballot whenever they want it. Thus far 99 per cent of them have been indifferent.

The Superior Telegram says the passage of the iron ore tonnage tax bill in the house of representatives was "the work of Minneapolis." This is untrue, as it will be seen by glancing at "the roll of honor" that fourteen Minneapolis members voted against the iniquitous measure and only one in favor of it. And the St. Paul members also stood for justice to St. Louis county.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I was talking with Mr. Fitzsimmons, one of your Duluth produce men the other day, and he informed me that it was only a question of time until Duluth would raise all the produce that would be used in this city and upon the ranges, right here at its own door, instead of getting practically all of the produce from the truck gardens of the Twin Cities, and the South."

These were the remarks of R. T. Kane of Minneapolis, who was at the McKay hotel. Mr. McKay was talking about the condition of the truck gardener in the vicinity of the Twin Cities. There, he says, the market is overstocked with the produce brought into the cities by the small gardeners. They are compelled to seek a market away from the two cities, and as a result much of the produce of the Twin City gardens is sent to this city.

"Mr. Fitzsimmons informed me that it was only a question of time before Duluth would have enough truck gardeners in the outlying suburbs of the city to supply the market needs of Duluth. It is only a question of time, he said, before the ranges will be supplied by the truck gardeners of the vicinity of Duluth.

"He stated that the soil in the vicinity of Duluth was of a nature suited to the raising of vegetables. Some people have an idea that small fruits and vegetables cannot be raised in this part of the state. That is an erroneous impression. They can be produced here as well as they can be raised in the Twin City territory, or in the southern part of the state. When this fact becomes generally known, I agree with Mr. Fitzsimmons, that there will be great quantities of small fruits and vegetables raised in the territory surrounding Duluth.

"I have been coming to Duluth for a good many years. It wasn't so many years ago the people had the impression that you couldn't farm up here in this section of the country. Some people still have that impression. It is being gradually dispelled, and when people find that you can give them good land in this section of the state, cheaper than they they can get it in any other part, you will find that the agricultural industry of Northern Minnesota will experience a decided boom.

"I have never seen a state, or any section of a state, that derived permanent prosperity from mineral wealth. The iron has made the northern part of the state a great and growing country, but after the iron is gone, you will find, I am sure, that it will be the agricultural resources that will continue to make this part of the state a prosperous territory.

"People used to say that when the timber was exhausted, Northern Minnesota would decline in prosperity. For a long time the stump lands have lain idle, but at the present time they are being cleared, and the settlers are finding that some of the most fertile land in the state is right ap here.

"It is the same with the small farmer and the man who raises vegetables for the market. They will come some day, and when that day comes you will find that it will not be necessary for Duluth to receive its market supplies from the produce farmers of the Twin Cities."

Automobile shows seem to be growing in popular favor. Edward Ribenack came from Minneapolis, where they are holding a show this week, and he says the hotels of the Mill City are crowded. They are standing them up, and then turning those who can't sleep in the lobby or upon the pool and billiard tables, from the door, with many apologies.

This all leads up to the fact that they need about two first-class hotels in the Twin Cities. Duluth generally manages to take care of her visitors, simply because, for its size, there isn't a better hotel town in the country than Duluth, Minn.

One William Smith, in a patriotic mood, yesterday afternoon, at the Spalding hotel, boldly walked up to the desk and registered, "William Smith, Ireland, New York." The signature was in the greenest of green ink. Smith is not an Irish name, you know, and as there were several Irish gentlemen registered at the Spalding yesterday, some one suggested that Smith was hogging the spotlight by signing up in exclusive green ink.

George Hatfield was at the St. Louis last evening. Mr. Hatfield has been sent around the country by several of the Western railroads. His business is to point out the attractions of the Western country, advertise the various conventions that will be held in several of the Western cities this year, and, of course, not to overlook the attractions of the Seattle exposition.

And, by the way, those Western roads have got some of the most attractive advertising matter that has struck Duluth in a long time. There is one card advertising the Elks' convention at Los Angeles. It is mounted upon very handsome metal, with a great picture of an Elk's head. Mr. Hatfield says the Elks are expecting one of the greatest conventions in the history of the order, as many Bills will go westward if for no other reason than to see the Seattle exposition.

Besides these attractions, there are conventions at Denver and Salt Lake City. The railroad men expect that the greatest number of people that have ever moved westward across the continent in one season will take the Western trip this season. With that expectation in view, the people of the West are getting ready to show to the visitors all of the advantages they possess, in the way of cities, land and other natural resources.

THE WEATHER.

The end of the mild, balmy weather for Duluth is not yet. The predictions are that the delightful conditions will continue, at least tonight and tomorrow. It was 20 degs. above zero in Duluth last night. Nearly every place was reasonably mild last night, even chilly Minnedosa only registering 4 degs. below zero.

A year ago today it was clear and bright. The sun came up this morning at 6:13 and is scheduled to set at 6:1[illegible].

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"Seasonable weather now obtains over all districts. During the past twenty-four hours, light rain or snow fell over Oregon, the Eastern Rocky Mountain slope the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, the Lake region and the Southeastern states, due to the influence of the three barometric depressions now central over British Columbia, New Mexico and Ohio. The movement of these disturbances has also been attended by warmer weather over all districts except over California, Manitoba, the Dakotas and Wyoming, where somewhat lower temperatures obtain. The Oregon high pressure area is now central over the Dakotas while that central Thursday morning over the Ohio valley is rapidly disappearing over the South Atlantic coast. Another area of high pressure is approaching over California."

Mr. Roosevelt As Editor.

Portland Telegram: Mr. Roosevelt has taken his pen in hand, and the result is his first signed article as contributing editor to the Outlook. In rather a militant tone, Mr. Roosevelt declares for righteousness in journalism, and in that, as a matter of course, no one is surprised. The particular brand of righteousness for which the new editor of the Outlook contends is that which is founded on truth and honest purpose to attain good. The scholarly cynicism of the intellectually capable, and the lower-grade abuse of the pure sensationalist, are necessarily within the condemnation of such righteousness. Dignity and valuable journalistic service to the community are its products.

Mr. Roosevelt really said no more in his first article than what has been said scores of times by scores of conscientious newspaper writers at any time during the past ten years; nevertheless, his utterance is clear, candid, forceful and carries weight from the character and reputation of the writer as well as from his former exalted official position.

Notwithstanding that just at this time, in certain quarters, there may lie the criticism of personal feeling in the ex-president's denunciation of the newspaper which attacks the conscientious public servant from malignant motives, the abstract value of his offering is not depreciated on that account. The present employment of Mr. Roosevelt, to be continued after his return from Africa, is earnest of his unquestionable faith in the dignity and serviceable calling of the public writer, when that calling is pursued in accordance with the right ideals. To take up the pen in the capacity he has elected, upon retiring from the most exalted position in the gift of men is a compliment to the craft, properly supplemented by this plea for the development and highest cultivation of the best there is in it.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Le Sueur News: Sam Langura, writing from Washington, D. C., intimates that Jim Tawney of Minnesota is a public utility god and Robert La Follette of Wisconsin is a windbag. Everyone does not see the picture in the same order.

Anoka Union: One of the significant items of reckless extravagance upon the part of the state legislature is the appointing of a "sergeant of the press gallery," at $5 per day. There is no press gallery, and the fellow is already being paid by the paper he represents to report the doings of the lawmakers.

Walker Pilot: Our new president has already done about everything in the strenuous lines that his predecessor did, except ride ninety miles on horseback. And we suspect that it's simply out of respect for the horse that Taft doesn't attempt this feat.

Lake County Advocate: When Roosevelt has conquered Africa, will he sit down like Alexander and weep because there are no more continents to reform?

Owatonna Journal-Chronicle: Uncle Joe says the foundation priciples of the house rules were laid under Jefferson and Madison. But they never dreamed of the fantastic superstructure that would be raised on these foundations.

Albert Lea Tribune: What will become of those Panama libel suits when Mr. Roosevelt sails for Africa? Perhaps he figures that in the ordinary course of legal proceedings they will be ready for trial about the time he gets back.

Martin County Sentinel: The Second district, thank God, has a man in congress who will truly represent the sentiments of the people on the tariff question. And—should anyone ask you—he's about the only representative from Minnesota of whom this can be said.

Foley Independent: With a "do-nothing" congress, legislature ditto, it is beginning to look as though the Republican party will have a hard time carrying the state the next time.

Sherburne County Star-News: There is a bill before the legislature which provides for instruction in agriculture by correspondence. Almost everything is taught by correspondence now days, but this is the first instance within our observation where the state has undertaken such a job.

Johnnie (confidently)—He had to marry Eve.

Chicago Daily News: The Professor—Of course, you want your daughter to take private lessons?

Mrs. Neurich—Of course, I don't want anything of the kind. I want her to go in a class so she can learn classical music.

Detroit Free Press: "Ma, I didn't know the Browns kept horses."

"They don't, my dear. What made you think so?"

No Woman Suffrage in Sweden.

Boston Globe: Contrary to a report which was freely circulated in this country a few weeks ago, Sweden has not granted the ballot to women. What the parliament of that country did was to grant universal suffrage to men 24 years old, who have committed no crime, paid their taxes and served the prescribed time in the army.

This will be disappointing news to the suffragists, but they may take some consolation from the fact that in Denmark, after a struggle lasting more than twenty-five years, the franchise has been given to women.

We trust, however, that the exercise of political power will not make the fair Denmarkers any less attractive prey in the fascinating game of Copenhagen.

AGE IS NOW QUESTION

Irish Peasants Dislike to Give Census Man Information.

Old-Age Pension Scheme Brings Out This Out This Fact.

Dublin, March 19.—Ireland is generally the victim of a campaign of calumny on one score or another by the English press. At one time it is disloyalty, at another drunkenness, at one tie thriftlessness, at another refusal to pay rent, but the English journalists who have specially sent to Ireland to slander it for the benefit of their English readers have surpassed themselves this time, for they have discovered a slander which at first sight seems to be supported by actual figures.

The working of the old-age pensions act is the theme of the latest slander, which half a dozen English papers are industriously propagating. This act, provides that a pension of $1.25 a week shall be paid to persons over 70 years of age whose incomes are less than $2.50 a week.

Now, on the basis of the census of 1901, there ought to be in the whole of Ireland 184,000 persons who are 70 years old or over, but there have been 209,135 claimants for these pensions up to January 1, last. Only 32,000 of them have been disqualified, and these not because they were not of the required age, but because they had received poor law relief during the preceding twelve months. On the face of it, it must be admitted this looks like a wholesale and bare-faced fraud, but a little investigation would have shown that probably every person who has received a pension is entitled to it, and that a good many who are entitled to pensions have not received them because of the difficulty of proving their ages.

Don't Like to Tell Age.

The reticence of the Irish peasant on the subject of age has long been notorious, and in addition to that, one must reckon with their ignorance of their true age. Compulsory registration of births was instituted in Ireland only forty years ago, so that there is no official record to rely on. In some cases baptismal records have been available, but in many cases these have not been preserved, or, if they have, the old people do not remember where they were baptized, and so can not obtain them.

I know personally an old Irish servant woman who died a couple of years ago, and who must, judging by the events of which she had a clear recollection, have been well over 80, but who to the day of her death always told the census man that she was "a bit over 30." When asked why she did so she would reply, "And why should I tell the inquisitive creature how old I am?" This woman has gone down on the census papers for fifty years or more as "just over 30." Like Peter Pan, she never grew old, officially, at least.

Superstition in Murder Case.

A remarkable piece of evidence of the superstition which still survives in some of the remote districts of Ireland has just come to light in connection with a charge of murder against Michael and Bartley Coyne, brothers, at Lattermore, in County Galway. They are accused of the murder of James Bailey in a fight after a dance at a neighbor's house.

The district is an Irish-speaking one and is in the most remote part of Galway. It is alleged that when Bailey's parents missed him they called on the Coynes and other neighbors to aid in the search, and they found his body lying under a stone wall in a field. Michael Coyne, it is alleged, then said to Bailey's father:

"Do not go near him. That is not your son at all. He was taken away by the fairies last night."

The old man believed him and the body was left lying in the field for some time. Finally some neighbors carried it into the house, but the father still accepted the story that his son had been taken away by the fairies, and the police were not communicated with until more than a week after the murder.

A decision of an Irish high king has just been quoted in the trial of a modern copyright case, involving the right to reproduce translations of Celtic manuscripts. The original dispute arose between St. Columbkille and Flontan over the ownership of a copy of the Gospels which the saint had made the saint had made from a book owned by Flontan. "To every cow its calf and to every book its copy," said the high king, and Flontan got both the original and St. Columbkille's copy.

BAYONETED A BULL, RIOT WITH POLICE.

Calcutta, March 19.—Official reports give inadequate details of rioting which occurred at Kotappa Gonda, near Guntur, in Madras Presidency, recently. The Sivarati festival was in progress and was attended by many thousand pilgrims. A force of 150 police was present, with Mr. Kershasp, district superintendent of police.

According to the police version, the riot originated in a constable bayoneting a bull which had kicked him. Other accounts assert that the constable objected to the presence of a frisky bull in the crowd and struck the animal and its owner.

A fracas ensued and a mob of 5,000 people attacked the temporary police station and stoned the police. The Inspector ordered the police to fire and two rioters were killed and several wounded. The police then dispersed before the angry mob, which burned the police station, one peon being killed.

The superintendent of police was stoned and seriously hurt, thirteen police officers were seriously hurt and six constables are missing. Reserve police finally arrived and restored order.

SETTLE CHURCH CONFLICT.

Turkish Commission Arrives in Palestine to Investigate.

Jerusalem, March 19.—The special commission appointed by the Turkish government to settle the Greek church conflict in Palestine has arrived here. It is hoped that the dispute caused by the revolt of the Syrians against the supremacy of the Greek oligarchy in all church matters will be quickly ended.

The fight has been going on for months, and has been most bitterly waged. All the churches are closed, for the reason that the natives refuse to attend them. All funeral services are conducted in the cemeteries and marriages solemnized in the open air.

The crisis came a few weeks ago, when the natives seized the convent and monasteries, turning the monks into the streets. Troops had to be requisitioned from Jaffa to maintain order. Most of the convents, monasteries and hospices, both here and at Palestine, are in joint hands of soldiers and representative natives.

IN DIRE WANT

Is Timby, Who Claims He Invented the Revolving Turret.

New York, March 19.—Theodore Ruggles Timby, 90 years old, who claims to have been the inventor of the revolving turret, which saved the day for the Union in the battle of Hampton Roads between the little Monitor and the Merrimac, is in destitute circumstances today in Brooklyn, where he is living with a lifelong friend, Mrs. Virginia Chanler Pitcomb.

Timby has in his possession papers which purport to show that his claim to the turret invention is well founded, but, although his case has been presented to congress a score of times, and even reached the United States court of claims at Washington, it did not receive due attention, Timby says, and he never received a dollar from the government.

Mrs. Pitcomb also is said to be in dire want.

ROOSEVELT'S A CULINARY EXPEDITION, SAYS TEMPS.

Paris, March 19.—The Temps, which seems to have been ruminating on the true inwardness of Mr. Roosevelt's expedition to Africa, deduces that "the result of this hunt, announced with trumpet sounds, will be purely culinary."

It proceeds to picture Fifth avenue's sumptuous homes dining next winter on elephant's feet, giraffe saddle and hippo steaks, while the historiographers whom the former president will take along with him will describe the methods of cooking. The Temps bases its conclusion on the character of Mr. Roosevelt's numerous suite, which is not composed of mathematicians, scientists and archaeologists so much as photographers, reporters and possible cinematographers, while apparently the object is not to study the flora and fauna, or to write treatises for the academy of sciences, but articles for less austere publications, like magazines; nor is it proposed to entrap rare animals for American zoological gardens.

Recalling that kangaroo has figured on Parisian menus this winter and that a guest exclaimed at a certain dinner, "I recognize the joint. I saw it box at a music hall," the Temps hopes that Mr. Roosevelt's victims will have a less athletic training.

ESCAPES BURIAL ALIVE.

French Woman Rises From Coffin, Startling Mourners.

Paris, March 19.—At Frejus, near Cannes, a couple of days ago an octogenarian named Mme. Christin was thought to have died in her sleep. The doctor who was called pronounced the woman to be dead and arrangements were made for the funeral. This was to have taken place the following afternoon. An hour or so before the departure for the cemetery the dead woman startled the mourners by sitting up in her coffin and asking to be supplied with something to drink as she was thirsty.

The spectators of this incident, save two, fled shrieking from the house. The two, who preserved their presence of mind, removed the "corpse" from her coffin and put her to bed, where she soon went soundly to sleep.

Mme. Christin is quite well again and knows nothing of the narrow escape she has had of being buried alive. Very curiously, she has recounted to the members of the family that she dreamed she was dead and had been buried.

It Saved His Leg.

COUNTESS DYING IN GARRET.

Supposed Daughter of Napoleon III Is Near Death.

Paris, March 19.—The Countess de la Pommiero, who is believed by many people to be the daughter of Napoleon III., was found dying in a miserable garret in Senlis this week.

She had not been seen for some days, and when the neighbors forced their way into her room they found the very woman calling feebly for help. She was lying on a heap of straw in the middle of the room, fighting as well as she could with rats for a crust of bread and a piece of cheese which she clutched to her throat.

Lying all about the floor of the room were bank notes, bonds and shares worth more than $30,000. The rats had eaten away portions of the paper. The countess has been taken to a home at Clermont, but there is little hope of her recovery.

The wife of Gerhart Hauptmann—Margaret Marshalk—before her marriage to the dramatist was for a long time a popular member of the Lobe theater at Breslau. She has now gone on the stage for the second time, but not as an actress. At a recent concert given by the Verein der Musikfreunde, at Hirschberg, Frau Hauptmann played a Greig composition, and, according to to a report printed the following day, showed that she is an accomplished violinist.

ROYALTY'S CHARMER

Mrs. George West Is Planning a Social Coup in London.

Lady Granard's Gems Create Furore at Smart Reception.

London, March 19.—It was something of a surprise to Mrs. George West's friends to find that she was going back to Great Cumberland place, the scene of her first great social success in London. The new house she has taken, as most people know by now, was Melba's, from whom she has purchased some of the exquisite things it contains, especially the Louise Quinze furniture, which is unique.

Mrs. George West is a connoisseur in furniture, and it is her proud boast that she owns many things which are matchless even among the belongings of millionaires. Among these are souvenirs presented to her by almost every crowned head in Europe, not to speak of Indian princes and other potentates who at one time or another have fallen under her spell, for among foreigners especially Mrs. West has always been a special favorite. It used to be a recognized thing when some particularly "difficult" celebrity who was a royal guest had to be amused to pass him or her at great social functions. However glum or bored he might look, before he was ten minutes talking to Mrs. West he was smiling.

Entertained for "Bertie."

She has not had a town residence for years. When in London she used to put up at her son Winston's bachelor abode, a little box of a place. Now it seems she is so extremely proud of her two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Winston more especially, that she means to give them a grand time doing a lot of entertaining for them.

It was in the old days at Great Cumberland Plate that Mrs. George West, then Lady Randolph Churchill, gave these exclusive little dinners for "Bertie," now King Edward. He used to go to the Churchills "to be cheered up" when he had the blues, and used to delight to hear of the practical jokes Lady Churchill had perpetrated. She found out his penchant for common or garden dishes, like tripe and cowheel and certain kinds of curry, and had a chef who was a past master in turning these out to the royal guest's satisfaction. Many times he would wire to her to ask if he might come and dine.

The king and Mrs. George West kept up their close Platonic friendship up to the time she remarried. After that, as all the world knows, they cooled off because of his majesty's downright aversion to a disparity in age on the wrong side. But metaphorically speaking, Lady Randolph snapped her fingers in the face of the king and all the rest regarding her marriage. She said "she intended to please herself and she meant to be happy—at last." And happy she certainly has been.

Lady Granard a Sensation.

Lady Granard was undoubtedly the sensation of the great reception which the marchioness of Londonderry gave for the Opposition the other night. She was followed about the rooms by a mob of aristocracy, which included duchesses and countesses and politicians, all pushing each other in their attempt to get a glimpse of her and her jewels. Eventually, she reached a divan in the center of one of the magnificent rooms—Londonderry house is one of the palaces of Park Lane—and there she sat like a queen among courtiers.

Beside her was Arthur Balfour, who, on being presented to her, bent low and kissed her hand—an Old World chivalrous act—which seemed to amuse considerably the trans-Atlantic belle. She wears her jewels to the manner born. She gives the idea of having an innate fondness of them. By all accounts she is never happy without them. But why wear two necklaces at the same time? Surely her gorgeous one of diamonds, to match her tiara with its row of big stones that flashed like electric globes, ought to have been sufficient without that other of sapphires—a wondrous thing of its kind, the gems having the very wave of the sea, it seemed, in their green depths.

Corsage a Mass of Gems.

I may remark parenthetically that, although sapphires are always supposed to be deepest blue, the really valuable ones look green in certain lights and that was the tone of the countess'. Her corsage was almost a solid mass of diamonds and with all she managed not to look vulgar. For sheer talent, can any woman beat that?

With her soft fluffy hair and her pretty coloring she gave the idea of a fairy princess, needing only the wand to make the illusion complete. There were diamonds on her tiny white satin shoes and her hands and arms glistened with jewels. She was going down to supper as the duke of Norfolk came in and he stood on the stairs apparently transfixed for the moment. Then he turned to Lord Londonderry, who was close by, and demanded, "Who is the lady?" and was duly informed.

It is being said that the only state jewel of which Lady Granard is jealous is the Cullinan diamond. It certainly was the only gem which took the shine out of hers at the opening of parliament where, in the peeresses' gallery, Lady Granard was the cynosure of all eyes.

IN THROES OF WAVE OF CRIME

Seventeen Recent Murders Make Work for French Police.

Paris, March 19.—Another extraordinary wave of crime has swept over France, and within a brief period seventeen murders have been reported. In nearly every case the murder was one of passion. There are murders by men, by boys and by women, and their savagery is only equaled by the casual way in which they are regarded. For there have been so many murders of all kinds in recent years in France that unless a murder be more than usually brutal, or mysterious, or sensational in some way or another, it attracts little or no attention. Here is part of the latest murder budget:

A young apprentice of 16 murdered his employer's wife with an awl. He is believed to have been in love with her.

A music hall singer was murdered by her lover, a rich young man of 26.

At a ball in Paris a young washerwoman, seeing her fiance dancing with another girl, stabbed him twice in the back with a knife.

A workman named Rhes, whose wife had left him and refused to return, stabbed her to death and killed himself with the same knife.

A cobbler left his wife some time ago for a pretty dressmaker. The deserted wife, who is only 25, went to her rival's door, rang the bell, and when the door was opened, threw pepper into the eyes of her rival, who opened it, killed her with a dagger and gave herself up to the police.

At Vigan a peasant shot his brother-in-law dead with a rifle over a discussion on a matter of $1.75.

A girl stabbed her father to death with seven dagger thrusts at Limoge because he had quarreled with her mother.

At Belfort a stoker, after being refused assistance by two sisters, shot them both with a revolver and took his own life.

A soldier at Brest, who was called by some civilians a "wall crayfish," because he was one of the sentries at the fort, killed one of them with his bayonet.

A masquer was stabbed to death at the Nice carnival.

Within 500 yards of the scene of the celebrated crime of the Lyons mail, a wagoner was murdered and robbed, and his money and five horses were stolen.

At Lyons a man killed his wife with a kitchen knife because they had a dispute about the dinner.

Many other crimes of the same kind have been committed, but are not on the official records.

The authorities intend in the near future to make it more difficult than it now is for persons to carry long knives or revolvers.

Inventors are now confining their attention almost entirely to three branches—airships, automobiles and improvements in electrical appliances.

The forest commissioner of New York has reported that 90 per cent of the forest fires in that state were caused by sparks from locomotives.

STEEL CUT WILL NOT LAST LONG

Schwab Foresees Early Return to the Old Prices.

Detroit, Mich., March 19.—Speaking at the monthly luncheon of the Detroit board of commerce, Charles M. Schwab declared that the present cutting of prices in the steel industry would not be of long duration or of great moment. He predicted that in ten years the consumption of steel in this country, which in 1907 was 24,000,000 tons, would reach 40,000,000 tons. The manufacture of steel cars had only begun, he said, and the building of steel ships had not even made a beginning in view of what he said, may be expected when the next congress has acted on the question of ship subsidy. It takes nearly 1,000 tons of steel rails per day, said Mr. Schwab, merely to replace worn out rails.

ALL READY FOR SENIOR PLAY

"Diamonds and Hearts" Title of Annual High School Show.

"Diamonds and Hearts" is the name of the annual senior play which will be put on at the high school assembly hall this evening. A. F. B. Custance, who has charge of staging the play, is authority for the statement that it is the best one ever secured for the local school.

The country choir, consisting of thirty-five members, led by Earling Mostue, who impersonates a German, is a feature of the show that will attract a good deal of attention. Prince Milner, a fox terrier, has been trained to take part in this act.

The Yama Yama dance by Marjorie Shepherd, Cleo Fenton and Ruth Davis is said to be one of the best things of the performance. The play itself is full of comedy and heart interest.

TORE HIS SKIN OFF IN SHREDS

Itching was Intense—Humor Spread from Hands to Body—Work Interrupted and Sleep Often Impossible—Disease Resisted Treatment

BUT CUTICURA CURED HIM IN THREE WEEKS

"My trouble commenced about two years ago and consisted, at first, of an eruption of small pustules on my hands. These spread later to other parts of my body, and the itching at times was intense, so much so that I literally tore the skin off in shreds in seeking relief. The awful itching interfered with my work considerably, and also kept me awake nights. I tried several doctors and used a number of different ointments and lotions but received practically no benefit. Finally I settled down to the use of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, with the result that in a few days all itching had ceased and in about three weeks' time all traces of my eruption had disappeared. I have had no trouble of this kind since. H. A. Krutskoff, 5714 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., November 18 and 28, 1907."

ON THE IRON RANGES

LARGER FORCE IS TO BE EMPLOYED

Hanna and Sliver Mines to Ship More Ore This Year.

Virginia, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. E. Hendrick, superintendent of the Hanna and Sliver mines in this district, reports that large shipments of ore will be made the coming season from these properties.

It is anticipated that about 300,000 tons will be shipped from the Sliver and about 150,000 from the Hanna. The Sliver shipped nearly 50,000 tons last year and the proposed large increase for the coming season means a much larger force of men and that there will be lively doings about this property when the season opens.

Operations have already begun, in a small way, at this mine, but as the season advances the crews will be added to and the work pushed rapidly forward. Butler Bros. have charge of the stripping and will endeavor to fill their part of the contract at an early date.

HIBBING CHIEF IS BEING SUED

Man Arrested as Suspicious Character Is Seeking Damages.

Hibbing Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief of Police Wring, Martin Hughes and D. D. McEachin have left for Duluth to attend the trial of the damage case of William vs. Wring and McEachin.

The case dates back to a year ago last fall when some time during the night the Itasca Mercantile company store here was broken into and articles of the value of $50 stolen.

Among the number of suspicious characters arrested was Williams, the case was finally dismissed in the municipal court. Williams thinks his character was defamed, hence this action for damage.

VIRGINIA LIKED IT.

Splendid St. Patrick's Day Entertainment Enjoyed by Large House.

Virginia, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The entertainment given Wednesday evening in the Fay opera house by the choir of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic church, commorating St. Patrick's day, was largely attended. Every number on the program was good and especially well rendered.

Those who took part were the Misses Bessie and Margaret Murphy, Gertrude deNoble, Josephine Sterle, and Messrs. A. E. Schneider, O. A. Poirier, H. E. Devine, D. T. Murphy, Louis Osborn and Father James Hogan.

Father Hogan delivered a brief address, in which he spoke of the many virtues of St. Patrick and told of what the people of Ireland had done to make America one of the greatest nations of the world. His remarks were greatly appreciated by his auditors.

The Misses Murphy, deNoble and Sterle have favored the public several times with their rare musical talen, and they were greeted with favor each time they appeared.

The male quartette, composed of Messrs. Devine, Schneider, Murphy and Poirier, rendered several pleasing numbers. Henry Devine did his first singing in public in Virginia on this occasion and he made a very good impression among the music lovers. He has a full, rich baritone voice.

Louis Osborn also made his debut in public as a musician, and proved himself a master of the cornet. He rendered two very pleasing numbers.

The same program was given in Eveleth the night previous to a large and appreciative audience.

SANITARY DAIRY FARM.

Virginians Are Evincing Interest in Worthy Undertaking.

Virginia, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—President C. B. Lenont of the Commercial club, who is chairman of the committee to solicit subscriptions for stock for the proposed sanitary dairy farm to be established in this city says that thirty-five shares have been taken by citizens of Virginia. It is proposed to capitalize the company at $10,000, with shares at $100 each, but as soon as fifty shares of stock are disposed of steps will be taken to organize a company and go ahead with the work of establishing the dairy. It is proposed to build the dairy strictly along sanitary lines with a thoroughly competent man in charge. Land for the purpose has been offered by the Steel corporation to the south of the city, and as soon as the fifty shares are taken up work upon the construction of the buildings will begin. Dr. Lenont is much encouraged over the result and says that Virginia may be assured of having a fine dairy farm within a short time.

BIDS ARE LAID OVER.

No Action on Tenders for Electrical Work in Eveleth High.

Eveleth, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bids for the electrical work for the new high school building were opened at yesterday's meeting of the school board, but action on them was laid over until next Monday, as there were two sets of specifications out on the electrical work, and the board was not sure whether the lowest bidders were bidding on the right specifications. Architect Bray of Duluth will also be here Monday. The bids were as follows: Unity Electric company, St. Paul, $1,575; H. W. Irwin and Abe Rauma, Eveleth, $1,875; Electric Construction company, St. Paul, $1,895; Hibbing Electric company, Hibbing, $1,497; Harity Electric company, Superior, $1,510.

The outside work on the school building is almost completed and the men are now working on the roof.

Chisholm, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The famous Turner art exhibit, including reproductions of 266 of the most famous paintings of ancient and modern times, will be held at the high school building during the week of March 22 to 27. The pictures are photographic reproductions of the world's leading subjects in paintings, portraits, sculpture, architecture and natural scenery, and are shown both in monotones and in all colors of the originals.

Arrangements will be made to have each school grade study the exhibit in order to become acquainted with masterpieces and acquire ability to interpret thoughts and feelings expressed through the medium of art. It is also hoped that selections may be made for permanent decoration. The public will have one or two days to view the exhibition.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION

Ely, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Wilson Osborne, the present municipal judge of Ely, is seeking re-election at the spring election. The judge has given eminent satisfaction and his friends predict his re-election.

DYNAMITE STOLEN.

Andrew Gumbus Believed to Have Purloined the Explosive.

Aurora, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew Gumbus, who was arrested here Wednesday and taken to Duluth to be prosecuted by the federal authorities on the charge of shipping an explosive on a common carrier has been employed at the Mohawk mine and, it is said, he has been purloining the dynamite piece by piece for some time. The dynamite was to have been used by him to blow out stumps on his farm in Wisconsin, where he also has a wife and five children.

Gumbus intended to leave on the morning train Wednesday but missed connections. His trunk in which the dynamite was packed was then checked for the afternoon train.

In the meantime one of Gumbus' comrades, knowing the danger, notified the mining men who in turn wired Two Harbors to watch out for him. Upon receiving word here that he had missed the train Gumbus was arrested and his trunk seized.

THREE ACCIDENTS.

Employes of Canisteo Mine Injured in Discharge of Duties.

Coleraine, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—This has been an unlucky week at the Canistee mine, three employes being hurt.

Steve Bruzitch was caught under a mass that fell from the bank in the open pit, and his lower limbs badly injured, while he may have been hurt internally.

Dominick Allo, a trammer in the No. 2 shaft, had his leg broken by a dump car dumping unexpectedly, as he was riding in it.

J. Murphy, a cranesman on a team shovel in the open pit had his leg cut off Wednesday night. A large chunk of frozen dirt fell, striking him in such a way that the impact against the machinery cut the leg entirely off. He was taken at once to the hospital, where his wound was dressed. A sad feature of Murphy's case is the fact that he was engaged to be married Friday of next week.

IT WAS APPRECIATED.

Splendid St. Patrick's Day Entertainment Given at Coleraine.

Coleraine, Minn., March 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—St. Patrick's Catholic church gave an excellent St. Patrick's day concert in the auditorium of the Greenway high school Wednesday evening under the direction of O. Wiggins of Duluth, assisted by Miss Donna Louise Riblette, a New York soprano; C. Lawrence Paul, formerly with the New York Opera company; Emil Bromund, baritone from Duluth; Mrs. Skafti, pianist, Duluth, and Miss Nellie Brown of Duluth, accompanist.

Rev. Father Killeen, the resident pastor delivered a short, yet spirited address at the opening of the program. At the close a beautiful tableau was staged under the direction of Mr. Wiggins. It was an Irish scene in one of the prettiest settings ever staged here. A large appreciative audience was in attendance.

BLAME IMPURE MILK

For Death of Mrs. H. K. Kendall, Popular Matron of Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Mrs. M. K. Kendall, aged 30, who died rather unexpectedly here, yesterday, has been taken to Winona for interment.

The many friends of Mrs. Kendall were shocked to learn of her untimely death. She was formerly a teacher here in the public schools, and was very popular among her many friends. She leaves, beside her husband, two small children. Her death is said to have been caused by typhoid fever, due to drinking impure milk.

The foods we eat furnish energy for the body just as burning coal makes steam for an engine.

The experiments of Prof. Frankland, Ph. D., of London, show that cod liver oil yields two and one-half times more energy than starches or sweets.

NEW STEEL SHAFT IS BEING ERECTED

Work on A Shaft at Pioneer Mine Is Now Under Way.

Ely, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work has begun on the new A shaft at the Pioneer mine. The shaft will be of steel, and is being erected by the American Bridge company of Cleveland, Ohio. The old wooden structure, which has been the means of hoisting many millions of tons of the very best Besemer ore, was dynamited down this week in order that the new work may progress rapidly, and in order that there might be no danger in pulling down the timbers of the old shaft house.

All shafts of the Ely district of the Vermilion range are now of steel, and of the latest model. It is thought that experiments may be made here of having all timbers and supports within the mines of steel, instead of timber as heretofore. The supply of mining timber is growing scarce in this section and what remains is being held for fancy prices. The contemplated innovation will increase the demand for steel and ores.

The fee owners of the Section 30 mining proposition were in this city on their way to the mine recently. What was the result of their visit, or purport, is not known. The future of the Section 30 mine is of much importance to the people of this place. In the party were Messrs. F. H. Merritt, L. C. Harris, R. H. Fagan, W. T. Eaton, George Lonstorff and Superintendent George H. St. Claire.

INJURED WHILE SKATING.

Grand Rapids Girl Falls on Cement Floor, Breaking Limb.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Marie Aitken skated not wisely too swift on the cement basement floor of the Aitkin home Monday evening.

Doctors Storch and Gendron reduced a fracture of the right arm at the wrist, since which time the young patient has been getting along very nicely. In company with Hattie Carrier, Miss Marie was trying the rollers on the smooth cement floor when she fell backwards striking on her hand in such a manner as to break one of the wrist bones. The doctors deemed it advisable to fracture the companion bone in order to prevent an unshapely setting, which was done.

Announcement cards of the marriage of B. L. Lieberman of Grand Rapids and Miss Fannie Grace Abramson at West Duluth on Tuesday of last week, have been received. Mr. Lieberman and his bride arrived Monday and are stopping at the Pokegama, where they will remain until their residence on Leland avenue is vacated by the present occupants. The cards announce "at home after April 15."

C. C. McCarthy received the sad news Tuesday that his aged mother was dangerously ill at her home in St. Louis, Mich., for which place he left on the early morning train.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickenson and Rev. Davies and wife, drove over to Coleraine Monday night, to hear Rev. Nickershaw, who was filling a date in that town for the Lyceum course.

Walter Hall won two games in the Manley-McLennan event. His C class rink defeated Dinham's in the finals in the C class, and his A class rink defeated Magner's rink in the finals in the A class. Dinham's B class rink won from Alworth's rink in the same event. A few more games will finish this event, and then everything will be cleaned up but The Herald event. BASEBALL NOTES

Jack Chesbro has been granted an extended leave of absence. He will join the Yankee squad on March 20.

Frank Lobert, a brother of Hans of Cincinnati, will play ball for Manager Connery of the Hartford, Conn., league team this year.

Covaleski, the Phillies' pitcher, who demanded $5,000 for the coming season before he woke up, received only $1,200 last year.

The Giant outfield will be Herzog, Seymour and Murray to start with, and it is reported, McCormick and O'Hara playing the extra roles.

• • •

Ossie Schreckengost's retirement to the minors is regretted by Connie Mack, his old manager. Schreck was considered the best battery partner for Waddell in the business, but will play in the New York State league this season.

• • •

John T. Brush hints that the only way Mike Donlin can get $8,000 from the Giants this season is to go after it with a jimmy and a bottle of nitroglycerin at 4 a. m.

• • •

Roy Thomas, the old University of Pennsylvania outfielder, who went to Pittsburg via the Philadelphia Nationals, is slated to join the procession of major league discards who have been chased to the class A circuits since the close of last season.

• • •

Most of the Brooklyn positions have already been decided upon, but there are still a couple waiting to be filled. There is that hole at second and another in the outfield. If Jordan comes to terms, Hummell, who is now practicing at first, will be shifted to left field accounting for the suburbs, and leaving only second to be worked.

• • •

Billy Hallman, the Phillies' old second baseman, is to return to his first position on a professional diamond. He has signed as utility man for the Denver club.

• • •

The St. Louis Nationals had an exciting time last week, when the Capital hotel, where they are stopping at Little Rock, caught fire. The men were all routed out of bed, but the blaze was subdued with very little damage.

• • •

Reports from Mobile are to the effect that Terry Turner's whip is better than ever now. If this is so, well, just let the works go straight. With Cy Young in shape and Turner snapping them across to first the Naps sure are the ones that will have to be beaten to win the rag.

• • •

Seymour is a man of erratic temperament, and has figured in several brawls during his baseball career. In 1905 he led the National league in hitting. He was then a member of the Cincinnati team, but in 1901 he was sold to New York for the sum of $10,000 because Owner Herrmann of the Reds accused him of lack of ambition.

• • •

Addie Joss, the elongated twirler of the Naps, has a new scheme which he thinks will not only benefit himself, but also the Naps in the 1909 race for the American league flag. Addie has always been regarded as anything but a successful pitcher in warm weather. He has asked Manager Lajoie to excuse him from July 1 to Aug. 15. "I'll be willing to pitch oftener in the early months if Lajoie will grant my request," quotes Joss. "Then I will be in great shape for the final run down the stretch."

SHOW CONTINUED UNTIL SUNDAY

Minneapolis Automobile Exhibition Has Been Great Success.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—One more day has been added to the Minneapolis Automobile show of 1909, now being held with such success at the new armory on Kenwood parkway. At a meeting of the Minneapolis Automobile Show association last night, it was decided to keep the show open Sunday.

There were hundreds of expressions of disappointment made by telegram and telephone from outlying points at the decision of the management to keep the show closed last Sunday, and as the auto show is essentially an automobile exposition, and an excellent means of acquainting the general public with the possibilities of the motor car travel, the management now feels that it is only fitting and proper that those who have been disappointed during the week through not being able to get into town, should be given the opportunity of seeing the show Sunday.

As there is no other big national show scheduled for next week, the association has been able to arrange with all the big show exhibitors to leave their exhibits on the floor intact over Saturday night and Sunday.

With the exception of one or two amusement features, the show will therefore be given on Sunday just as it has been given this week to over 40,000 people. Sacred concerts will be given by the First Field Artillery band afternoon and evening, under the direction of Herbert T. Parks, and the doors of the armory will be opened at noon Sunday and remain open until 10:30 Sunday night.

Owing to the unusual number of visitors in the city, hotel accommodations have been taxed to the utmost, and the management therefore suggests that those contemplating a journey to the 1909 show, make reservations of hotel rooms.

LOSES GOOD COIN ON A FAKE MATCH

Iowa Man Bets on a Sure Thing and Loses Out.

Sioux City, Iowa, March 19.—The Maybray gang of swindlers found a victim in George Alberts of this city by working the old game through a supposed friend of the victim.

Alberts puts his money with their roll of $45,000 and their wrestler burst a chicken bladder full of flood in his mouth and lost the bout.

Albert says he was betrayed by George Shores, a professional wrestler he had known in his home town, Mankato, where he was physical instructor in the Y. M. C. A. He put up $2,000 on a fake wrestling match conducted by the Maybray gang, whose operations are under investigation by the federal grand jury at Council Bluffs.

Alberts has sent his evidence to the federal authorities and stands ready to appear against Shores if he is captured.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, March 19.—The grand jury met yesterday afternoon and is expected to consider the operations of the alleged "swindling syndicate" at once. Several victims of fake horse races, foot races and wrestling matches are here and many others are expected to come from various parts of the country to testify against the men charged with wholesale swindling.

W. H. Tedford, a wealthy farmer of Bocklow, Mo., arrived yesterday in response to a request from Postoffice Inspector Swenson. Tedford says he was swindled Aug. 21, 1908, to the extent of $5,000, which he bet on a fake horse race.

BENEFIT SKI TOURNAMENT

Duluth and Superior Clubs Unite to Help Unfortunate Rider.

For the benefit of Chris Gunhus, the Superior ski rider who broke his leg while performing on the Duluth hill some weeks ago, a benefit ski tournament will be given Sunday afternoon at Chester hill.

Mr. Gunhus' family is not in the best of circumstances, and it is said that they can ill-afford to have him away from his work. As a result if the accident he will probably be laid up for some weeks yet, and it is the wish of both the Duluth and Superinor clubs to help him out with the proceeds of a special tournament.

All the riders are donating their services, and as there will be but very little expense connected with the affair it is expected the club will be able to hand Mr. Gunhus a check for several hundred dollars.

JOHNSON TO SPAR WITH KETCHEL

Fighters Will Meet in a Ten-Round Boxing Match.

New York, March 19.—A match between Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world, and Stanley Ketchel, for a side bet of $5,000, is said to have been arranged by friends of both fighters.

The fight, which will be a ten-round bout, if fought in New York, is to be held within the next twelve months.

Tenders have been invited from a number of clubs, and it is understood that the mill is to go to the highest bidder.

"Kid" Farmer Injured.

New Orleans, La., March 19.—"Kid" Farmer, a well-known Illinois pugilist, is in charity hospital suffering with concussion of the brain, as the result of a peculiar accident. While going up the steps of an excursion steamer, he struck his head on a cross bar, and was knocked senseless. His condition is critical.

BRUNSWICKS ARE IN THE LEAD

The 1908 Champions Make Strong Bid for 1909 Honors.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 19.—The Brunswick five-men team of New York, champions of 1908 of the National Bowling association, stepped into the lead in the international match at Duquesne Gardens last night by rolling a score of 2,751, their total for the six games already being 5,355. The Bonds team of Columbus, Ohio, the American Bowling congress champions, made second high score in the three games last night, but are still in third place in the match, the 2,556 rolled last night only bringing their total to 5,081, while the De Soto Stars of St. Louis, the Middle West Bowling association cnampions with the 2,531 made last night, have a total for the six games of 5,166. The 1908 champions of the Canadian Bowling association are not participating in the match.

Cleveland and Youngstown, N. Y. day was observed yesterday and large delegations of bowling enthusiasts were in attendance from these cities. However, the international match seemed to attract the most attention because the five-men teams on the regular schedule did not bowl above the average. None of the scores made last night were sufficiently high to place the team in the first ten places of the event.

The high point in the scores of all events of the tournament seem to have been reached on the results yesterday made no changes in the composition of the honor roll or the highest ten in each event.

Interest in the afternoon session of the tournament contests centered in the international championship doubles, which was won by the men representing the American Bowling congress, the champions being Harry Klene and W. N. Thompson of Chicago. Thompson took the place of James Chalmers, who, with Klene, won the double event championship at Cincinnati last year, but who died since that time. Klene and Thompson rolled a score of 3,629 in nine games, as against a total of 3,102 pins made by J. A. Donovan and L. Wilson of St. Louis, champions of the Middle West Bowling association. The National Bowling association and the Canadian Bowling association were not represented in the games. The representatives of the American Bowling congress took the lead early and the men from the Middle West Bowling association seemed to lose heart. Thompson rolled a splendid game, making an average of 219.

LONG HAULS FOR PRODUCE

Duluth Importing Most of Her Food From the South.

Even Poultry Is Now Being Brought From Iowa.

At the present writing, the produce market is a proposition of long distances.

About everything that is now offered in Michigan street commission and wholesale houses arrives here only after long hauls.

As far as this section of the country is considered, it is "between seasons." We grow not, now; neither do we reap; we merely receive. And receiving is one of the best things we do, because freight cars are continually backing up against the rear ends of the wholesale fruit and produce houses and unloading boxes, crates and quarts of eatables, all of which are being consumed here and hereabouts at prices which show but slight fluctuation from a week ago.

Just to show how the things we eat travel, the statement might be made that most of the poultry Duluthians are eating comes clean—sometimes—from Iowa.

At the present time, the merchants on commission row say that Minnesota and Wisconsin farmers—are not shipping enough chickens, geese and all that sort of thing to this market, to keep the village express agents' fingers from becoming numb.

The explanation of this lack of shipping propensity on the part of Minnesota and Wisconsin agriculturists is not to be had, further than to say that they ship not because they have little or nothing to ship. The statement practically covers the situation, however, as the nearby markets have been pretty thoroughly plucked of what they had, by reason of the extravagant prices which they have been obtaining and which have spurred on rural housewives to shoot dairy products and such truck to market at a rapid pace, to permit of a garnering of the top-notch prices and the purchase of the latest carpets and such-like for the front room.

This Iowa poultry, which is mostly offered here now, is a trifle more expensive than that which has been offered here of late.

Dressed spring chickens are selling at 17 to 19 cents a pound. Hens are 16 to 17 cents. Turkeys are 25 cents a pound. Ducks and geese are unchanged from last week.

That other product of the farmyard, the egg, is cheaper now than it has been for some months, quotations for the freshest of the fresh only being 20 to 22 cents a dozen. Supplies are ample for local demands, at that price.

Harking back to the slight advances in poultry prices calls to the mind the fact that for the first time since the receiver for A. Booth & Co., discovered he was overstocked and ordered a cut in prices, has the fish market taken on a bullish tone. Prices are a little up from last week.

Pike, which are as popular and good-tasting as any fish going, are selling wholesale at 9 to 10 cents a pound. Lake trout is also selling at 9 to 10 cents, with the rest of the fish market unchanged from a week ago.

Creamery butter prints are hanging around the 30-cent mark, with 32 cents as the top of the range. Other grades of butter are correspondingly easy.

• • •

In the meat market, everything is unchanged from last week except pork loins. For these articles, the market is rather stiff, quotations being 11 to 11½ cents. Receipts at the killing centers have been light.

• • •

The season for California celery is over and Florida celery is about due. Some of it is on the way and will arrive in a few days.

• • •

Old potatoes are still the only kind and will be for a matter of three weeks at least. Then, receipts are expected from the winter spud growing localities located farther south.

LUMAN C. MANN, FREED OF MURDER CHARGE, SAYS HE'LL BE GOOD CITIZEN

Chicago, March 19.—Dramatic scenes accompanied the acquittal, reported in Associated Press dispatches to the afternoon papers yesterday, of Luman C. Mann, charged with the murder of Mrs. Frances Gilmor Trompson last June. The evidence against Mann was circumstantial; his defense an alibi. The jury took but one ballot.

With the words of "not guilty" from the lips of the foreman, the scene in Judge McSurely's court became one of excitement bordering on hysteria.

"I've been a bad man, but years from now you'll hear of me as an honest citizen," Mann said in thanking the jury. Tears were rolling down his cheeks and his sobs made it almost impossible for him to speak.

"We knew you were innocent," said one of the jurors, unabashed, tears flowing freely. Other jurors furtively applied handkerchiefs to their eyes as Mann turned to his mother, throwing his arms about her neck and crying like a child.

"Fanny" Thompson, bound, gagged and the finger marks of a stranger on her throat, was found dead in a rooming house at 1242 Michigan avenue July 1 last. She had been dead four days, and this period Mann was compelled to cover in minute detail to establish an alibi. Besides himself, he produced more than a score of witnesses. The evidence against him consisted chiefly of his acquaintance with Mrs. Thompson when she was a servant in his father's house, the fact that he wore a cap similar to the one of which Mrs. Hamilton, keeper of the rooming house, said was worn by the man who accompanied Mrs. Thompson to the house, and a statement made to his sister prior to the tragedy that he "knew a woman whose diamonds he would get if he had to choke her."

This statement Mann explained on the stand was purely a thoughtless jest made in the course of a conversation in a light vein. Other evidence on which reliance was placed at the time of the arrest of Mann broke down before the case came to trial.

HEROIC PICTURE OF THE MODERN DOCTOR.

London, March 19.—How medical men are destroying their own profession as a means of livelihood is the subject of an article in the British Medical Journal, in which a recent address by President Eliot of Harvard university is quoted.

"It is doubtless true," says the British Medical Journal, "that the medicine of the future will be to a large extent preventive." President Eliot does not point out the remarkable fact that the progress in science which is to change the healing into preventive science has been the work of the doctors themselves.

"The fact was surely remarkable enough to deserve mention, for it is the one example of a profession striving to abolish the reason for its own existence and to dry up the sources from which it draws its livelihood.

"And what is its reward? Hatred and an uncharitableness on the part of fanatics who, if they could, would stop all progress; carefully measured encouragement from the state and from public bodies, and indifference from the people at large, who, owing to the extinction of the scourges from which they have been delivered, can not appreciate what has been done for their welfare."

NARRAGANSETT BAY TURNED INTO A LAKE OF TOMATO CATSUP.

Providence, R. I., March 19.—The waters of Narragansett Bay were well seasoned with tomato catsup when 650 cases, containing 15,600 bottles, were dumped into the sea. Judge Arthur Brown of the United States district court ruled that it should be confiscated inasmuch as the manufacturers had not labelled the bottles.

S. quickly takes effect on the blood, and gradually the symptoms disappear, the health is improved, the skin cleared of all spots, sores and other blemishes, the hair stops coming out, the mouth and throat heal and when S. NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CAPTOR OF JEFF DAVIS

Simeon Brownell of Aitkin Helped to Take Confederate Leader.

Although 76 Years Old, He Recalls Exciting Event Very Well.

Aitkin, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Living quietly in this city with his son, Bert Brownell, is Simeon Brownell, aged 76, a grizzled veteran of the Civil war, who participated in one of the historic events growing out of that struggle, the capture of Jeff Davis, ex-president of the Confederacy, at Irvinsville, Wilkinson county, Ga., May 10, 1865.

Mr. Brownell, a native of New York, moved to Cass county, Mich., when a young man, and early in the war enlisted in the Fourth Michigan cavalry, serving until the conclusion of the great civil strife. He returned to Michigan and remained there until 1887, when he came to Aitkin county, taking up a homestead at Mud Lake, where he resided until moving into the city two years ago.

Vividly Recalls Affair.

Mr. Brownell vividly recalls the exciting events dealing with the pursuit of the fleeing ex-president through the South, ending in the climax of May 10, 1865.

Mr. Brownell was a member of Lieut. Col. Pritchard's squad, and he remembers the morning of the capture very distinctly. Besides the squad of the Fourth Michigan cavalry, there was also a squad belonging to a Wisconsin regiment searching for the fugitive, and Mr. Brownell says that neither knew of the presence of the other, and in the darkness before dawn, both squads, thinking each other enemies, engaged in a skirmish, and two Federals were killed and several wounded before the identity of the men was established. Mr. Davis came out of his tent covered with a long cloak, and as he was stepping over a wagon tongue, he made a motion as though to draw a revolver, instantly a dozen union rifles covered him. The boys were excited, and it was a wonder some one's gun was not discharged, but fortunately there was none. The noted prisoner was secured and taken to Fortress Monroe, where he remained for two years.

CADY IS FAMOUS AS PROSECUTOR

Selected to Probe Marinette Graft, He Should Bring Results.

Marinette, Wis., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Attorney Samuel H. Cady of Green Bay, who convicted the ring of Green Bay's grafters several years ago, has been appointed by Governor James O. Davidson to conduct a similar probe here.

First Attorney Schwittay, whose term of office, lasting three months, has been a constant turmoil, and whom every member of the Marinette bar but one asked the governor to suspend, has been suspended. He was arrested on charges of forgery and perjury, and both hearings will take place next place next week, as Schwittay is demanding immediate trials.

Schwittay was elected to office on an anti-graft platform less than a year after his disbarment was removed. Every attempt he has made to prosecute alleged grafters has been blocked. Last Tuesday, when charges were submitted to the governor, an overwhelming number of members of the Marinette county bar announced themselves in favor of the probe, provided an attorney appointed by the governor conducted it.

The failure of Dessereau to notify the police directed suspicion toward him, and he is being held until the death can be probed.

GEN. KING INSPECTS.

Well-Known Army Officer Lauds Ashland Military Company.

Ashland, Wis., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gen. Charles King, U. S. A., Wisconsin's popular military officer, and one of the best known and efficient officers in the United States, was in Ashland Tuesday evening and inspected Company D, Tenth separate battalion, Wisconsin National Guard, Capt. Scott, commander.

Sixty men responded to roll call and spent the greater part of two hours in drilling under the direction of its officers and under the careful scrutiny of Gen. King. Upon the conclusion of the drill Gen. King complimented the members of the company upon the excellent work done, which is the highest praise for the commanding officers who made this possible by constant hard work and with the right kind of material, which certainly is present in the roster of Company D as it now stands.

Gen. King and Capt. Ernest Scott of Company D saw service together in the Philippines, and spent some time in exchanging reminiscences of their campaign for Uncle Sam in that far-away land.

Gen. King left Wednesday for Superior, where he inspected Company I that evening.

LOCATED GREAT COPPER MINES

Edwin Hulburt, Discoverer of Calumet & Hecla, Is Still Living.

Calumet, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Residing with his daughter in Rome, Edwin J. Hulbert has the distinction of being not only the discoverer of the famous Calumet & Hecla copper mines, which have paid $110,000,000 in dividends, a record that is without a parallel in the world's history of mining, but of being the first white person born on Lake Superior and the oldest living pioneer of the region.

He was born at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, April 30, 1829, and was the son of John Hulbert, who had located there in 1813 as sutler to the garrison. His mother was a sister of Henry R. Schoolcraft, the famous geologist, explorer and etymologist. In the course of time Edwin Hulbert removed from the Soo and became mining engineer at the old Cliff copper mine at eEgle River on the Keweenaw peninsula. In 1853 he found specimens of copper rock that had become detached from the now celebrated Calumet conglomerate lode. He recognized the wonderful richness of the vein and set out in search of the formation. For years, however, the lode kept its secrecy and defied all known methods of exploration. Mr. Hulbert expended a large amount of money in the invention and manufacture of specially designed exploring instruments, which he now has in his possession at his home in Italy.

After years of study, self-sacrifice and expenditure of funds he decided the time for action had come, and he purchased from the government at $1.25 per acre the land on which the Calumet & Hecla mine now exists. This was in 1860. Mr. Hulbert sent his brother, John, and his trusted explorer, Capt. Amos Scott, to open the lode. The men located the place named in the instructions and found it a piece of flat wet ground, where there was no evidence of a mound uplift or float rock. Capt. Scott was dubious regarding the outlook. Nevertheless they began work at the spot directed and within a short time the operations had resulted in the opening of what has long since been the No. 4 shaft of the Calumet mine. Capt. Scott died years ago, and John Hulbert passed away recently at Detroit. Edwin Hulbert is an invalid. His mine long ago passed from his possession, but it is seen to by the interests now in control of the property that he shall never want.

JUMPS ON ROCK TRAIN.

Calumet Drill Boy Is Crushed, Leg Being Broken.

Calumet, Mich., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A drill boy named Engstrom, who resides with his widowed mother on the C. & H. location, jumped on the rear car of a rock train coming out of No. 5 shaft Wednesday morning, and on approaching the Superior engine house, was caught by an obstruction, badly squeezed and brushed off the car.

When picked up it was found that he had sustained a broken leg and other injuries. He was removed to the C. & H. hospital. Engstrom is 17 years old and has a brother employed on the Hecla & Torch Lake road.

JUNIOR CO-ED MISSING.

Miss Renning of Kasson, Minn., Disappears From University Haunts.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Frances Renning of Kasson, Minn., a junior at the state university here, mysteriously disappeared a week ago and the police of the Twin Cities have been asked by her father to help him to locate her.

Miss Renning failed in all of her examinations at the end of the first semester and was dropped from the roll of the university in the middle of February. She continued to visit the university campus for about a month, but did not write her parents of her failure. Her father came to Minneapolis yesterday to learn if she was sick and learned at her boarding house that she was not there. He also learned at the university that she boarded a Chicago-Great Western train last Monday, giving no hint of her destination.

CLAIMS HE WAS KILLED.

Sister of Otter Tail County Suicide Loath to Accept Story.

Fergus Falls, Minn., March 19.—A sister of Elmer Bangle, who committed suicide at his farm in Hobart some time ago, has been moving heaven and earth to have the Otter Tail county authorities reopen the case, with a view to proving that the young man did not commit suicide, but was murdered.

She wants his memory cleared of this charge and the family name protected. Miss Bangle lives at Barnesville, and seems to be a very determined and energetic young woman. She refuses to entertain the idea that her brother committed suicide, and has employed no less than three attorneys to help her to induce Coroner Haugen and County Attorney Thomyson to exhume the body and have it examined again.

Mr. Thompson and Dr. Haugen conferred with the attorney general. The doctor went armed with a skull and explained to the state's legal light the exact nature of the wound in Elmer Bangle's head, and proved so conclusively that the young man came to his death by suicide that it was agreed that any further investigation would be a mere waste of time and money. Senator Peterson and Attorney Marden of Barnesville, counsel for Miss Bangle, were also convinced, but it is said the young lady is still dissatisfied.

Judge Grindeland decided in favor of the county. The case was one of considerable interest, County Attorney Brattland represented the county, and C N. Broughton of Red Lake Falls, appeared for Linnihan.

CHARGED WITH PERJURY.

North Dakota Woman Alleged to Have Lied in Affidavit.

Dickinson, N. D., March 19.—Sofia Pavlicek, was arrested at her home, fourteen miles north of town, on the charge of perjury. A warrant for her arrest was sworn out at State's Attorney McBride's office and served on the woman by Deputy Sheriff George Brown. She was arraigned before Judge Folsom and upon pleading not guilty, her bail was fixed at $300. The date for the hearing has not yet been set.

Mrs. Pavlicek is accused of falsely swearing to an affidavit. The Racine Sattley Manufacturing company had obtained a default judgment against the woman on a promissory note and on Feb. 17 the woman took steps to vacate the judgment. In an affidavit she swore that when she signed the note it was on the promise of the plaintiff that her son, Joseph, who was mixed up in a deal, would not be criminally prosecuted. The plaintiffs deny that they ever promised her this.

HIBBING AND CLOQUET WILL AGAIN CONTEST.

Cloquet, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonight the high school basket ball team, which defeated Hibbing last Saturday evening on the local floor, will give Hibbing a chance to retrieve themselves on their own floor at Hibbing.

The local team had hoped to arrange a game for Saturday night with Eveleth, but was impossible for Eveleth to arrange to play on such short notice. Judging from the type of the games played this year among the many teams outside of Duluth and Superior, next year will see some excellent exhibitions, and an effort will probably be made to so arrange the games that a championship team can be picked from the comparative scores of the various teams.

Houghton—Tom Mullin, who for several years has been head bookkeeper for Gay & Sturgis in their Houghton office, has been made manager of the local branch, succeeding Joseph H. Hodgson. Western manager of the brokerage concern.

Hancock—The life-saving crew at the Portage Lake ship canal is expected to report about April 15 for the season's work, with the same crew as last year, consisting of Capt. Thomas McCormack, C. A. Tucker, John McDonald, John A. Alfsen, Archie Davidson, Fred Soloman, Paul Liedke, Colin Westrope and Ed Mersy.

Houghton—Four underground telephones have been installed in the Quincy mine by Manager Forbes and a crew of linemen of the Michigan State Telephone company.

Hancock—Parties coming to reside in Hancock have the greatest difficulty in finding suitable apartments or dwellings for rental, and in some instances it has been necessary to go to other towns of the county in order to find available houses.

Laurium—John Daniels and Charles Chynoweth left Tuesday for Globe, Ariz., to visit the S. & G. Mining company's property.

Brimley—Brimley is to have a school building to cost about $10,000. A public meeting was held at which the board was instructed to ask for bids and award the contract so that work may begin early in the spring.

Negaunee—George McEachron of Little Lake, who several months ago secured a patent on an animal trap, has now applied for a patent on an automatic flour sifter. Negaunee merchants who have examined Mr. McEachron's model say that the sifter is a big improvement over anything of the kind on the market.

Marquette—It is reported that the Pioneer Iron company expects to shut down the North Marquette furnace April 1, in order to make repairs on the stack. This means that no iron will be turned out for four or five weeks, as it will take about two weeks to cool down the furnace and an equal length of time to make the needed repairs.

Calumet—George Kelley, 10-year old son of John Kelley of Hubbell, is suffering with serious injuries received while playing about his home one day recently. With other youngsters he was jumping off of a shed. His leg was fractured below the knee and a small bone in one of his feet was broken.

ENGLAND'S BIG NAVY

British Estimates Ask for Four Dreadnoughts and Six Cruisers.

Want Power to Build Four Armored Vessels in 1910.

Washington, March 19.—The British naval estimates, in themselves, are always interesting, but they are doubly interesting when they are compared with those of the United States for the same year. It is particularly worth while to note what we pay for our navy, what England pays and what we get for our money and what England gets. The naval bill as passed by congress this year carries $136,-935,199.05. In return for this expenditure we receive in the way of new construction two Dreadnoughts, eight torpedo boat destroyers, one collier and four submarines. The British estimates provide for an appropriation of $175,713,500, with which will be built four Dreadnoughts, six protected cruisers, twenty destroyers and $5,000,000 worth of submarines.

In other words, England, at an outlay of about $40,000,000 more, receives in return twice as many destroyers and submarines as America and besides all this will have six protected cruisers to put up against one fleet collier.

In this connection, however, it must be remembered that estimates include other things beside construction works and it should not be forgotten that the prices of material and labor are much higher in this country than abroad.

The American bluejackets are better paid and better fed than the sailors of any nation on earth. The British estimates show an increase of close to $15,000,000 over the estimates of last year. They fully prove that it is the government's determination to keep pace with the other naval powers and that no halt is likely to be called in the international competition for superior naval armaments.

Four More Warships.

In addition to the four new Dreadnoughts, which are to be built as speedily as possible, the government seeks the power to start building, if necessary, in 1910 four additional large armored vessels. The type of these latter ships is not indicated in the estimate, though it is generally estimated that they are to be two battleships of the Dreadnought type and two armored cruisers. There is little doubt, however, that this part of the naval program will be dependent upon the progress made in Germany's battleship construction.

The statement of Reginald McKenna, first lord of the admiralty, naturally makes no reference to foreign powers and further light on the government's intention must be awaited until the estimates are discussed in parliament. An interesting point in the estimates is that the admiralty has under consideration the use of dirigible airships for naval experiments and construct an aerial vessel.

Under Mr. McKenan's program Great Britain should have by the end of 1911 fourteen vessels of the Dreadnought type against thirteen to then be completed by Germany.

Mr. McKenna's statement says that two of the new Dreadnoughts will be commenced in July and the other two in November, 1909. It also announces the coming absorption of the channel fleet into the home fleet, which already has been announced in these dispatches, which will place twenty-two fully manned battleships and fourteen fully manned armored cruisers in home waters together.

KEPT FROM THE BOY

Is News That He's Heir to Four Million Dollars.

Augusta, Ga., March 19.—Hunt Tilford Dickinson, the 9-year-old boy who was left $4,000,000 by his great uncle, Wesley Hunt Tilford, the Standard Oil magnate, does not know of his good fortune.

"I shall keep the news that he is heir to $4,000,000 from the boy as long as possible," said the boy's father today. "I am afraid it will spoil him. I don't want the child to grow up with the idea that he is rich and need not work."

Dickinson and his son are spending the winter here.

RADICAL CHANGES

Proposed in New Charter Devised for New York City.

Small Council Would Replace the Big Board of Aldermen.

Albany, N. Y., March 19.—The legislature has taken over the problem of providing New York city with that new charter which is to remodel municipal offices and governmental procedure, through the presentation to the senate and the assembly of the report of the charter commission.

Many radical changes are contemplated in the proposed charter. Centralization of power in the mayor and board of estimate and apportionment, and the abolition of the board of aldermen are two features of the charter, as drawn.

The commission has endeavored to separate the organic or structural matters of city government from the adjective or administrative details and for that reason has proposed a charter and an administrative code. Each of these will contain about 75,000 words and together will be about one-quarter the volume of the present charter of half a million words. It is proposed to make the charter of a permanent or abiding nature, while the administrative code will require frequent amendments, either for the adoption of improved methods or in response to successful administrative practice.

Mayor's Salary $25,000 a Year.

It is recommended that the mayor's salary be increased to $25,000 a year. The present term of four years is continued. There is doubt whether the president of the board of aldermen, in the event of vacancy in the mayor's office, would, under the existing charter, become mayor for the full term. This would be removed by a provision that an election to fill the vacancy be held at the annual election following its occurrence—the president of the council to be mayor ad interim.

The mayor would continue to appoint and at pleasure remove all heads of departments, certain commissioners and members of boards.

In regard to the board of estimate and apportionment the report says:

"A majority of the commission favors the continuance of a board of estimate and apportionment consisting of the mayor, the president of the council, the controller and a borough president to be elected from each borough. A marked change in the existing system would be made by the withdrawal from borough presidents of all administrative functions. The experiment of electing borough representatives as financial officers to vote appropriations, and as administrative officers to spend appropriations voted to themselves, was violative of two fundamental principles inherent in our appropriations, and as administrative officers to spend appropriations voted to themselves, was inherent in our system; namely, that appropriating officers should never be expending officers and that administrative officers should not be elective, but appointive, and be at all times clearly within the sphere of unitary executive responsibility. Relieved of administrative duties which now make their offices centers of political patronage, the borough presidents would be required to give their undivided time and attention to the work of the board, which should become and be the great financial executive committee of the city. To aid in insuring the election of borough presidents of high capacity and of conspicuous position in their respective communities, it is recommended that the salary be $10,000 a year.

Would Replace Aldermen.

In place of the board of aldermen there would be created a council of thirty-nine members, distributed as follows: Manhattan, 14; Brooklyn, 11; the Bronx, 6; Queens, 5, and Richmond, 3. The members would serve without pay, and in regard to this the commission says:

"The city's experience with an unpaid board of education has been so satisfactory that we recommend the abolition of the salary of councilmen in the belief that, if the office be removed from the field of small pecuniary political prizes it will no longer be utilized as an adjunct to the organized political machinery of parties. It should cease to allure municipally paid agents of local political leaders, but should attract those seriously interested in the solution of municipal problems. The commission favors return to the policy of requiring councilmen to be residents of the districts which they are elected to represent. Heads of departments continue to have seats in the council and to be entitled to a hearing, although not to a vote."

The president of the council would be the vice mayor and a member of the board of estimate and apportionment. It is recommended that his salary be $15,000 a year. The council would have a large ordinance making powers, but not control over the administrative business of the city or over the franchises. It would have the right to veto specific appropriations in the budget and make the tax levy. It would have co-ordinate powers with the legislators to amend those provisions of the code which are purely local.

With substantial unanimity the commission recommends the appointment of a superintendent of police from the uniformed force, who would be the executive head of the uniformed force. The police commissioner would have the power to remove the superintendent. It is proposed to raise the age limit for entering the police department to twenty-five years and the report declares that younger men cannot be intrusted with the performance of the serious duties of peace officers, and many of the administrative difficulties encountered in the department are due to the increasing number of immature policemen.

Conduct of Trials.

It is also recommended that the police commissioner appoint a deputy in the Borough of Brooklyn, and to a deputy commissioner who would be a lawyer of at least five years standing be confided the conduct of all trials. The commissioner would frame rules of practice for police trials, to be approved by the appellate division of the first department. Appeal from the decision of the trial commissioner would be direct to the appellate division, and not by certiorari, as is the present practice. The police commissioner would be required to prescribe uniform penalties so as to eliminate discrimination and favoritism.

In the chapter on general provisions regarding the duties of officers there are three provisions which will be of particular interest to politicians. They are:

First—Under the present law no member of the uniformed force of the police or fire departments can be nominated for an elective office, and failure to decline such nomination at the time and in the manner provided is declared to vacate his office. This principle would be extended to all persons holding appointive office or employment under the city government.

Second—The prohibition which forbids employes of certain departments of the city government to participate in associations organized for the purpose of contributing funds to affect legislation in their own behalf, or to promote such legislation, would be extended to apply to all officers and employes of the city.

Third—In aid of the civil service, and of its divorce from politics, an entirely new subdivision is submitted, which provides that, at the risk of forfeiture of his office, "No person in the classified civil service of the city shall be an officer or member of any political committee or a delegate or alternate to any political convention."

Other important changes proposed are:

The office of coriner to be abolished and medical examinations and autopsies to be performed under the direction of the board of health, and inquests to be conducted by city magistrates.

The department of street cleaning to be abolished and the entire control of the streets and sewers, and of street cleaning, to be in a department of street control, for which the mayor would be responsible.

In each borough there is to be a board of local improvement, made up of the members of the council from that borough. The limit of expenditure by these boards when the cost is to be assessed upon the property benefited to be increased to $5,000.

The board of sinking fund commissioners and the board of estimate and appointment to be identical and the sinking funds and the bonds and obligations of the city to each to be classified and defined. The charter would provide a method of calculating the debt limit and there would be a uniform system of accounting.

IS TOO BIG TO GO TO PRISON

None of Missouri Cells Will Hold Louis Decker.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 19.—Matt W. Hall, warden of the penitentiary, admits that he has a hard problem to discover some means of handling Louis Decker of St. Louis, ex-member of the house of delegates there, who was prosecuted and convicted of boodling and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years.

Decker, who is 5 feet and 10 inches in height, tipped the scales at 320 pounds, and he is by far the heaviest prisoner ever received at the penitentiary.

About the same time that Warden Hall discovered that it would be necessary to have a special suit of striped clothes made to order if Decker was to wear the prison uniform, Porter Gilvin, deputy warden, said he did not believe there was a bed in the prison large enough to accommodate Decker, and that in his opinion the latter would not be able to get through a good many of the cells that have narrow doors.

Upon measurement, this prediction proved quite true, and thus more trouble was loaded upon the warden. Finally the prison physician, Dr. Chastin, was called into counsel. He said he believed a place could be fixed up in the hospital building where Decker could sleep comfortably. The warden at once accepted the proposition, and thither Decker was taken. With the aid of some convicts, a bed was constructed and Decker has occupied the same ever since.

He had to wear his own clothes until a pair of trousers were taken out from the prison tailor shop sufficiently large to accommodate him. But the coat was found to be entirely too small, and he is yet wearing the one he brought here with him. An order, however, has been placed for a coat that will fit him, and by next week it is expected that he will be fitted out in full prison uniform.

"CORPSE" ASKED FOR DRINK.

French Woman's Narrow Escape From Burial.

Paris, March 19.—At Frejus, near Cannes, a couple of days ago, an octogenarian, named Mme. Cristin, was thought to have died in her sleep. The doctor who was called pronounced the woman to be dead, and arrangements were made for the funeral. This was to have taken place the following afternoon. An hour or so before the departure for the cemetery the dead woman startled the mourners by sitting up in her coffin and asking to be supplied with something to drink, as she was thirsty.

The spectators of this incident, save two, fled from the house. The two who preserved their presence of mind removed the "corpse" from her coffin and put her to bed, where she soon went soundly to sleep.

Mme. Cristin is quite well again and knows nothing of the narrow escape she has had of being buried alive. Very curiously, she has recounted to the members of the family that she dreamed she was dead and had been buried.

GRAND DUKE TO BE A MONK.

Cousin of the Czar Decides to Enter Monastery.

St. Petersburg, March 19.—The grand duke, Dimitri Constantinovitch, who, born forty-nine years ago, is the youngest son of Grand Duke Constantine, brother of the czar's grandfather, has formally decided to enter a monastery and become a monk.

He was at one time a great horse lover, and as president of the managing board of imperial studs he did much to encourage breeders to improve the national breed of Russian horses without foreign admixtures.

Grand Duchess Elizabeth, widow of Grand Duke Serglus (assassinated in Moscow, 1905), sister of the czarina and the most beautiful woman in the Russian imperial family, now lives in the religious home for women, which she established near Moscow, and dresses like a nun.

Washing dishes with soap is not only ineffective, but tiresome and needlessly old-fashioned.

Soap does not cleanse as thoroughly as it should; it overlooks lurking germs and leaves a greasy, "smelly" film.

GOLD DUST not only cuts grease and dirt with scarcely any rubbing, but is an antiseptic that goes deep after every minute and oft-times hidden impurity. It will sterilize your dishes and kitchen things, and make them wholesome and sanitary.

TAKES COLD EASILY

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Sure Cure

ADA L. MUSGRAVE

There are many people who take cold easily and are particularly sensitive to drafts. Upon the least exposure they take fresh colds. Such persons appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as it always affords them quick relief, and in that way they avoid the risk of contracting serious germ diseases such as pneumonia and consumption.

Splendid Medicine

"I would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for anything in the world," says Ada L. Musgrave of 1723 Franklin street, Denver, Colo. "I have found it to be a splendid medicine and a sure cure for coughs and colds. I seem to be very susceptible to colds, but a few doses of this remedy soon drives it out of my system. I have been glad to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to a number of friends and it has proven effectual to young and old alike."

Never Neglect a Bad Cold

Never allow a cold to run its course. Too often its course is towards pneumonia. The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This medicine liquifies the tough mucus and causes its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs, produces free expectoration and opens the secretions. A complete cure soon follows.

This medicine has been in use for almost forty years, which is time enough to thoroughly test its qualities, and no case of a cold having resulted in pneumonia, when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used, has ever been reported to the manufacturers, which leads them to believe it to be a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Price 25c, large size 50c.

MINNESOTA DELEGATION IS FOR IRON REDUCTION; CONFLICT OVER LUMBER

Congressmen Are United in Move for Lower Schedule.

Also Seek to Obtain Lower Tariff on Glass.

Great Variety of Opinions on Tariff in Senate.

Washington, March 19.—That there will be a great variety of opinions on the tariff bill when it reaches the senate is certain, according to expressions of senators in whose states are located the various industries chiefly affected by the changes of schedules proposed in the house bill.

Reductions on lumber schedules will be sturdily resisted by Senators Frye and Hale of Maine and by some of the senators from the Pacific coast and from the extreme Northwest. Senators from Minnesota and North and South Dakota, on the other hand, will make a strenuous effort to secure free lumber, instead of the mere reduction of the tariff as proposed by the house bill.

The proposed inheritance tax will be stoutly resisted, and senators will have an opportunity to vote upon an amendment providing for an income tax. Free coal and hides also will be resisted, and there is likely to be a strong fight against reductions in the various iron and steel schedules.

While the general trend of sentiment among senators favors an increase in some of the schedules, and while they generally believe that the house has made ample reductions to satisfy tariff reformers, at least one Republican senator, Mr. Cummins of Iowa, declares that the tariff should be made still lower and that he will do everything in his power to obtain further reductions.

Minnesotans United.

The entire Minnesota delegation has steadily taken a leading part in advocating a reduction in the iron and steel schedule, and in the procurement of free coal and free lumber, and the senators from that state will continue to advocate that course as well as to obtain a lower tariff on glass. It is declared that Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota have nothing to fear from free lumber, while they are anxious to obtain entrance into the Canadian market which now has a duty on lumber from the United States. The lumbermen of these states hope, by a removal of the duty on lumber, eventually to obtain a similar concession from the Canadian government, and they claim that the prices of their product would not be changed by a removal of the tariff.

Senator Frye of Maine today said that the removal of the duty from wood pulp would transfer trade to Canada, and stated that the 10,000 men now employed in the wood pulp and paper business in Maine would be placed in enforced idleness. These industries, he said, represents $70,000,000 in capital. With free hides, he believed the 40 per cent reduction in the boot and shoe schedule would be fairly acceptable.

"In a general way, the house bill is quite acceptable to Connecticut," said Senator Bulkeley. He did not think there would be serious objection of the inheritance tax. His state now imposes a tax on inheritances.

"As a whole, the house bill is a pretty good tariff measure," said Senator Cullom. "It ought to satisfy those who have been clamoring for a reductions. While a reduction has been made in the duty on farm machinery, the provisions of this bill will allow us to enter the markets of France, which have been closed.

"The inheritance tax is all right as a source of national revenue, although Illinois rigidly enforces a tax of that kind."

Senator Curtis said that Kansas would stand out for a duty on hides and stated that it would also want a substantial protection on its dried egg industry, the importance of which, he declared, was not generally realized.

Favors Free Lumber.

Senator McCumber declared himself in favor of free lumber and a tariff on hides, and insisted that the inheritance tax was all right.

Senator Bailey insisted that one of two things would have to occur in respect to the duty on hides and boots and shoes. If boots and shoes and other products of leather are protected, he believes there should be protection for hides. He would have no objection to free hides if the same principle of exemption could be adopted in respect to articles manufactured from leather goods. It is understood that Mr. Bailey will give the senate an opportunity to vote upon an amendment providing for an income tax, and he will maintain that if an income tax has any element of unconstitutionality, that objection will apply with still greater force to a tax on inheritance. If the income from real estate cannot be taxed, on the ground that it is direct taxation, he believes that a tax on the real estate itself is in greater violation of that principle.

Senator Aldrich, chairman of the committee on finance, is giving great attention to the tariff bill, and it is well known that he is fully convinced that many changes must be made in order to make the bill acceptable to the senate.

SHARP IS ACQUITTED

Coopers," said Foreman Burke, "but we find John Sharp not guilty."

"You will retire, gentlemen and reconsider further as to the other defendants. Is there any reason, Gen. McCarn, why John Sharp should not be discharged?"

"None, your honor."

"Mr. Sharp, you are discharged from custody, acquitted," said the court. Sheriff Sharp sat stolid and indifferent. Not so his wife. The foreman spoke in a low tone and she did not grasp the significance of it for a minute. When she did she grabbed her husband's left arm with both her hands and seemed about to break down. Her sister soothed her and others near them shook hands with them.

"We want the exact words of the jury recorded," said Judge Anderson, of the defense. "We understood the report was hopelessly tied."

"I do not recall the exact language, but I am told by the clerk and a newspaper man that those were the words. Let the clerk so record them."

"Is that a verdict, your honor?" asked Anderson.

"It is a verdict as far as John Sharp is concerned, but it certainly is not as far as D. B. and Robin Cooper are concerned. I sent the jury back for further consideration."

The defendant's counsel advised together a while and assented. Then Judge Hart adjourned court until 2 p. m.

Sharp, accompanied by his wife and sister-in-law, father and mother, the latter two reaching the jail after the verdict, went to the room he has occupied for several months in the jail and held a little reunion with the Coopers. With tears of disappointment in their eyes, the two daughters of Col. Cooper congratulated the and listened in return to the good wishes in their own behalf. As they left the courtroom, Reed Sharp, the youngest brother of John Sharp, received the congratulations of friends and to all he remarked: "This is not the end of this case."

TRAPPERS TO MAKE MONEY

Fur-Bearing Animals Are Plentiful in the County This Season.

Bounty on Seven Wolves Collected From County Auditor.

John Burnside appeared at the county jail this morning to claim one wolf bounty for himself and six others for trappers in the northern part of the county. John Lassila is credited with two wolves, James Bosher with two and James Grey with two. With the exception of Lasilla, the men are Indians.

"Trapping is good in St. Louis county this winter, and all of the trappers will make money," said Burnside. "It is easy to track the animals through the deep snow and they are compelled to do considerable roaming in order to get food, as the snow is deep. There are a large number of trappers out in the northern part of the county, and they will come out at the end of the season with a good stock of furs and a few wolf bounties to collect.

"I know one man who has eleven lynx skins and sixty-eight mink skins. Another man I know has nineteen lynx skins. The skin of a lynx is worth $25, so with twenty or so lynx bagged no trapper need worry over the financial results of his season's operations.

"Animals of all kinds are plentiful. There are a few beaver and otter to be trapped and lynx and mink are plentiful. The wolves are roaming in big packs and they are easy prey for a trapper, either in hunting or trapping. I am satisfied with my winter's work, and all of the trappers I have met feel the same way about it."

HANGS MAN TO TELEGRAPH POLE

A West Virginia Mob Lynches Attacker of Police Chief.

Elkins, W. Va., March 19.—Joseph W. Brown, said to have been an ex-convict, who last evening shot and seriously wounded Chief of Police Scott White at Whitmer, near here, was taken from a jail by a crowd of men at 1:30 this morning and lynched. Brown was hanged upon a telegraph pole.

Last evening White, who is a son of Mayor Washington White of Whitmer, remonstrated with Brown for using abusive language. Brown drew a revolver and shot White, and then took to the mountains. He was followed by a posse, captured and placed in jail. Early today it seemed that the whole town was aroused, and Brown was quietly taken from the jail and hanged. The body was later cut down.

Chief of Police White is reported this afternoon to be doing well at the hospital, and it is expected he will recover.

RANKS OF THE STRIKERS GROW

Paris, March 19.—There is no material change this morning in the situation brought about by the strike of the government telegraph and post-office employes, excepting the fact that the number of strikers has been largely increased over night.

The government, with the aid of the military telegraphers and soldiers acting as letter carriers, has been successful in securing a semblance of resumption in all branches of the service.

Squads of soldiers have been detailed to act as railroad mail clerks and in all about 4,000 of the military are at work.

In the provinces the strike is constantly securing new adherents and in many large centers it is complete.

The strike leaders claim that victory is within their grasp.

Business houses are using special messenger service to maintain communication with the provinces as well as to points outside France.

The government has prepared a bill to extend the time on financial papers until the state services are again normal.

Roy Morse Tells of Working for Senator Stephenson.

J. R. Jones of Racine Says That He Received $783.50.

Madison, Wis., March 19.—Assemblyman Hambrecht, member of the senatorial primary investigation committee today read a letter written by Assistant Attorney General A. C. Titus in July, 1906, in which that official declared that a person signing nomination papers of a candidate was not morally bound to vote for such candidate. The question came up in the examination of Attorney Charles French, who signed Cook's nominating papers and later voted and worked for Stephenson.

J. R. Jones of Racine, the first witness today, said he received $783.50 from the Stephenson campaign fund. Witness could not remember all the details, but he received $150 for himself.

Roy Morse of Fond du Lac, the next witness said he received $700 from the Stephenson fund. He told Earle Morgan, Stephenson's son-in-law, and Henry Overbeck that he did not care to take charge of Fond du Lac county, that he was too busy and that if they wanted him he would have to be paid $25 a day, just what his clients paid him.

LONG THIRST OF CLUB MEMBERS IN DULUTH MAY SOON BE QUENCHED

In the event of the club bill, recently passed by the house, being concurred in by the senate, thus permitting duly incorporated clubs to serve spirituous liquors without the payment of a regular saloon license, which they are required to do at the present time under the recent ruling of the state supreme court, it is probable that the Duluth clubs will reopen their buffets.

When the ruling of the supreme court went into effect, all of the Duluth clubs abandoned their buffets. Inquiry made today, brought out the statement that in all probability the Kitchi Gammi club would reopen its buffet, should the club be permitted to operate a thirst quenching department without the payment of a heavy license fee.

Secretary Eva of the Commercial club did not know what action that organization would take, in the event of the senate concurring in the action of the house.

At the Northland Country club it was not definitely known what action the board of directors would take, should the club bill become a law, but the general opinion seems to be that the buffet would be reopened.

Walter Whitehead was the only member of the Douglas colored club present when The Herald called up that organization. Walter never drinks, when in training, so that may account for his apparent indifference to the question as to whether the buffet would be installed. However, it is quite generally believed that the colored club, like the more aristocratic clubs of the city, will probably open its buffet if the club bill becomes a law.

"PETRIFIED ICE" PROVED TO BE ONLY A NEW KIND OF FLOORING

An extremely curious crowd of more than a hundred people gathered in front of the Lyceum building this morning to witness the breaking up of some hard substance that resembled frozen milk.

"There's an example of this country," exclaimed one interested individual. "That's ice, just as sure as anything, as it has been frozen solid in that barrel for such a long time that it has become petrified."

"Get out, your transom's open," was the merry comeback of another individual, as he gave the person of the first part a contemptuous look.

As a matter of fact, many of the people in the crowd really did think that the hard, white, glistening material was ice. It looked just like ice that had been frozen for many years.

It was some new patent flooring preparation. The stuff is poured into barrels in liquid form. It gets hard, and to use it, it is necessary to break the barrel into bits, pour the stuff on some hard surface and break it into small bits. This was what the workmen were doing when the crowd gathered around them.

The substance becomes harder than granite when it congeals. When it is broken into small bits it is put into a vessel and a solution poured over it. It then assumes the form of a paste. In this form it is poured over the floor.

BREACH NOT A WIDE ONE

Believed That Engineers and Vessel Owners Will Agree.

Engineers Claim That Not More Than 175 Men Have Signed.

From the office of the marine engineers, in the Manhattan building, comes a reply to the statement issued from the office of G. A. Tomlinson yesterday.

According to the statement made by an officer of the Engineer's union, some of the men whose names appeared upon the list as having signed up with the Tomlinson company, which was published in The Herald yesterday, have returned their contracts unsigned.

This officer stated that he knew personally of more than one of the engineers whose names were upon the Tomlinson list, who have returned their contracts unsigned. Mr. Tomlinson, however, in giving out the list, stated definitely that every man on the list had signed, and that he had two applications on file for the one vacancy in his fleet.

According to the bulletins and information in the hands of the local engineers' office, there are not more than 175 marine engineers signed up at the present time. These men, it is claimed by the local marine engineers, are mostly in the employ of the Pittsburg Steamship company.

They say that President Coulby of the Pittsburg company has offered the marine engineers better terms than the other vessel companies, with the hope that a large number of engineers will sign. That is, the engineers claim, the reason why most of the men who have signed, have signed with the Pittsburg company.

The engineers claim that it requires about 1,000 engineers to operate the vessels of the Great Lakes. They claim that there are not more than 170 or 175 engineers signed up at the present time.

As a matter of fact, there is not a very wide difference of opinion between the vessel owners and the marine engineers. The latter claim that they have no fight with the vessel owners. There is only a small clause in their contracts that stands in the way of all of the men signing for the season. The question of pay does not enter into the affair.

The marine engineers, or least many of them, are of the opinion that the boats will not go out early this season, in this view, they agree with many of the vessel owners. Some of the engineers are of the opinion that when the time comes for the boats to go out, the objectionable clause in their contracts will not result in an open breach, but will be waived by the vessel owners, or revised in some manner agreeable to both employer and employe.

In discussing the Tomlinson list published in The Herald yesterday, the engineers stated that the men signed by the Tomlinson company, were men who did not live here. It was stated that these men were from Detroit, Port Huron, Cleveland, and other lower lake ports.

Some of the engineers argue that the boats won't go out until late anyway, so there is no use in signing up early. They believe that the objectionable clause will not be enforced, when the opening of navigation really arrives.

ARRESTED FOR THRASHING GIRL

High School Principal Whipped Miss Aged 19 Years.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 19.—Prof. Clayton Keller, principal of the high school at Laceyville, near here, was arrested today, charged with thrashing Miss Ruth Russell, a 19-year-old girl pupil, at his school. The charge was made by Judson Russell, father of the girl, and Kellar gave bail. The case comes up at the April term of criminal court, the technical charge being assault and battery. It is alleged that Miss Russell, in a spirit of playfulness, poured some water on Prof. Kellar's chair, and when he sat down, there was a splash, and he arose in considerable discomfort. It is further alleged that when he found out who was guilty, he thrashed the girl, who is almost as big as he, until there were black and blue marks upon her body.

VETOED BY THE MAYOR

He Does Not Approve of Changes in Building Ordinance.

Also Wants Railroad to Pay for Bridge Approach.

There are one or two features about the amendment to the building ordinance, adopted by the council last Monday evening, which do not meet with Mayor Haven's approval. Before attaching his signature to the measure he will ask the aldermen to vote in favor of a change.

The amendment is designed to change the construction of the Commercial club building at the corner of Fourth avenue west and First street. The mayor says that with the measure worded as it is at present, a three-story building covering a whole block might be built, and have no more than one fire escape and one standpipe. He asks that this be changed, and that provision be made for a proper number of fire escapes. He also insists that elevator doors in buildings be so arranged that they cannot be opened from the outside, except by the operators.

Another resolution adopted by the council Monday evening that did not meet with the approval of Mayor Haven was one directing the board of public works to proceed with the repair work on the Sixth avenue west viaduct. Under the council resolution, the railroad would have to pay only a part of the cost of repairing the viaduct, where the city attorney says it should pay the full cost. The entire cost of repairing the Sixth avenue viaduct will amount to $3,000 or more, and it is claimed that the railroad company can be made to stand the entire cost of the work, as was the case when the Lake avenue viaduct was repaired. Mayor Haven vetoed the resolution and the council will be so notified next Monday night. Probably the railroad company will be instructed to go ahead with the repairs, and if it fails to do so, the work will be performed by the city and the expense charged up to the railroad.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

FIELD MEET IS WON BY OXFORD

Three Rhodes Scholars From United States Distinguish Themselves.

London, March 19.—The Oxford-Cambridge field sports at Queens' club today, were won by the former university, six events to four.

It had been anticipated that G. E. Putnam, a Rhodes scholar from Kansas would win the hammer throw for Oxford, but he had to be contented with second place. Watson of Cambridge, beat all varsity records, with a record of 148 feet 10 inches. Putnam was second with 143 feet 10 inches and D. G. Herring, a Rhodes scholar from Princeton, was third, with 122 feet.

The hundred-yards dash was won by L. C. Hull of Michigan, a Rhodes scholar. The time was 10 2-5 seconds.

Hull scored another victory for Oxford and the American Rhodes scholars, by winning the quarter-mile run. His time was 50 3-5 seconds.

PAYS TO BE GOOD BALL PLAYER

Comiskey Will Offer Fielder Jones Princely Salary.

Chicago, March 19.—A special dispatch to the Daily News from Los Angeles today, states that President Comiskey will offer Fielder Jones a salary "larger than that given any member of President Taft's cabinet," to manage the Chicago American league club this season. Jones is heavily interested in timber lands on the Pacific coast, and has named $20,000 as the price of his services, not with any idea that he will get it, but as an intimation that his business interests are paramount. The dispatch states that the offer will be made to Jones when the club starts on its return trip by way of Portland, Or., where Jones make his headquarters.

CHIEF JUSTICE'S GOLF STROKE.

London Standard: The lord chief justice, now on circuit at Birmingham, had a curious experience while playing golf over the Edgbaston course with Walter Whiting, the local professional. At the second hole his lordship drove into a bunker, the ball lying badly under the bank. Taking his niblick, he hit hard. The ball jumped into the air and dropped into his right hand jacket pocket.

QUIET DAYS FOR THE POLICE

Harmless Vagrants and Beggars About Only Prisoners Arraigned.

Drunks, vagrants, and beggars are about the only class of people to be arraigned in police court these days, and there are not very many of them.

This morning, John McDonald pleaded guilty to begging on the street, and was fined $15 and costs or twenty days in jail. Being without funds, he had to take the jail sentence.

Two crippled vagrants, walking with the aid of crutches, lined up with the grist. One of them, Emil Lundermo, was allowed to go under suspended sentence, provided he left town today. The other, Peter Stone, was given twenty days in jail. Louis Nelson, also arrested on a vagrancy charge, was also sentenced to twenty days in jail.

Emerson was a notable sufferer from the vagaries of memory. His biographer relates that he met him one day in Boston, apparently at a loss for something, and asked him where he was going. "To dine," said Emerson, "with a very old and dear friend. I know where she lives, but I hope she won't ask me her name," and then he proceeded to describe her as "the mother of the wife of the young man—the tall man—who speaks so well," and so on, until his interlocutor guessed to whom he was referring.

To Our Trade:

We have been told by many of our patrons that other jewelers here are more worried about our Clearance Sale than some mine owners are over the tonnage tax. They predict all kinds of trouble if we do not quit demoralizing the jewelry trade, as they say jewelry stores have got to have a good profit, and here we are almost giving things away, when business is quiet and prices should be put up instead of down. But, dear people, let them worry—we are not. We planned this sale weeks ago and are carrying it out just as planned. We expected to take a big loss to quickly reduce our stocks, and we are doing it willingly. This store differs from the "soak 'em" ones that are now doing so much complaining, as we believe in many transactions with small profits, and as our trade increases our per cent of profit will decrease. We did a fine business in 1907—a larger one in 1908—and we will break all records this year.

TROUBLES OF A SCHOOL TEACHER

Miss Katherine Macbeth Outlines Difficulties of Small Salaries.

The troubles a teacher in the public schools has in trying to make her needs fit her salary were fully described last evening by Miss Katherine Macbeth of Proctor, at the meeting of the Literary Society of the Westminster Presbyterian Christian Endeavor society, at the home of Mrs. Elvina McClelland, 615 North Fifty-ninth avenue west.

Miss Macbeth's talk was most interesting. She stated that even with the most careful economy, the teacher on an ordinary salary has a hard time making ends meet. For, Miss Macbeth explained, outside of paying board, rent and buying necessary clothes, there are any number of subscriptions for charities and churches, dues to clubs and societies, the occasional cost of flowers for a sick pupil, and little gifts at Christmas, all of which teachers are expected to take out of a small salary. Miss Macbeth told of one case where a young teacher whom she knew saved for several months and managed to get ahead $30, when she was required to pay $16.50 to the teachers' agency through which she secured her position.

Charles I. Towner spoke strongly in favor of higher salaries for teachers in the public schools, and several others present indorsed his sentiments on the subject.

The talks of the evening were interspersed with several musical numbers.

DULUTH IN THE EYE OF THE EAST

J. J. Frey Returns From Attending President Taft's Inauguration.

"People in the East are fast waking up to the great possibilities in Duluth" said J. J. Frey, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip in the East. "They are beginning to see what great prospects this city has ahead of it."

Mr. Frey said that nearly every one with whom he talked while away seemed to be familiar with Duluth and its great advantages.

He went to Washington to witness the inauguration and was among the thousands who sat out in the storm for hours waiting for William H. Taft to appear, only to be disappointed. Mr. Frey says that on Thursday morning March 4, the streets of Washington were covered with fully three inches of slush and more was falling all the time. Umbrellas and overshoes went like hot cakes, until some stores didn't have any left in stock.

In New York Mr. Frey called on Charles A. Towne and talked over former Duluth days with him for a short time. Mr. Frey says that Mr. Towne is of the firm of Maxwell, Towne & Spellman, attorneys, and that they have magnificent offices in a large building near Wall street.

Before returning home Mr. Frey visited Boston. He returned to Duluth by way of Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Chicago.

COPPER STOCKS LITTLE CHANGED

The Market Is Quiet and Shows But Slight Deviation.

The copper stock market was quiet today and values showed slight deviation from yesterday's quotations. North Butte opened at $67.25, advanced to $68, declined to $67.37½ and closed at $67.25 bid and $67.50 asked. Amalgamated opened at $68.12½, went to $69, declined to $68.25 and closed at $68.12½ bid and $68.25 asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $9.37½, advanced to $9.50, declined to $9.12½ and closed at $9.25 bid and $9.37½ asked. Butte Coalition opened at $22.50, advanced to $22.87½, declined to $22.62½ and closed at $22.50 bid and $22.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $100 and closed at $99.87½ bid and $100 asked. Giroux opened at $8.37½, declined to $8.25 and closed at $8.37½ bid and $8.50 asked. Anaconda opened at $41, advanced to $41.37½, declined to $40.87½ and closed at $40.87½ bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13.25 and $13 and closed at $13.25 bid and $13.50 asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $3.75 and closed at $3.62½ bid and $3.75 asked. National at 57 and 54 cents and closed at 52 cents bid and 54 cents asked and Cactus at $1.50 and closed at $1.37½ bid and $1.50 asked.

Butte & Superior was inactive and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked. Calumet & Sonora at $14 asked. Globe at $5 bid and $5.12½ asked, Red Warrior at $2.12½ bid and $2.37½ asked. Mowitza at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked, Carman at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked, Savanna at $2 bid and $2.25 asked, Butte-Ballaklava at $16 bid and $16.25 asked. Copper Queen of Idaho at $1.50 bid and $1.75 asked, Cliff at $1.50 bid and $1.75 asked, and Chief Consolidated at 94 cents bid and 99 cents asked.

Black Mountain sold at $1.12½ and $1, and closed at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Piper, Johnson & Case, the brokers, in their latest market letter have a lot to say about Giroux Consolidated, a copper stock which has recently come into the local limelight through the fact that Thomas F. Cole and the interests allied with him have taken over the property. Among other things, the letter says:

"It is impossible in a few words to describe a mining property as extensive as the Giroux, but a fair idea of the prospects of the company may be briefly set forth. In the first place the success of any mining proposition must depend largely upon three things.

"First—The supply of raw material, that is, the ore possible to be extracted and its character as regards concentration and smelting.

"Second—Sufficient capital for developing and carrying on the business of the company.

"Lastly, and probably the most important of all, an aggressive, capable and thoroughly competent management.

"We believe that there are few companies now in the field of copper mining in which these three requirements are so nearly furnished as in Giroux."

INDICTMENTS CHARGE WOMAN WITH MURDER.

Cambridge, Mass., March 19.—Four indictments, each charging murder in the first degree, against Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville, have been returned by the Middlesex county grand jury. GILBERT IS NOT INCORPORATED

Supreme Court Rules Against Mesaba Range Village's Status.

St Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an action brought by the state of Minnesota to test the validity of the incorporation of the village of Gilbert, on the Mesaba range, the supreme court of the state has given judgment that "upon the admitted facts the village was not incorporated in accordance with the law," and a writ of ouster is ordered to be issued.

The alleged attempt to incorporate the village was begun in 1908. The platted section consists of eighty acres and the unplatted of 2,160 acres of wild, unimproved and uninhabited land, was included in the incorporation. It is found that the village reached out too far in the effort to include the Hobart and Labelle mines. The platted portion has a population of only ninety-eight persons. A total indebtedness of $6,000 has been incurred.

Justice Lewis, in writing the opinion, says:

"It was never designed that remote territory, having no natural connection with the village and no adaptibility to village purposes, should be included. An amendment to the law emphasizes the principle that outside unplatted territory cannot be included in a village unless it is so situated as to be subject to village government."

ONE TOURIST FOUND DEAD, ANOTHER DYING.

Fernie, B. C., March 19.—Two English tourists were found in a shack near the Great Northern station yesetrday, one dead and the other dying. The first appeared to have been dead for two days. The other is demented and can give no account of himself. By labels on their baggage they appeared to have left England in February last by the Empress of Britain.

TWO PIERS AND BOAT REPORTED IN FLAMES.

New York, March 19.—The two piers of the Lehigh Valley railroad, in Jersey City, are on fire, and it is reported that the steamer Eastwood is also in flames. The Eastwood arrived recently from Cardinas and Matteznas.

TRANSPORT REPORTED TO HAVE GONE ASHORE.

Bellingham, Wash., March 19.—Fragments of a wireless message were picked up here this forenoon, indicating that a United States transport had gone ashore near the entrance to Puget sound, and that several lives were lost. No confirmation can be secured.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

St. Paul, Minn., March 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Decisions rendered by the supreme court today are as follows:

Alice Campbell, respondent, vs. the Duluth & Northwestern Railroad company, appellant, reversed and a new trial ordered. From St. Louis county.

Corrin D. Kinney, appellant, vs. Emil Munch, et al, respondents, reversed. From Pine county.

Henry T. Simons, appellant, vs. Emil Munch, et al, respondents, affirmed. From Pine county.

WHALE STOLE THEIR LINE.

San Francisco Chronicle: Up among the torn bergs of the Arctic a monster whale is cruising about with a harpoon embedded in his thick back and something less than half a mile of stout hempen rope trailing after him.

The crew of the steam whaler Thrasher, which returned Sunday night from an eight months' cruise in the icy North, declare that "Mister Whale got all that was coming to him."

"He got away from us," muttered the mate, spitting viciously into the scuppers, "but we will get him next season. It was good rope we used, and he'll get tangled up on something, so we will be able to make to the good when we get back there.

"He was a bad one, though. You see Silva, the boat steerer, slung the hook into him when we were in open water between two big bergs. Off he goes with the stick in his back, and the rope went out like a man tumbling from the left. He ducked and dived until one tub of new rope was gone, and he did the same with another. He was making for the nearest floe, and when he reached it he spit a lot of water into the air and took a deep dive. The edge of the ice cut the rope like a knife, and he was off for good, with 2,000 feet of the Thrasher's line and a good harpoon with him."

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Northwestern Markets Pay No Attention to Bullish Influences.

Flax Has a Quiet Session and Closes Easier in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 19.—Wheat was somewhat irregular today. Chicago May and the Southwestern markets were firm at the close, but Duluth and Minneapolis were easier, receipts in the Northwest furnishing an irrepressible bearish influence. Wheat had been coming to market at a rapid rate in Duluth and Minneapolis. There was some export demand for Manitoba and durum wheat.

The Modern Miller was about a stand-off. It says:

"Reports of winter killing and unfavorable appearance of the winter wheat plant come from some sections of the soft winter wheat states, a low average condition being reported by Southern Illinois millers. Otherwise advices are favorable, especially in the hard winter wheat territory, the wet March having been of benefit to the winter wheat crop at large."

Argentine shipments of wheat were bullish, as anticipated. They were 1,848,000 bu, against 5,096,000 bu. last week and 6,752,00 bu. a year ago.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d higher to ½d lower. Antwerp ⅝c higher and Budapest 1¼c lower.

The May option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ¼c higher in Chicago, a shade lower in Minneapolis, ⅛c higher in New York, ⅝@½c higher in St. Louis and Kansas City, and ⅝c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ⅛c lower in Chicago, ¼c lower in Minneapolis, ⅛c higher in New York, a shade lower in St. Louis, ⅛@¼c lower in Kansas City, and ⅛@⅜c lower in Winnipeg.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Chicago, and ⅛d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ¾c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—There was a steady opening in wheat with values unchanged to ⅛d lower and following the opening March advanced ¼d. On the whole, the market lacked any special influence, but the steady undertone was the result of the firmer American cables and the firmness of Argentine markets with a further decrease in the visible supply there with the shipments disappointing as compared with last week and last year. Following the opening the market eased off, the distant months losing ¼d to ⅜d on the improved American outlook, and the liberal shipments from Australia. At midday the market was easier and unchanged to ½d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady and at the opening the market was unchanged and later advanced ½c for May, March being unquoted. Support was the result of the firmness of American offerings."

Car receipts at Duluth were 104 against 29 last year, and at Minneapolis 228, against 265 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 332, against 293 last year. Chicago received 58, against 16 last year. Winnipeg received 154 against 112 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 562,000 bu., last year 502,000 bu. Shipments 267,000 bu., last year 266,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 113,870 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 512,000 bu., last year 544,000 bu. Shipments 366,000 bu., last year 489,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 720,366 bu.

Wheat was active in Duluth, May wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.14⅛, advanced to $1.15⅝ and ranged between that and $1.14 during the first of the session, closing at $1.14¼, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.14⅜, advanced to $1.15⅛ and ranged between that and $1.14⅛ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.14⅜, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1c over May No. 1 northern. May wheat was dull and closed off. It opened unchanged at $1.53, and ranged between that and $1.61½ during the rest of the day, closing at $1.62⅝, a loss of ⅝c from yesterday. July flax closed ½c lower at $1.62. September flax sold at $1.38@1.39⅜ and closed unchanged at $1.39½. October flax sold at $1.35¼ and closed ½c lower at $1.35.

Barley closed ½c lower and other course grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Cables and Increased Northwest Receipts Impart Weak Tone.

Chicago, March 19.—Weak cables and increased receipts in the Northwest, imparted a weak tone to the wheat market at the opening today. Initial quotations being ½c to ½@⅝c lower than the previous close. Several prominent holders were moderate sellers during the early part of the day and buying was chiefly by shorts. May opened at $1.15⅞@1.16. sold up to $1.16⅝, and then dropped back again to $1.15⅞. July, which opened at $1.04@1.04¼, sold off to $1.03⅞.

Trade continued quiet throughout the day and prices fluctuated over a narrow range. The close was easy with May off ⅛@⅜c at $1.16, July was down ⅛@⅝c at $1.03⅞@1.04.

Wet weather in the corn belt offset the weakness of wheat and caused slight firmness in the corn market. Trading, however, was rather quiet. A leading long was a seller of May and this had a tendency to make pit traders, who are inclined to buy, to withhold such orders. Prices at the start were ⅛@¼c lower to ⅛@¼c higher. May being at 66⅜@66⅝c. After touching 66¾@66⅞c, May eased off again to 66⅝c.

Prices slumped quite sharply in the last half of the day on realizing, May declining to 66⅛c. The close was easy with May a shade lower at 66⅛c.

Oats were firm on moderate demand by commission houses. Pit traders were disposed to sell, but offerings were not large. May opened ⅛@¼c higher, at 51½@51⅝c and for a time held within the opening range.

An advance of 5c in live hogs prompted considerable buying of provisions, resulting in a firm market early in the day. Prices at the start were a shade lower to 10c higher.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Demand for Flax Strong, But Offerings Are Light.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 19.—Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 200,000 bu for the week. May opened at ½c below yesterday's closing and throughout the session the market was nervous. There was only a range of half a cent from the high to low point. May closed at $1.14½, the same as the opening. Minneapolis today received 228 cars, against 265; Duluth 104 against 29; Winnipeg 154, against 122. May opened $1.14¼; high, $1.14½; low, $1.13⅞; close, $1.14¼. July opened $1.15; high, $1.15@1.15⅛; low, $1.14⅝; close, $1.14⅞; cash wheat was in good demand. Local millers were more eager buyers than the country millers, but both were quite general buyers. Offerings were heavy and the market was active. No. 1 northern sold for 1¾@2¼c over May and No. 2 for ¼c under to ¼c over the May price. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.16; to arrive, $1.15¾@1.16; No. 2 northern, $1.14@1.14½; to arrive, $1.13¾@1.14 No 3 wheat, $1.10@1.12; No. 3 yellow corn, 61¾c. No3 white oats, 50½@51½. No. 2 rye, 73¾@74¾c.

Flax receipts, 14 cars today against 53; shipments, none. Demand was strong, but offerigs were too light to allow an active market. Prices were the same as Duluth May. Close, $1.62¾.

Barley receipts, 16 against 25; demand, although active, was not as strong as yesterday. Prices were ½c off for the top grades. Receipts were a little heavier. Close, 61½@63c.

Millstuffs shipments, 1,590; demand was strong and the market was very active. Shipments were about steady with yesterday and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, $23.00@23.50.

Flour was in only slow to fair demand, coming in small orders from domestic trade. Export news lacked feature. Shipments, 47,946 barrels. First patents, $5.55@5.65; second patents, $5.45@5.55; first clears, $4.40@4.50; second clears, $3.15@3.25.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Minneapolis puts were $1.13¾ and $1.13¾ bid and calls $1.14¾ and $1.14¾ bid.

Chicago May puts were $1.16⅜@⅝ and downs $1.15⅛, July ups were $1.04½ and $1.04⅝ and downs $1.03⅜@¼ and $1.03¼.

It is estimated that the stocks of wheat in store at Duluth will increase 600,000 bus. this week, and that the stocks of flax will increase 30,000 bus.

• • •

The Continent seems to be in the market for durum wheat and Manitoba in earnest. Ames-Brooks and other local exporters worked quantities of both varieties during the session today, as they have almost every day this week.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Started Narrow, Firmed Slightly, But Soon Became Easy.

Large Offerings of United States Steel Were a Feature.

New York, March 19.—Prices drifted sluggishly within a very narrow range on light opening dealings in stocks today. With the exception of a rise of 1¼ in St. Paul and ¾ in Tennessee Copper, there was no change recorded as great as ½

The stock market showed momentary strength as a result of an active demand for Rock Island and American Smelting. Free offerings of the active stocks, particularly Reading, caused the entire list to react sharply. The local traction stocks suffered from severe liquidation. At 11 o'clock the market was irregular, Northern Pacific rising to a point over yesterday's close.

The movement shaped more definitely upward with the extension of Northern Pacific's rise to 1⅝. There were scattered declines of some minor stocks. The tone was heavy and dull at noon. Bonds were irregular.

There was no effort made to move prices during the mid-session hour, the lists showing extreme dullness. Distillers' Securities declined 1⅜ and Erie first preferred declined 1.

The market closed easy and dull. The apathetic demand allowed prices to drop to the low level of the day. Some large offerings of United States Steel were a feature, the price yielding to below 44.

LITTE HOPE OF JUSTICE TO NORTHERN MINNESOTA AS TO REPRESENTATION

Slim Chance of the Passage of Reapportionment Bill.

Tonnage Tax Leaders in Plot to Prevent Its Enactment.

Fair Representation Would Deprive Them of Their Power.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—From present indications, Northern Minnesota's cup of bitterness is not yet full, even though the house has passed the tonnage tax bill, which plunders a needy part of the state because it is weak in the legislature, for the benefit of a richer portion of the state because it is powerful in the legislature, and which prejudices Duluth's opportunity to become one of the great steel manufacturing centers of the country.

The tonnage tax bill has yet to run the gauntlet of the senate, and there is a better chance of fair play in that body than there has ever been in the house.

But it is becoming painfully evident that there is absolutely no intention on the part of those in power in the legislature to grant fair play in the matter of legislative representation.

In other words, the general belief is that there is no chance for a reapportionment bill to pass, though the committees on reapportionment are do-

HADLEY MAY BE A JUDGE

Report Renewed Regarding the Governor of Missouri.

Would Leave Gmelich as the State's Chief Executive.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 20.—Renewal of a report that Herbert S. Hadley, governor of Missouri, is to resign in order to accept a federal judgeship is current here today. On authority of a Missouri congressman, whose identity is not revealed by his friends here, it is said President Taft has promised Senator Warner that Governor Hadley will be given the first vacancy that occurs on the federal bench in the West or Northwest. Governor Hadley's resultant resignation would make Jacob F. Gmelich, now lieutenant governor, chief executive of the state. He is a Republican and was declared elected only after a long contest in the legislature, and the recount of ballot by a special commission.

A report that Hadley was to resign and take a federal position was circulated in December, when the contest for lieutenant governorship was on. The rumor was promptly denied by the governor, who said that he had no present intentions of resigning.

The congressman responsible for the present renewal of the rumor asserts that the strictest secrecy has been enjoined upon him and thus far it is believed that the governor has not heard of the report.

LONGWORTH'S NAME ON CHECKS

Young Man Held as Forger by Cincinnati Police.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 20.—A young man who for six weeks has posed as the valet, chauffeur or intimate friend of the family of Congressman Nicholas Longworth, and who, on the strength of the story attempted to pass bad checks with Longworth's name signed, was arrested last night. He gave the name of Fred E. Pearce of Boston. The police believe Pearce, who they say also went under the name of Pearson, has passed bad checks in other cities.

HAYWARD DECLINES JOB OFFERED BY HITCHCOCK.

Nebraska City, Neb., March 20.—A telegram from Washington states that Judge William Hayward, who was tendered the position of first assistant postmaster general, has declined and will remain secretary of the National Republican committee.

TRYING TO FIND THE MURDERERS

Italian Police Chief Reports Activity in Petrosini Case.

Palermo, March 20.—Signor Geola, head of the local police, said today in an interview that the authorities are doing everything possible to apprehend the slayers of Lieut. Joseph Petrosini, head of the Italian bureau of the New York police department, who was killed in this city, March 12. Ample funds have been provided for this end.

New arrests are being made daily, but the details are being kept secret in order that the Mafia may have as little knowledge as possible of the direction of the researches.

SERVIA TO KEEP PEACE

Belgrade Report Says That the Nation Will Disarm.

Considers Attitude of the Powers to be Guarantee.

St. Peterburg, March 20.—The Belgrade correspondent of the bourse Gazette says in a dispatch that M. Milovanich, the foreign minister, told him today that Servia had accepted the advice of the powers to disarm.

Servia considers the action of the powers to be a guarantee, and she has no longer any reason to fear armed attack from any side.

War Cloud Dissolves.

Belgrade Servia, March 20.—The alarm over the possibility of war with Austria-Hungary is subsiding rapidly. The Russian minister here has had two long conferences with Foreign Minister Milovanovich, one last night and another this morning. No official information has been given out, but there is reason to believe a peaceful settlement of the controversy is now only a question of hours.

PARENTS OF KIDNAPED BOY ARE EAGER TO PAY $10,000 RANSOM ASKED

Money No Object; All Whitlas Want Is Child.

Father Hopes to Hear From the Abductors Soon.

Mother of Charlie Ross Interested in the Case.

Sharon, Pa., March 20.—It is confidently believed by the family of little William Whitla that some word will be received soon from his kidnapers. The lad's father is of the opinion the abductors are now safely ensconced in some retreat.

The fact that a small army of police has failed to locate any tangible trace of the boy and his captors after they had deserted the buggy at Warren, Ohio, has had a depressive effect upon the hopes of Mr. and Mrs. Whitla and their only desire now is to open negotiations with the kidnapers. From the attitude of the parents the probabilities are they will willingly pay

McCORMICK HELD AS INCOMPETENT

Wife of Harvester King's Son Wants Guardian Appointed.

Santa Barbara, Cal., March 20.—That Stanley McCormick, son of the harvester king, is incompetent to manage his affairs, was the allegation made by his wife in superior court in a petition to have a guardian appointed.

W. J. OLCOTT RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT OF MISSABE

W. J. OLCOTT,
Who Has Resigned From Presidency of Missabe Road.

William A. McGonagle Is Elected to Succeed Him.

No Official Announcement as to Mr. Cole's Successor.

More changes in the officers of the United States Steel corporation at the Head of the Lakes came this morning on the return of W. J. Olcott from the East.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning a meeting of the directors of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad was held in the Wolvin building, and Mr. Olcott tendered his resignation as president of the road. He still holds the office of vice president of the Oliver company.

The resignation was accepted, and William A. McGonagle, vice president and general manager of the road, was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Mr. Olcott. No action was taken toward filling Mr. McGonagle's place, and none will be for the present, it is said.

The retirement of Mr. Olcott from the presidency of the road would appear to confirm the report that he is to succeed Thomas F. Cole as president of the Oliver Mining company. Apparently this matter has not yet been definitely settled, however, or at least it is not ready to be officially announced, for Mr. Olcott was not prepared to make any statement regarding it, in answer to questions.

Although Mr. Cole had been intending to leave at once on a vacation trip and was very anxious to do so, out of courtesy to Mr. Olcott he consented to defer his trip for a few days, in order that Mr. Olcott might make a short trip to the East with his family. On Mr. Olcott's return, it is understood that some definite announcement will be made regarding a successor to Mr. Cole.

The resignation of Joseph B. Cotton,

SAFE BLOWERS MAKE GOOD HAUL

Get Several Thousand Dollars From an Iowa Bank.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 20.—Safe blowers dynamited the safe of the First National bank of Iwogine, Page county, during the night and took all the cash on hand.

Section hands on their way to work early this morning discovered that the bank had been robbed.

Several thousand dollars were taken.

GANGWAY COLLAPSES; THREE MEN ARE KILLED.

A piece of glass, half an inch long and nearly as wide, was found lodged behind the child's left eyeball.

STUNG? ASK INSURGENTS

They Grow Dubious Over Their House Rules Victory.

May be Harder Than Ever to Get Bills Through.

Washington, March 20.—Now that the smoke of battle has begun to disappear the Republican insurgents of the house are beginning to discern at what prices they won the rules victory at the beginning of the session. They are making a careful study of the Fitzgerald amendments to the rules to ascertain just what their effects will be.

The general feeling among the members is that it will be more difficult hereafter to get a bill through the house under unanimous consent. Instead of having only the speaker to satisfy, all the members, more or less, must be shown the wisdom of the legislation, probably unimportant to them or the public, but often of interest to specific localities. It is stated that the amendments will force votes next winter on such measures as anti-injunction bills, a more rigid federal regulation of interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors, a prohibition measure for the District of Columbia, and amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law, so as to exempt labor unions from its operations.

Records for attention to senatorial work played an important part in the filling of senate committee vacancies

JURY DISMISSED, DUE TO VIEWS

Members Are Prejudiced Against Capital Punishment.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—The present criminal court jury is to be dismissed because the county prosecutor is informed that several members of it are prejudiced against capital punishment and a new venire has been ordered by Judge Pritchard in preparation for the "murder calendar" which is to be opened next week.

The authorities are making every effort to put an end to a chain of murders. There are fifteen prisoners now in "murderers row" in the jail. Their trials are to be rushed and the city and county officials hope that in several cases the death sentence shall be quickly pronounced and executed, so that "a murder a day," which is now a street phrase in this city, will pass away.

COOPERS ARE GUILTY OF SECOND DEGREE MURDER: ARE GIVEN TWENTY YEARS

Slayers of Former Senator Carmack Released on Bail.

Their Counsel Will Try to Obtain a New Trial.

Jury, Held to Duty by the Judge, Finally Agrees.

Nashville, Tenn., March 20.—Guilty of murder in the second degree, with twenty years' imprisonment as the penalty, is the verdict of the jury returned this morning in the case against Col. Duncan B. Cooper and his son, Robin Cooper, charged with the murder of ex-United States Senator E. W. Carmack. The jury yesterday acquitted John B. Sharp, a co-defendant.

Immediately the defense moved to set aside the verdict because of the verdict of disagreement yesterday, and asked the court to declare it a mistrial. Judge Hart said he would listen to argument on this motion later. He then fixed the defendants' bond at $25,000 each, which amount was acceptable to both sides.

The verdict, coming as it did upon the heels of Foreman Burke's declaration yesterday "that we are hopelessly tied up as to the Coopers," was a decided surprise.

Defendants Are Calm.

The defendants took the verdict coolly, almost without emotion. Mrs. Burch and Mrs. Wilson, daughters of Col. Cooper, were brave and, aside from tearful eyes, restrained their emotions. Mrs. Burch sat with her arm around her brother Robin's shoul-

NO MISHAP TO SHERMAN

Stories of Accident to Vice President Are Denied.

He is at His Home in Utica in Usual Health.

Utica, N. Y., March 20.—Vice President Sherman is at his home in this city today and is in his usual health.

Secretary Gets Message.

Washington, March 20.—Harry E. Devendorf, secretary to Vice President Sherman, received a message shortly after 11 o'clock this morning asking about official stationary matters and making no mention of any indisposition. Word had been received at the vice president's office of widespread rumors that Mr. Sherman had met with an accident and this message was taken as an indication that the report was unfounded.

The message was from Mr. Sherman and was received with considerable relief in view of constant inquiries received at the vice president's office as the result of the reports which were generally circulated in Washington, New York and other cities.

QUEEN HAS FEVER, RESULT OF ACCIDENT IN QUAKE RELIEF WORK

Rome, March 20.—Queen Helena has received favorable reports of the work of succor being done by the American relief committee in the earthquake zone and Lieutenant Commander Belknap, the American naval attache at Rome, is the recipient of much praise for the thorough way in which he has organized the work.

The father of a destitute family in Calabria made an appeal direct to the queen. His story was investigated and found to be true. The queen communicated with Ambassador Griscom, who gave directions that the wants of the family be supplied. The queen herself packed a large trunk with articles of clothing for the applicant's wife and the expected baby and, together with the sum of $100, had her gift delivered through Mr. Griscom.

The queen is again suffering from fever from the broken rib sustained in her accident at Messina shortly after the earthquake. As a result she has been obliged to postpone the audiences arranged for a number of women, including several Americans.

BOAT CLUB IS NOW FULL

Membership Limit Is Reached and Several on Waiting List.

Sailing Captain Will be a New Officer This Season.

The Duluth Boat club now has a full membership, and there are thirty names on the waiting list.

The membership limit of 1,200 names was reached yesterday afternoon, when the board of directors elected 114 persons to membership. After this had been done, there were still thirty applications in the hands of the officers. Should any vacancies occur, members will be elected from those on the waiting list.

With the membership full and the addition of the sailing features by reason of the consolidation of the yacht club with the boat club, the last named organization has in prospect the most successful season in its history.

The directors yesterday also decided to make a change in the articles of incorporation to provide for a sailing captain, to be elected at the annual meeting of the club.

They further decided to change the time for the annual meeting from the second Tuesday in April to the second Tuesday in May.

LYCEUM—"The Girls From Berlin." (see notice below.)

"GIRLS FROM BERLIN."

"The Girls From Berlin," which opened at the Lyceum theater last evening, is called a musical comedy on the program, but it really is straight comedy with a few songs thrown in. The story of the play takes up so much time in the telling, that there isn't time for the amount of chorus work that usually goes with a musical comedy.

The story deals with the experiences of a German girl, Lola, who, in answer to an advertisement which appears in a Berlin paper, comes to America, and calls at the home of New York's leading attorney, to find that an uncle has died, leaving her $2,000,000. Her development from an uneducated but shrewd immigrant to the graduate of a girl's finishing school offers a good field for the play writer. There is a pretty love story running along with this development, and all ends happily.

Of course, Corinne, in the character of Lola, carries off the honors of the evening. She makes a quaint and interesting figure out of the German girl, and smiled her way into the favor of her audience. She had several songs, which were very well sung. In the last act, in response to persistent applause, she sang, "So Long Mary," from "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," the production in which Corinne last appeared in Duluth.

Hazel Carlton did some effective singing and dancing as Dollie Chorttle, and Stephen W. Scott was good as Lola's American lover. The other parts were satisfactorily filled. The performance will be repeated at the Lyceum this evening.

BEATEN, THROWN FROM A TRAIN

Victim of Robbers May be Paralyzed for Life.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 20.—A young man who last night was beaten, robbed and thrown from an eastbound Pennsylvania railroad train at Wilkinsburg, a suburb of this city, recovered partial consciousness at the Columbia hospital today and said he is J. D. Ryan, 25 years old, a graduate of Yale and resided on Lakeview avenue, Chicago.

The young man's condition is critical and according to physicians it is probable he will be paralyzed for life.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS IN ANNUAL SENIOR PLAY

DOROTHY OLCOTT.
As "Mrs. Halstead."

GLADYS CLARK.
Who Played "Hanna Barnes."

LEONARD McHUGH.
Who Played "Sammy."

JOHN QUINN,
Who Played "Abraham Barnes."

"The best ever" is what the audience always says as it annually files out of the assembly hall of the high school, following the yearly presentation of the senior play, and last evening's performance came up to the high standard demanded by Mr. Custance in the plays which he manages and presents. Other attractions may come to Duluth and receive scant consideration, but the senior play always plays to a crowded house, every available seat and much of the standing room being occupied.

"Diamonds and Hearts" was the name of the little three-act play presented last evening. It was more pretentious than many which have been undertaken in the past, and the members of the class who were wisely chosen for the various parts, did very well. The story of the play had to do with lost diamonds, a designing villian, a lovable heiress, and enough other people to work into the story. Virtue and true love triumphed at the end of the third act, of course, and everything was lovely.

Miss Cleo Fenton as the heiress and the young person whom all of the men wanted to marry, was entirely pleasing and Ruth Davis and Marjorie Shipherd as her sister and her friend were delightfully girlish and pleasing. Miss Dorothy Olcott as stepmother of the heiress, and mother of the villian played the character finely, having quite the air and manner of the grande dame.

John Quinn as "Bub" Barnes had an easy stage presence, and did some of the finest work of the evening in the part of the simple, honest farmer. Every minute of his work was enjoyed by the audience, Leonard McHugh furnished the comedy as Sammy, the page boy. Jack Hurdon was the hero lover, and Robert Ely was the nervous, uneasy, fortune hunter and villian. Harvard Rockwell made a wise looking attorney in the last act, and Roy Kent was the ferocious looking sheriff of St. Louis county.

The second act was in a country farm house, and the act opened with a meeting of the choir. The singing of the members and especially the directing of Prof. Thumpenspiel, commonly Erling Mostue, was irresistibly funny. The local hits showed the cunning hand of Mr. Custance, and these jokes on faculty and fellow pupils were received with roars of laughter, appealing especially to the students. The soloists were Myrna Pressnell, Myrtle Pierce, and Roger Woodbridge, and Miss Helen Hawkes as "Sis Hopkins" recited some amusing nonsense verses. Every member of the chorus helped to make this part of the evening's entertainment thoroughly enjoyable. The members of the class who appeared were: Madeline Miller, Marion Cunningham, Elizabeth Olcott, Frances Mooney, Mary Marvin, Helen Carr, Morrista Myers, Dorothy Gordon, George Ostergren, Gerhard Ringsred, Archie Glass, Dwight Larrowe, Donald Paddock, Oliver Greene, Gertrude Wellington, Marguerite Turner, Ethelwynn Phelps, Ada Patterson, Lawrence Jaques and Euril Wharton.

Mr. Custance, who for so many years capably conducted the class plays guided this year's production to its successful conclusion. The stage settings were particularly complete and satisfying in detail and the play went off without a perceptible hitch.

Overloading of Horses.

To the Editor of The Herald:

My attention has been called several times of late to the many articles in our Duluth papers in reference to the overloading of horses.

We must all admit that Duluth is a very poor place to lay down strict rules as to how much we may load on a team, on account of the different percentage of grades which we must encounter. I do not believe that the cause of all the trouble is the overloading of wagons, but the poor management of handling teams.

For instance, Thursday night at just about 6 o'clock, when crowds of people were wending their way home from work, a driver, who was holding the lines for the Stewart Transfer company in one of their double rigs, with a team of dark bay horses, was driving, or coming down First avenue west. The horses were not properly shod so as to prevent them from slipping on the slippery grade. The wagon, or dray, was not equipped with breaks at all. There was no load whatever in the rig, yet the poor horses had all that they could do to hold the rig back.

Now, look at the picture of this man coming down the hill, not trying to assist the poor horses, but whipping them into a trot and when they fell, which they frequently did, would apply the lash still more vigorously.

On both sides of the avenue for several blocks I could see men and women standing looking at this inhuman spectacle. All wanted to do something, but no one made any attempt. All that crowd needed was a leader, and I can assure this would-be driver that had some of those men had him in hand he would have been given a little dose of his own medicine.

Now, such acts make people think that wagons are overloaded, when as a matter of fact this is not the case. See that your horses are properly shod. See that they are fed well and in good condition, then give them a good steady driver and watch the effect of what they will move when asked to do so. Make laws that compel all horses to be properly shod, see that all wagons are equipped with breaks, etc., then arrest all drivers treating their horses in a cruel manner and I think that you will solve the problem of overloading teams. Respectfully,

J. H. DAVIS.

ATTALIA ON THE COLUMBIA

Irrigated orchard and vineyard land in the world-famous Walla Walla Valley, the original home of the red apple. More prizes were taken by this valley at the recent Spokane Apple Show than any other section exhibiting.

EXCURSION APRIL 6

Special Car. A Pleasant Trip. Free Fare to Buyers.

Attalia's future depends upon no mushroom boom. It is staple and fixed. Its future is assured to an absolute certainty, for it is situated at the junction of four railroads and on the beautiful Columbia river, a very large and navigable water, plied by large boats the year around. It has the rich volcanic ash soil and the deepest in Washington or adjacent territory, and is underlined with a subsoil that insures excellent natural drainage. It has an inexhaustible water supply by gravity through the Columbia canal, fourteen miles long, with everlasting concrete dam and headworks, pronounced by engineers as "one of the finest systems under operation." It has the longest growing season, maturing the crops from two weeks to a month earlier than any other district. CROPS—Exceptionally fine grapes (American and European), apples, pears, peaches, walnuts, cantaloupes, watermelons, celery, asparagus and berries, etc., grow luxuriantly, yielding returns of from $300 to $2,000 per acre annually. Two crops of strawberries and potatoes and five cuttings of alfalfa (8 to 12 tons to the acre) can be raised and all "THE FINEST on the MARKET." Poultry stock thrive amazingly. Attalia has an enviable climate. The Walla Walla climate is not excelled anywhere. The pure and perfect air is immediately noticeable as one arrives there. The many cures that have been effected from asthma, rheumatism and catarrhal troubles bespeak this ideal climate. It is marvelous to note the difference in people after they have lived in this climate for a year. The beautiful sunny days with a very comfortable winter and summer temperature, due to the famous Columbia Gap, and the leeward side of the Columbia river. Attalia does not have to reckon with drought, flood, cyclone, frosts, or with artificial fertilization, or with facilities for transportation to the extent of promise only, for we have three railroads now operating through our town; the fourth, the North Coast, is now building; and besides, an electric line is now under way, thus making for Attalia a quick market and most convenient travel.

It's America's Valley of the Nile

It has no gambling on the future. It has the climate, soil, waterway and railroads. It is surely preparing for wealth and home life that, after this wonderful soil has been subdued from its original state can no more be denied it than can its daily genial sunshine and balmy health-giving climate. I am just back from Attalia, after having taken out an excursion, and, extensive improvements are now being made by many of our buyers, and by the company. Booming is not the proper word to express the development that is now taking place and will soon take place in and about Attalia The country is simply growing by leaps and bounds. It is safe to say that no place in the great state of Washington or elsewhere is so active at this time as is Attalia on the Columbia.

Don't Wait—Investigate Now

Attalia is selling rapidly and building up fast. Terms are easy and prices are advancing. Settlers can nearly always obtain work at good wages. Come and settle in Attalia, the district that has the most to offer from every standpoint, and become independent for life.

ASSIGNEE IS DISCHARGED

Affairs of Defunct American Carbolite Company Closed Up.

Surplus Money Turned Over to New Company as Dividend.

The last echo of the American Carbolite company of the Hartenstein days, was heard in district court this morning, when W. W. McMillan, assignee, submitted his final report. The report was received and Mr.. McMillan was discharged from further service.

Mr. McMillan reported that after the payment of all outstanding claims not held by the new American Carbolite company, he had $49,334.29, which he turned over to the American Carbolite company, as a final dividend on the claims held by the company.

The American Carbolite company traveled a rocky road during the time H. L. Hartenstein was president. There were charges of mismanagement and pressing creditors finally forced an assignment. Immediately after Mr. McMillan's appointment as assignee, he began the operation of the plant and continued to operate it successfully until it was taken over by the American Carbolite company, which was incorporated under the laws of Minnesota, a few months ago.

The new American Carbolite company is now successfully operating the plant at the foot of Fifty-fifth avenue west. The product is being turned out and shipped daily and the venture, the success of which was extremely dubious for a time, bids fair to come up to the original expectations. Questions of the company's right to use the patents on which its business is built, have all been disposed of, it is said, so that there is no fear of trouble from that quarter.

MOTHER GOES TO BRING SON HOME

Nothing New Has Been Heard of Norman Patton's Condition.

In order to be with her son, Norman Patton, who is suffering from a complete breakdown in Portland, Or., Mrs. W. Langslow of 619 North Fifty-sixtr avenue west left this morning for the West.

Mr. Patton disappeared mysteriously over two weeks ago, and in that time traveled, while mentally unsound, across the continent from New York to Portland, where his brother happened by the merest chance to meet him on the street. The brother immediately wired Duluth, stating that Patton is being cared for at his home.

Aside from the first news from Portland, nothing else concerning the young man's condition has been learned. It is beyond comprehension how he could have made his way from coast to coast with only $30 in his pocket, in the time that he accomplished the trip. It would have been a hard undertaking for a sane man.

Mrs. Patton remained in Duluth, to await the homecoming of her husband, which will be as soon as it is safe for him to travel again.

AUTO SHOW FOR DULUTH

E. J. Filiatrault Says This City Should Have One Next Year.

The Minneapolis Show Eclipsed the One Held in Chicago.

F. L. Filiatrault of the Mutual Automobile company, arrived home last night at Minneapolis, where he attended the automobile show being held in that city. Mr. Filiatrault, who visited both the Minneapolis and Chicago exhibitions, says that the Minnesota show was far ahead of that pulled off recently in Chicago.

"There was great interest in the exhibition," said Mr. Filiatrault this morning. "What struck me particularly was the large number of farmers who were on hand to look over the machines and willing to buy. Dakota farmers ordered many machines, as did those from Minnesota. Duluth was well represented, as were the range towns. There were prospective purchasers from Port Arthur, International Falls and many other out of the way towns.

"The decorations were most beautiful. The walls of the show rooms were hung with rich pictures of motorists in other countries and models of many cars adorned the booths."

"There were a great many sales made as a result of the show and the dealers from all over the state report a booming business. A number of Duluth men placed orders for cars and you can say that there will be at least twice as many machines in Duluth this coming summer as last.

"The past winter has demonstrated beyond a doubt that automobiles can be used the entire year in Duluth, and this is a big factor with people who wish a conveyance to serve the year round.

"There were at the Minneapolis show the usual number of freak cars, but they do not take, and even those who are unfamiliar with automobiles steer clear of them.

"Duluth should wake up and next year hold an automobile show of her own. It brings lots of business to the city and is a mighty good advertisement for the town. This matter, it is likely, will be talked up during the coming summer and plans made to hold the first show in the armory next winter.

THE FIRST BALL GAME

It Was a Glorious Victory for the Sluggers.

But If "Mickey" Only Hadn't Been Helping His Mother - - - .

The baseball season is here.

The first local game was played this morning and the local ball season has been officially declared open.

The mayor didn't make a speech or throw the first ball over the plate, nor did the members of the city council parade the streets in carriages, but the season is open just the same, according to the boys who played the game.

The names of the opposing nines were the Eagles and the Sluggers. The Sluggers won by a score of 6 to 5, as nearly as could be told by representatives of the two teams.

There were nine men on each side, and they played the game as invented by Father Chadwick, according to the boys themselves, for the entire eighteen came into The Herald office this noon to report the game. To prove what they said, they brought their bats, gloves, and the very ball used.

They all wanted to talk at once and it was with difficulty that one small reporter finally got the story straight. They agreed that the score was correct, 6 to 5, and that the Sluggers won, but there was a great deal of argument as to what the score might have been if "Smouse" had not slipped as he was passing third on his way home on a swift bee-liner, hit by Roy and fielded by Rogers.

Then it is said that because one of the Eagles had to stay home and help his mother with the Saturday evening bath that the team was crippled severely. They feel their defeat very keenly and insist that had Mickey been in the game, the score would have been reversed. They are anxious to arrange another game, but the Sluggers say they only played them for practice anyway, and that they are not particular about meeting the team with the flighty name again.

It was impossible to find out just exactly where the game was played. One boy who looked extremely cold in a baseball suit, said it was on Fourth street and Lake avenue. Another said that they used half the field and half the street as half the field was as yet under the snow. In order to put an end to the argument, a fair-haired youth said that it could be "put in" played "in the city."

"Gee, it is great to be able to play again," said one as he put a dent in a new glove with his right fist. "And we cleaned 'em up. Say if you are the sporting editor just put it in that we'd like to get a game with the Eighth Avenues."

And the whole bunch trouped out of the office.

The lineup:

Eagles.		Sluggers.
Jones	catcher	O'Donell
Ferell	pitcher	Rogers
Johnson	first base	Benett
Kerns	second base	Axelson
McCraw	third base	J. Noll
Roy	short stop	Forrester
McMann	left field
White	center field	Maher
Walker	right field	Michaud

AWAIT WORD FROM SENATORS

The directors of he Commercial club will await some word from the members of the St. Louis county delegation before taking any action upon the tonnage tax question. If the members of the delegation should deem it wise to hold a mass meeting, or do something that would show how the people in the northern part of the state feel over the action of the legislature, the directors of the club will follow the advice of the members of the delegation.

The public affairs committee will meet next Wednesday. At that time the tonnage tax question will be taken up. However, no action will be taken by the members of the committee before some word has been received from the delegation.

NO HURRY, NO DELAY

Washington, March 20.—There will be no abandonment of the Panama canal libel prosecution by the administration nor unseemly haste in bringing these cases to trial, according to a high administration official today. The cases will be allowed to take their places on the criminal calendars of the district of Columbia and elsewhere and will be handled in the regular order of the government.

Reports were circulated today that the administration had decided to let these cases lapse for the next four years.

Attorney General Wickersham's investigation of these cases, it is said, has satisfied him that the government should proceed with the prosecution. Whether he has advised President Taft of his attitude is not known, although he was today in conference with the president.

Many important cases are on hand in the department of justice and because of this congestion Mr. Wickersham will not make the libel cases special. The fact that they are not being pushed for trial probably gave rise to the report that they would be indefinitely postponed.

"THE MYSTERY OF THE SUITCASE," A STREET RAILWAY DRAMA

The persons who were on a West Duluth car this morning coming east about noon, are no doubt still puzzling their heads over a little incident which took place on the car.

At about Fifty-third avenue west a young woman carrying a suit case boarded the car and took a seat directly opposite a smartly dressed young man, whose profession might be guessed by the sample case at his side. He was apparently deeply absorbed in reading a newspaper and did not appear to notice the lady enter the car.

Shortly after she had taken her seat, a kitten began to cry, the sound apparently coming from her suit case. Several of the passengers looked inquiringly from the young woman to her traveling case, and under their gaze, as the cries of the cat persisted, her cheeks grew crimson, and she appeared to be very much confused. The conductor hearing the sound stooped and glanced under the seats and the eyes of all the passengers followed his. A more pronounced "meow" brought his gaze suddenly to the suit case, then a broad smile spread over his face and he turned his back and went out on the platform, leaving the passengers staring at the embarrassed woman, who in desperation tried to cover her suit case with her skirt.

Just then the young man who had been reading pushed the button and arose to leave the car. On his way out he went across the aisle and speaking so that those near, could hear, said "Madame, I should think you would be afraid your cat would smother in that suit case."

"But there's no cat in there," exclaimed the confused and deeply mystified woman.

When the car stopped the man who had been reading got out. After that cries of the kitten suddenly ceased, much to the perplexity of the passengers and the relief of the embarrassed woman.

"These Democrats ought to hear from their constituents."

TAFT WOULD HURRY THE PANAMA CANAL COMPLETION

Washington, March 20.—It developed today that during a recent conversation between President Taft and Chairman Goethals, of the isthmian canal commission, the president expressed his desire that the Panama canal be completed by the Fourth of July, 1913. Col. Goethals, however, is not at all sanguine of accomplishing any such result, holding to his hertotore expressed opinion that Jan. 15, 1915, will see the canal open to navigation. Col. Goethals will leave New York for Panama next Saturday.

MAYOR READY TO DO HIS PART

Will Call Mass Meeting on Tonnage Tax, If Needed.

Mayor Haven stands ready to do anything that may be recommended by senators from this district in regard to the tonnage tax measure. He is awaiting word from St. Paul before taking action.

"Duluth should most certainly do something to show her dissatisfaction over the passage of the bill by the lower branch of the legislature, and to protest against similar action on the part of the senate," said the mayor this morning.

"I am not prepared to say just what would be the best course to pursue. I am hoping to hear from some of our state senators on this point. I have thought of calling a mass meeting, and of sending delegations of business men to St. Paul to appear before the senate and enter a protest, but I am not sure that this would be the most effective plan. Some method of showing Duluth's opposition and indignation at the action of the house will be adopted."

ELEVATOR COMPANY WINS AGAINST THE ROCK ISLAND.

Luverne, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury in the case of the Hardwick Farmers' Elevator Company vs. the Rock Island has returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, fixing damages in the full amount asked, $238, and attorney's fee.

The suit was to collect damages for failure to furnish cars demanded in writing by the elevator company in the fall of 1907, and was brought under the reciprocal demurrage law enacted by the legislature in 1907, known as the Nolan bill.

The railroad contended that the law is unconstitutional in that it is an attempt on the part of the state to regulate interstate traffic, all of the cars demanded being for interstate shipments. The case was the first testing the validity of the reciprocal demurrage law in this state. The railroad company will appeal.

REVOLUTION, THEY HINT

French Strike Agitators Make the Situation Seem Blacker.

Make Capital of Indorsement of Government's Position.

Paris, March 20.—It is too early yet to gauge the effect of the indorsement of the attitude of the government in the present strike situation, voiced the chamber of deputies yesterday, but on the surface the outlook is blacker than ever.

The agitators are talking as if the indorsement of the government's position might fan the flames of the present movement into a veritable revolutionary explosion. The organization for the protection of the rights of trades unionism has called meetings of every branch of industry and commerce, when it will be proposed to join them unless the government finds a quick solution. The organization voted $1,000 to aid the cause. Another serious indication is a small contribution from the Paris police.

What is going on behind the scenes can be judged from the open intimations in government organs that M. Simyan, under secretary of posts and telegraphs, will be effaced, either by transfer or by the organization of the department, by which his position will be converted to that of controller, under the postmaster general, as in the English system.

Premier Clemenceau and his colleagues faced the strike interpellations in the chamber of deputies yesterday with a determination to secure indorsement of the government's position, or retire from office. They won, for the chamber rejected a resolution providing for a commission to investigate the causes of the strike by a vote of 354 to 188. The chamber then adopted a sweeping indorsement of the government's attitude by a vote of 368 to 211.

Women Return to Work.
A semi-official note issued today says that a considerable number of women have returned to work, but in spite of this, the situation has not sensibly improved. The government has formally notified the strikers that forty-eight hours' grace will be allowed them to return to work, after which their dismissal will be irrevocable. Orders have been given that notices be posted throughout the country announcing the holding of competitive examinations next week for the postal service.

No attempt yet has been made to restore the money order and the registered mail service in Paris.

The paralysis of business is becoming more serious with every hour. Every conceivable expedient is being used to maintain communication. Special couriers are being sent in automobiles to the frontier, and bicyclists are being employed for the delivery of messages throughout the city. The government has organized a special service to insure communication between London and King Edward, who is at Biarritz.

Lack of Food.
The lack of food in the capital, an outcome of the impossibility of forwarding payments, is making itself felt today and provision dealers declare that if there is no improvement in the city, in a few days, probably will be confronted with famine conditions. The loss to business in Paris alone are variously estimated at from $600,000 to $1,200,000. Only a few witnesses today connect Paris with Europe and the outside world.

One thousand colonial infantrymen have been put to work sorting and delivering the accumulated mails. No newspapers have been delivered since last Tuesday.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The Blood is the Power That Defends the Body

This is the greatest and most important discovery of modern medical science.

It ranks with the discovery of the circulation of the blood, which was made centuries ago.

The blood protects the organs and tissues from disease, but it does so only when it is healthy itself.

Healthy blood is pure blood, and at no season is it more necessary than when there is so much exposure to disease germs.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes healthy blood.

It is the medicine that purifies and enriches the blood and makes it normal in red and white corpuscles and all other constituents.

It cures all humors and eruptions, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, weakness, nervousness, and builds up the whole system.

BEST BLOOD MEDICINE.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for a great many years, and I think it the best blood medicine in the world. I use it spring and fall.

"This last winter and spring I was in very poor health.

"I was weak and had lost all my appetite and I was all run down. As soon as I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla my strength came back and my appetite returned.

"I am now a well woman and can go about my household duties. I no longer have that tired feeling." Mrs. Marion Bruce, Cumberland, Me.

HIS ONE MEDICINE.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla twenty years or thereabout. During said time I have not paid out one cent for doctor bills. I have for a long time used only four bottles per year, two in spring and two in fall. My bowels are regular, I sleep sound, feel like always being young, entirely free from any malaria, etc." Chas. F. Roberts, P. O. Box 478, Peoria, Ills.

☞Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than 20 different ingredients, each greatly strengthened and enriched by this peculiar combination. These ingredients are the very remedies that successful physicians prescribe for the same diseases and ailments. There is no real substitute for Hood's Sarsaparilla. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good," you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

Begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla today, in usual liquid or tablets known as Sarsatabs.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON

Sentence Is Pronounced by Judge Cant on Alphonse Laurin.

Will be Put at Hard Labor in the State Penitentiary.

Ten years at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Stillwater is the sentence that was imposed in district court yesterday afternoon by Judge Cant upon Alphonse Laurin, who was convicted by a jury in district court on the charge of having criminally assaulted Miss Edna Stahbrodt on the Hermantown road on the evening of Feb. 19.

The minimum punishment to which the young man, who is not yet 21 years of age, was liable, was seven years, and the maximum was thirty years. In pronouncing sentence Judge Cant said the crime of which Laurin had been found guilty was one of the most heinous offenses for which the law provides punishment, scarcely less atrocious than homicide. He asserted that under such a conviction the prisoner could hardly expect a mild sentence, and, feeling that a reformatory sentence would be inadequate, and would not carry out the spirit of the law, he imposed the penitentiary sentence.

The March grand jury indicted Laurin on the charge of criminal assault. Evidence showed that he assaulted Miss Stahbrodt, whom he had known for several years, twice on the Hermantown road Feb. 19. He was frightened away by the approach of a sleigh, which proved to contain two girl friends of Miss Stahbrodt, who is 23 years old. She was taken home in the sleigh, and her father was so enraged at her story that he seized his gun and started in pursuit of Laurin. He overtook him, but the gun missed fire, and the father drove on into the city and complained to the police, who later caused the arrest of Laurin, who is 20 years old.

County Attorney John H. Norton told the court that he is usually inclined to feel lenient towards a young man who has committed a slight indiscretion, but in this case he believed the law should be given its full course. He called attention to the fact that Laurin apparently had no regret for the crime, and that his attitude during the whole trial had not been such as to create a good impression.

Laurin's parents are still living. Their home is at Port Arthur. Laurin told the court that he left home five years ago. For the last two or three seasons he has been working as fireman on tug boats at the Head of the Lakes.

LITTLE HOPE OF JUSTICE TO NORTHERN MINNESOTA AS TO REPRESENTATION

ling some desultory work that does not deceive anbody.

Furthermore, it is also becoming evident that while Northwestern Minnesota is as much interested in reapportionment as it Northeastern Minnesota, and while Northwestern Minnesota made the passage of the tonnage tax bill in the house possible, there is a direct connection between the plot to fasten that unjust measure upon Northern Minnesota and the plot to prevent the passage of a reapportionment bill.

The same men who have helped put the tonnage tax bill through the house, and who may be counted upon to try to put it through the senate, are parties to the plan of preventing the passage of the reapportionment bill.

The tonnage tax bill was put upon the people of Northern Minnesota because Southern Minnesota had the power to do it.

Southern Minnesota's power to perpetrate this iniquity is based upon an unjust distribution of legislative representation, whereby a smaller population in the older and richer portions of the state holds the balance of power in the legislature, and, therefore, holds the whiphand over the poorer and weaker, though more populous, sections of the state.

If representation were fair there would be no tonnage tax. If representation is made fair, there will be no further chance to impose such a tyrannical and oppressive measure. Therefore, the fight for the tonnage tax and the fight against reapportionment naturally go hand in hand.

Th chief enemy of repportionmesnt in the senate, who is masking his real purpose by a pretense of fair play, under the guise of which he is working deftly for postponements that will prevent action upon this reform, is one of the very men who may be counted upon to make an active fight in the senate for the tonnage tax bill.

Postponement of reapportionment at this time means more than it looks upon its face. Two years hence the senate will be composed of sixty-three men, who have been elected for four years, and who, if they vote for reapportionment at the session of 1911, will be voting to cut their terms in two. That was the very reason why the attempt at reapportionment in the session of 1907 was hopeless.

If there is no reapportionment this year there will be none in 1911. If there is none in 1911, the fact that another state census is approaching will furnish a good excuse for further postponement, and there will be none until after 1915, when the state census is taken.

In short, if there is no reapportionment this year there will be none for an indefinite period in the future. There is absolutely no excuse for a failure to reapportion this year, except the desire of Southern Minnesota to continue to hold the power which makes it possible for it to inflict upon a helpless minority such outrages as the tonnage tax bill.

The senate committee on reapportionment held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which action was further postponed until some time next week, the time to be subject to the wish of the chairman of the committee, Senator Frank Clague of Lamberton. A bill is practically ready, and it could have been introduced this week as easily as next week or the week after. The difference appears to be that, owing to the near approach of adjournment, there might have been some chance for a bill introduced this week; and there is very little chance indeed for a bill introduced next week.

Senator Laybourn of Duluth made a determined fight against further delay, when the proposition was made to the committee to put the matter over until next week. He said that it was time the members of the committee found out whether any real attempt at reapportionment was intended or not. He wanted immediate action, but though he was supported by one or two Northern Minnesota senators, members of the committee, the proposal to postpone was adopted.

The bill upon which the senate committee has practically agreed to make its stand—even if that stand is made so late that it is hopeless—provides for fifty-six senators, a reduction of seven, and 121 house members, an increase of two.

Each county, with the exception of two or three small ones like Cook and Mahnomen, would have one house member. St. Louis county, with Lake and Cook, would have the same number of senators—three—and would gain one house member, which would go to Lake and Cook counties combined.

In the Eighth congressional district Mille Lacs county would be taken out and added to a Sixth congressional district senatorial district, and the legislative districts would be as follows: Anoka, Isanti and Kanabec counties, one senator and three representatives; Chisago (from the Fourth congressional district) and Pine counties, one senator and two representatives; Carlton and Aitkin counties, one senator and two representatives; Itasca and Koochching counties, one senator and two representatives; St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties, three senators and seven representatives.

This would be a gain, of course—if there was any probability that the measure would have consideration in the legislature. As to that, there is little hope.

The 1909 bluebook has been issued by Secretary of State Julius Schmahl, six weeks earlier than ever before, and it is neater and compleer than it has ever been. Not only that, but an issue of 25,000 copies is costing $2,000 less than the previous issue of 5,000 copies less.

Wherefore the house passed a resolution of thanks to Mr. Schmahl, introduced by Representative R. J. Wells.

The blue book, in the biographical sections, contains material on which statistical fiends got busy yesterday afternoon.

The changes made today are not expected to make any material difference in the methods of operation of either the Oliver Mining company or the Missabe road. Mr. McGonagle, as general manager of the road, has been in active charge of the operating department, while Mr. Olcott, as vice president of the Oliver Mining company, has taken an active part in the direction of its affairs.

Both Mr. McGonagle and Mr. Olcott have the reputation of being practical railroad men, and Mr. Olcott has had a thorough schooling in the mining company's affairs.

"No action was taken this morning in regard to my successor," said Mr. McGonagle. "The question has not yet been considered by the directors of the road."

Mr. Olcott stated that until his return from the East he was not in a position to make any announcement or statement for publication, regarding the report that he would succeed Mr. Cole.

COOPERS ARE GUILTY OF SECOND DEGREE MURDER

der and Mrs. Wilson was at her father's right.

The jurors were tired looking and dishelveled, and when court said, "I thank you, gentlemen, for your patience and devotion to the case, and dismiss you to your homes and personal vocations, the entire twelve sprang from their seats as one man and hurriedly left the courtroom. The defendants and their counsel remained to complete the bond preliminaries and motions for a new trial.

Court Is Crowded.

Various and inconsistent rumors that the jury had agreed were responsible for a crowded courtroom this morning and for the presence of attorneys on both sides long before the usual hour for convening.

As soon as Judge Hart entered court and even before he removed his coat, he ordered the jury and the defendants brought into court.

"I understand they have agreed," he remarked to the press table, "and am sending to see."

In a moment the twelve men entered.

"Have you agreed upon a verdict, gentlemen?" said Judge Hart

"We have," replied the foreman hoarsely.

"Advance, Mr. Foreman, and read the verdict."

"We, the jury, find the defendants, Duncan B. Cooper and Robin J. Cooper, guilty of murder in the second degree and assess their punishment at confinement in the state penitentiary for a period of twenty years."

"So say you all, gentlemen?"

"So say we all," in chorus.

Sentence Is Passed.

In a moment Judge Anderson of the defense was on his feet, exclaiming:

"Your honor, we move the case be declared a mistrial, because of the verdict yesterday. We contend that yesterday's verdict was the only one, and that it acquitted John Sharp, but declared a disagreement on the other defendants. We also ask that the defendants be admitted to bond at once."

"The verdict of the jury makes it a bailable case," was the court's reply. "Hence, I will fix the bond of each defendant at $25,000, unless there be some objection. In that event I will hear arguments."

"It is satisfactory to us," said Attorney General McCarn.

"And to use," said Anderson.

"There seems to be nothing left but for the course to pass sentence," added Judge Hart.

"I do not think that necessary," said Judge Anderson. "We move that judgment be suspended and that we be given a new trial. We will be prepared to argue the motion later—probably next week."

"All right, judge," remarked the court. "I know you will not delay unnecessarily and I will take it up at your own convenience."

"Bring in the bond book," said Judge Anderson. It was done and the defendants signed the bond and returned with their relatives and friends to the room they have occupied in the jail building. Mrs. Burch, who had stood bravely and even smiled in the courtroom, collapsed as she reached the narrow corridor leading to the jail and had to be supported by her husband. Mrs. Wilson's eyes were streaming with tears.

No Conspiracy.

Both young women have counted confidently on acquittal, although even their counsel advised agaist building in too many hopes on the result. The jurors were not inclined to talk, but one of them said:

"On the first ballot we acquitted John Sharp and disregarded the conspiracy theory. On this same ballot we stood six for guilty of murder in the first degree with mitigating circumstances, five for murder in the second degree with twenty years, the maximum penalty, and one for acquittal. The ballots all day Wednesday and Thursday showed the same result. Yesterday, the man who voted for acquittal, went over to murder in the second, but demanded that only ten years be assessed. The rest of us did not deem ten years as anything like adequate, so we disagreed again. Of course, all this refers to the Coopers, not Sharp, whom we had acquitted.

"Early this morning the man who was holding out for ten years agreed to twenty years, and the six who were voting for a first degree verdict agreed to this verdict."

John Sharp hurried to the courthouse when he heard of the verdict, and was soon closeted with the defendants and their counsel. Mrs. Sharp was in court when the jury reported, and comforted the two daughters of Col. Cooper with her presence and sympathy.

John J. Greener signed for $10,000 on each bond. Several others had been sent for and telephoned that they would come as quickly as automobiles would bring them. In a few moments Walter O. Parmer arrived and signed for the balance.

"I will sign for a million for these men," he remarked to James C. Caldwell later signed for $25,000 on each bond, and H. B. Chadburn and C. W. Anderson for $2,500 each on each bond. This makes the total bonds in both cases $110,000, although only $50,000 was asked.

The Burch automobile came up a little later and the party was whirled away to the Bradford home.

There will be no further proceedings in the case for about a week.

A Remarkable Case.

The Cooper-Sharp trial has been one of the most remarkable murder cases in the history of the South, not only because of the prominence of the principals, but because of the reasons that led to the killing.

Col. Duncan B. Cooper, a former officer in the Confederate army under Forrest and a man very prominent in Democratic state politics once lived in Columbia, Tenn. In that town also lived Edward Ward Carmack, a young lawyer who did some newspaper work. Cooper bought the Nashville American, and induced Carmack to come to Nashville to be its editor. Whether the men ever were in thorough accord, is a disputed point. Carmack's friends say not. Col. Cooper swore on the stand that they were close friends until Governor Taylor opposed Carmack for reelection to the senate. This fight was long and bitter and a feature of it was a series of joint debates, and Carmack lost. Copper supported Taylor, but Robin, the boy who killed the senator, supported the latter.

Urged Into the Race.

Malcolm R. Patterson was governor of the state at the time of the Carmack-Taylor fight, and announced his candidacy for re-election. Carmack, just beaten for the senate, was urged into the race for governor against Patterson. This was last June and the fight between the men for the Democratic nomination was the most spectacular ever seen in Tennessee. Again joint debates were arranged and again the feeling between the factions grew very bitter. In these debates, Cooper charged that Carmack assailed the colonel's good name. Cooper was an ardent Patterson man—the governor on the stand described him as "my closest personal and political adviser."

Again Carmack lost, and, a month before the election, became editor of the Nashville Tennessean. He had made the race on the Prohibition platform, and while he did not get the nomination, he secured enough representatives to assure the passage of the state-wide liquor bill.

In the meantime, Governor Patterson and Former Governor Cox, once deadly enemies, were reconciled. The Tennessean charged that Col. Cooper brought this reconcliation about, and referred to it in a humorous and sacrlastic vein. Carmack also intimated that, to save Governor Patterson, the Democratic leaders were preparing to trade Bryan for the governorship.

Col. Cooper was chafing under the comment, and becoming more incensed every day. Sunday, Nov. 8, the day before the killing, the following editorial appeared in the Tennessean:

"Across the Muddy Chasm."

"We trust there will be no unseemly ribaldry on the part of the base vulgar concerning the happy reunion of long sundered hearts which was accomplished in the joyous reconciliation of his excellency, Hon. M. R. Patterson and his ex-excellency, Hon. John Isaac Cox. All honor to that noble spirit, Maj. Duncan Brown Cooper, who wrought this happy reunion of congenial and confluxible spirits separated by evil fates although both for each other. All honor to Maj. Dunc and may the blessing of the peacemaker be upon him. May he be heir to all the beatitudes, and especially to the blessing reserved for those who hunger and thirst after righteousness. And there goes also a blessing to his excellency—for as he has been merciful to Cox, so shall he obtain mercy.

"But the choicest blessing, as is right and proper, are for Governor Cox himself. For if there be any reward for meekness, and any for enduring persecution for righteousness sake, he shall inherit the earth and his is the kingdom of heaven. Yet such is the meekness of his spirit that we doubt not that Governor Cox would be entirely comforted with the meek man's reward.

"If we pause here briefly to review the unhappy differences that have armed these valiant souls against each other it is for no purpose of renewing the strife, but rather of emphasizing by contrast, the felicity of the present situation. It will serve also to bring out in bold relief the gracious spirit which enables Governor Patterson to condescend to men of low estate, lift up where he has trampled down and lay a poultice of warm words upon the reputation he has so fearfully bruised. It will teach also those who most unjustly have regarded Governor Cox as a man of proud and haughty spirit, that he is, in fact, a man of modest stillness and humility, one who can forget injuries the most grievous, forgive insults the most flagrant, endure every assault upon his honor and good name without resentment, and, in general, humble himself that he may be exalted. It will also show that none can ever sin away his day of grace with the present all-merciful machine; that no man can ever become so vile, so degraded, so corrupt in its estimation that it is not ready to raise him up and load him with dignity and honors if he only will give up everything and serve it with fidelity and singleness of heart.

Only One Motive.

"It will be remembered that Governor Patterson professed to have only one great motive in seeking the office of governor—the wholly patriotic and unselfish desire to purge the state of the shame and infamy brought upon it by Cox and the Cox machine. He openly declared that he would rather some other than he had the task and the honor, but his soul would not consent that such a man as Cox should be the governor of Tennessee. He charged that Cox had degraded and debauched the politics of the state; he represented him as the pliant tool of the saloons and the corporations; he charged that he was Democrat only in name, a Republican in fact; he called him a 'traitor to the Democratic party.' Not only that, but he viciously assailed his personal honor, his pecuniary integrity, and from every stump in Tennessee he pictured him in the bitterest words in his vocabulary as a common grafter. And the whole crew joined their voices in one universal chorus of damnation—'crook,' 'grafter,' 'corrupt politician,' 'cheap John demagogue'—such were the words that flew thick and fast from the mouths of Duncan B. Cooper and all the leaders in the great movement to reform and purge and purify the state, to destroy the power of the political machine and restore power to the people of Tennessee. The whole campaign was conducted with a view not only to defeat Governor Cox, but to load him with infamy and drive him out of the politics of Tennessee. So far was this carried, that after Governor Patterson had been nominated for governor and Cox had been nominated for the state senate, Maj. Cooper journeyed to Bristol for the purpose of getting out an independent candidate against him.

"These facts will serve to glorify the recent pact of peace. It shows how far Governor Patterson had to stoop, how much Governor Cox had to forgive, and matches an infinite condescension with an infinite humility. Of course, there are other details. When Governor Cox was summoned to Nashville, some weeks ago, it was not simply for the purpose of falling on somebody's neck, or of having somebody fall upon his. There are honors and dignities and offices and substantial rewards to be distributed—things that go 'to heal the hurt that honor feels'—and these things were talked of and considered.

"But no doubt the main thing was that Governor Cox agreed to join himself with Ban Murray, Duke Cooper and Sparrel Hill, and aid them in their battle for the Holy Cause or Local Self-Government."

By local self-government, Carmack meant the fight against prohibition. The liquor interests, led by the governor, declared in favor of local option, and of letting each community settle the saloon question for itself.

Col. Cooper, upon reading this editorial, sent the famous message to Carmack: "If my name appears in the Tennessean again, one of us must die." The warning was delivered to Senator Carmack by ex-State Treasurer Craig. Carmack laughed at that. Col. Cooper's threat had made a cessation of the editorials impossible—that if the Tennessean never again used Coopers name, the public would believe that the paper had been bluffed, and it would lose caste. So on Monday, Nov. 9, the day of the killing, there appeared in the Tennessean this editorial:

"The Diplomat of the Swiebund."

"To Maj. Duncan Brown Cooper, who wrought this great solition; who achieved the harmonious confluence of incompatible elements; who wielded the pewter handle to the wooden spoon; who grafted the dead bough to the living tree and made it to bloom and bourgeon and bend with golden fruit; who made playmates of the lamb and the leopard and boon companions of the spider and fly; who made soda and vinegar dwell placidly in the same bottle, and who taught oil and water how they might agree—to Maj. Duncan Brown Cooper, the great diplomat of the political Swelbund be all honor and glory forever."

What happened next is history. The state's witnesses said Carmack was shot down from behind, while he was in the act of raising his hat to Mrs. Eastman. The Coopers swore they walked across the street to reason with Carmack and that he opened fire at once, wounding Robin who, thereupon and in selfdefense fired the shots which killed the editor.

which has just been completed by the committee on committees. Greater prominence has been given to the daily work records of senators as a reason for preferment on committees than ever before in the senate, where the length of service has always formed so great a factor in fixing precedence in such matters. It is understood that whenever a senator has applied for a coveted committee assignment, one of the first questions considered has related to his record for attention to business on the committees with which he has been connected. The reply to that question it is said, has had much to do with the assignment as finally determined upon.

After this discussion of senatorial records many senators are wondering whether when the regular session assembles, in December, there will be less difficulty than has been experienced in securing quorums and prompt action on measures referred to committees.

COLERAINE CAN CLAIM COMPOSER

Alfred Erickson, Young Finn, Wins Praise for New Waltz.

Coleraine, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coleraine, the infant city of the Mesaba range, boasts of a composer of music. Alfred V. Erickson recently received the honor of having a musical composition accepted by one of the leading music publishing companies. It is an instrumental selection for the piano, entitled, "The Illusion Waltz." Music critics pronounce it an excellent production for a beginner.

Mr. Erickson came here from Bessemer, Mich., two years ago, where he had been working in the mines. He had also learned the trade of a brick mason. Since coming to the place he has been a leading member of the Coleraine Symphony orchestra, under the direction of E. J. Anderson.

Seven years ago Erickson, then a youth of 19, came from Finland, where, like thousands of ambitious Finns, he was dissatisfied with the Russian influence in his native country. He had completed a common school education. His early passion for music found expression with the accordion, which he began playing at 8 years of age. Four years ago he began playing the clarinet, of which he is passionately fond, and it is his ambition sometime to play his favorite instrument in one of the great orchestras of America. He invests a large part of his income in the best musical instruments he can purchase.

HIBBING IS FOR INDEPENDENTS

Fans Against Being in League—Officers of Club Elected.

Hibbing, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large and very enthusiastic baseball meeting was held in Judge Brady's office last evening, and plans for the coming season gone into.

Remarks were made by Frank Ausley, Dr. Weinick and T. F. Brady. The idea of entering league ball was taken up and immediately voted down. It seemed to be the prevailing opinion that Hibbing would do better in independent ball owing to the variety of teams which visit here and also because it would mean an entirely team, as most of the present members would have to quit, as they are in business here and could not get away for any considerable length of time. The following officers were elected: President, Dr. H. R. Weirick; vice president, Frank Dear; treasurer, Frank Ausley; secretary, H. G. Burnham; directors, Mike Sommer, H. R. Weirick, Frank Ausley, B. H. Hayes, Frank Dear; manager, T. F. Brady.

Kaster of that neighborhood, charging him with having killed two moose calves on July 3, 1907. The trial of Kaster was held Thursday before H. S. Huson, a local justice of the peace, and a jury. The jury, after being out for several hours, agreed on a verdict of not guilty. At the time that the jury was deliberating, a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Noble and a man named Parker, who had also appeared as witnesses against Kaster. Parker, having been able to get bonds, ws released, but Noble, not being so fortunate, is now in jail on his failure to obtain $500 bonds to await his trial, which will be held Monday.

McDONALD RELEASED

Millionaire, Charged With Bigamy, Is Given His Freedom.

Governor of Missouri Withdraws the Requisition for Him.

Jefferson, City., Mo., March 20.—Governor Hadley has decided to withdraw the requisition for the return from Minneapolis to Kansas City of Mitchell A. W. McDonald, on a charge of bigamy. The mental condition of McDonald was given as the reason for withdrawing the requisition. H. B. Fryberger of Duluth, McDonald's attorney, and Harvey W. Grimmer, attorney to Governor Johnson of Minnesota, appeared before Governor Hadley yesterday and requested that he withdraw his requisition for McDonald. Mr. Grimmer explained that he had been sent at the expense of the state of Minnecota, because Governor Johnson thought the warrant charging McDonald with bigamy was unfair, but added that Governor Johnson did not wish to refuse a requisition from the Missouri governor.

Mr. Fryberger's story to Governor Hadley was that McDonald was a Canadian switchman who was for many years what is known in the lumber country as a timberjack; that he started as a laborer, acquired lumber land, cut off the timber, and later found the cut-over land to be rich in iron ore. McDonald organized his land into the Chicago Ore company and leased it to the Steel corporation on a tonnage basis.

In March, 1908, said Fryberger, McDonald's health was poor and he went to Hot Springs, where he met Mrs. Belle Hamilton, the woman on whose account McDonald is now sought to be extradited to Missouri.

Fryberger also told Governor Hadley that Mrs. Hamilton asserts she and McDonald were married at Windsor, Can., just across the river from Detroit, but that McDonald insists upon another version.

"I don't know about the facts," said Fryberger, "but later they met in Chicago and undoubtedly they were together in Kansas City. McDonald in the mean time made trips to Minneapolis, where he has a wife and family. In November last Mrs. Hamilton sued him in Minneapolis for $25,000, and to avoid publicity we went into a settlement agreement with her. This agreement was made at Minneapolis Dec. 29, 1908. It was signed by Amber Hamilton and M. A. W. McDonald, and provided that 4 cents a ton royalty on all the ore taken from the McDonald mines in the Mesaba range should be paid to Mrs. Hamilton in quarterly payments. In return for this Mrs. Hamilton was to release McDonald. Joseph Molineaux, Mrs. Hamilton's attorney and trustee in this transaction, was to be paid $15,000 as his fee.

"What does the contract say about mariage?" demanded Governor Hadley. "It does not say anything," replied Fryberger. "He denies and she asserts the marriage."

"The complaining witness in the case is not Mrs. Hamilton," he said "but a man of whom we know nothing." He insisted that the 4 cents a ton royalty would net Mrs. Hamilton $110,000, and that he had thought it too much to pay, but that Mrs. Catherine McDonald, the lumberman's wife, told him to pay it and avoid publicity and save her two young daughters, aged 12 and 15, from the notoriety that would have been caused by a legal fight. The children are in a boarding school, he said.

Fryberger also told Governor Hadley that McDonald would easily have been worth millions had he not dissipated his fortune within the past two or three years, and said he believed the lumberman was worth considerably less than a million at the present time. Among the documents offered the governor was one declaring that whatever was done, Mrs. Hamilton did not believe McDonald guilty of wilfully committing a crime.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 20.—Mitchell A. W. McDonald, the millionaire Minneapolis lumberman who has been imprisoned in the Hennepin county jail because of a charge of bigamy made against him by a Missouri woman, was released yesterday afternoon, on the motion of his attorneys, after Governor Johnson had received word that the requisition from Governor Hadley of Missouri had been withdrawn.

PARENTS OF KIDNAPED BOY ARE EAGER TO PAY $10,000 RANSOM ASKED

the ransom of $10,000 if given an opportunity to do so. Money is no object. They want their child.

Neither Mr. and Mrs. Whitla, or William's little sister, Salina, 10 years old, have slept over much since the kidnaping. They are apparently resigned to the fact that the kidnapers have the upper hand in the affair and anxiously await some intelligence from the men as to what they are to do to get William back.

Every clue, no matter how slight, is being run down by the boy's uncle, Frank H. Buhl, the millionaire steel manufacturer and other relatives of the family. Their efforts have been unsuccessful, however, and Mr. Buhl, who conducted an exhaustive search in Cleveland last night, will return to Sharon this afternoon.

Recalls Previous Case.

The abduction of the Whitla boy has served to recall almost a similar kidnaping at Sharon in 1899, ten years ago, when the son of a wealthy resident, A. Levine, was the victim. At the time it was kidnaped, the child was eight months old and was in a baby carriage in charge of a nurse. The nurse had wheeled the carriage along one of the avenues of the city and on reaching a drug store, left the baby and carriage on the outside while she entered to make a purchase. During her absence, unseen by any one, the baby was stolen from its carriage.

Several hours later, as in the Whitla case, the parents of the child received a letter informing them that the child was all right and that it would be restored to them on the payment of the sum of $5,000 and no publicity. The parents notified the police and it was decided to pay the ransom demanded. A spot in the outskirts of the town was designated and two detectives were detailed to watch the place and make an arrest, after the money had been taken from the designated place. The kidnapers, however, seemed to know every movement of the police and the parents and, an hour before the time agreed upon for the placing of the money, a letter was received by the parents. It read:

"You have the police watching us to arrest us. We do not want your money now, but we have got your baby. You will never see him again."

The kidnapers were not heard from again, and the father, who was also a friend of J. P. Whitla, spent nearly every cent he had in trying to get a trace of the child. It was not, however, until a year later that a peddler discovered the kidnaped child in a home at Punxsutawney, Pa., where it had been left eleven months previously by a man and a woman who were supposed to have been implicated in the kidnaping.

Law Is Severe.

The law in Pennsylvania against kidnaping is severe. Following the Pat Crowe episode at Omaha, the legislature passed a bill making the punishment for kidnaping imprisonment for life, or for any term of years at the discretion of the court. Any person assisting in a kidnaping may be punished by a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment not exceeding twenty-five years, at the discretion of the court.

No one read the story of the kidnaping of the Whitla child with more interest than the mother of the famous Charlie Ross, who was stolen from his home in July, 1874, and never found.

"Murder a Mere Pastime."

Chicago, March 20.—The intensity of interest caused here by the kidnaping of Willie Whitla at Sharon, Pa., is reflected in a signed statement made by State's Attorney Wyman here today as follows:

"The kidnaping of Willie Whitla has stirred the activity of the officials of Cook county. Chief of Detectives O'Brien, with all the aid at his command, and Chief of Police Shippy, are using the entire police and detective force, not only in an effort to catch the kidnapers, if they should come into the state, but are giving advice to the Eastern officials as to the methods to be employed. I have assigned all my detectives to the case and two of my assistants in running down all clues.

"I believe the kidnaping of a child is the worst offense that can be committed. In comparison with the fiendishness of this sort of criminal, murder is a mere pastime. I think the penalty for kidnaping should be capital punishment, and while the punishment now is from one year to life in the penitentiary and the prisoner is not eligible to parole, it does not seem severe enough. This office is at the command of anyone who has the slightest clue as to the whereabouts of this little boy."

SENTENCES IMPOSED

Three Men Committed to State Reformatory by Judge Cant.

Raymond Glenn Given Term for Attempting Suicide.

Three reformatory sentences were given erring youths by Judge Cant in district court yesterday afternoon. There they will get a chance to reform their ideas of life and the way of living, so that when they come out they will be able to take a proper place in the world.

Raymond Glenn, the first person ever convicted of attempting to commit suicide in St. Louis county, was given a reformatory sentence. When arraigned for sentence he again protested that he didn't mean to kill himself when he took carbolic acid.

Eugene Oliver Goulot didn't have any excuse at all for raising a time check from $6.90 to $68.90 and he was given a reformatory sentence also. He said he was under the influence of liquor when he committed the crime.

Edward Malancy again worked a twist in names when he was arraigned for sentence. He said on a previous occasion that his name was Edward Mahoney. Yesterday he went back to Malancy again and Malancy it is. He drew a reformatory sentence for stealing a horse in the town of Meadowlands.

SHADES OF PROCTOR KNOTT! SUPERIOR WASN'T ON THE MAP

Isn't Superior on the commercial map?

It doesn't look that way. It's a shame to tell it, but down in New Orleans, where they are supposed to know that the war is over, they couldn't find Superior on their railway maps.

William Pattison, who owns property in both of the cities at the Head of the Lakes, and who, by the way, is acquiring more property in the live town of Duluth, but whose home is really in Superior, because some years ago he built his domicile there, is the person to discover that poor old Superior is not listed in the regularly defined routes of travel.

Mr. Pattison was in New Orleans, and after viewing the festivities of the Mardi Gras city, bethought him of home. Then he went to the office of the Illinois Central railroad and asked for a ticket to Superior.

The ticket clerk looked puzzled and then went to consult his rate book. He scanned that book thoroughly. He came back to the counter and asked Mr. Pattison if he were sure that he had the right name of the village he wished to go to.

That was too much. Not know of Superior! Shades of old Indian days and the glorious history of the boom, that boomed across the until Proctor Knott picked upon us and started our spunk! Not know of Superior, Wis.!

That got to Mr. Pattison's pride. He told the clerk where the city of Superior was located, and even described Tower avenue, with its surging crowds of a Saturday night. But still the man who sells tickets for the Illinois Central in New Orleans, looked puzzled.

Then Mr. Pattison informed the ticket clerk that Superior was across the bay from Duluth. Ah! That was different. The furrows evaporated from the brow of the clerk. He looked intelligent. Yes, yes, Duluth, surely; the Queen of the Unsalted Seas; the Zenith City of the North.

But even when the clerk learned, directly, the location of Superior, he was unable to sell Mr. Pattison a ticket to the village across the way. So accordingly Mr. Pattison purchased his ticket to Duluth. There is nothing like coming back to a good city, even though your home is across the bay from it.

From the lighted reefs of the New England coast to the Gulf-washed shores of Texas, Superior is the "city across the bay from Duluth."

It is understood to be very comprehensive, containing numerous recommendations for different city departments for the year.

The Carpenter Bros. saloon matter will come up again, and probably will be finally disposed of. The Carpenters were found guilty in municipal court of selling liquor to minors at their saloon in the West end, and two weeks ago all the witnesses who appeared in court, and several others, were called before the council to testify in regard to the affair. The Carpenters also appeared, to show cause why their license should not be revoked.

After some heated arguments, the aldermen voted to postpone action for two weeks. An application has been made for a transfer to the Carpenter license to William Meier, who owns the building in which the saloon is located, and some of the aldermen favor allowing the transfer to be made, in place of revoking the license, provided the Carpenters themselves sever all connections with the business, which they promise to do.

Another attempt will be made to elect a president of the council. The aldermen could not agree on a president last Monday, and it is said they are no nearer an agreement now than they were before. Ten ballots were taken last Monday, and it may take several times that many before a man is chosen. Alderman Shartel is in the lead, with seven votes. He needs nine to elect.

Probably the council will order condemnation proceedings for the extension of Railroad street from Fifteenth avenue west to Garfield. The proposition to start condemnation proceedings for an easy grade road over the hill at Fifty-seventh avenue west will also be voted on.

Alderman Shartel's ordinance making it a misdemeanor for minors to misrepresent their ages to the saloonkeepers in order that they may secure drinks, is due to come up again Monday. There was a warm discussion on it at the last meeting, and the motion to adopt did not come to a vote.

The ordinance committee may make a report on the "overloading" ordinance, designed to prevent the overloading of horses on Duluth hills. Instead of providing that no horse shall draw more than double its own weight, the measure may be amended so as to make the loads in proportion to the grades up which they are to be hauled, the less steep the grade the larger the load.

The resolution adopted at the last council meeting, ordering the repair of the Sixth avenue viaduct, will be returned to the council without Mayor Haven's signature, and with his recommendation that the city engineer be instructed to prepare plans and specifications for the repair of the structure, and that after the council has approved such plans and specifications, the railroad companies having tracks under the viaduct be instructed to make the repairs along lines suggested by the city engineer.

INJUSTICE OF TONNAGE TAX

Anton Gronseth Protests Against Such Discrimination in Taxing.

To the Editor of The Herald:

When I read in your paper at Hibbing last night the "Rolls of Honor and Dishonor," I noticed in looking over the list that St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth as a trinity fought against the passage of the tonnage tax bill. That goes to show that the leading business men of the state have courage and convictions to stick up for the right. On the "list of dishonor" I noticed that it was headed by Adams and ended by Wright, both of Fergus Falls. Adams did not do the right thing, neither did Wright, when they voted for the discrimination in taxes. Any man who has his full senses ought to be able to see the injustice in such action as taken by the house. Fergus Falls is well represented on the passing lists, and when we know that Fergus Falls is a place where they are trying to restore the upper story, I am not surprised at that; neither am I much surprised at Lake Park, the "city of darkness," the home of the originator of the tonnage tax bill. For twenty years I have been acquainted with that place, and I would suggest to those who are ambitious of reform to begin at home first. In the first place, they need a lighting plant for their enlightenment before they try to father something they do not understand. When my wife was a girl she lived at Lake Park for a while, but her aggressive spirit drew her to Duluth and out of "darkness into light."

If the tonnage tax becomes a law, I will not only be ashamed of the legislative body, but rather ashamed of living in a state where such injustice is fostered. Discriminations should not be tolerated on Minnesota soil. It is a shame that the people who live in the fertile section of this state, so rich in agricultural products, should suggest and frame such an injustice to the northern part, which, up to late years, has been considered a vast barren country. When the energetic Northerner has surprised the Southerner with turning the barren country into a land of great resources, then the Southerner turns jealous and wants to suck our heart's blood from us, which we will not stand for.

The men in the legislature should use some common sense and not so much style. It is ridiculous to see the flood of bills introduced on every imaginable subject. In my estimation, our country has more need of revising the state laws than the tariff, as we certainly could cut out more than half of the laws on the statute book and yet have more than could be conveniently enforced and lived up to. Common sense and honesty at heart are what we need more than anything, and if we can produce that, we will have more justice. So much common sense ought to be expected from the legislative body, that for the sake of selfishness they should not work against the interests of the whole state for the benefit of a few. Yours for common sense and justice,

ANTON GRONSETH.

WILL ASK COUNTY TO REPAIR ROAD

Settlers Say Legalized Highway Is in Bad Condition.

Claiming that it will be necessary for the county to improve a two and one-half-mile stretch of legalized road, so that they can get in and out to the north shore road, a number of the settlers in 52-12 are preparing a petition to be presented to the county board at an early date.

The road was legalized on the section line, between 31 and 32, 52-12, about three years ago, when $500 was spent, cutting it out and stamping it for about half a mile. Since that time nothing has been done to finish or improve the road, and it is said to be in an almost impassable condition. There are about thirty-five families living along the route, and the farmers are anxious to have something done for them this year. They think they have waited long enough.

They claim that if it had not been for August Banks, who owns a farm in the town of Duluth, and who also follows the logging business, they would not be able to get out to the north shore road at all. Mr. Banks has been keeping two bridges in repair, at his own expense, for the past two or three years.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlains' Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

MAKE PEACE WITH KIELLEY

Permit Issued by Building Inspector for Commercial Club's Home.

Building Inspector Kielley and the Commercial & Realty company have come together in regard to the building being erected at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street, to be occupied by the Commercial club, and a permit for its construction was issued this morning. According to this, the cost of the structure will be $65,000.

The builders have agreed to make all the changes in the plans and specifications, to comply with the building ordinance. These changes are in the fire escapes, width of balcony, width of cornice, and in the rear stairway and hall. A doorway will be placed in the assembly hall near the fire escape; a hollow wall will be made in the large flume in the chimney; the freight elevator will be provided with self-locking door, and a pit below the lowest floor will be provided for the elevator shaft.

ORANGES BY THE BUSHEL.

An Ottumwa, Iowa, Grocer Makes a Hit and Housekeepers Enjoy the Novelty.

The public is accustomed to buying oranges by the dozen. An Ottumwa, Iowa, grocer could think of no logical reason for this except custom, and for the novelty of it he advertised to sell oranges by the half-peck, peck and half-bushel. In figuring up he discovered that oranges were much cheaper per bushel than choice table apples. Consequently the daily papers of Ottumwa carried large advertisements announcing California oranges by the half-peck, peck and bushel at this store. He had a number of measures filled, some with apples, some with oranges, and the prices he quoted for oranges were really cheaper by the measure than those quoted for table apples. At the present time oranges running from 126 to 150 to the box are very desirable sizes.

BIDDING FOR TOURISTS

Western Cities all Want Their Share of Coast Travel.

Duluth Will Benefit From Heavy Movement to Coast.

That every city in the West is making a great bid for the attention of the crowds that are expected to travel across the continent this spring and summer, because of the exposition at Seattle and other attractions that will be held in Western cities this summer is evident from the fact that practically every Western railroad has flooded the offices of the Duluth railroads with literature extolling the resources and attractions of the Western country.

Practically every railroad that runs into the state of Washington or that reaches that state over connecting lines, has pamphlets describing the resources of that state, its agricultural development, and the attractions it possesses for the merchant, the manufacturer, the man seeking a home, or the professional man.

Idaho and Colorado have also sent out volumes of literature setting forth the attractions of these two states to the business man, the farmer, or the manufacturer. The mining resources, the agricultural industry, and the future of these two states are painted in glowing colors. The way the Western people are going after the attention of the traveling public is simply another illustration of the Western hustle.

The Elks will meet at Los Angeles; there will be a big convention at Denver; and another big gathering at Salt Lake City. All three of these cities, not forgetting Seattle of course, are making every effort to get their resources before the public.

Railroad men here are of the opinion that the travel to the coast will be immense. Besides the regular tourist travel, there will be the flood of immigrants, seeking the cheap lands of the West. Then, practically all of the Western railroads will offer cheap landseekers' rates, which in the opinion of the railroad men, will result in an increased immigration travel to the West and the great territory of the Southwest.

A heavy travel to the West will be of material benefit to Duluth. Much of the tourist travel will pass through Duluth. Many of the people going to the Seattle exposition will take the lake trip, going from Duluth over the two Minnesota lines.

A GREATER UNIVERSITY

Duluth Alumni Working to Extend Scope of Institution.

Prof. George James Will Speak on This Topic in Duluth.

There is a growing feeling in the state, that here in Minnesota there is need for a greater university. Such a college would not only extend its benefits and influence to the students who came into immediate contact with it; but would extend its broad influence throughout the state, offering its facilities to all the people.

The Duluth alumni of the university have worked along this line. They have fallen heartily in accord with the sentiment that is growing for a greater university, and in line with this work the local graduates will bring to Duluth Prof. George James, dean of the educational department of the University of Minnesota, who on March 29 at the Y. M. C. A. will speak upon "The Greater University."

There is a growing belief throughout the centers of culture in the country, that a university should be a great forum of knowledge and information, and that this information and the facilities possessed by a university for gaining knowledge, should be placed at the service of the people. The university is owned and endowed by the people of this state, and it should meet their needs, it is claimed.

The broader minded members of the faculty of the university have already advocated such a plan. Some of the members of the faculty are at the present time working with members of the alumni to bring about such a condition. They believe, with members of the alumni, that when a university is lending its knowledge, moral influence, and ideas, to the people as a whole it is performing the highest function that any college can perform.

Prof. James has been one of the foremost members of the faculty engaged in spreading this idea. He was secured for the Duluth appearance through the efforts of the members of the Duluth alumni association, and Dr. F. C. Bowman, the president, and in his address here will tell what he believes should be embodied in the work of a greater university.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

West Duluth Man Held on a Grand Larceny Charge.

Trial of West Duluth Assault Case is Begun.

George Prysazny was arraigned in municipal court this morning on a grand larceny charge and was bound over to the grand jury, upon entering a plea of not guilty. Bail was fixed at $500, which the man was unable to furnish. It is charged that he stole $50 cash from the trunk of John Witowsky, in a West Duluth boarding house.

Joseph Crozier, arrested two weeks ago for an alleged attempt at the burglary of a West end grocery store, was arraigned in police court this morning charged with burglary in the third degree. He pleaded not guilty, and was bound over to the grand jury. Bail was fixed at $200.

Just before noon, in municipal court, the trial of Tony Smaltz and Vasili Luzalet, charged with indecent assault upon the person of Mrs. M. Naronchich, was begun. The assault is said to have occurred in West Duluth. The woman is unable to speak English, and some difficulty was had this morning with interpreters. The first man could not very well understand the woman, and the judge and attorneys had just as much trouble understanding him. It wasn't so bad when he said the woman didn't know what street she lived on, but when he made the statement that she didn't know the first name of her husband, it began to look as if the interpreter wouldn't fill the bill, and a change was asked for. Another man was secured from among the witnesses for the defense.

VERDICT MUST STAND.

Judge Cant Denies Motion for Dismissal of Injury Case.

The motion of the defendant for judgment notwithstanding the verdict and the dismissal of the case of Mike Sakich against the Consumers' Ore company was denied by Judge Cant in district court this morning.

Sakich was given a verdict of $1,500 against the company by a jury in district court. He sued for $15,000 for an injury to his eye, sustained by a piece of iron flying off a hammer when a crew was at work repairing a steam shovel. Sakich was injured at the Yates mine near Buhl, Aug. 2, 1907. The motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict and the dismissal of the case, was argued last Saturday at the special term, and Judge Cant's order denying it, was filed this morning.

HOSPITAL IS IN SIGHT

Council Will Probably Call for Bids Monday Night.

All of the Preliminary Plans Have Been Made.

All preliminaries in connection with the construction of the city contagious hospital have been attended to. The matter will come before the council next Monday evening, and that body, it is expected, will instruct the city clerk to advertise for bids for the hospital's construction. As soon as a bid is accepted, work will be begun on the building, and it will be rushed through to completion.

The site for the structure, at Fourteenth avenue west and Third street, has already been secured. In fact, a whole block has been purchased there. Later on, when the city can afford it, a municipal hospital for the care of all sorts of diseases will be erected, to operate in conjunction with the contagious ward. The council has set aside $15,000 for the construction of the building.

There has been considerable delay in getting the project under way. After the purchase of the site, some legal difficulties presented themselves that had to be straightened out before actual building operations could begin. Then it was learned that all the four sets of plans submitted by local architects called for a larger expenditure than had been provided for by the city. None of the plans came entirely up to the requirements in other respects, either, and it became necessary to call for new plans. The plans as finally approved by Mayor Haven, Health Commissioner Patton, and the committee of Duluth physicians appointed to act on the matter, were furnished by Clyde Kelly.

It is believed that under these plans the building can be erected within the $15,000 limit, although certain parts of it cannot be finished without an additional expenditure. Mayor Haven will insist upon fireproof construction, which is somewhat more expensive than construction that is not fireproof. There is some things about the building that can be left incomplete for a year or two, until more money can be appropriated, without injuring the efficiency of the institution. The hospital will be three stories in height, and will be constructed along the most modern and approved lines. There will be no doors connecting different disease wards, and the elevator shaft will be outside the building proper. It will be necessary to go to the veranda before one can go from the diphtheria to the scarlet fever ward, for example.

"My 3-year-old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. Sold by all druggists.

HEDGEHOG BOUNTIES UP-STATE.

Utica Observer: When the Essex county board of supervisors last year passed a resolution placing a bounty of 25 cents on hedgehogs killed in the county, there were some who claimed that there were not many of these timber and produce destroying animals in the county. The committee on bounties reports that 3,617 hedgehogs had been killed in the various towns. At 25 cents each this brings the total amount paid in bounties on these animals alone up to $804.25, and this amount will undoubtedly be increased a little by claims that will be presented at the December session.

LIST OF WINNERS IN THE BIG "BEN HUR" CONTEST

Names of Those Who Will Comprise Herald Theater Party.

Interest Displayed by Pupils Surprised Even the Editor.

Everything pertaining to the big "Ben Hur" contest, planned and executed by The Herald, has been carried out exactly as per schedule. The list of winners is printed today. They stand exactly as handed in to The Herald by the committee of two teachers, who judged the contest.

The matter of judging was left entirely to the teachers, not one of the letters being opened in the newspaper office. They were sent to the high school unopened, and they were opened for the first time by the judges themselves.

It is unfortunate that there could not have been more than 150 tickets. The teachers had many a difficult job to decide between the papers, and they report that as a whole the essays were of a very high order.

The Herald wishes to congratulate those who won prizes. They won because their essays excelled, and they have reason to be proud.

Notwithstanding the many times the conditions were printed, some disobeyed them in one way or another. The most noticeable one was writing on both sides of the paper. These essays were, of course, thrown out, as they had not lived up to the conditions of the contest. Some forgot to sign their name. Others did not tell their grade, or school. As the contest was for school children, and this was the only means of telling them from others, their essays were thrown out.

Some of the essays were especially strong, and were it not for the reason stated in The Herald last night, the paper would undertake to publish a few of the best ones.

It is all over now and has been the biggest kind of a success from start to finish. The entry list ran up into the hundreds, and the interest taken in the affair by both teachers and children surprised even The Herald.

The theater party comes Monday evening. The tickets will be placed in the hands of Supt. Denfeld Monday morning, and after school hours Monday, those who have found their names in the list printed below may call at the office in the Central high school building and receive their reward.

THE HERALD'S HUMANE CORNER

Conducted by T. E. GRAE.

MANY SCHOOL BOYS OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY INTERESTED IN BIRD BOXES—THE HABITS OF THE COMMON ROBIN REDBREAST : : :

AFTER talking birds all winter, the most natural thing to follow is bird houses. The accompanying cut is from one of several houses built by Mr. Young's manual training class of Aurora, Minn. This particular house was built by John Tom Richards, a boy about 12 years old. The remainder of the houses were placed in the groves near Aurora, and this one will be placed somewhere in Duluth. Boys take great pleasure in building and placing shelters of various kinds for the birds. If this work could be made more universal, our bird question would be settled and settled right, for each little landlord would see to it that his tenants were not molested by anyone.

The bright boy or girl who closely observe nature, noting the places which the birds select by choice for their nesting sites, will be sure to get ideas which may be utilized in making the home grounds a veritable paradise for birds. The birds may not respond very promptly to the first attempt, but the would-be landlord should not get discouraged. Persistent and intelligent effort will bring ultimate results which will be sure to abundantly reward the attempt. Experience is the best of teachers. Prepare some bird homes in as attractive a manner as you can get it, prevent their being disturbed; then watch their ways, profit by your experience, and improve upon the next one one you build and place.

The Robin.

In this country the robin is too common a bird to need an introduction. However, even those who think that they have nothing to learn about the robin will be surprised how much of interest and value can be gleaned by a systematic study of the life history of this species during an entire season. Let this embrace notes on the migration, courtship, home building, food, both for young and adults, how long before young can care for themselves, how many broods in a season, and habits after brooding season. Such records will serve to remove any prejudices, and give an amount of real pleasure that cannot be appreciated until realized by actual participation. Moreover, such a complete and intimate knowledge of a bird will excite a desire for facts regarding other species, which can better be obtained by observation than from books, and thus the observer will soon be able to name all the common resident birds of his locality, and know their relation to mankind. In St. Louis county we have about seventy-five species of birds. This may seem incredible, but that many kinds have been seen by bird students.

Wherever the robin breeds within the confines of civilization, man is its friend, and a natural attachment has grown up that borders on sentiment. Man extends his protection, and the bird rewards him by making his home almost under the same roof tree, displaying a confidence in his human brother that is begotten by lack of fear.

That the robin is a very beneficial bird there is no doubt, although it is claimed by some persons, especially fruit growers, that it eats cultivated fruit to an injurious extent. This charge, the evidence shows, is confined to special localities and to a very limited period and not at all general. The table of food for the year shows that cultivated fruit is only eaten to any serious extent during the months of June and July, when it amounts to 30 per cent. However, during the same months the insect food amounts to over 46 per cent, thus showing the benefit to largely exceed the damage. The cultivated fruit eaten in the month of October was necessarily waste fruit that was left on trees and vines as worthless. The horticulturist can protect his small fruit crops by growing a few wild fruits for the robins and the cultivated kinds will not be disturbed; but thousands of injurious insects will be eaten that would otherwise be a pest.

A careful study of the food tables abstracted from data furnished by the biological survey, United States department of agriculture, ought surely to convince everyone that the robin is a valuable aid to the people and therefore ought to be protected. The 220 stomachs examined were collected in the territory between Massachusetts and Kansas, and Canada and the Gulf states, excepting a few from California. The contents therefore, must show in a fairly conclusive manner the food that the robin eats during the year. The wild fruit that the robin eats does not affect the relation of the bird to man either way; it is simply one of the methods that Nature provides to distribute seeds of plants. An analysis of the 44 per cent of the robin's food consisting of insects is not only of interest, but is instructive, as it serves to show that during the whole year the average is well kept up. Beetles of various kinds form nearly 19 per cent of the food for the year, in May reaching a maximum of 53 per cent, which is largely of May beetles. There are over sixty species of this genius in the United States, all of which are harmful. The adults sometimes completely defoliate small trees and do great damage to large ones. The larvae of these beetles are known as "white grubs" and are often great pests, especially in strawberry plantations and to pastures where they destroy the roots of the grasses. Several citizens of Duluth have discovered that if they harbor birds in their yards, by feeding them, they keep their trees from being destroyed by these insects. Grasshoppers and crickets are also eaten to a considerable extent, over 8 per cent being the average for the year; in August they comprise over 30 per cent of the food. Both of these classes of insects are serious pests, and any bird that destroys them is too valuable to kill.

The other 17 per cent of insect food consists of moths and butterflies, bees, wasps, ants and bugs. Many larvae of the owlet-moths are eaten, a family which includes caterpillars so well known and dreaded by the name of "cutworms." One robin had no less than forty army worms in its stomach and another contained 125 March flies. Some of these latter destroy the roots of growing plants, especially grass. The wise land owner, whether great or small will use every means in his power to encourage the robin to remain on his premises, for by so doing myriads of noxious insects will be destroyed.

May we not be able to enlist the interest of all citizens of St. Louis county in the crusade against the killing of bird life of whatever the species, in order that our trees and shrubs may be preserved. If you love vegetation it is to your interest to aid us. If you love birds and squirrels it is to your interest to do so.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Chapter of National Society of the Rocky Mountain Club.

"King Rene's Daughter" to be Presented by Dramatic Club.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the efforts of Howard Sinclair and John Majirus, both of Montana, a chapter of the National Society of the Rocky Mountain club will be established at Minnesota. Several meetings have been held and all the Western men have expressed a desire to have such a society established here. The chapter will start out strong, as there are about seventeen Western men who have already signified their intention of helping it along.

This organization has chapters in the leading universities of the East, such as Harvard and Yale, and also in most of the Middle Western universities. The society is a secret one and membership is elective. The pin is of gold shaped as the head of a Rocky mountain goat.

"King Rene's Daughter," a one-act comedy, will be presented by the Dramatic club, Tuesday, March 30, afternoon and evening, in chapel. There have been some changes in the cast, Arthur Allen taking the part of Tristan in place of Augustus Milner, and Arthur Carlson succeeding Mr. Allen as Geoffry. The cast is exceptionally good, Mary Heritage, who plays the role of heroine, having starred in "As You Like It." The scene of "King Rene's Daughter" is laid in medieval France, in Lorraine. There is a fire in King Rene's palace and his daughter, Isolanthe is saved but loses her sight. The doctor, Ebu Johia, tells Iolanthe that she may secure her sight when she is 16, and the play opens on her sixteenth birthday. The heroine has a remarkable opportunity for showing her talent, as the whole play centers about her.

Tryouts for places on the intra-sophomore debate teams have been chosen. The men are Thompson, Conimer and S. S. Dahl, opposed by Nichols, Prebe and Chase. The question to be debated in the finals is: "Resolved, that United States senators should be elected by popular vote, constitutionality granted." The finals are to be in April.

"Sinclair's Shingle Social," which is scheduled for next Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building, bids fair to be the biggest surprise of the year. It is to be a very unique entertainment and a lively time is in store for all those who attend. These so-called, shingle socials have proved very popular at other colleges and enthusiasm here has been aroused and is running high.

The new university hospital, located at 300 Washington avenue S. E., is ready for the occupancy of patients. The hospital opened Monday, and the training school for nurses in which a four-months' course of instruction will be given, has been started in connection. This course is preliminary to a two years' training course. A certificate from the local, family or city physician is required for admittance to the hospital. This certificate will describe the nature of the patient's illness and will vouch for the fact that he is unable to pay ordinary professional, physicians' or hospital fees.

The name of the senior class play which up to this time has been shrouded in mystery, came very nearly being divulged yesterday. A co-ed member of the committee which is writing the now nearly completed play, in talking enthusiastically of the production, let slip that a word of the title would be "Arrow." Since "Cupid" usually acompanies this word, it is thought that this word also may go into the name of the play. Nothing is known of the plot of the play, for according to the usual precedent this will not be divulged until the day it is presented. Camella Waite, Esther Chapman, Alta Churchhill and Allen Stock, joint authors of the senior drama, declare it is very unique. Exclusive of the specialties there will be twenty-four characters. The play will be staged at the Metropolitan as last year.

The name is rather mysterious. It has a Hawthornesque tinge to it, but the committee insist that it is going to be very collegiate and not a bit literary. When asked if the name was a department in the March Minne-Ha-Ha, the playwrights looked scornful and refused to answer.

Rev. W. S. Richardson has been called from New York to assume the duties of a university pastor. Mr. Richardson has been secured through the efforts of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. committees appointed for this purpose and will assume his duties next fall. Rev. Richardson is at present assistant pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church of New York, the church in which John D. Rockefeller is actively interested, and also is the organizer of the famous Standard Oil Bible class, which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., leads. Mr. Richardson graduated from Brown university, where he was president of the Y. M. C. A., and general secretary of the Brown division of that body. After graduation, he completed a course in the Harvard Theological college.

AFRICAN CHURCH TO RAISE $1,000

St. Mark's Congregation Plans Big Rally for July 4.

Members of St. Mark's African M. E. church are going to raise $1,000 by the Fourth of July, which is the date set for the silver jubilee of the church organization.

The congregation has been divided into ten companies, each determined to raise $100 before the national birthday. The money will be used to pay off a $700 mortgage on the church property and other debts of the congregation.

The bishop, Right Rev. C. F. Schaffer, will be present and deliver the jubilee address. Addresses will also be delivered by other pastors of the district.

Following are the captains of the congregation companies which are to raise the money:

Mrs. Monroe Brown, Mrs. William Johnson, Mrs. John Mobley, Mrs. Martha Steele, Mrs. Robert Newsome, Mrs. Minnie Richey Adams, Mrs. Charles Colby, Mrs. Charles Black, Mr. Joseph Tunstall and the pastor.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Cures backache and irregularities that if neglected might result in Bright's disease or diabetes.

WOMAN IS INSANE.

Mother of Fifteen Children Imagines Husband is Trying to Starve Her.

Mrs. Mary Zykowski, 44 years of age, who is the mother of fifteen children, was yesterday declared insane in the probate court and will be sent to the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls.

The woman is the wife of a miner at Ely. She has a hallucination that her husband is trying to starve her, although there is always plenty to eat in the house. Twice before she has been confined in an insane asylum. The last time was in 1907.

Are doctors good for anything?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you.

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Don't Forget!

Three Times a Day

As a gentle, non-intoxicating, tonic medicine, every tired woman should take a spoonful of Cardui, three times a day.

Cardui will help you to get back your strength, by increasing your appetite, toning up your nerves, regulating the proper working of your womanly organs, and building up the natural, resisting power of your tissues, against fatigue and disease.

The details of how it does this, it is not necessary to explain.

The thing to remember is, that it obtains its results, by acting upon the female constitution, being a medicine for women and not by any manner of means for men.

Take Cardui then, ladies, for it will surely help you, as it has helped a million others, in the past 50 years.

Mrs. Fannie Ellis, of Foster, Ark., writes: "I was sick for seven (7) years, with female trouble. Every month, I would very nearly die, with my head and back. Half the time, I could not stand on my feet, without great pain. I took 12 bottles of Cardui and was cured, fat, healthy and stout. Cardui is a God-send to suffering women." Try it. Sold everywhere.

TRAINING WILL BEGIN

High School Athletes to Get Busy During Spring Vacation.

Much Rivalry as to Who Will Make Minneapolis Trip.

The balmy spring weather brings joy to the hearts of the Central high school athletes.

Monday the spring vacation will begin and continue throughout the week. Many of those who are to try for places on the team will get out during the next week and begin their spring training.

Directly after the opening of school for the last stretch, a meeting of the athletic association will be held and the date for the local meet to determine who is to represent Duluth at Minneapolis decided.

Some of the men have been hard at it for the past two or three weeks, but most of the work has been done in the gymnasium. Now that the snow is nearly gone, the long distance runners expect to get out each night for open air practice.

Capt. Ernest Merritt of the team says that prospects for a winning team were never better. There are several sprinters in the school and any number of long distance men.

The interest is very great in the big Minneapolis meet to be held in that city under the direction of Dick Grant the later part of May. All the boys are anxious to make the trip, and there will be more competition for places on the team than ever before.

A dual meet with Blaine of Superior may be arranged in addition to the local meet to be pulled off at Athletic park, the date to be decided at the spring meeting of th athletic association.

The Duluth school has never been overly strong in track athletics, due, no doubt, to the fact that it has up to this time been impossible to stir up interest in this branch of sport. This year there is both interest and a wealth of material.

Trainer Heistand will train the men and act as coach so far as possible. He was a classmate of Dick Grant's and uses the same methods employed by famous coach.

Prospects look bright all around for a successful team.

Clabby vs. Bob Stavin.

New Orleans, March 20.—Jimmy Clabby of Milwaukee will meet Bob Stavin of California in a 10-round fight before the Royal Athletic club here tonight. George Kilson of New York and Bert Garlic, a local bantamweight, are scheduled for a 10-round preliminary.

THE LAST OF THE SEASON

Benefit Ski Tournament Will Be Held at Chester Hill Sunday.

All the Old Favorites Will Be Entered In Event.

The benefit ski tournament to be held on Chester hill Sunday afternoon for Chris Gundhus, the Superior rider who broke his leg while riding on the Duluth hill some three weeks ago, promises to be successful in every way.

The Duluth and Superior clubs are combining to give the tournament, and each one is contributing to the expense fund. The riders have donated their services free of charge, and as the price of admission has been lowered considerably, it is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season will turn out.

All the old favorites will be in line, and as the hill is in first-class shape, the event will no doubt prove very successful.

MARATHON STARS WILL COMPETE

Outdoor Race Planned for Polo Grounds in New York.

New York, March 20.—Early next month an outdoor Marathon, open to the world, will be run off at the Polo ground. It will be a professional sweepstake, and it is expected that the field will include the greatest distance men in the world—Shrubb, Hayes, Simpson, Dorando, White, Svanberg, Longboat and Maloney, and possibly one or two of the crack amateurs.

Such a race was hinted at a couple of months ago, but nothing definite had been settled at that time. Now everything has been arranged but the date, and that will be made public in the near future.

Powers and Pollock are promoting the event, and this insures the appearance of Longboat and Dorando at any rate. As Charley Harvey, Johnny Hayes' new manager, is close to the combine, the little Irish-American can also be numbered among the probable starters. Unless the tour Ernie Hertberg is arranging for him interferes, Svanberg will most likely start, and Tom Eck is so confident of Simpson's ability to show a clean pair of heels to the best of them that Fred may safely be counted upon to start. White and Maloney are both seeking matches. Shrubb still believes that he can go the route—and he is not alone in his belief—so it is not thought that the promoters will have much trouble in getting their men rounded up.

This race, if it fills at all, will be the biggest thing ever known in the professional Marathon line. With the possible exception of Jom Crowley, there is not a man in the amateur ranks today who could defeat the runners named above. They are the best in the world at the Marathon distance.

The capacity of the Polo grounds is all that will limit the size of the crowd. When half a million people will stand in the streets for hours just to catch a glimpse of the runners as they go by once and then wait an hour or two more to see them returning, it is easy to figure how many would dig down to see real champions run the entire distance.

The purse for which the runners will compete will be one of the biggest ever offered for a foot race. Powers and Pollock think so much of the idea that they will guarantee $10,000 or $12,000, with a percentage privilege. A conservative estimate places the attendance at between 30,000 and 40,000. If the rates which have obtained at the garden are cut in half, the gate will still be a record-breaker.

The track will be laid outside the diamond and skirting the outfield. The sod will be taken up, and the very newest ideas in track-building followed.

Pugilist Recovers.

New Orleans, La., March 20.—"Kid" Farmer, pugilist, of Peoria, Ill., was dismissed from the Charity hospital yesterday. He was taken there late last night in an unconscious condition after striking his head on an iron bar on an excursion steamer. It was at first thought that he had suffered concussion of the brain.

JEFF CALLED A "HAS-BEEN" BUT DOESN'T SEEM TO MIND

New York, March 20.—To see ourselves as others see us is only given to a few. James J. Jeffries was one of those few. As a rule, when one gets such a view of himself it is only by accident, and the exhibitor is always more or less perplexed as to how to smooth things over.

Funny thing about it is that the sight of one possessed by others is never especially complimentary. And "Big Jim" was overwhelmed when he got a disinterested view of himself.

Jeff got up in the morning feeling good, tramped from the Hotel Albany up Broadway to Forty-sixth street and turned into the barber shop presided over by that well known tonsorial artist, "John the Barber," who, since he retired from the business of being angel for a musical comedy, has gone back to giving close shaves in the rear of the Gaiety theater.

Jeff entered the shop unannounced and no person recognized the big fellow. "Looie" was the artist whose finger wigwag caught the fighter's attention, and he dropped into his chair. "Looie" is full of everything that goes to make up the news of the day and is not noted for his taciturnity. He has disturbed more naps in a barber chair than any other barber in New York. He holds the Marathon barber talk record.

"Looie's deft fingers fitted the towel under Jeff's neck. He passed his hand once or twice over the jaw that has felt the caresses of some of the world's greatest gladiators; he ran his fingers through the champion's flowing locks and suggested a little tonic for the cure of dandruff.

The big fellow grunted and "Looie" got busy. He rattled the brush around in the cup, smeared the lather over the massive plug of the Golden State pride, washed it off with a sponge dipped in hot water, after he had carefully rubbed it in; lathered it up again and commenced.

"Weather seems to have settled after the big storm."

"Umph-umph."

"Must have had a tough time of it down in Washington."

"Umph."

"New York suits me all right inauguration time."

No reply to this. "Looie" realized he had struck the wrong lead.

"Think business will improve, now Taft's in?"

"Dunno."

Another wrong lead.

"Pretty hot play, that 'Girl From Rector's.'"

No reply. In bad again. "Looie" took another tack.

"Vaudeville's going to be the great drawer next week."

"Yes?"

"Yes. Every house got a big attraction. Jeffries is the best."

"Think so?"

"Sure. He'll draw like molasses does flies. Do you think he's goin' to fight Johnson?"

"Well, he seems to be in doubt."

"No wonder. I think he's a has-been, myself. Fact is, I never did see him the way other people did. He was all right for a little while, but he soon played out. At that I always thought his fights with the big ones were fixed."

"What made you think that?"

By this time "Looie" saw he had his victim's interest and he waded right in.

"Oh, nothing hardly that you could just name. It was just a sort of feeling of mine. I knew Jeff well when I was in San Francisco. I've always been a pretty good picker when it came to placing money on a fight, and I wouldn't bet the price of a hair cut on Jeff if he goes against the nigger. Is the razor hard, sir?"

"No."

"Well, if you'd seen as much of him as I have, you'd say the same as I do. He may have been there once, but he's all gone now. His wind is bad; he's too fat; he never can come back."

"He doesn't seem to think so himself."

"That's his bluff. He was always a good bluffer. Made a couple of lucky punches, knocked out a big fellow or two, and his size helped him out. The rest of the world got afraid of him. My opinion is that if Johnson ever goes at him he'll make him feel like a man with a straw hat near the Times building in March. It's surely coming to him if he mixes with that coon. Little bay rum, sir?"

"No!" (real short like).

"Little water on your hair? Better try some of our dandruff cure, sir."

"Nuh."

"Your skin's a little tender. Hard to shave a man with a tender skin like yours without cutting him, sir. Brush boy."

The brush boy came and was busy renovating Mr. Jeffries' apparel. "Looie" was shaking out his cloth and getting ready for another victim. The door opened and in came Jack Welsh and Henry J. Goldsmith. They both saw the big fellow at once, and made a rush for him.

"Jeff!" shouted Welsh, clasping his big paw with both hands, "I'm delighted."

"Jim," said "Our Attorney," "I just run up from Atlantic to shake your mitt."

"Looie" took another good, long look at his late customer. Then he fell in a fit. Jeff smiled, shook hands with his friends and walked out into the bracing air of Broadway.

MARATHON BUG GOING AROUND

Long Distance Craze Hits Every Large City in Country.

New York, March 20.—Instead of the Marathon craze abating the once-classic event seems to be gathering strength with the completion of every run. The desire to participate in the nerve-racking, body-exhausting struggle of twenty-six miles 285 yards has spread from coast to coast, while events of a similar nature have seized the athletically inclined Britons as well with a still firmer grip. Memphis is to be the scene of an all-Southern amateur Marathon next autumn and the $250 trophy has already created a furore of excitement among the "harriers" south of the Mason and Dixie line.

And the dual Marathons that received their birth in the country with the Hayes-Dorando race in the Garden have also gripped the out-of-town sporting population. Mahgesahnequa, a Canadian Indian, who some day hopes to rival Tom Longboat, will run the Attic distance against Hughey Bruce in the Auditorium rink at Chicago.

The success and great excitement attendant upon the now historic Marathon from Windsor Castle to Shepherd's Bush stadium, has created a desire among Englishmen to perpetuate the event. It is planned to hold an annual run over the same course on which Johnny Hayes sped the American flag to victory last summer. This year's event will be held on May 8, and the start will be made from Windsor castle. The London Sporting Life had donated a perpetual trophy valued at $2,500, and the race will be in charge of the Polytechnic Harriers.

PRIZE FIGHTERS HAVE MANY TEMPTATIONS

The hours of idleness between training periods often have as much effect on a fighter's future as the way his matches are made, the manner he is trained, or his handling while engaged in actual combat.

One of the greatest winners who ever presided over a stuff is a general who stands in good with all nations. Gen. Dissipation is the nom de plume, and it is during the idle times of a fighter's life that they become acquainted with this old warrior, who seems to have won the affection of the best of them. He leads them to "speed carnivals."

Lights of all colors attract, the red and white being particularly magnetic to a fighter with a tank roll, a reputation, and "pals." And once he has headed this way the end is not far, the roll wilts, his ability dims, and his pals desert him for newer and more succulent acquaintances.

Ring history cites many instances of the downfall of champions, who were beaten by things not connected with the fighting game; their names and their faults are known, but they do not seem to act as a guide to the present generation of youngsters, especially in Philadelphia, which has as earnest a bunch of little fellows as grace the ring.

"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien is one of the greatest examples of the possibilities of the American ring. He is the middleweight champion of the world, and has spent his life in cultivation of his muscles and brain. He has fought the best men in the world successfully, and he has studied sufficiently to transact all of the business of his club, the West End Athletic club, and he has read the best of literature and is a scholar of no mean class.

Battling Nelson is another champion who has always taken good care of himself and his money. Good habits and a good constitution have caused Nelson to have a bank account in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Abe Attell is another wise guy. Attell takes good care of himself, fights oftener probably than any other champion, but always gets the money and seldom gets the worst of the argument.

Freddie Welch, who of late has been much in the limelight, is a model young man. He is the only vegetarian fighter in the ring, never partaking of meat of any kind.

Of course, there are others who walk in the straight and narrow path, but for every one it would be possible to name ten others who like the glare of the white light, the clink of the glass and the pace that kills.

MAKES BIG POT ON ONE FIGHT

McIntosh's Splendid Nerve Gets Him Fortune in One Night.

London, March 20.—Three hundred thousand dollars is the tidy and satisfactory sum that the Burns-Johnson fight at Rushcutters bay will net Hugh D. McIntosh, the Australian promoter.

The fight itself had a gross and record taking of $130,000), of which $80,000 was clear profit. Forty thousand souvenirs were sold for a quarter each, representing $10,000 net, as the expenses of printing and distribution were more than met by the advertisements. Mr. McIntosh's percentage of the takings from "fans" who paid to see Johnson and Burns train amounted to $2,500.

The copyright pictures of the fight netted another $2,500. Up to February the bioscope films in Australia alone furnished Mr. McIntosh with $60,000, and later cables report no diminution in interest, which means that in the land where the fight took place $5,000 a week is still being added to the promoter's capacious purse.

In England Mr. McIntosh has disposed of the British rights for a guaranteed $35,000 and a percentage.

He has an offer from a French concern of $7,500 and a percentage for the film rights for that country. Germany is willing to give another $5,000. Austria Hungary, the Ottoman Empire, China, Japan, the Philippines, South America and Canada are spiritedly bidding for the rights. In the United States vaudeville firms and picture firms in dozens are asking for exclusive or sectional rights.

Mr. McIntosh counts his profits at $300,000 already. He is a conservative man. Others believe that the ultimate profit will reach near the half million mark.

What manner of man is this new star in fight promoting who offers $40,000 and $50,000 purses and puts our Coffroths in the shadow?

Down under the line in Australia, where he was born the son of an Irish private in the Black Watch, they call him "Square Deal Mac." When the dispute arose over the choice of a referee, and Johnson objected to Snowy Baker, one of the best known of Australian sportsmen, because he was a blonde," the "Texas Brunette" spoke up and said: "I know you are a friend of Burns, but all I want is a square deal, Mac, and I know I'll get that from you. You will suit me for referee."

In England all that was known of McIntosh was that he was the lessee of a number of hotels in the National Parks and Anustrallan Alps. When he came to England he was sized up, weighed, dissected, and the fraternity here in a short time were unanimous that McIntosh deserved his complimentary title of "Square Deal."

Personally, he is, on first sight, a small man. He is about middle height, slightly stooped, with the tan and black hair typical of his country. His eyes are laughing blue; his mouth large and generous, and when he smiles, as he usually does, disclosing a mouthful of white, sound teeth, his whole face takes on the appearance of a big-hearted credulous sort of person, who would buy a gold brick without ever thinking of applying the acid.

Talk with him five minutes, and the small man seems to have grown to a giant. The eyes that laughed are cold and glinting, the mouth that had a baby smile is firm and set, and the teeth could even give points in determination to the famous fangs of the only Teddy. You notice then that his hands are as powerful as Fitzsimmon's, that his muscular make-up is tremendous for a man of his size. When he tells you that in the rough house that started in his office between Burns and Johnson he pushed the former against the wall and held him there, you believe him. He tells you that Burns was as weak as a cat, but you feel that if Burns was in the prime of his strength he could have forced him against the wall and held him there just the same.

HIS OPINION OF HIMSELF NOT BAD

San Francisco Pitcher to Burn Things Up in Chicago—Maybe.

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—If confidence counts for anything Harry Sutor, the new left-hander of the White Sox, ought to be the king of pitching marvels. He is already asking for permission to open the season against the Tigers at Detroit, April 14.

"I'd just like a chance to get at all those left-handed hitters," said the side-wheeler last night during a fanning bee. "They have got five left-handers, and I want just one crack at them. Maybe they could give me mine, but just let me at 'em. That's all I ask."

Sutor's firm belief in his own ability doesn't amount to swell-headedness, and he is not so sure of his job as to be offensive. He is just game clear through and feels that he has a victory cinched as soon as he is announced to pitch.

Everything in the baseball business lays before the young southpaw. He is a little over 21 years old, strong as a bull and already a crafty fellow, who knows the value of a change of pace and kindred tricks. His fielding and the left-handers' chief asset—how to make base runners stick close to first—are not developed to half their possibilities. Moreover, those tricks are not easy to learn either, and perhaps Sutor will not be fortunate enough to pick them up.

WORLD'S RECORDS GO.

Winnipeg Horse Does Half Mile on Ice in One Minute.

Winnipeg, Man., March 20.—At the horse races at Kenora, Ont., yesterday afternoon two world's records on an ice track were broken. Little Payne went the half mile, trot or pace, in 1:01. In the second heat of the free-for-all, Little Payne again lowered the world's record, covering the half mile with 22 feet additional in one minute flat. This horse is owned by H. B. Harrison of Winnipeg.

Yale Wrestlers Win.

New Haven, Conn., March 20.—The intercollegiate wrestling match between Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Columbia was won for the fifth time last night by Yale, no other college having ever taken it. Yale made 12 points, Princeton 8, Cornell 6, Pennsylvania 1 and Columbia 0.

William A. Goebel, the football guard, retained the intercollegiate heavyweight championship by defeating Talbot of Cornell, the latter having won the honor last year.

Westerners in Lead.

Boston, Mass., March 20.—Maintaining an average of .65 points throughout his match with Allen Mason of Boston, Charles Morin of Chicago last night won the second of a series of three matches of three-cushion billiards in which Western players are meeting local billiardists. His total score was 50 to Mason's 32, and he scored five for a high run.

Morin's victory gives the Westerners the first two games. Dr. Will Campbell of St. Louis having won Thursday night.

The Thornton Stakes.

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—The most important four-mile race of the American turf will be decided this afternoon, when six horses face the barrier at Oakland for the Thornton stakes valued at $5,000. At least four of the starters are cracks in a distance race and the betting is evenly divided. Nadzu is considered a sure winner in case of rain. Cloyne has been shipped from Arcadia especially for the big stakes and will carry much Los Angeles money. A big crowd is expected to witness the famous race.

CONGRESS NEARS END

Lipman Team of Chicago First in Five-Men Class.

Al and Tony Schwoegler Win in the Doubles.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 20.—The last day's session of the ninth annual international tournament of the American Bowling congress started today at 9 a. m., with two double and four single events participated in by teams from Chicago, Columbus, Cleveland and Western Pennsylvania points.

The roll off of the tie for the first individual honors between F. Bruggeman of Sioux City, Iowa, and Larry Sutton of Rochester, N. Y., who both have 691 to their credit, will take place tonight.

The prize winners in the three classes, five-men, two-men and individuals, have been compiled by the Associated Press, and while twenty-four hours in advance of the official list, it is not believed the scores of the games yet to be played will materially, if at all, change the result.

First honor in the five-men class is captured by the Lipman team of Chicago, with a world's record score of 2,962. Their prize is $700.

Al and Tony Schwoegler of Madison, Wis., are first in the double class with a world's record score of 1,304. Their prize is $430.

First place in the individual class is undecided. F. Brueggeman of Sioux City, Iowa, and Larry Sutton of Rochester, N. Y., are tied for this honor with a score of 691. The tie will be rolled off this evening.

In the all-events honor roll, J. Blouin of Chicago is first with a score of 1,885. His prize is $160.

There are sixteen prizes to be awarded in the all-event list, with a total cash amount of $840.

GETS DECISION OVER PAPKE

Jim Flynn Defeats Former Champion at Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 20.—Jim Flynn was given a decision over Billy Papke in a ten-round bout last night.

Flynn was the aggressor in every round, but at no time did he have Papke close to being out.

Fynn started the bout by getting Papke's nose to bleeding in the first round and the first three rounds were Flynn's by a wide margain, but after that Papke straightened out and held his own until the final round, when he seemed to weaken. In the seventh Flynn chased Papke to the ropes repeatedly, reaching him with blows until just before the close of the round, when he drove Papke through the ropes and then fell through himself.

BASEBALL SCORES

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—San Francisco, 3; Chicago Americans, 1.

San Antonio, Tex., March 20.—Detroit Americans, 11; San Antonio, 0.

Raleigh, N. C., March 20.—Philadelphia Nationals, 1; Trinity college, 0.

Pasadena, Cal., March 20.—Chicago Americans No. 1, 12; Los Angeles, 3.

Glover Gets Decision.

New York, March 20.—Johnnie Glover of Boston easily defeated Yankee Schwartz of Philadelphia in a 10-round bout at the Olympic Athletic club here last night. Schwartz was knocked down half a dozen times in the eighth and ninth rounds, but came back and fought strongly in the final round. The boys fought at 115 pounds.

MOST SUCCESSFUL CURLING SEASON IS RAPIDLY DRAWING TO A CLOSE

THE DUNLOP RINK,
Winners of the Bagley Event. Edward Walker, A. J. Wasgott, Harry Dinham and Bert Dunlop, Skip.

WALTER HALL,
One of the Club's Most Successful Skips.

The most successful curling season in the history of the Duluth Curling club, is now practically over. There are still a few games to play, but these will be finished during the early part of the week.

Dunlop won the Bagley event, Hall won the president's. Fentham captured the St. Louis trophy, and Jacobi froze to the Board of Trade buttons. The Herald and Manley-McLennan are not yet finished, but only a few games are required to wind them up and these will be played Monday and Tuesday. Hall and Brewer are winners in the A class in the Manley-McLennan. They will play off the tie, and the winner will meet Dinham's C class rink in the semi-finals. The winner of this game will play Hill's C class rink for the trophy.

In The Herald event, which is only for B and C class rinks, Catterson and Woodruff must decide the winner of the B class and the winner of their contest must meet Hall's C class rink in the finals.

A Great Season.

This will wind up the season, and the roar of the stones will not again be heard until snow flies another winter. It has been a great season. There have been created more new enthusiasts this year than ever before. They have taken to the game in most instances like a puppy to his first bone. If they keep on making curlers it will soon be necessary to enlarge the rink.

The older men have been in the game with renewed vigor this year and their enthusiasm has been a big factor in interesting the younger men.

Representatives from Duluth were sent to two bonspiels this season. One was held at Winnipeg, the other at St. Paul. The Duluthians did not win any prizes at either, but they had a good time, which was what they were after.

There have been many match games with Virginia, Superior and West Duluth. All these games have been greatly enjoyed.

The club this year sent Harry Hurdon, one of the oldest officers of the Duluth club, to Scotland with the Canadian curlers.

During the season many informal banquets have been enjoyed in the club rooms and these were always occasions of much good fun.

The skating ice has been in much demand ever since the season opened. The families of the curlers have been furnished music each Saturday evening. With the curling on one side, the roaring of the stones, mingled with the shouts of the skips, the music of the band, and the merry voices of the skaters on the other, the curling rink this year has been one of the most popular of winter resorts.

Plans for a new home are now being considered. The present site of the rink has to be vacated on thirty days' notice and it is probable that when the season opens next year the club will be in a new home. This matter will be taken up at the annual meeting to be held in the club rooms on the evening of April 6.

On the evening of March 30, at the St. Louis hotel, the season will be formally wound up with the annual banquet. That is always considered the event of the year, and is being looked forward to with much pleasure. The committee is already at work arranging a program and making plans for the biggest banquet ever attempted by the club.

GHETTO CHAMP HAS GOOD RECORD

Abe Attell Is Not Popular as a Fighter, However.

Philadelphia, March 20.—While the sports of the country are besieging James J. Jeffries to come out of retirement and fight Jack Johnson for the world's championship, many of them are ransacking both continents to get Abe Attell beaten. The little featherweight has been champion of his class ever since George Dixon was beaten by Terry McGovern nine years ago. After that contest McGovern was too big to fight at 122 pounds, and was obliged to scale 126 and 128 pounds, which practically made him a lightweight. At the time Attell was a mere boy, being but 16 years of age. The clever little Californian then began his ring career, for in the year 1900 he stopped sixteen opponents in five rounds or less, among them being Eddie Hanlon. Quite an achievement for a 16-year-old boy.

The following year, 1901, he won decisions over five men, including one over George Dixon in 15 rounds. He subsequently fought a 10 and 20-round draw with the late world's champion and added nine more knockouts to his list, being accomplished in four rounds and less. In 1902, when but 18 years old, his march up the pugilistic ladder began, when he beat that tough ring general, Kid Broad, in 20 rounds, and won a 15-round decision over Herrera, the rugged Mexican featherweight. From that date until the present time his record has been nothing more than a succession of draws and victories, the only decisive beating he ever received being a knockout by Tommy Sullivan, Oct. 13, 1904, in St. Louis. It was always rated as a chance punch, as he never could be lured to repeat the trick.

There is probably no boxer in the American ring who has fought the same men so many times as has Abe Attell. He is one of those individuals who has supreme confidence in his own ability. Whenever Attell fought a man and was able to hold him safe, that fellow could have a dozen fights so long as there was any money in sight. He gave Dixon three chances, Kid Broad had two. Attell met Harry Forbes four times. Young Erne had four sessions. Battling Nelson could not offset the elusive little Californian's cleverness in two trials. Eddie Kelly, who was Nelson's sparring partner, was given three opportunities to prove his class. Frank Carsey was beaten twice, Harry Baker had two trials, and Owen Moran of England, had two tryouts. Thus all down the line Attell never denied an opponent a chance to prove his worth, but he invariably had the better of the matchmaking.

Moran was the hardest nut that Attell attempted to crack, as at the end of two bouts the decisions were of the hair line order. The recent bout with Jem Driscoll, no matter from which viewpoint it is regarded, it was nothing to Attell's discredit. He made every concession to the Englishman, who, with Moran, was brought to this country especially to trim the American. That he did not succeed in a decisive fashion is due only to Attell's remarkable skill. When a return bout is made Driscoll will have to make 123 pounds or else there will be no contest.

He has always had a voice in his own matchmaking, is an astute business fellow, and shuns the glitter of dissipation, eludes the hero worshippers, and for that reason has made himself unpopular with the rough classes. That is why two countries are being ransacked to beat him. The class of sports who spend their time in idleness, picking up a dollar here and there, have no time for the fellow who does not loosen up—hence Attell's unpopularity. He was 25 years old on Washington's birthday. Out of more than 200 fights in nine years he has only one decisive beating scored against him. He has a good pair of hands, is as slippery in the ring as the proverbial eel, a past master of the hit and get away game, and at 122 pounds he can hold his own with Driscoll, Moran or any other foreign boxer whom the disgruntled sports care to import. He is the premier featherweight of America, and has clearly earned and honestly defended the title.

A FAMOUS POKER GAME

"Lucky Baldwin" Once Made $465,000 in One Game.

Death of Famous Horseman Brings Notable Game to Mind.

The death in California a few days ago of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, a famous turfman and plunger, recalls to old Californians a poker game in which Baldwin sat some years ago and during the course of which he won a pot containing $465,000, the largest, it is said, in the history of the game in the Golden State. Baldwin was a thorough sport, cool, calm and dispassionate, and as a big poker player he probably never had his equal in this or any other country.

The old Palace hotel, in San Francisco, owned for many years by the late Senator Sharon of Sarah Althea Hill fame, was the scene of the most remarkably poker games ever played in that city and that is saying a great deal. The old California pioneers were as a rule, inveterate gamblers, and among the devotees of the game who were wont to gather in the private card room of the palace at the invitation of Senator Sharon were men high in the professions—eminent lawyers, prominent politicians and wealthy men who forgot the cares of business in the excitement of the game.

Huge Side Bets.

It was not an infrequent spectacle to see Senator Sharon and "Lucky" Baldwin stand at the Palace hotel bar and shake dice by the hour for the drinks, while with a side bet of anywhere from $1,000 to $10,000. Senator Sharon wasn't what is known in poker language as a "hard loser," although he was known to be worth at least $20,000,000. Baldwin, on the other hand, smiled blandly when he lost small fortunes, and his smile was no more pronounced when he raked in his winnings, which at times reached enormous figures.

There was a gathering of the elect at the Palace hotel one night. Six men had gathered at Senator Sharon's request to indulge in a quiet game of draw. Aside from Sharon and Baldwin, there were wealthy Nevada men whom we will call Smith and Brown, a Texas cattle man of great wealth, known as Scott, and one of the most prominent members of the San Francisco bar, now deceased, whose love for poker was unbounded, but whose propensity to bluff against Baldwin on short hands kept him constantly in a state of financial depression. This lawyer, for the purpose of explaining the game definitely, will be known as Mac.

Sharon sat at the head of the table, with Baldwin to his right and Mac to his left. Next to Mac sat Scott, then Smith and Brown. Each player bought chips to the amount of $10,000, the whites being $100, the blues $500 and the reds $1,000. The antee was a white chip, and every pot was a jackpot in accordance with a rule previously adopted by the players.

The play was desultory for an hour or more, few bets in excess of $1,000 being made. Mac was caught bluffing several times by Baldwin, and the other players were resting upon their oars, waiting for the cinch hand in which every poker player has implicit faith and which is confidently looked for at some stage of the proceeding.

When the big pot finally came around Mac had less than $1,000 in his stack. Smith and Brown were a few thousand ahead, while Sharon, Scott and Baldwin stacked up about even.

It was a characteristic of Sharon that whenever he had a poor hand he was extremely jovial, while when he sat facing aces up or three of a kind he became as cold and clammy as an oyster. Baldwin knew this failing, and, like the true poker player, did not fail to take advantage of it. Suddenly, when Mac had deadlt and Baldwin found three kings looking him in the eye he smiled. A glance at Sharon assured him that the senator, too, was well heeled, for he became icy.

"Got a good hand, senator?" inquired Baldwin lightly as he skimmed his own.

"Nothing much," growled Sharon, with an impatient toss of his gray curls. "Have seen better in my time."

By a coincidence every man in the game sat up and looked wise. Smith and Brown appeared to be eager for some one to start something. It was Scott's edge, and he casually opened the pot for a white chip—$100.

"I'll have to hoist that $200," said Smith as he tossed three white chips into the pot.

"See it," said Brown; and he deposited three white chips in the center of the table.

"Looks to a man up a tree as if there was something doing," remarked Baldwin, glancing shyly at Sharon, "There's not enough in the pot, gentlemen, so I'll raise it $1,000." He tossed a red and blue check into the pot and took back two white checks.

The pot contained $2,500 when it was Sharon's turn to see Baldwin's raise or throw his hand into the discard. The senator looked sour as he mentally calculated the chances against the three aces he held.

"I'll see that $1,300 and go it $2,000 better," said he after a pause. Three blues and three whites were thrown into the pot, making the total $8,800.

"I'll see it," said Mac, recklessly, hoping to fill a flush. He found his checks were insufficient, and he asked permission to see Sharon's raise on his I. O. U., which was granted.

Scott hesitated for a moment, then declared himself out of the pot. Smith tossed his hand into the discard, and Brown said wittily that "a hog knew when he had enough," and followed Smith's example. This left Baldwin with Sharon, Mac and Scott behind him to meet any raise that might be made.

"People may disagree as to me being a hog," remarked Baldwin, "but in a smart poker game like this I seldom know when I get enough. So to make it interesting, Senator, I'll raise you $5,000."

Sharon drew two cards to his three aces and he growled deeply when he realized that he had drawn a pair of deuces. Mac drew one card to a heart flush and drew the four of hearts. The three players were heeled for bear and the fur was about to fly. After the draw, Baldwin had the first bet, and he gallerly bet $10,000, writing the figures and affixing his initials to an I O U for that sum. The amount in the pot at this time was $56,100.

Hoisted It $10,000.

"I call that $10,000 and raise it $10,000," said Sharon as he threw his I O U for the sum into the pot. "Guess that'll make you go some, Lucky."

It was Mac's turn to wonder what sort of hands he had dealt. He figured that his flush was worth at least a call, if not a raise, and, morally sure that the money was his, he merely called the bet. He was given a severe jolt when Baldwin, in his cool manner, not only called Sharon's $10,000, but raised him $20,000. Sharon promptly raised Baldwin $30,000, increasing the pot to $156,100 in checks and I O U's that were worth their face value at any bank in California.

"Lucky" Took the Pot.

"Seems to me you are getting to be a high flyer," remarked Baldwin coolly, as he wrote another I O U. "Suppose we make it another $50,000 more, senator?"

The pot now represented $236,000 in value, and still Sharon was not satisfied. He felt that his ace full was the winning hand, and he made the highest bet of the night when he promptly raised Baldwin $60,000. This, with the calling of Baldwin's raise of $50,000, fattened the pot to $346,000.

"You're nervy, senator," laughed Baldwin, "but I'd never look a card in the face again were I to call this hand. So I'm forced to call this $60,000 raise and tilt the pot another $60,000."

Sharon showed the hand, and without much ado Baldwin raked in the pot, which contained $465,000. He then showed four kings, and Sharon flattered himself that his superior wisdom had enabled him to save $60,000 at a critical moment.

PROSPECTS ROSY AT WISCONSIN

Practice Season Opens With Plenty of Candidates for Nine.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—This week saw the close of the Badger basket ball and indoor track seasons, and baseball promises to be the major sport for some time. With the first game a month away, Coaches Barry and Hutchins have outlined hard work in the cage for the squad, which now numbers fifty men.

Tom Barry is believed to be one of the best baseball coaches in the West, and, although there was a scarcity of material last year, he laid the foundations for the present season, which promise to be a brilliant one. The Illini are feared more than the other conference nines, and the Badgers are expecting their first hard tussle when the Illinois team comes to Madison April 24.

Outfielders are chiefly in demand, and many positions are practically open still. Five "W" men and three promiennt subs from last year's team form the nucleus of the squad. Capt. "Dug" Knight, who gave several spectacular pitching exhibitions last year, reports that his arm is in fine condition for the season's work. He will be assisted by Johns, his pitching mate last year, and Nash, who was a substitute pitcher.

Muckleston, of football fame, and left fielder a year ago, is out strong for the catcher's position. He is being gallerly bet of competition by Paulus and Fess, who caught on freshman teams a year ago. "Bud" Culver, one of the strongest men on the nine last year, is again slated for shortstop, and Baley expects to hold down third base again.

There is also plenty of good material among the men who are now eligible for the first time because of the freshman rule. Rumors that "Keckle" Moll, quarterback on the football team, was handed a "con," have proved to be groundless, and Moll is now out for an infield position on the baseball team. Timmers and Flanagan look good for first base, and Pergande for an outfield position. Lupinski, who broke his kneecap by colliding with Muckleston in a class game two years ago, has gotten into shape again and reported for practice.

WILL KEEP HIS WORD.

Portland, Or., March 20.—Fielder Jones, who is in Portland, said when shown the Chicago dispatch:

"I did name $20,000 as my price when I came through Chicago, but I never gave it directly to Comiskey, and I have no intimation that I am to receive such an offer from him. Consequently I cannot say what I will do with an offer that I have not yet received. I have made no plans to return to baseball."

That is all Jones would say, but he has previously stated that he had named a price so high that Comiskey would never come up to it, but, if by any chance he did, that having given his word, he would accept.

Buys Fast Pacer.

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—The Limit, a green 5-year-old pacer, which as a 3-year-old, worked a mile in 2:10, has been sold to Mr. Estabrook of Denver, the owner of Spanish Queen, Lou Crellin of Pleasanton, received $10,000 for the animal. The Limit is by Searchlight, out of Bertha. The horse will be shipped by express today in charge of Gus Macey, driver and trainer for Estabrook.

MUCH WORK IS IN SIGHT

Several Big Street Improvement Contracts to be Let.

Sixth Street and Garfield Avenue May be Paved.

The board of public works is getting in readiness to begin street improvement work in the spring. From present indications the amount of street paving to be done during the year 1909 will be unusually large. Several big jobs are in sight, and there are numerous smaller ones to be undertaken.

One of the big contracts to be let will be for the paving of Sixth street, from Cascade park to Woodland avenue, a distance of twenty-two blocks. There is some question whether this paving really will be completed, as a matter of fact, for there is now a proposition up to only grade the street and make several necessary fills, the argument being that if pavement is laid so soon after putting in the fills, the street might settle and injure the improvement, making it necessary to do it over again. In view of this attitude being taken by some of the property owners, it may be decided to postpone the work for one year.

It is proposed to pave the same street from Vista street to Wallace avenue, which is about Twenty-eighth avenue east. This will be a continuation of the improvement proposed for the westerly end of the street.

Probably the first paving job of any consequence to be undertaken this spring will be on Twenty-fifth avenue east and upon Sixth and Eleventh avenues east. The plan is to pave Twenty-fifth avenue from First to Eighth street, and Eleventh avenue east from Second to Fifth street.

Sixth avenue east will be paved from Superior street to Fourth street. It is now up to the property owners interested whether they want the block between Superior street and First street paved, or whether a concrete walk and stairway will be satisfactory. The grade is so steep there as to be almost prohibitive for horses. It a stairway is not built a winding roadway, reducing the grade from 18 per cent to 11½ per cent, will be constructed.

First avenue east is to be paved from Superior to Second street. Another job will be the grading and paving of Hardy street, from Columbus avenue to Princeton avenue, at Woodland. Another proposed paving is Fourth street from Mesaba avenue to Sixth avenue east, and another is Twentieth avenue east from First street to Fourth street.

It now looks as if money for the improvement of Garfield avenue would be provided this year. This improvement will cost in the neighborhood of $108,000.

BUOYANCY IS STILL LACKING

Trade Reports Are of a Hopeful Character, However.

New York, March 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

Most of the tests by which trade activity is measured make favorable records. Reports from the principal cities are of a generally hopeful character, but the fact remains that there is still lacking that buoyancy and readiness to make long commitments ahead, which are features of a trade situation entirely free from unsettling uncertainties. The week has witnessed the introduction of a tariff bill making large cuts in duties on iron and steel and other products, but apparently less is apprehended from this than from a possible failure of congress to heed the words of President Taft and get through with the tariff business as soon as possible. The coal trade is confronted with a labor crisis. The iron trade continues in the process of price readjustment, though a slow revival in structural lines is a reflection of increased activity in building. Copper has experienced further depression. Printers report little new business, while Southern ginghams continue to be active. In the woolen goods division clothiers are urging the early distribution of samples, with a view of going on the road the first week of April. Worsteds, both skein and piece dyed, are still in good demand, with many requests for immediate delivery. Woolen and worsted yarns are moving slowly, with no material change in quotations. Linen and jute yarns are strong and fairly active.

New business in footwear continues small, but some New England manufacturers have reserve orders which will last them for some time. Calf and similar goods are in moderate request and some specialties are favored, but as yet the local Eastern demand has not reached former proportions. Trade in hides show considerable improvement. The demand for leather continues very slow, consumers only supplying their needs. Prices are weak, but union backs are steady, and there is some improvement in export demand for hemlock sole. All kinds of upper stock are dull.

There is a suggestion of permanence in the slow but steady revival in structural lines of iron and steel. Demand is light in the wire trade, but considerable inquiry has developed for pipe.

VILLAIN IN AMATEUR SHOW REALLY SHOT.

Mount Vernon, Ill., March 20.—John Moake, the "villain" in an amateur performance by pupils of the Grand Center school, south of here, was shot in the forehead and dangerously wounded by the hero, Roy Slater. The cartridge, which was thought to have been a blank, was prepared by Moake, who cut the bullet off close to the rim of the shell. After he was shot he said he did not think there was enough of the bullet in the shell to hurt. The bullet is lodged in the nasal bone.

HEIGH-HO! HERE'S A NEW OCEAN MAIL SUBSIDY BILL.

Washington, March 20.—Representative Humphrey of Washington has introduced an ocean mail subsidy bill, over which it is expected the ship subsidy fight of the Sixty-first congress will be made. The bill grants to vessels of the second class on routes to South America, the Philippines, China and Japan, the same pay for carrying the mails as is now allowed to vessels of the first class.

This is the bill that Senator Gallinger had planned to introduce in the senate, but it is understood he will not present it at this time. It differs from the one considered at the last session in as much as it does not increase the pay for vessels of the third class.

THE CENTER of the STAGE

THE FAMOUS YACHT SCENE AND "ROBERT OBER" AS MONTY BREWSTER. IN "BREWSTER'S MILLIONS."

"Ben-Hur."

Manager C. A. Marshall of the Lyceum theater, always judicious in his choice of bookings for that playhouse, has made an exceptionally happy selection in securing "Ben Hur" as a mid-Lenten attraction. The number of dramatic productions which can boast of suffering no appreciable depression in point of box office receipts during the penitential season, are few, and of these few "Ben Hur" leads all competitors. In fact, it may be said in all truth that there are countless playgoers who consider a visit to "Ben Hur" an important essential of this period of sacrifice and prayer. The reason for this remarkable popularity is that the story of "Ben Hur" is so closely associated with the Bible. Since its first production by Klaw & Erlanger at the Broadway theater in New York city almost ten years ago, the religious standard of this wonderful "Tale of the Christ" has been carefully maintained. "Ben Hur" enjoys the distinction of being indorsed by ministers of every denomination, and it is a well-known fact that people who never entered a theater sit in rapt and awed reverence as the great drama is unfolded before them, with its wonderful series of pictures and its absorbing and exciting action. The play appeals to people in all walks of life. The regular theatergoer is thrilled by its realism and charmed by the love story that runs through the play, and the religiously inclined draw inspiration and moral strength from the subtle influence which pervades every line and scene of the drama.

From the moment when the curtain rises on the impressive tableau of the Star of Bethlehem to the final scene, when the drama ends with a burst of triumphal music, the action moves with a sweep that reaches its culmination in the great race scene, the most marvelous mechanical invention ever shown on the stage. In this superb picture of Roman luxury in the most Romanized of any city in Asia Minor, Antioch, the two men who are the central figures in the story—the prince of the Judean House of Hur and the Roman Messala—battle for life, love, honor and fortune, and Ben Hur wins the terrific struggle, completely destroying the power and influence of his enemy.

"Ben Hur" will fill an engagement of three nights at the Lyceum theater begining with Monday evening's performance. There will also be a special matinee on Wednesday.

This season's cast includes such well-known people as Conway Tearle, Mitchell Harris, Anthony Andre, John M. Troughton, William Leyden, Charles H. O'Donnell, Charles Canfield, Walter Markham, Daniel E. Hanlon, Alice Haynes, Florence St. Leonard, Loyola O'Connor, Zadiee Appleton and Maud Ream Stover.

Theatergoers should bear in mind that the curtain is raised on "Ben Hur" performances promptly at 8 o'clock in the evening and at 2 o'clock at the matinees, and late comers will not be seated until the conclusion of the prelude—a beautiful scene representing the Star of Bethlehem as it appeared to the Wise Men, accompanied by the grand symphonic orchestral and vocal score composed by Edgar Stillman Kelley.

"Brewster's Millions."

There is a keen interest felt in the coming of the Cohan & Harris' comedians in "Brewster's Millions," which holds forth at the Lyceum next Thursday, Friday and Saturday with matinee on Saturday.

"Brewster's Millions" has made an unprecedented hit in London, New York, Chicago and other large cities throughout the world and is declared to be one of the greatest comedies offered to the public in recent years. The play is from George Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same name, and tells of Montgomery Brewster, who tries to spend $1,000,000 in one year. The first act of the play shows Brewster in possession of $1,000,000. He has been living at the home of Margaret Gray and her mother, but when he becomes a millionaire he establishes elaborate apartments of his own, and the first act represents his friends gathered to welcome him in his new home. While this housewarming is going on Brewster, or "Monty" as he is called, is notified that an uncle has left him $7,000,000 provided that at the expiration of one year he becomes absolutely penniless. The information so astonishes the young man that he is almost speechless, but he finally accepts the conditions of his uncle's will, and begins a plan to spend the money. The first act is only an introduction for the most unusual occurrences in the next three. The second act shows the young man in full swing, spending money as recklessly and wastefully as could be imagined. A great deal of comedy is the result, a score of office boys carrying long drawn-out telegrams, and a large staff of employes doing nothing for handsome salaries. There is a love story cleverly worked in the plot, and spending $4,000 a day is not all that occupies Monty's time. Peggy Grey, at whose home he formerly lived, gives him much uneasiness, because she refuses to understand his unheard of behavior.

The third act finds Brewster and all the friends he could gather together on board the yacht Flitter, taking a cruise around the world. The yacht is complete in all visible details and the marine effect is exceedingly striking. The storm, which takes place, is most thrilling and wonderfully well brought out. The fourth act shows Brewster in his rooms and after several interesting complications he finally gets rid of every penny of the first $1,000,000 and comes into possession of the $7,000,000 and also the girl. Cohan & Harris provided the piece with a superb cast of comedians, headed by Robert Ober.

At the Bijou.

Commencing Monday afternon, patrons of the Bijou will have a chance to witness the performance of Mlle. Athmore Gray, the celebrated English Salome dancer, who had a run of three months at the Palace theater, London, and is now making her first tour of American vaudeville theaters. Mlle. Gray has now appeared at fourteen theaters in the United Theaters company circuit, under the management of Sullivan & Considine, at the Orpheum, Vancouver, B. C., San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Spokane, and Minneapolis. She proved such a drawing card that all business records were broken at each of the above cities. Her dances are refined and very artistic. Mlle. Gray is touring the East, where she is booked for a summer's run at the New York theater of the Sullivan & Considine circuit.

It might be said that the management offers an all-star bill for the coming week, as one of the biggest features and topline sketches in vaudeville, will also appear. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Forks will present their feature playlet, entitled "A Wild Rose," which is one of the prettiest comedy playlets that has been seen in vaudeville in years.

Among the other features for the week will be "The Elite Musical Four" of accomplished musicians, each being a soloist of exceptional ability. They will introduce severel quartet selections as well as their solo numbers.

A very artistic number will be Saona in "Living Portraits From the Halls of Fame." This act is one of original ideas and one that has made a big hit over the entire circuit.

Harry Burgoyne, England's famous singing comedian, will introduce his repertoire of original character songs, including several coaster songs.

The Hebrew comedians, Fox and Crystal, will appear in a clever singing, talking and comedy act.

Isadore Silver will sing the popular illustrated song hit, entitled "My Honey Moon." The moving pictures will all be new subjects.

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved in advance. A school children's matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

Lyceum Notes.

The story of "Parsifal" is one of intense interest. In the Castle of the Grail, secluded from the haunts of men, two holy relics, the spear and the cup, are guarded by a band of heaven-appointed knights. Anfortas, their king, trusted rather to physical than spiritual strength and goes forth against Klingsor, a magician of evil repute, whose chief desire is to encompass the downfall of the knights and the destruction of all holy things. The fall of Anfortas comes through Kundry, half woman, half witch, who, under the spell of Klingsor, is transformed into a being of transcendent beauty. Klingsor secures the sacred spear carried by Anfortas and inflicts therewith an incurable wound in the knight's side, which bleeds afresh with every celebration of the holy rite.

Torn by physical weakness and the pangs of remorse, Anfortas' condition becomes desperate, when, at length, in answer to his supplications, a celestial voice is heard promising him relief.

Parsifal appears upon the scene, a mere youth, ignorant of the ways of the world, yet noble born. Klingsor fears that he may prove to be the redeemer to heal Anfortas' wound and prepares for him snares of a most seductive kind: beautiful gardens, maidens of wondrous charm, and Kundry herself transformed by magical means into an enchanting nymph, who tempts Parsifal, not by sensual means alone, but by influence which traverse the whole scale of human emotion.

Against all these allurements, however, Parsifal is proof and his purity triumphs. Mad with disappointment and rage, Klingsor hurls the sacred spear at Parsifal, but instead of piercing, it miraculously hangs suspended above the head of the youth, who, grasping it, makes the sign of the cross, whereupon the magician's spells are broken. The garden, with its wonderful beauty, falls to ruin, and Parsifal is seen, high up on the broken wall, in triumphant possession of the holy spear thus recovered from the powers of evil.

Again the scene changes to the great hall of the castle, and once more Anfortas is borne in upon his weary litter. The knights demand that he uncover the Grail, but as with each uncovering his agony increases, he refuses and in a paroxysm of despair, calls upon the knights to slay him and end his misery. Unobserved, Parsifal now approaches, bearing the sacred spear. He touches the wound and immediately it is healed. Then he proclaims himself king of the Grail and orders it uncovered. Ascending the altar, he raises the sacred vessel in all its crimson beauty. The knights kneel to do him homage; Kundry dies at his feet in the joy of repentance, and a white dove descending from the dome of the hall, hovers over his head, while knights and singers sound a hymn of praise.

The story is a grand exposition of the sorrows and suffering of humanity and redemption of purity, faith and love.

"Parsifal" is announced for the evening of March 27 at the Lyceum.

The remarkable grip which "The Servant in the House" gains on the attention of playgoers all over the country, is illustrated by its bookings for the present season. The company presenting the celebrated comedy-drama, an all-star cast known as "Henry Miller's Associate Players," is now playing a return engagement of a week in Grand Rapids, Mich. This is the first time in the history of that city that any theatrical attraction has been presented there for two weeks in one season. The same play and company will, after leaving this city, return for a second week's engagement to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Denver and several other cities that have seen the play during the present season.

The seven members of "Henry Miller's Associate Players" are: Creston Clarke, Clay Clement, George W. Wilson, Lizzie Collier, Gladys Wynne, Wilfred Roger and Henry Dornton—every one of whom is a noted actor on the American or English stage.

Peculiar significance attaches itself to the approaching engagement of "The Lion and the Mouse," at the Lyceum, due to the fact that certain land stealing cases are up for speedy trial. The character of John Burkett Ruder so far as his contempt for the laws of the land and his ruthless use of officials, whether government, state or municipal, to further his own machinations, undoubtedly has his prototype in this part of the world. When the Charles Klein play was first produced, the public said: "Such things cannot be." Then came the various exposes of the devious way of certain captains of industry to secure the culmination of their gigantic schemes, and the public took a different view of the playwright's creation.

Almost direct from the New Princess theater in Chicago comes one of the newest musical productions of the year, "A Stubborn Cinderella." This new musical show is under the direction of Mort H. Singer, and the critics of Chicago, when the play was first produced declared it to be the greatest musical production ever staged.

"A Stubborn Cinderella" is headed by Homer B. Mason, a well known vaudeville headliner, who is making a tremendous hit in musical comedy. Some of the big song hits are "When You First Kiss the Last Girl You Love," "I'm In Love With All the Girls I Know," "What's the Use," "If They'd Only Let Poor Adam's Rib Alone," and "Adios Senorita." Messrs. Adams, Hough and Howard are the authors of "A Stubborn Cinderella."

Eugene Walter's play of the Hudson Bay fur country, "The Wolf," will be one of the season's most promising offerings. The story of "The Wolf" is a new telling of the old theme founded on the struggle for the possession of a woman by two men—one of whom really loves her, while the other seeks her ruin. The locale of the story should give plenty of opportunity for getting close to nature in the types of men and conditions of life present in the wild country in which the fur traders live and eke out their livelihood. The cast interpreting "The Wolf" includes Andrew Robson, Alfred Swenson, Louis Haines, E. A. Lammar, Robert Deshom, Leola Palmer and others. Andrew Robson, always an earnest and intelligent actor, has one of the best opportunities of his career as Jules Beaubien, the hero, and is said to have lost none of it.

The appearance here soon of Miss Viola Allen and her company in "The White Sister," the new play that has been written for her by F. Marion Crawford and Walter Hackett, should serve to mark an event in the local theatergoing world, for Miss Allen's enviable record in the theater has been watched with considerable interest for some years. Curiously enough, Miss Allen has never occupied a position less than that of leading woman or star. At the age of 16 she became leading woman for John McCullough and played the title role with him in a number of plays, taking leads in such other masterpieces as he was identified with later. In the present play Miss Allen takes the role of Dominican nun, and from all accounts her talents find a most fitting expression in this character, which it is said has been prepared with unusual care and fidelity. Liebler & Co., the well-known managers, have supplied Miss Allen with a remarkable production, if one is to judge from the advance reports.

The New York Knickerbocker theater musical success, "The Red Mill," is one of the early attractions booked for this city. The complete production includes the escape from the mill, with the company of sixty, including the six little Dutch kiddies, and these are but a few of the features in this well-known success.

• • •

"When Old New York Was Dutch," a comedy drama by Sidney R. Ellis, which Al H. (Metz) Wilson presented in New York city recently with great success, is a most interesting and picturesque story of New York when it was called New Amsterdam. Mr. Wilson is booked for an appearance here at the Lyceum soon.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

REVIVAL OF "KING JOHN" IS PRAISED AS A PRODUCTION—THE THREE "ZAZAS" ARE COMPARED—THREE LATE PLAYS TO BE RETIRED : : :

New York, March 20.—"King John," Shakespeare's tragedy, which many people remember for the famous scene in which Hubert attempts to burn out Prince Arthur's eyes, and is dissuaded by the boy's entreaties and tears from carrying out the heartless order of the king, was the play that followed the giddy English comedy of "Kitty Grey" at the New Amsterdam with Robert Mantell in the title role. The performance was received with conflicting opinions by the critics, but all agreed that William A. Brady has gone out of his way to provide a splendid production and to give it an acting cast as good as can be assembled. There was present a very large audience, which seemed prepared to accept the effort to revive this seldom-acted tragedy in the best of spirit. Mr. Mantell hardly added anything of distinction to his performance of the title role, but it remains to be seen what the general public will think.

As near as I can get the data the piece has not been seen in New York since 1874, when it served John E. McCullough in making his first appearance in the metropolis. I was put on at Booth's theater May 25, 1874, and remained till the 30th. But McCullough did not play the title role, which was taken by J. B. Booth, while the star played Faulconbridge. Prince Arthur in this production was taken by Minnie Maddern (Mrs. Fiske); Agnes Booth played Constance; H. A. Weaver was cast as Hubert, and Lewis, the French Dauphin, was taken by Gustavus Levick. Nine years before that the tragedy was played here by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean at the Broadway theater. It is evident that Brady figures on a run for the play, but is prepared to supplement it with Shakespearean plays in which Mantell has been seen here on previous occasions. The production is notable for its color, the scenic splendors, the big ensemble, military and court scenes and the gorgeous costumes. The acting is on a uniform level of excellence without any individual distinction.

This happens to be the "Zaza" season. There hasn't been a play since "Camille" that is used so much to exploit the virtuosity of emotional stars as this play of Pierre Berton. Mrs. Carter has revived it since her engagement began at the Liberty; Marietta Olly has just shown us the German "Zaza," and now Mimi Aguglia (say A-yul-ya), the Sicilian actress, is making us acquainted with the Italian "Zaza." Mrs. Carter's "Zaza" differs from both of these, though the American version is so little different from the original as reflected through the German and Etruscan (I admit that I did not see Rejane) that one stops to wonder why it was necessary to make the old concierge so fond of her tipple the aunt of Zaza instead of her mother. Thus the American Zaza has been made to repudiate her own flesh and blood, except in the second degree. Mrs. Carter makes her a flighty lady of 32 or thereabouts; Olly makes her a sensible woman, but with a charming undercurrent of devotion, so that you really feel intensely sorry for Zaza, and confess to a degree of respect. But Aguglia makes her all fire and flame. Zaza practices every art and strategy in the dressing room scene behind the curtain of the cafe chantante to make Dufresne surrender. She is a perfect little fiend with her tricks of coquetry, her swishing of skirts and flirting of lingerie and concealed laces. She stands on the chair in front of her mirror and practices her ankles in pretty flexions and curves, and casts bewitching glances over her bare shoulders, to notice the effect of her amorous diplomacy on the flattered but unbending Dufresne. She is a small volcano on the brink of a blow-up. Her Zaza altogether is a wild forest bird, and you instinctvilley pity Dufresne as you wonder what will happen to him when Zaza learns the truth about his duplicity to her. Your opinion of her increases when she shows such commendable restraint in her meeting with Mme. Dufresne and Toto, and from an utterly miserable wretch she revives like a drooping flower after a rain in the next act, when hope again gets the upper hand and she figures that, after all, Dufresne might prefer her to his lares and penates. Her misery is complete when she is disillusioned, and she sinks down on the floor with a piteous moan when the parting comes.

I was rather proud of myself to read in the papers the day after the Aguglia Zaza at the Criterion—the Sicilians are giving a series of special matinees—opinions supporting my lonely judgment in pronouncing her a great actress. Her Sicilian peasant roles were caviar, and after the first performance none of the critics went to see her again. Only "yours truly" sat through six performances without understanding a word that was spoken, and called attention to her exceptional powers, which through her "Zaza" are now pretty well acknowledged.

Three of the plays which have recently been put on are already scheduled for retirement. Carlotta Nillson closed in "This Woman and This Man" at the Maxine Elliott theater last Saturday night. This is really a play worth seeing, and deserved a better fate. If it goes on the road it will surely interest the average public, which likes a play with a sex problem. Perhaps it was not the psychological moment for this play to appear. There has been so much outcry against immoral plays that plays which teach a moral are often ignorantly confounded with the real offenders. One's judgment gets muddled. Anyway, I would go to see this play again if I had leisure. Its place at the Maxine Elliott playhouse has been taken by "The Bachelor," Clyde Fitch's latest comedy.

"Meyer & Son" is also drawing to a close, though the date of its retirement from the stage of the Garden has not yet been announced. That event, however, is not much over a week off, and in its place will come "The Conflict," a play founded on Balzac's story of the "Wild Ass' Skin," sometimes called "The Magic Skin," dealing with a metaphysical subject.

• • •

"A Woman of Impulse" closed at the Herald Square last Saturday evening, but the next opening was not until Wednesday night, when Bertha Galland came to town in "The Return of Eve," with a new third act written since the piece was seen in Washington and elsewhere, and which was lacking to round off sundry rough corners.

• • •

Julia Marlowe will close her engagement in Mary Johnson's metrical play of "The Goddess of Reason" at Daly's theater tonight, and will be followed by E. H. Sothern in a repertoire of classic plays, although it is not improbable that he will revive "Lord Dundreary" for a week.

• • •

Fannie Ward brought her engagement in "The New Lady Bantock" at Wallack's theater to a close last Saturday night, and on Monday her place was taken by the English suffragette play, "Votes for Women," in which Miss Matthewson appeared in London more than a year ago, and which is thought to be of timely interest just now. Mary Shaw is seen in the principal role.

• • •

Vaudeville events are again rendered dignified and illustrious by two of three features of interest. At the American Music hall Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry, and his wife, Mabel Hackney, opened last week in "The King and the Vagabond," which is Mr. Irving's own adaptation of Banville's "Gringoire." Laurence Irving is the author of the dramatization of "Richard Lovelace," which Sothern presented several years ago, and another play in which that actor has been appearing in his Western tour. At the Colonial May Irwin made her first New York vaudeville appearance in George Ade's "Mrs. Peckham's Carouse," which she played as a curtain raiser to "The Mullosc" early this season at the Garrick. This is a clever piece for vaudeville, but which anybody with a slight sense of humor can enjoy at all times. And last, but not least among the events of the week, there is James J. Jeffries, "the undefeated," who met with a tremendous ovation at the Lincoln Square theater Monday afternoon. The honors done to the great man would flatter a king's brother, and, following closely upon the engagement of Harry Lauder, promises to prove another tremendous money maker for the indefatigable William Morris, who is thus fighting the vaudville trust with a real fighter for his champion.

Nance O'Neil, who passed under the management of the Shuberts early in the season, is announced to make her re-entree into vaudeville in this city next week, appearing at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street theater in a one-act piece, entitled "One Thousand Dollars Reward." Lack of a suitable play is assigned as the reason for her retirement from the Shubert fold.

• • •

Mrs. Leslie Carter's stay in "Kassa" at the Liberty is scheduled to terminate about the middle of April, when she will go on tour. In the meantime she will give two more special matinees of "Zaza."

• • •

Percy Haswell, who has been gathering laurels as Otis Skinner's leading woman in "The Honor of the Family" for the past two seasons, is to be jointly featured in a comedy, entitled "Foreign Exchange," with H. B. Warner, the son of Charles Warner, who recently committed suicide in this city, and who is now the leading man with Wilton Lackaye in "The Battle" at the Savoy.

• • •

The Lieblers announced last week that Israel Zangwill's play, "The Melting Pot," will not be brought into New York till next season.

• • •

Blanche Ring, one of the most entertaining and infectious comediennes on the comic opera stage today, intends to star on her own account next season. The book of this musical comedy will be founded by Edgar Selwyn on a comedy of his own called "The Wall Street Girl." The music is being written by Karl Hoschna, who was responsible for the music of "The Three Twins." Miss Ring intends to begin rehearsals immediately upon the conclusion of her season with Joe Weber, and anticipates an all-summer run in New York for the new piece.

• • •

Arrangements have just been made by Frederic Thompson whereby the next play for Mabel Taliaferro will be written by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. The title of the play is "The Return of a Soul."

• • •

Margaret Anglin, who recently brought her engagement in Australia to an end, has arrived in Paris, where she intends to remain until Holy week. She will spend Easter in Rome. Miss Anglin is preparing for publication an account of her travels, which will be illustrated by snapshots from her own camera. The work will be entitled "A Woman's View of the World Beyond the Seas."

• • •

Andrew Mack, the Irish comedian, has has signed contracts for a season of ten weeks in vaudeville. He begins his tour toward the end of the current month.

• • •

Baldwin Sloane, the musical composer, who will be best remembered for his score of "A Mocking Bird," is collaborating with William Collier on a new musical comedy. Collier is writing the book and verses, but it is not yet made known for whom the affair is intended. Mr. Sloane admits that his score will not be Wagnerian.

• • •

Winthrop Ames, director of the New theater in New York, has gone to Europe in connection with the opening of that enterprise.

• • •

Henri Bernstein, the French dramatist, is extremely fertile at present. He has just concluded a new comedy, "Apres Moi," which is to have its first production at the Theater Francais in October. It is later to be presented in England and America under the title, "When I Shall Be No More."

• • •

Abe Erlanger left during the past week for a tour of Europe, including all the principal European centers, London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Brussels. Mr. Erlanger intends to look over the new dramatic productions in each of these cities.

• • •

Preparations for the revival of "Mascott," with Raymond Hitchcock as Prince Lorenzo, are progressing rapidly. Flora Zabelle has been engaged for the role of Bettina, and Estelle Wentworth will sing Fiametta.

CONWAY TERLE AS "BEN HUR" AND FLORENCE ST. LEONARD AS "IRAS" IN "BEN HUR" AT THE LYCEUM NEXT WEEK.

William Lawrence, well known for the last five seasons as Uncle Josh in Denman Thompson's famous play, "The Old Homestead," will be seen next season in a new rural temperance play, entitled "Uncle Dave Holcomb," from the pen of Annie Andros Hawley and Mr. Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence is so near a replica of Mr. Thompson that during the last engagement at the Academy of Music he appeared in two acts and Mr. Thompson in two, and most of the audience thought it was but the one man.

Ethel Levey, who is in Europe for the further cultivation of her voice, is to return to this country early in the summer. She has signed a contract for thirty weeks in vaudeville to begin early in the season.

• • •

The third new play to be tried out by Mary Mannering this season in the hope of finding a suitable vehicle for her talents was abandoned last Saturday night. It was a comedy called "Step By Step," written by Langdon Mitchell. The two preceding this one were "The Struggle" and "A House of Cards." It is said that Miss Mannering will not attempt another new production until the fall.

• • •

Charles Frohman announces that his principal production next season will be Henri Bernstein's "Israel," the cast of which is now completed so far as its principal members are concerned. Mr. Frohman will present "Israel" without a star. The three principal members of the company will be Miss Constance Collier, James O'Neil and Holbrook Blinn, playing respectively the mother, the father and the son, the chief characters in the play.

• • •

"Cinderella" has been arranged by Edward E. Rice for vaudeville purposes and is called "a bit of fairy musical extravaganza." Among those in the cast are George Fortesque, who plays Glorinda, and Jeanette Lowrie, who assumes the role of Prince Charming. Lillian Swain is assuming the title role.

• • •

It is reported that Henry W. Savage has engaged Mrs. Campbell for the title role of his production in English of "La Femme," the Bisson play which is meeting with such pronounced success in Paris. It is a play of stormy emotional powers. "La Femme" is the name of the woman who is an unknown person. She has been led away from her husband and in later years is defended before the bar of justice on the charge of murder by her own son. The two are unknown to each other. This is the great scene in the play. Berlin has also recently fallen a victim to the spell of this drama, even though the critics pronounced it one of the patent theatricalism .

Selma Herman is to be starred in a new play next season by Barton and Wiswell. Her season is to begin on Sept. 6. In the interim she is to play a season of repertoire in Seattle.

• • •

Marie Tempest, the commedienne, has been threatening divorce proceedings against her husband, Cosmo Lennox-Gordon, but the two have reached an amicable agreement, and for the time being the public will not learn the nature of their differences. Lennox-Gordon has been the English adapter of a number of French plays, in some of which his temperamental wife appeared.

• • •

Ralph Stuart, who has been playing "Strongheart" this season and has just closed his tour, is to be starred in a series of romantic plays next year.

• • •

Willis P. Sweatnam, who will be remembered as the creator of the humorous and eccentric negro character in "The County Chairman," and later some of the Cohan shows, is likely to return to vaudeville next season, whence he originated.

• • •

Paul Hervieu, the French dramatist, has entered suit against the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing company for publishing a book entitled "The Labyrinth," or a "Case of Divorce," by George Morehead, which, the title page claims, is "a dramatic story based on the great play of the same name." Hervieu is the author of the play, known in the original French as "La Dedale," which Olga Nethersole produced in this country several years ago. The French author claims that his copyright protects the use of the material in story or play form, and the American publishers' plea is that he has not complied with the law. It is a question of technicality, and, on the surface, it would seem that the moral right belongs to Hervieu.

George Evans, who was the head of the Cohan and Harris minstrel troupe, is speedily recovering from an operation for appendicitis, which he recently underwent in Ithaca. During his absence Raymond Hitchcock has been taking his place.

• • •

Lee Arthur and Forrest Halsey are busy on a new play which is to be called "The Higher Law." It deals with the right of a woman to kill in defense of her honor.

• • •

Chicago's stupendous melodramatic production, "The Sins of Society," which had a triumphant run at Drury Lane, London, will be inaugurated as the spring and summer offering at McVicker's theater Wednesday night, April 14. This spectacular play, which Brooks and Dingwall produce for the first time in America, will mark an epoch of indoor theatrical enterprises. Something entirely new in mechanical and scenic effects will be given in "The Sins of Society," which will revolutionize stage settings for mammoth productions.

• • •

"The Traveling Salesman," which has been playing in New York since Aug. 10, will close a run of 300 nights, on April 10, at the Gaiety theater, due to the fact that contracts executed last September call for its appearance at the Illinois theater in Chicago on April 12.

One week later "The Traveling Salesman," Company B, will inaugurate a spring and summer season at the Park theater in Boston.

On Sept. 6 the third company will inaugurate a tour embracing the cities of the Pacific coast.

This latest comedy by James Forbes gives every indication of rivaling in popularity his first play, "The Chorus Lady."

During the dress rehearsal of "The Lion and the Mouse' the night before it was produced in London, Mr. Henry B. Harris, while sitting out in the body of the theater watching the rehearsal, noticed a shabbily dressed man sitting in one of the upper boxes, smoking a short, stubby pipe. Mr. Harris, calling to one of the attaches of the theater, requested him to put the man out of the box who was smoking the pipe. In subdued breath the servant remarked: "I beg pardon, sir, but that is Mr. Barrie, Mr. James Barrie, the author of 'The Little Minister' and other classics. I beg pardon, sir, shall I put him out?" Mr. Harris, of course, made no further objection to Mr. Barrie sitting in the box or smoking, and a few minutes later was introduced to Mr. Barrie, and told him of the incident. It tickled Barrie immensely, and even to this day he is very fond of telling how he came in an ace of being put out of the theater.

Frances Starr's truthful portrayal of the weak, and vascillating Laura Murdock of Eugene Walter's play, "The Easiest Way," has placed this Belasco star in an enviable position on the American stage. After witnessing Miss Starr's enactment of the role at the Belasco Stuyvesant one cannot imagine another actress successfully playing the part, which is a true tribute to this young artist's genius and to David Belasco's judgment in selecting Miss Starr to portray the difficult character.

David Warfield will make his first Philadelphia appearance in his most recent success, "A Grand Army Man," Monday evening, March 8. The engagement is at the Lyric and will continue for several weeks. "A Grand Army Man," which ran all last season at the Belasco Stuyvesant in New York, will be followed by a revival of Mr. Warfield's earlier success, "The Music Master," which is now in New York for its fifth season, still playing to capacity business at the spacious, historical Academy of Music. In that playhouse two seasons ago Mr. Warfield broke all previous records for attendance, known to the American stage.

Liebler & Co. are congratulating themselves upon the list of eminent men who, in the course of the present season, have voluntarily donated their services to that firm in the capacity of press agents. The list is indeed a formidable one, including, as it does, Theodore Roosevelt, W. H. Taft, John D. Rockefeller, Oscar Strauss, Jacob Schiff, Joseph Cannon, Mayor McClellan, Hamlin Garland, Daniel Guggenheim, Dr. Charles F. Aked, J. V. Dittemore, Rabbi Hirsch, Gaylord Wilshire, Mrs. Katherine Kennedy, Jane Adams, Joshua Wanhope, Prof. J. B. Clarke and Clarence Darrow, to say nothing of scores of clergymen, socialists and scholars ,who, by written testimonials, or in laudatory speeches, have attracted public attention to Liebler & Co.'s attractions.

Israel Zangwill's "The Melting Pot," in which Walker Whiteside has scored the season's success in Chicago, has been the chief recipient of favorable notice from high places, though "The Man From Home," now at the Astor, called forth a campaign speech from the speaker of the house, the hearty applause of the president-elect, and an invitation from the city's mayor to the star to celebrate the Lincoln centennial by substituting the Gettysburg oration for his usual curtain speech, on Feb. 12.

Wilton Lackaye, in "The Battle," at the Savoy, not only provoked the hottest kind of a debate between the most prominent socialists and anti-socialists of the city, but also interested the richest man in the world to that extent that he furnished additional lines for Mr. Moffett's play.

The head of the Christian Science publication committe of New York state, and the much-quoted pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, have, by their hearty praise of the play, materially increased the prosperity of Elennor Robson's run in Mrs. Burnett's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," at the Lyceum. Not a bad record for a single firm in a single season, is it?

For the one hundredth performance of Wilton Lackaye, in Cleveland Moffett's play, "The Battle," at the Savoy theater, New York, which took place on Monday, March 15, Liebler & Co. got out a volume of "Laconigrams." Just what the "Laconigrams" are, is not stated, but the scholar will readily recognize as elements that were to make the word, laconic, epigrams, Lackaye and marconigrams.

• • •

James Lackaye is again to be seen as the fat gambler in the Tarkington-Wilson romance, "Cameo Kirby," when Dustin Farnum assumes the title role. Two of the most remarkable facts about this portly brother of Wilton's are that he weighs 100 pounds more than anyone you are likely to meet in the course of a day's journey, and that he is a total abstainer. One evening, at a well-known restaurant, when "Jim" was putting away bottle after bottle of mineral water, a walter was heard to murmur: "What a bully aquarium he would make!

• • •

"The White Sister," F. Marion Crawford and Walter Hackett's new play, that has scored so heavily in Chicago, with Viola Allen as its star, and with William Farnum featured in her support, has an especial appeal to Catholics. There have been a number of requests from convents near Chicago that special performances be given, so that the nuns may attend, and Father Finn, an eminent Paulist, has written a review of the play, in which he advises every Catholic to see it. It will be remembered that F. Marion Crawford has been appointed biographer of the present pope, and that he has always been held in high esteem by Catholics all over the world. In his present play, wherever church questions present themselves, they are treated in a thoroughly sympathetic manner, and never in the pedantic way that would prove baneful to the rapid action of the piece.

May Robson, the eccentric and lovable "Aunt Mary," says she plays freak characters because she wants the money.

"Of course, the stress of trouble and uncertainty is over now," she observed, "but once upon a time I did need the money."

The woman of smiles enjoys a wait of twenty-five minutes after the first act of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." Last night she received a small party of friends in her dressing room during this wait. One of the party was a girl with an ambition to become a starlet, and it was she who asked Miss Robson why she concealed her beauty under the mask of time.

The answer was most interesting.

"By so doing I found that I could put a little more butter on my bread," Miss Robson naively answered.

"When it first became necessary for me to earn my way in the world," she continued, "I decided to become a painter. I succeeded fairly well, but that's a slow way for a girl to make money, and I tired of it. I applied for a small part on the stage, and was accepted. When the manager found that I was an amateur he wouldn't consider me at all.

"After that I never admitted my ignorance of the business. My first part was in 'The Hoop of Gold.' It was a 'come-along-Jessie' part; that is, I walked on the stage after an older sister, who said: 'Come along, Jessie,' and Jessie came along.

"I was disgusted. I wanted to act. I didn't want to come along. A servant part interested me, and I asked the manager to let me be the servant. He finally consented, and I painted my face with water colors, for I knew nothing of grease paints. My wonderfully peculiar make-up and my knowledge of the English slavey (I had lived in London two years) was a tremendous hit. I have been playing queer people ever since."

Booth Tarkington is writing a new comedy for Miss Robson. She will produce it next season.

Clara Morris, after many months of the eclipse of illness, has again taken up her pen. Her first whimsy after the long silence she sent to the Matinee Girl, who here prints it, with the preamble that on their tour with "The Two Orphans," Miss Morris and Grace George selected each other for one of these close dual friendships that obtain in companies on the road and that resemble the chumships of school girl days.

"When Mlle Fifi invited Countess Chilton and The Two Orphans for a visit Under Southern Skies they met Abigail, and since one woman spoke and thought only of Divorcons and another dwelt eternally on Clothes, things came to such a pass of morbid envy that following The Marriage of William Ashe, Pretty Peggy consulted Her Majesty, who in turn appeal to Grace George, who will probably smooth out the tangle in her clever Woman's Way to her in great profit and the pleasure of the public, counting in the well wishing writer."

Miss Morris said: "While we were on that tour I prophesied that Grace George would become a great commedienne. It was when she lifted up her face to be kissed in 'The Two Orphans' I caught there a flash of brilliant, spontaneous comedy."

Having finished which, Miss Morris demanded that the week's laundry be brought for her inspection. Lifting a pair of her husband's perforated socks, she said, "Send these to Miss Illington."

The challenge grew out of an altercation with Dr. Schavois, Mr. Ditrichstein was arrested at the time of the challenge and fined $3,000. The less sum is the result of an agreement made with the state attorney's office.

The Ills-Powlan company of twenty-four acrobats, singers and comedians, is playing in the West with one of the most novel acts in vaudeville. It is called "A Night at the Circus," and represents the old-styled one-ring performances which were in vogue, under canvas, a quarter of a century ago.

• • •

"Seldom's Venus" is one of the most recent importations of the Orpheum circuit, and from the reports from San Francisco is meeting with more than ordinary success. "The Venus" is the chief of the series of groups reproducing the world's best statuary of which masterpieces are "Samson Bound," "Reaching the Winning Post," and "The Fountain" form a conspicuous part.

CAN BRING IN ART TREASURES

Morgan's $3,000,000 Collection May Soon Come in Duty Free.

New York, March 20.—Priceless art treasures owned by Americans and kept abroad will no doubt be brought to this country when the new tariff placing works of art more than twenty-six years of age on the free list becomes operative.

In total these collections will rival in intrinsic and artistic value those in the famous museums of Europe, lending an unprecedented impetus to the growth of art in the New World. An insight into the extent of the collections held up abroad was given by P. A. B. Widener, the Philadelphia millionaire and art collector, who said:

"I personally know of $30,000,000 worth of paintings alone now in Europe, owned by American collectors which will never be brought into this country so long as the duty remains in effect."

The largest individual owner is J. Pierpont Morgan, who has fought the tariff for a decade. A partial list of Mr. Morgan's art treasures which will be brought to this country when the new law goes into effect follows:

Fragonard-Du Barry panels, $1,000,000.
Raphael's "Madonna of St. Anthony of Padua," $500,000.
Mannheim collection. $450,000.
Gainsborough's "Duchess of Devonshire," $150,000.
Rubens "Portrait of the Grand Duke," $125,000.
Landscape of Hobbema, $110,000.
Reynolds "Lady Betty Delme and Children," $110,000.
Gavet Antiques, $75,000.
Pfungst Bronzes, $75,000.
Total, $2,595,000.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

IT WAS FOR HIS FRIENDS.

Washington Star: "Don't confuse," said John Ellis, the well-known apostle of the unemployed, the other day in Washington, "don't confuse the hobo, the tramp and the bum, for these men are very different one from another.

"The hobo," Mr. Ellis went on, "works and wanders. The tramp dreams and wanders. The bum drinks and wanders.

"This man, for instance, would not be a hobo.

"He rang the bell of a suburban house, and when the master appeared he said earnestly:

"'Could you, sir, for the love of heaven, give a hard-working but unfortunate man some employment?'

"The householder laid his hand cordially on the other's ragged shoulder.

"'Here's work for you right on the spot,' he said. 'I've got out in my back yard a great pile of wood that——'

"'Thank you, sir,' said the man, as he shook the hand from his shoulder gently. 'I'll let my friend know at once. It's not for myself I'm hunting a job, but for a friend a little way up the road.'"

The British colonial office recently sent out an expert to report on the Kenia forest, in the East Africa protectorate. He found the forest to be 287 miles long by eight broad, and to compromise 1,000,000 acres of timber valued at $115,000,000 for the wood alone.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

WORK STARTED AT THE DENN

Pumps Set Going to Rid Shaft of Water---Shaft to be Sunk From the 1200 Level to the 1300 Level.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 20.—A force of between thirty and forty men was put to work at the Denn-Arizona shaft last Sunday to take part in sinking the shaft from the 1,200-foot level, a short distance below which work was stopped last year, to the 1,300. For a week a small force was preparing the way for sinking.

During that period the pipes for the pump which will be used in lowering the water in the shaft have been installed and the level of the water materially lowered. When the shaft has reached the 1,300-foot level, drifting in the direction of the junction line will be started. Strong mineralization in that direction leads the Denn management to believe that ore will be encountered in large quantities before the working has proceeded far.

A. F. "Sandy" Sutton is foreman of the property. He is well known as a mining man of ability, and will do much, without doubt, toward attaining any succes met with by the company.

A sensational ore strike was made recently in the Shattuck-Arizona mine, proving an ore body of great extent. The ore is an oxide and is, without doubt, a large body, as the strike was the consummation of several weeks of development. The find was made upon the 600 level.

Several weeks since the ore was first encountered and a cross cut of 130 feet was run upon it. The same body was struck 150 feet back of the cross cut, proving its dimension. The ore will run about 15 per cent, and carries sufficient iron to make it valuable as a smelting proposition. Another strike was made, although of lower grade ore, on the immediate level between the 600 and 700 levels. It carries about 7 per cent copper, with considerable iron associated. As it is 150 feet or more north of the other body, it is supposed to be separate from it.

There are at present forty-two men engaged in developing the Shattuck. No mining operations are being carried on, except in strict pursuance with the development of the resources of the property.

STRIKES IT RICH IN ALASKA

Robert S. Warren, Who Owns 7,000 Acres of Ground on the Yukon River, Will Visit Duluth in the Near Future.

Spokane, Wash., March 20.—Robert S. Warren, a veteran of the Banneck Indian war in the Walla Walla and Eastern Oregon country in 1879, afterward a resident of Spokane for nine years, and later deputy United States marshal at Cleary Creek, Alaska, who is visiting his brother, Joel Warren, ex-chief of police of Spokane, has come into his own in the Northland. He owns 7,000 acres of ground on Birch creek, on the Yukon river, seventy-four miles south of Circle City. It is a hydraulic and dredging proposition operated by an automatic dam. He has worked the property with five men the last three years, the average yield being $150 a day.

The discovery of the rich ground was by accident and was made by Warren while prospecting on Birch creek from Twelve Mile, where he came upon a rudely fashioned wooden cross on which was carved a notice of the death and burial of Hector McLean, who starved ten years before, leaving $600 in gold which he had panned out of the bar near by. Warren found good prospects and immediately located the claims, which have made him wealthy. He is also interested in a quartz property near Fairbanks, from which the ore taken from a depth of 80 feet ranges from $500 to $9,000 a ton.

Warren says he traveled 50 miles on snowshoes and 118 miles on foot overland with the temperature ranging from 45 to 65 degs. below, in getting out of the country. After passing several weeks in Spokane, Warren will go to New York by easy stages, stopping off at Cripple Creek, Denver, Duluth, Houghton, Mich., Boston and New York, returning to the Northland in June.

A new quartz field that looks bigger than anything that has gone before is attracting public notice. It is the upper Tanana valley. A vein of free gold quartz has been traced for two miles across the country, showing in places a clear width of eight feet.

Yesterday, says a dispatch from Fairbanks, three men who are the discoverers of the new quartz field departed from the city with a complete outfit of supplies, provisions, tools, powder and accessories sufficient to last them for the entire season, and with enough financial backing to develop an Eldorado.

Using a pair of field glasses, Joseph Butler has located a claim on Barker creek which promises to be rich. Butler was on the trip up Barker creek looking for a favorable place to stake a claim. Coming out to the point from whence he could survey the valley, he spied through his field glass a high bench. He staked a claim there and sank a shaft. At the bottom he struck a bed of gold which panned as high as $2,500 to the pan. Sixty days after staking his first claim Butler staked an adjoining tract.

THE OHIO COPPER COMPANY

At Bingham Makes Highly Important Discovery---Certain of 14,000,000 Tons of Ore Averaging Close to 2 Per Cent Copper.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 20.—A highly important disclosure was made recently in the Ohio Copper at Bingham when the 400 foot copper bearing quartzite lode was tapped in a crosscut from the raise above the Muscotte tunnel level. The rock assayed 1.76 per cent copper. The significance of the showing rests in the fact that the great lode lying between the two fissures, the All's Well on the hanging wall side, is uniformly mineralized for a depth of 1,400 feet on the dip and approximately 1,000 feet vertically. Therefore the Ohio Copper company is now practically certain of 14,000,000 tons of ore that will average close to 2 per cent copper, with a little silver and a little gold.

At the annual meeting of the Boston Consolidated Mining company held in London the issue was authorized of 50,000 additional shares of stock at $11.25 a share. This will make a total outstanding stock of 775,000 shares, after allowing for the conversion into stock of the last bond issue of $1,250,000 at $15 a share. The stock issue is required to meet floating indebtedness resulting from the drop in the price of copper.

The ore body recently struck on the 700 level of the Lost Packer mine on Boon creek, Idaho, is maintaining its richness. A drift has shown the deposit to be at least sixty feet in length, both ends being in the same quality of ore as drifts better than $60 a ton. The Lost Packer is high in the mountain, many miles from a railroad. It is possible to operate the smelter only three months in the year. The net profit was given last year as in excess of $100,000.

A vein of quartz showing values of $33 in gold and five ounces silver has been opened in the property of the Millard Iron Mining company near Ka-

THE COLORADO DISTRICTS

Cripple Creek Output in February Was Worth $1,145,204---New York and Chicago Capitalists Negotiating for Purchase of Magnet Group.

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 20.—The February Cripple Creek output was 52,716 tons, worth gross $1,145,204. The 3,920 tons of smelter ore averaged $65 a ton. The cyanide production was treated by the Isabella, Ironclad and Stratton's Independence mills reached 5,640 tons, worth from $2.20 a ton for the Isabella, to $4 for Ironclad and $6.50 for Stratton's Independence. The 20,420 tons treated by the United States Reduction & Refining company's plants averaged $22, while 22,736 tons treated by the Golden Cycle mill were worth $19 each. The general average value was $21.70. The Wild Horse and the Copper Mountain cyanide mills were not running during February and the Blue Flag did not report its tonnage. Therefore, the month's production was less in tonnage and value than January's.

A shipment of 722 pounds of quartz from the Henry Adney mine, Cripple Creek, returned a gross bullion value of $206.06, or $192.66 net. The ore came from a streak of quartz literally covered with sylvanita found next to the footwall of the cross vein recently encountered and under development at the 350-foot level.

President J. M. Neville of the Free Coinage Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, has granted a two-year lease on the Pinto claim to the Union Leasing company. The mine adjoins the Orphan Belle and Empire State properties of the Isabella Mines company and the Burns of the Acacia and has produced $1,500,000 above the 576-foot level.

B. Burke, who recently secured a five years lease on the properties of the Black Belle Gold Mining company, Cripple Creek, is installing a compressor outfit.

Denver parties have bought a gold property twenty-five miles west of Livermore, showing $60 a ton value.

New York and Chicago capitalists are negotiating for the purchase of the Magnet group of claims on Saxon Mountain, Georgetown, for probably $80,000. They are negotiating for a lease and bond on the Doric tunnel of the Doric Trust, Ltd., of London. The tunnel was advanced 3,000 feet when work stopped because of dissensions. After four years of idleness work was resumed in 1906 under lease to Georgetown people. A number of veins have been dissected, one averaging sixteen feet in width with a content of $12 to $14 a ton.

Edgar S. Moulton has purchased from the Rocky Mountain National bank the concrete group of five claims on Gunnell Hill, Central City. The property has produced $1,000,000. It is the western extension of the Gunnel group, credited with $8,000,000 output.

The Lost Treasure on Columbian mountain, Georgetown, Colo., is in a streak of 250 ounce silver ore eight to ten inches wide. The vein runs parallel with both the American Sisters and the Joe Reynolds, whose combined output is $6,000,000. The development promises to be permanent.

The Great Northern tunnel in Idaho Springs, Colo., is penetrating the Elm City lode and has opened several small bodies of ore, the head now entering what is probably a big ore shoot. The head is well under the highest point of the mountain, close to a zone of big veins, the same series of lodes in which lie the Almira veins.

The Silver Creek group adjoining the Joe Reynolds and Two Sisters, Idaho Springs, Colo., has been reopened after several years idleness. A 400-foot tunnel was driven on the vein when the mine was first discovered. In cleaning out the tunnel a streak of ore carrying 150 to 1,000 ounces in silver has been discovered.

LAKE COPPER MINES' OUTPUT

Showed Increase in February of Nearly Seven Per Cent Over Same Period Last Year—Considerable Proportion of the Product is Destined for Foreign Points.

Houghton, Mich., March 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The production of the Lake Superior mines during February amounted to approximately 18,100,000 pounds fine copper, indicating a rate of production nearly 7 per cent greater than for the same period a year ago. There is little likelihood that the rate of production will increase during the immediate future, but that the present rate will be maintained is probable. The lull in copper shipments during the greater part of February has apparently passed, and the total is again moving out of this district at a good rate. A considerable proportion of the product is destined for foreign points.

Wyandot.

Wyandot's operations continue centered in cross-cutting the formation from the bottom of an exploratory shaft 700 feet deep. The cross-cut is driving across the eastern portion of the mineral belt and will pass through the horizons of the Adventure, Lake and Baltic lodes. Five distinct lodes are revealed in the cross-cut, three of which appear to carry copper in sufficient quantity to encourage further investigation, and this is now being done. The fifth lode, so-called, was recently opened by drifting, and though no copper is present, much encouragement is had from the fact that the ground at this point is unusually wet, generally a good indication that values will follow. Three machines drills are regularly in service.

Victoria.

Victoria is opening exceptionally rich copper ground in the bottom of the mine. The present fine showing is being obtained on the twenty-second level at a point 400 feet from the shaft and directly under ground of similar excellent character developed on the level above. Conditions elsewhere in the mine continue without material improvement, and, in general, are poor. The company is operating single shift, owing to the scarcity of water, and it is quite unlikely that operations can be materially increased before spring. Power for the mine and mill is obtained from the big hydraulic air compressor exclusively.

Atlantic.

Atlantic is giving particular attention to the north laterals, several of which are being extended at a good rate. Recent developments failed to disclose copper in commercial quantities, but as the ground is apparently growing more settled as the drifts reach out, the much sought for mineralized ground will quite likely "come in." The condition of the ground in the bottom of the shaft, sinking below the twenty-first level about 2,200 feet from the surface, remains unchanged as it does in the laterals south where a little copper is revealed in pockets though quite unworkable owing to the shattered condition of the ground intervening necessitating considerable dead work. Seven machine drills are in service.

Hancock.

Hancock continues making record progress in shaft sinking and opening work generally. The big vertical shaft through which the mine will eventually be worked, is sinking at the rate of about eighty-five feet monthly and has attained a depth of nearly 1,600 feet. The thirteenth level crosscut driving to connect this shaft with the older incline shaft is being extended at the rate of about 130 feet monthly, and should be completed about the middle of April. Operations in the incline shaft are largely confined to drifting, and upwards of one-mile of first class copper ground has been opened ready for stoping.

Ojibway.

Ojibway's crosscut, on the third level in the No. 2 shaft, has attained a length of ninety-two feet, and is breasted in a changed formation, indicating the close proximity of the lode. In the No. 1 shaft, the crosscut at this level has been extended to the hanging wall of the further, or west vein of the Kearsarge lode, which at this depth is found to be seventeen feet in width and richly charged with copper. Both shafts are sinking steadily below the 750-foot mark. At a depth of 800 feet new stations will be established, and further crosscuts run to the lode. It is not unlikely that Ojibway will be in a shipping stage before another year has passed.

Franklin.

Franklin's newer Pewabic shaft is sinking steadily at a depth of 720 feet. Plats are being cut at all levels, but no drifting will be done until somewhat greater depth has been attained in the shaft. In the older No. 1 Pewabic shaft, to the north, drifting continues with occasional disclosures of first-class copper ground on the lower levels, though the general average of the mine remains unchanged from ground that will carry little more than fifteen pounds fine copper per ton of rock. Operations in the conglomerate mine, adjoining, are confined to scrapping, all development work having ceased six months ago, and though the rock is unusually low grade, it is being won at a profit, owing to the excellent manner in which the mine had previously been opened, eliminating all dead work from present operations.

Old Colony.

The Old Colony Copper company continues exploratory operations without interruption. An identified amygdaloid lode, carrying copper finely disseminated has recently received attention, though with rather indifferent results. The shaft is bottomed below the ninth level.

Winona.

Winona has commenced levelling and excavating on the site of the new stamp mill, which is to be erected this year, midway between the Winona and King Phillip mines. Plans for the structure are now being drawn, and construction is expected to begin early this summer. The mill will have a capacity for 1,500 tons daily, and will be used jointly by the Winona and King Phillip companies.

AT THE AMALGAMATED MINES

Production About Normal and Economies Are Constantly Being Introduced—North Butte Veins Showing Up Well at Lower Levels—Raven Mining Company to be Reorganized.

Butte, Mont., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mines of the Amalgamated Copper company, with the exception of the fire trouble in the Anaconda mine, have never been in better physical condition than they are in now. They are being operated at a normal capacity, production not being pushed nor restricted, but economies are constantly being introduced, and miners have been required to give the best results possible. At the lowest price at which copper has lately sold, according to an Amalgamated official, the company has not turned out any copper upon which it has not made a profit of 2 to 3 cents per pound. The fire trouble in the Anaconda mine is gradually being improved. A great wall is being built between the Anaconda workings and those of adjoining mines from the eighteenth to the twelfth level, and when completed the gases from the fire will not be able to interfere with operation in adjoining mines, and the wall will also keep the fire from spreading. For a time the gas in the Anaconda mine has been so bad that mining has practically been suspended there, not more than about 5,000 to 6,000 tons of ore being mined from the lowest levels of the mine per month. The shaft of that mine has not been used for three or four months on account of the gas coming from it. The fumes have been so strong that they have interfered with work in the engine room and blacksmith shop on the surface, so that it became necessary to carry the gas away. The Amalgamated company is shaft-sinking on the Diamond, Leonard, Badger State and Right Bower. The Diamond shaft is about 2,450 feet deep, and it cut through a vein of low grade ore near the 2,300-foot point. The lowest working level of the Diamond is the 2,200. The new Leonard shaft is down about 1,650 feet, and the Badger State about 1,000 feet, while the Right Bower, which was started only a few months ago, is 200 feet deep and is being sunk for the purpose of exploring a new lot of Amalgamated ground on the eastern slope of the Anaconda hill. At the Gagnon mine the company has sunk the shaft to the 2,200-foot level, at which depth the vein is being opened, and from which a very superior grade of ore is being mined, the best, really, that has ever come out of the Gagnon mine. The company is also mining the Gagnon on the 1,900, 2,000, 2,100 and 2,200-foot levels. Miners report that the Gagnon is constantly improving, and if it keeps up its rate of improvement it will soon be one of the important mines of the Amalgamated company. The 2,000-foot cross-cut of the Parrot mine has gone through the vein, and the vein is now being developed on the two new levels, known as the 1,900 and the 2,000. Actually the latter is between 2,100 and 2,200 feet below the surface. The best that officials will say about the new levels, is that they "look good," and are "showing up well." The Little Mina shaft of the Parrot company has been completed to the 1,200-foot station, and the station is being finished. When it is completed the cross-cut to the vein will be started, but as it is fully 500 feet from the shaft it can not be reached for probably three or four months. The vein on the 1,000-foot level is being opened, and while it shows up well the ore is rather "mucky." At the High Ore mine of the Anaconda company, a blower for ventilation has been installed on the new level being opened at a depth of 2,800 feet, the deepest working in the Butte district. As the level is not connected with any other mine working the ventilation has been bad, making the blower necessary. A cross-cut is being run both north and south, but has not yet reached a vein. At the Leonard mine of the Boston & Montana company, new machine shops have been built, and a new change house and blacksmith shop are about completed. At the West Colusa the old ore bins have been replaced by new ones. The Anaconda company has not yet completed the enlargement and retimbering of the Belmont shaft from the 1,000-foot point to the surface, but the work will probably be completed within another month. The 1,000-foot level of the Belmont is connected with the 1,600 of the Anaconda mine, the shaft of the latter being situated about a mile north of the Belmont shaft. It is understood that the Belmont will eventually be made the main working shaft of the Anaconda company for all the hill mines, and it is possible that the Anaconda shaft will never be used again for mining. The Anaconda company is mining some good ore from the Poulin mine, through the Buffalo shaft. The Poulin is a good mine and opened to a depth of 800 feet.

North Butte.

The North Butte Mining company is pushing development work on the two new levels, at a depth of 2,000 and 2,200 feet, and reports from the property are that the veins are showing up even better than they are on the 1,800-foot level. There have been persistent rumors that the slump in the stock has been due to unfavorable developments on the new levels, but that is denied by miners employed there.

Boston & Montana.

The Boston & Montana company is shipping about 3,500 tons of ore to the Great Falls smelter daily. The work of enlarging the latter plant is still going on and when completed the smelter

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Outlook for Shipments During Coming Season is Dubious—Mines Ready for Large Output and Railroads Well Prepared to Handle It—Sliver Mine to Begin Shipping.

With the opening of the season of navigation on the Great Lakes now not much more than a month distant, a start has already been made at most ports with the work of overhauling the shipping. However, there is yet little traffic in sight, and it will not be many of the bulk carriers that will be put into commission with the disappearance of ice and the opening of channels, the latter part of April. The outlook for the season is dubious. In fact. What the closing months will have in store for the vessel owners is not clear at the present time; but the best is hoped for. It is conceded that cargoes will be scarce the first few months at least, and there will be need of manning only a portion of the fleet. At the same time there is expectation of a much more active freight movement as the season draws to the close. Particularly is this the sentiment with respect to the iron ore traffic.

Lumber shipments are expected to show little or no improvement over those of last year. The grain movement will depend upon the crops, and to an extent so also will that of coal. The volume of the merchandise traffic, likewise, will hinge to a degree upon business conditions in the Northwest. But it is upon the movement of freight from the mines of the Lake Superior region that the prosperity of the shipping interests will largely depend. Iron ore constitutes the most important item of the commerce of the Great Lakes, and it is only when the mining industry is in a thriving state that there is little complaint from vesselmen. Just now the iron business is not in a particularly roseate condition. The probability is seen that with the new tariff law enacted, there will follow a notable revival in the trade; still, it is the belief in mining circles that not more than 30,000,000 tons of ore will be forwarded this year. As the lake fleet is in position to move easily upwards of 50,000,000 tons per season, aside from the other items that go to make up the traffic, the prospects confronting the vessel interests are none too bright. There will doubtless be many boats that will not be manned at all, and there, doubtless, will be more rate-cutting in the scramble for cargoes.

Much Work Done.

Notwithstanding that the season's ore shipments are likely to approximate less than 60 per cent of the capacity of the mines, there has been but little curtailment of operations in the Lake Superior region the past winter. Materially larger forces have been employed than was the case a year ago, and a vast amount of work has been done. Mining operations in themselves have not been pushed vigorously, although it is noted that large stockpiles have been accumulated at many of the underground mines; but the development of ore bodies has been energetically carried on, and the season is opening with the region as a whole prepared to make the largest outgo in its history. Particularly on the Mesaba range has the work of development been prosecuted briskly. Stripping operations have been in progress at a large number of properties, and there have been made ready for mining by the steam shovel a truly vast quantity of ore. Exploration has been conducted in all portions of the region, and with important results, especially in the territory west of Ishpeming, on the Marquette range and at the western end of the Menominee.

Railroads Well Prepared.

The season will open with the railroads prepared to handle almost twice the amount of ore they will be doubtless called upon to transport from the mines this year. No new dock construction has been in progress, but the shipping piers have all been given their customary winter overhauling wherever that work has been necessary. Roadbeds have been improved and some new steel has been laid. In the vicinity of Negaunee, Marquette range, there has been an extensive shifting of trackage. The rolling stock is being materially increased. Notable additions in this respect are being made by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, for its Ashland division, and by the United States Steel corporation's Duluth & Iron Range road. Eight hundred steel ore cars are to be received by the latter line. The Duluth & Iron Range hauled but 5,700,000 tons of ore last season, compared with upwards of 8,000,000 tons in each of the two preceding years, but its traffic is destined to materially increase with the advent of the Western Mesaba mines on the shipping list and as in consequence of which business is diverted to it from the Steel corporation's Duluth, Missabe & Northern. The Missabe road will have a spur track extended to M. A. Hann & Co.'s Sliver mine at Virginia by the opening of the season of navigation, and will hereafter handle the output of that property entirely, the Rainy Lake line heretofore having shared in the traffic to the extent of conveying it to the point of junction.

Shipments From Sliver.

Stripping work is being pushed at the Sliver and it is expected that some hundreds of thousands of tons of ore will be forwarded from the property this season. The initial shipments were made last year, when 50,000 tons were sent out. Equipment to be used in the removal of the overburden is being assembled at the Pittsburg Ore company's Croxton mine at Chisholm, and extensive stripping will be done there this season. The property has heretofore been operated very largely on the underground system. A notable improvement in the Minnesota fields will be the erection of the new steel shafthouse, the contract for the construction of which at the Steel corporation's Pioneer mine at Ely, Vermilion range, was recently awarded to the American Bridge company. The foundation of reinforced concrete was built some months ago. There is already in service at this property a steel shafthouse which is the largest

CALUMET & ARIZONA BUYING

Has Taken Options on Two Groups of Claims in the Courtland District for $150,000---Courtland Payroll is Large.

Tombstone, Ariz., March 20.—Col. L. W. Powell, vice president and general manager of the Calumet & Arizona, has secured options on a group of twelve claims in the Courtland district from Morgan & Snyder, for an aggregate of $150,000. One bunch, consisting of seven of the prospects, is bonded for $100,000, while the remaining five are bonded for $50,000. The two groups adjoin properties of the Calumet & Arizona, in the heart of the district. All of the claims were originally procured from I. D. Shattuck by Messrs. Morgan, of Wilcox, and Snyder of Pearce, five of them being optioned at $10,000, which was $40,000 less than the amount involved in the last transaction. It is not known what sum was given for the first option on the remaining seven.

Courtland, Ariz., March 20.—In the mines of this district at the present time are employed 350 men. This statement includes only the Great Western, Calumet & Arizona, Copper Queen and Leadville properties. There are other big mining prospects in the district, some with the richest of surface indications and promising in extent, but as yet they are only prospects. On a number of these outlying properties many men are employed in development work. The mines are not confined to copper, but silver and lead promise to play a big part in the development of the new camp.

At the Germania shaft of the Calumet & Arizona, seventy-five men are employed. At present 9,000 tons of ore are piled upon the Germania dump. This ore is the product of development work alone.

At the Mary shaft of the Great Western, where seventy-five men are employed, 4,000 tons of ore are on the dump. This, too, is merely the product of development work. In fact, at the shafts of all the four big properties of the camp, work thus far has been confined to development. At the dump of the Humboldt shaft of the Great Western are piled 7,000 tons of ore.

The Copper Queen has a splendid showing of sulphide ore at its Casey shaft, and 1,000 tons of ore are piled on the dump ready for shipment. The Leadville people have 5,000 tons of sulphides on their dump, and the Calumet & Arizona have 5,000 tons piled on the Maid of Sunshine dump.

GREENE-CANANEA PROGRESS

Million-Dollar Concentrator of Company Coming Along in Satisfactory Manner---All Second-Class Ore Will be Treated by It.

Cananea, Mex., March 20.—Rapid progress is making on the million-dollar concentrator which the Greene-Cananea Consolidated Copper company is erecting here. The bench has now been completed, and work on other departments is going forward towards completion. The new concentrator will have a capacity of 2,000 tons a day. The mines are turning out ore at the rate of 1,900 tons a day, and about 500 tons of concentrate are sent into the smelter in the same time.

All second-class ore will be treated at the new concentrator. Much development work is being carried on underground. Every shaft is working now. Electric pumps have been installed throughout and oil has taken the place of coal in all departments as a fuel for the generation of power. A tunnel is being driven through the mountain towards the Duluth group, which will be 2,000 feet long, and which will be a short cut-off for the hauling of part of the ore, now conveyed around the mountain a distance of nearly five miles. This tunnel will tap the Eliza mine and the work of driving this big tunnel is progressing at an average of seven feet a day.

STRIKE ON THE COALITION

Great Pay Shoot Reported in Marigold Lease---Big Strike of Specimen Ore Made on Parallel Vein in Mint Lease.

New York, March 20.—A dispatch from Rawhide, Nev., says: Great pay shoot in Marigold lease on Rawhide Coalition shows big improvement with every additional foot dept attained. Bottom of winze, now down seven feet below the 130-foot level, shows shoot of high grade, eighteen inches wide, sampling $1,400 per ton. Remaining three feet of vein assays from $50 to $200 per ton. Seam of specimen ore on hanging wall averages two inches wide for seven feet, and assays $10 per pound. Vein has been opened thirty feet north of winze and thirty feet south, and for entire distance is in from three to six feet of ore of good shipping grade. A ten-ton shipment of ore sampling between $500 and $600 a ton will be sent out next Monday. The Marigold is now producing $3,000 worth of ore daily.

Mint lease on Coalition, 300 feet west of Marigold, on parallel vein, made a big strike of specimen ore this morning in bottom of winze at the end of the south drift on the 300-foot level, seventy feet from the shaft. Here a half-inch seam of quartz that is one-quarter gold is exposed for four feet along the hanging wall. The entire bottom of the winze, 5 by 9 feet, is in ore sampling $120 a ton. This strike is 140 feet south of the big stope and rich winze in the north end of the drift on the 300-foot level, and the great pay shoot is proved to be continuous for the entire distance.

At the Grutt mining lease on Coalition, adjoining Marigold on the north, new pay shoot in open cut 150 feet up hill from Marigold shaft, is producing four tons daily, half a ton of which is worth $1,000 a ton, while the rest runs about $200 a ton. This lease will send out twenty-ton shipment, sampling $300, during the next few days.

The new strike made two days ago on the Grutt Balloon Hill lease on the northwestern corner of the Balloon claim of Rawhide Queen is developing into a great bonanza, the fourteen-inch shoot footwall assaying $1,890. Coalition gets 200 feet of this vein on the north and 500 feet on the south.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

New Work of Importance Begun by Homestake Company at Deadwood and Lead---Has Found Promising Copper Ledge Near Nemo.

Deadwood, S. D., March 20.—New work of importance has been commenced by the Homestead Mining company, both at Deadwood and Lead. At the former place an addition is being built to the slimes plant, which already contains twenty-six of the filter presses and for some time has been treating at a good profit about 1,800 tons a day. The addition will contain two more presses and bring the daily capacity over 200 tons. At Lead, sinking has begun again in the Ellison shaft, the deepest in the Black Hills, which is now down 1,750 feet.

The Homestake also reports finding a promising copper ledge near Nemo. While the country in that section has frequent copper outcroppings, no company with such resources as the Homestake's has ever seriously taken up the work of developing a copper prospect. The company has started on this ledge by sinking a shaft. The ledge is not far from the scene of the Custer Peak Mining company's operations at Albany, where copper abounds in the upper workings.

Word of a good strike comes from Yellow Creek, south of here. It is reported that on the Eskimo ground near the Wasp No. 2, a rich bed of yellow carbonate sand has been uncovered which assayed about $12 a ton gold. With it is a vertical vein that contains high values.

In the Tinton district there is a prospect of considerable work this summer. A. D. Tichnor, one of the most active in the development of the section around Welcome, has been busy on the Treadwell group of claims, in which some Lead City men are also interested. The tunnel has been run into the hill 400 feet and some good gold ore is found.

The Tinton Tin company, which enjoyed a successful run in its small mill last fall, will shortly resume on a much larger scale. It is said that the tin plate corporation is behind the Tinton company. Plans are being made to erect new buildings and increase the milling capacity.

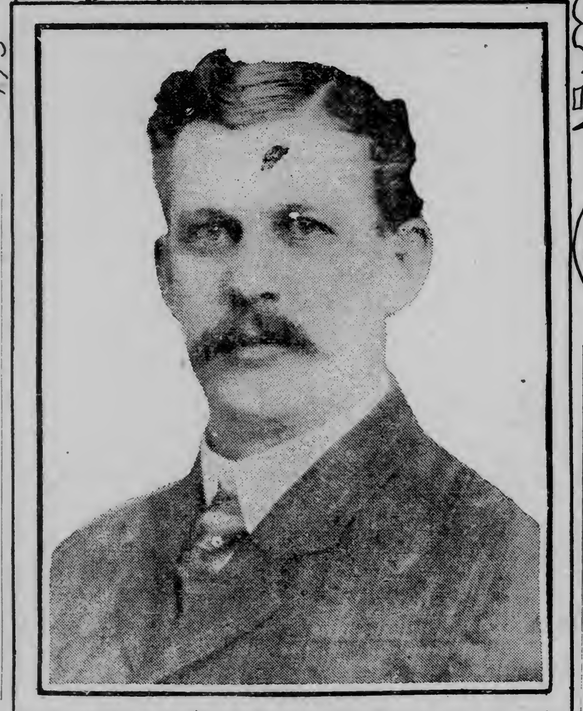
Some time ago the Saginaw company, operating at Custer, installed a new heating plant in its ten-stamp mill and the change proved highly satisfactory. The results during the cold weather have been better than anticipated, and the mill is now in shape to run continuously. Between forty and fifty tons of rock are being handled daily. Both concentrates and tailings are handled. The main ore body, a vein eight feet wide, is being developed in an open pit and is showing a regular average of $15 a ton gold. Recently another ledge which promises to be free milling, was met.

Work in the southern hills already has a more lively appearance, and it is probable that the summer will see more than the usual activity. The Hartwell Mining company, whose property is seven miles northwest of Custer, has been developing all winter. The main cross-cut tunnel is in about 345 feet and will only have to penetrate a little further to be completed. The main ledges over 300 feet wide and carries high values in gold. Several small cross shoots have been tapped.

Near the Hartwell the Ruberta Mining company is meeting with better success in the use of the diamond drill than it anticipated. The core shows some high grade material.

At Oreville the officers of the Forest City Mining company, formerly the Clara Belle, are elated over having struck the faulted vein for which they have been looking so long. This was at one time the richest free gold proposition in the hills. As this ledge is supposed to extend on to the St. Elmo and other adjoining properties, it is not unlikely that the strike will cause a resumption of work there.

"SEEING THE MAYOR"



"Mare of Duluth, Minn—Dear Sir: I respectfully take the pleasure of droping these few to the Honerable mare of the enterprising and flourishing city of Duluth in regard of doing me a favor in reference to some matter which I hope you can accomodate me with from that part of the union. Will you please obtain for me some Post cards views from your city. I desire to obtain a card of a Catholic church, Methodist church, City Bldg. court house and others of interesting places. You will find inclosed 10 cents for the cards, and if this is not enough for the cards let me know. furthermore can you give me the names of your predecessors since 1898 up to the present mare Hon. R. D. Haven. I will ask you is there a booklet or a pamphlet of some kind giving a descriptive history and views of the City of Duluth is so where can obtain such a publication for it would please me very much to obtain a booklet if there is one to be had. hoping to hear from the mayor of the city of Duluth. Wishing you Success, yours very truly, etc."

Harry H. Lemont, Secretary to Mayor Haven, did not even smile when he read this letter. It was an old story to him, and the communication came in the daily routine. He merely slipped it into his pocket, and on his way down town to lunch stopped at a book store and purchased the desired articles, sending them off in the afternoon with a letter of information and with the mayor's signature attached.

This letter, copied word for word, with all its peculiarities of grammar and spelling, is merely a sample of the strange correspondence that daily pours into Mayor Haven's office, from all parts of the country, and most of it is turned over to Secretary Lemont to handle.

Not a Soft Snap.

Political jobs are generaly looked upon as snaps of the softest kind, but being secretary to the mayor of an "enterprising and flourishing" city like Duluth, to use the words of the writer for information above quoted, is decidedly not a snap. The correspondence is only one feature of the difficulties attendant upon the position. Handling callers upon the mayor, keeping them pacified while they are cooling their heels in the outer office, answering their foolish questions, and trying to turn aside those who have no more business with the mayor than they have with the sultan of Turkey, are other features. And there are yet others.

All this requires a lot of time, a lot of patience, and a lot of diplomacy, not to speak of a lot of work. Communications just as peculiar as the one given above, although in a different way, are received every day. The peculiar ones, naturally, are for the most part from illiterate people, with funny grammar and spelling, and funnier requests, but there are other letters, just as peculiar and just as funny, from people who evidently have had good schooling.

And then there is a long list of letters from educated ones, not funny or peculiar, which have to be taken care of, and all of them are asking for information. If Duluth springs something new in the way of administering the city's affairs, it calls for inquiries from all over the United States, many of them from universities and colleges, and most of the communications are addressed to the mayor, and quickly fall from his busy hands into those of Secretary Lemont, to be answered.

Duties result in a lot of work for Mr. Lemont. Not a week passes during the school year that he does not receive letters from students asking for information regarding different municipal affairs, the material to be used in some school debate. The questions are many of them very hard to answer, too, but they have to be answered when the secretary desires to be conscientious and accommodating. Each of these letters averages about ten questions. Many of them refer to the primary election system, but all parts of the city administration are touched upon one way or another, and all manner of questions are asked about municipal graft, municipal ownership, incompetent city officers, civil service rules, etc., almost without end.

Comedy relief to all this is afforded by queer letters of the nature of the one above printed. At least, it used to be comedy when Scretary Lemont first took office, but it has become so common now that it all goes with the day's work, and it has to be a very exceptional communication, indeed, to bring a smile to the secretary's countenance.

All the letters are not from outside points. Numerous epistles are received from local people. Most of these are anonymous. Only last week a letter was received from a woman who said she was a boarder in a Bowery lodging house. She complained that the manager of the place had gone out of his way to insult her at 11:30 o'clock at night, "which was no way to treat a lady, and a married woman," she complained. She said it was the mayor's duty to see that innocent women were protected, and said if he couldn't protect her, she would have to move to some other lodging house.

It afterwards developed that she hadn't moved, despite the alleged insult, and that she had made up with the man who had aroused her anger. It turned out t be merely a quarrel between two people who appeared to be quite fond of each other, and after it was made up, "you couldn't separate them with a club," as one of the detectives expressed it. In connection with her complaint, the woman had stated that a card game had been going on in the lodging house, and called the attention of Mayor Haven to the fact that it was his duty to put a stop to it. The letter was unsigned, but the writer was easily discovered, and when asked about the card games, she said there never had been one played in the building, so far as she knew, and stated that she had put that in the letter because she was "mad at George."

A Letter From Spain.

A letter was received by Mayor Haven not long ago from a professor of political economy in Spain. It was addressed to "The Lord Mayor of Duluth," and asked information concerning local politics. It is a common thing for Mayor Haven to receive communications along this line from foreign countries, and the many and varied duties of the city's chief executive take up so much time that he naturally has to call upon Secretary Lemont to help him out with such communications, in connection with the other letters that are continually flowing in, in a never-ending stream.

A common request is for picture post cards, descriptive booklets, etc. Last summer a lady down in Topeka, Kan., wrote to the effect that she had been reading weather reports for many weeks, and in all of them had noted that the thermometer in Duluth registered lower than anywhere else in the United States. She said it was frightfully hot in Topeka, and asked Mayor Haven to send her statistics regarding local weather conditions, to advise her regarding hotel and boarding house rates, livery rates, whether it was safe and cheap to go boating on the lake, and so on. Secretary Lemont wrote her a letter which would make a revivalist's picture of Heaven look like a cheap chromo, and two weeks later she stepped off the train at Duluth, into one of the worst northeast storms of the season. She huddled over a steam radiator for two days, even if it was July, and then said reports of cool weather in Duluth had not been exaggerated in the least.

Two or three weeks ago a stationary engineer in Philadelphia wrote Mayor Haven that he, the engineer, had lost his license in a Fergus Falls fire several years ago. He thought that as it had been made out in Minnesota not in Duluth, Mayor Haven could arrange to get him another one.

Recently a man in Illinois wrote asking for information concerning a man who was married in Duluth in 1894. He wanted to know the date of the marriage, whether the man was still living with his wife, and what he was doing. Secretary Lemont immediately appeared in the role of amateur detective, and soon rounded up all the information asked for, and sent it on to the inquirer.

Doctors following out new ideas in the treatment of disease frequently write Mayor Haven for information as to the number of men of their particular occupation there are in Duluth, whether they are making any money, whether there is room for one more, etc. Stenographers, clerks, men of all trades, dressmakers and people of all other callings known to man write to Mayor Haven to learn of local prospects in their line of work, and to ask his advice regarding a change of location. When the mayor has time, which is seldom, owing to the heavy press of more important duties, he dictates answers to these letters himself, but when he cannot spare the time, they are turned over to Secretary Lemont.

The Daily Callers.

Callers to see the mayor cause more annoyance, if annoyance is possible to a mayor's secretary, than all the letters, for a letter can be put aside for a time, or even be laid over for a day, but nothing of the sort can be done with a person who is there to see the mayor. He is on hand to talk with the city's chief executive, and often insists upon doing it right away, regardless of the number of people in line ahead of him, or of who is in the private office with the mayor. To his conceited self it looks as if his business was of more importance than anybody else's, when, as a matter of fact, it may be, and more than likely is, something that should not be brought to the attention of the mayor at all.

An hour spent in the mayor's outer office, where Secretary Lemont is entrenched, as a guard to the inner office beyond, will reveal to the onlooker twelve or fifteen nationalities, on an ordinary day. In the course of a week, practically every nationality known to historians will visit the mayor's office on the second floor of the city hall, and this comprehensive statement includes Chinamen, Japs, and other people from the Far East, not excepting occasional Hindu fakers, the latter in search of licenses.

Many pathetic figures are to be seen in this lineup. Pale, sickly women, clothed in rags, and with hungry children cluthing in a scared fashion at their skirts, are often there. They have pitiful tales to tell of faithless husbands, refusing to support their families, or of husbands who have mysteriously disappeared, or of husbands who spend all their money in drink, or of harsh landlords who insist upon turning them out into the cold, or of grocers and butchers who refuse to extend more credit.

There are also men who are members of the down and out club, there looking for assistance. Beggars, sightless, or with legs and arms missing, or both, await their chane to ask permission to beg. Take out the business have to do with important city matters, and the number of mayor's callers will be reduced by a scarcely perceptible proportion. The visitors whose business is really of sufficient importance to justify the mayor giving it his personal attention are not one-tenth those that come. The others are a company made up from every walk and station in life. They bring their sorrows, their joys, their ambitions and their grievances with them. Many of their stories bring laughter, and many of them are fit subjects for tears.

While their business is not of really sufficient importance to receive attention at the hands of the mayor, Mr. Haven does not take that fact into consideration. He has an abundance of good nature, and always tries to see everybody who calls, be he poor with a tale of woe, or rich with a plan that is of great importance to the city. If he offered financial assistance to all his callers who are urgently in need of it, Mayor Haven would soon land in the poorhouse himself, with a crowd of creditors howling about his ears. It is impossible for him to give money in every case himself, but there are times when the necessity seems so urgent that he cannot withhold an offer of money, to tide the one in trouble over difficulties of the moment. In any case, if deserving, he makes it a point to turn the applicant over to one of the charitable institutions of the city, with the suggestion that assistance be rendered.

Settles Many Quarrels.

The mayor is looked upon as a board of arbitration all by himself, and many are the neighborhood quarrels he is asked to adjust. Some of them are excruciatingly funny. And there have been cases where his good-natured advise has saved the row being aired in court. One case in which he was unsuccessful in this respect came up last summer. In spite of good and well meant advise, the quarreling neighbors worked themselves into such a pitch because one of them claimed the other built a fence which infringed upon her potato field by almost two feet, that they landed in court, and even after a decision had been rendered, in favor of the man who built the fence, the affair was several times brought to the attention of the mayor by the winner, who claimed the court's order was not being observed.

A feature of the case was the fact that the person objecting to the maintenance of the fence was a woman, and the man claimed that she had threatened his life. He told stories of having been assaulted with a broom, and every time she shook her fist at him he hot-footed it to Mayor Haven's office to tell him about it and ask police protection. The woman was equally persistent in pouring her tale of woe into Mayor Haven's ear, and between the two of them he was driven nearly insane.

And Secretary Lemont gets a taste of all this. It is up to him to diplomatically keep such belligerents from engaging in actual fistic combat when they chance to meet in his office, as well as to do what he can to head off other callers with no more business with the mayor than they have with the man in the moon. He offers them advice of his own, when he can get them to unroll their story, which, in this particular case, is undoubtedly every bit as good as any the mayor could hand them, but they are not satisfied with that, and flatly refuse to leave the accommodating presence of Mr. Lamont until they have been admitted to the inner office, and the presence of the mayor.

Of all the persistent people who appear in the city hall in search of His Honor, women, not the kind with rags, and with children dragging at their heels, are perhaps the most persistent. Also they are insistent, their insistence lying in the fact that they believe they should be ushered into the chief executive's presence before any of the men in line, some of whop possibly have been waiting two hours. No matter how many men are ahead of her, a woman of this type will assume an injured air, and throw a contemptuous glance at the poor secretary that fairly congeals him, if he presumes to let a man in, in his turn, ahead of her. But all women callers, let it be said in justice, are not of that description. It's a safe wager that Mr. Lamont breathed "Thank the Lord," when he read that last sentence, if he has read it.

Also in justice to womankind, it might as well be said there are some men callers upon the mayor who are just as offended, and just as much insulted, if they are not allowed to enter the inner office ahead of the waiting line, and more than likely they are there to ask Mayor Haven to indorse the purchase of some article of which the city stands in doubtful need. Their exaggerated idea of their own importance may be only assumed, to help force business. It is also pitiful to see their chagrin when the diplomatic Mr. Lemont tells them they cannot see the mayor until their turn comes, at the same time admitting to the inner office a nervously frightened man in the garb of a laborer. Of course, if it is learned that the mission of the caller really is urgent and that it is of importance that he reach the mayor immediately, the matter is satisfactorily arranged in a very short time, Mayor Haven pausing in his talk with whoever happens to be with him long enough to attend to the newcomer. But the man has to prove his case before he is admitted, and no bluff goes.

The Business Men.

Seeing the mayor, to a great many, is a business or political necessity. The innumerable points at which the city's government touches the business interests of Duluth makes it necessary for the mayor to meet representative business men quite often. Such conferences are usually brief, and arranged by telephone. The representative business man values his time as highly as does the mayor of the city, and is as anxious as he to dispose of the business in hand in the shortest possible time.

Political necessity also forces many men to the mayor's office. The party chief must be consulted, informed, warned and solicited for favors. City affairs keep him in his office; therefore those on errands of political necessity seek him out there. The office seekers and their friends are most numerous right after election. Many a friend of the mayor calls upon him to "speak a word" for some friend of the mayor's friend, who believes his appointment to a city job would elevate the public service several notches. The mutual friend of the job hunter and the mayor may not be very enthusiastic about it, but he carries out his promise and "sees the mayor," anyway, and can tell his friends as much. Needless to say, such visits as these have practically no influence whatever upon the mayor when it comes to handing out political plums of any consequence. His mind is already made up, and the talk of the friend of a friend doesn't change it.

SHOULD WOMEN BE ALLOWED TO VOTE? "SURE," SAYS MAYOR

Mayor Haven favors the woman's suffrage movement. In talking this morning, relative to the Political Equality club, which has been organized in Duluth, he expresses himself as being in favor of allowing women equal rights with men in the use of the ballot.

"I am willing to take the chances of allowing women equal privileges with men in the use of the ballot," he said. "This suffragist movement has great possibilities. The mind can scarcely grasp all these possibilities. The average woman certainly has as much intelligence as the average man. In a good many cases she has more.

"On some questions, such as taxes, I'll admit that woman is scarcely as well qualified as man to express an intelligent opinion, but perhaps that is because, in the past, it has not been necessary for her to pay any attention to such question. Give her the right to vote on them, and she might be sufficiently interested to post herself in regard to them.

"On certain other questions, such as those relating to health, education, children, parks, playgrounds, etc., she is better qualified than man to express an opinion. Woman certainly would bring results in the campaign against liquor if they had the right to vote. They more than anyone else, suffer from the sale of intoxicants, through the faults of erring husbands, fathers and sons.

"Women also make capable municipal officers. This has been given a practical demonstration in Duluth in the case of Mrs Jeanette Baldwin, who for several months past has held a position as city health inspector. She is one of the very best inspectors we have, and has accomplished remarkable results. I cannot speak too highly of the good work she has accomplished and is accomplishing.

"Most assuredly, let the women vote."

THE LAZY CLUB.

System: One of the best assets of a manufacturing plant is the interest of employes, and when this develops into friendly riavlry its value is many times increased. Frequently workmen will adopt methods spontaneously that are of great assistance to the firm.

In the engineering shops of a certain English firm the workmen a year or two ago originated what they called the Lazy club. It was entirely their own idea, which for obvious reasons has received neither recognition nor financial support from the management, but has been a most excellent means of reducing the number of late comers.

Whenever a workman is more than five minutes after time he finds the gate locked and he is not allowed to enter until the half hour is up. This half hour is deducted from his wages, but in addition he has also to pay to the treasurer of the Lazy club about 5 cents for coming late.

If he is late more than once or so during a week everybody is aware of the fact, and the second or third time he makes his appearance after starting time he is greeted with a terrific combination of noises produced on any available material by his fellow workmen.

At certain periods the accumualted funds of the Lazy club are divided, not among those who have produced them, it should be noted, but among the entire staff equally. Thus the late workman is made to pay the early comers for his laziness. The last distribution was just prior to a "beanfeast," and funds accumulated during twelve months were distributed, amounting to over 7s a head.

TWO CONSTRUCTIONISTS.

A little more than two years ago Thomas F. Cole and Joseph B. Cotton of this city, the former president of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the iron mining arm of the Steel corporation, and the latter the general counsel for the Steel corporation in this section, went East and laid before the officials of the company a plan to establish a steel plant at Duluth. The officials of the company in the East did not believe in the practicability of a steel plant in Minnesota, but they had the utmost faith in the judgment and business acumen of Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton. They had tried these gentlemen many times and had not found them wanting. Under Mr. Cole's direction, and with Mr. Cotton's counsel, a most marvelous development had been brought about in the mining of iron; methods of mining had been vastly improved and the mining properties of the corporation had been enormously increased in extent and value. The judgment of Mr. Cole and the advice of Mr. Cotton had in in every instance proved wise and profitable. Other ventures which they had doubted had, under the brilliant management of these men, become vastly profitable, and they therefore listened to the proposition of their Minnesota chiefs for a steel plant in Minnesota with respect if not approval. So insistent and so confident were Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton, that a committee was finally sent to Minnesota to examine into the feasibility of the proposition. The result was the decision to establish a $5,000,000 plant at Duluth. This decision was arrived at upon the initiative and urging of Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton, and almost against the better judgment of the Eastern officials of the company. In two years, however, the availability of Duluth as a site for a steel plant has so grown upon the officials of the corporation that the decision has now been reached to spend at least $25,000,000 upon the plant.

This is one thing that Thomas F. Cole and Joseph B. Cotton have accomplished for Duluth and Minnesota. These men are now both severing their connection with the Steel corporation, but it is pleasant to know that both of them expect to remain in Duluth, and make this their home and their business headquarters.

Mr. Cole has been actively identified with railroad and mining interests in the Lake Superior region for thirty-nine years. For many years past he has been in charge of the interests of the Steel corporation in this territory, which under his direction have grown to be one of the greatest business interests in the world. Mr. Cole has also interested himself heavily in various copper properties in different parts of the country and has made this city the headquarters for those interests. He is also interested very largely in other business enterprises in Duluth. A man so situated, and of such capabilities, must inevitably have much to do with the upbuilding of the city in which he lives, and such has been the case of Mr. Cole in the largest measure.

Joseph B. Cotton, chief counsel for the Steel corporation here, has been connected with the mining interests of the Lake Superior region for sixteen years and as such has been not only a lawyer and counselor, but a man whose constructive ability has had much to do with the amazing development of iron mining here, until the Lake Superior region has become the chief iron mining region of the earth. In deciding to devote all his time to his own interests, Mr. Cotton has also decided to remain in Duluth, which will thus continue to profit from his ability in the future as in the past.

It is such constructive citizenship as that of Mr. Cole and Mr. Cotton that Duluth needs; it cannot have too many such men. Its possibilities by reason of its tremendous natural resources and its strategic location are almost infinite.; it also has the men big enough to realize its possibilities, and its destiny is sure.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS.

There were never so many people thinking so much about what is right in business and politics and social life as there are today. Time used to be when the business man and the statesman and the professors in the universities read the editorials in the newspapers but nowadays pretty much everybody reads them and thinks about the conditions that give rise to editorial comment.

There is no more hopeful sign of the times than this general interest in all matters that go to make up this complex life of ours. More people constantly thinking about what is right is a good sign.

Complimented upon his political shrewdness, Andrew R. Wright, who began life as an errand boy at $2.50 a week and who is now president of a great retail grocery concern in Philadelphia said, the other day "I don't know that it takes much political shrewdness to make up your mind what is right and then work for it." That is what Mr. Wright has been doing all his life—making up his mind what was right and then working for it. He did it when he was an errand boy and he got to be a clerk. He kept on doing it until he owns the business that he used to run errands for. The principle worked so well in business that he tried it in politics. He tried to make up his mind what was right in politics and then he worked for it, with the result that he is the leader of the reform forces in one of the strongest reform wards of Philadelphia, a ward that would not be a reform ward for a minute if it were not for the application of Mr. Wright's simple principle.

There are thousands of errand boys, clerks, salesmen, mechanics and men of all classes as well as prominent business men and statesmen, who are thinking what is right and trying to do it these days and the effect is very plain to be seen in the constantly increasing demand for higher ideals of conduct in business, political and social life.

Every little bit helps.

REAPPORTIONMENT.

The plain duty of the legislature is to pass at this session a reapportionment bill that will afford substantial relief from the present inequalities of representation in the legislature.

There is absolutely no reason why this should not be done. There is only the excuse that such a reapportionment involves the doing away with a few representatives now elected from the southern part of the state. Some members of the legislature will be legislated out of office.

It is a pretty poor sort of a man who cannot perform the duty of his office as he has solemnly sworn to perform it, simply because he may thereby lose some political privileges which do not belong to him.

The inequalities of the present apportionment have been shown again and again. Nobody denies them. But there is a very manifest attempt to forget them and to keep them as much out of the public sight as possible. When they stand out in naked truth where everybody can see them, these inequalities are so great and so unjust that they almost compel action of themselves.

Northern Minnesota has made progress with the greatest difficulty. Having a territory of wonderful resources to develop it has been able to secure what it needs from the state only by long continued campaigns, the state grudgingly yielding a little at a time. All this because the voting power of the state in the legislature is held by that one-third of the state which has none of these problems of development. Less than one-half of the population of the state has considerably more than one-half of the members of the legislature. So long as this condition continues, so long must Minnesota make but halting progress in its development. A just apportionment of representatives and senators would mean a state committed irrevocably to the policy of making the very utmost of all its wonderful natural resources.

Justice and practical necessity both demand a thorough going reapportionment at once.

HURTING THE WRONG MAN.

The Herald cartoon of yesterday exactly represents the facts in the tonnage tax agitation. It is not the "steel trust" that will suffer if this iniquitous tax becomes a law, but the business interests of Northern Minnesota, as well as the welfare of the entire state.

In the hostility which has sprung up against the trusts because of the many wrongs they have thrust upon the people, the Steel corporation is of course included, and the people of the state imagine that in enacting a tonnage tax law they are "getting even" in some measure by delivering a body blow to the "steel trust." No idea could possibly be more mistaken. If the steel trust is like others of its kind it will be able to make up for the taxes it has to pay, no matter what those taxes may be. No trust has yet been discovered that has not paid just as big dividends when its taxes were heavy as when they were light. We may be able to regulate trusts and curb their abuses, but we cannot decrease their profits by increasing their expenses.

So far as punishing the Steel corporation is concerned, the tonnage tax club will not be a whit more effective than if it were a wisp of straw. But to the business men of Northern Minnesota and to the permanent welfare of the state of Minnesota it is a club which descends upon them with crushing force. It is absolutely impossible for business to thrive in this section of the state if the tonnage tax bill becomes a law. Already the tonnage tax agitation and the vote of last Wednesday has paralyzed business as a hundred presidential elections and a hundred tariff bills could not. The business men of this section fear the tonnage tax bill as they would a venomous snake. They do not know where it will strike, or when. If double taxation, as provided in the tonnage tax bill, is declared unconstitutional, which form of taxation will remain, the tonnage tax or the ad valorem tax? If the former, the iron country will be left in a condition in which it will be necessary for it to tax its business property from 30 to 50 per cent to carry on the schools and the local government. This is only an imaginary evil, some may say. But can anybody say that it is not a possible evil? And how many other sections of the state would want to put themselves in a position where their taxes might possibly become from 30 to 50 per cent? It may be all right from a purely selfish view for a man in Southern Minnesota to reason that it does not matter to him if a business man's property is placed in jeopardy by uncertain legislation, but how would the Southern Minnesota man feel if it was his property that was endangered?

The entire state of Minnesota will suffer if the tonnage tax becomes a law. In the first place it will be notice to outside capital that if it comes to Minnesota, special forms of taxation will be devised to punish it. Capital and manufacturing enterprises will inevitably seek some territory where there is more hopeful prospect of a square deal, and the tremendous industrial evolution which is now making its beginning in Minnesota will be simply one of those saddest of things that might have been. In the second place, any system of taxation that draws practically all the state's revenue from a small section of the state is thoroughly bad, for it invites to arbitrary and unjust additions to that tax by the overwhelming majority who do not have to pay it and opens wide the door to every reckless extravagance which is always attendant upon man when he has unlimited funds to draw upon without cost to himself.

Minnesota cannot "get even" with the "steel trust" by the tonnage tax bludgeon; the blows of that bludgeon fall only upon its own citizens.

HIS 25-CENT FEE.

"Not only was Dr. Bull one of the greatest operating surgeons that ever lived, but what a man he was!" So wrote one who knew the great physician, to the New York Evening Post, telling the story of Dr. Bull's 25-cent fee. A young East Side physician had come to Dr. Bull for advice concerning a case that he had. A little girl must die unless operated upon at once and the attending physician felt himself in need of greater knowledge before attempting the delicate operation. Instead of giving the advice Dr. Bull gave himself; he went with the attending physician, saw the patient, and himself performed the operation on the spot. The family was utterly poor and as the great surgeon left the house the father forced into his hand all the fees that he had to give, a 25-cent piece. Dr. Bull accepted it and went away, better paid than in many cases when he had left the operating table with a fat fee in his pocket. This little story is but one of many that might be told of Dr. Bull, who was a "doctor of the old school" in greatness of his heart, as well as a great surgeon, one of the greatest that the age has known.

It is very pleasant to know this little story of Dr. Bull's 25-cent fee and to know that the great and noble calling of medicine has very many Dr. Bulls, very many great physicians and surgeons who are content with 25-cent fees, and with no fees at all, if only they are able to make human suffering somewhat less and save some lives, however humble. No other calling has so many great-hearted men. It is not alone the great surgeon that honors his profession by the giving of his skill freely to those who have nothing with which to pay him but blessings. Thousands of doctors, unknown to fame, are daily doing deeds of mercy as great as that of Dr. Bull's. But for them this world would be a hard place for the poor. They, too, give to the meanest that needs it their best of service, and that daily. They, too, have their 25-cent fee.

Here's to the doctors, who are not only doctors, but what men they are!

MR. MILLER'S EXPLANATION.

C. B. Miller, the Eighth congressional district's new representative in Washington, offers an "explanation" of his failure to act in any way with the insurgents upon the matter of the revision of the rules, which is made up of a number of words with the explanation left out.

Mr. Miller says that having gone into the caucus he had to vote for the old house rules. There will be few who will agree with that conclusion; but if the conclusion be correct, what did Mr. Miller go into the caucus for? He is a man equipped with at least ordinary reasoning powers and he knew perfectly well before he went into the caucus, as every other person in the country of the age of discretion and sound mind knew, that the caucus would be controlled by an overwhelming majority in favor of the old rules. If he was opposed to the old rules, why did he go where he knew he would be bound to support those rules?

Mr. Miller says that the changes made in the rules meet with his perfect approval, yet he did everything that lay in his power to prevent the adoption of those changes. Pledged in his campaign to a revision of the rules, he gives no aid whatever to those who fought for revision. When the battle was joined he was found in the ranks of the enemy.

The course taken by the Eighth congressional district's new representative in congress is most disappointing to the district. There will be thousands who will excuse his vote for Cannon, as opposition would have been unavailing under the circumstances, but deliberately and completely breaking faith with the people of the district is a very different matter. If every other congressman were to take Mr. Miller's position in this matter the rules would never have been revised; if two others only had taken Mr. Miller's position last Tuesday, the changes which Mr. Miller says please him so much would not have been made, and the country would be today just as firmly in the despotic grip of the speaker as it has been for many years past.

Cannonism was only scotched, not killed.

The tonnage tax is said to weigh heavily on the consciences of some statesmen.

April ought to be a smiling month this year. The time when the legislature adjourns is no time for tears.

The interests in chorus: "What a model message." Taft's tariff message was the first message to congress in a long, long time, that did not hit them.

We wonder what these "international bowlers," who are now ending their fourth week of the tournament at Pittsburg, do for a living when they are at home.

Ten years is a long time to spend in prison, but prison is the only place in the world for the man who forgets that the sacred duty of manhood is to protect womanhood.

This is a great year for centenary anniversaries and the present week has contributed something in the way of interest, containing as it does the birthdays of Grover Cleveland and William Jennings Bryan. The latter, like ex-President Roosevelt, is just 50 years old, and like him, also appears to be in the full flower of vigorous manhood.

The announcement that work is to be begun upon the steel plant as soon as possible this spring, is good news in Duluth. The plans for the Minnesota plant have steadily grown in scope and there is good reason to believe that when the plant is finally finished it will be one of the largest in the country, if indeed, it does not become the principal plant of the Steel corporation.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

When asked his opinion yesterday of the result of the tonnage tax bill, should the senate concur in the action taken by the lower house, D. D. McEachin of Hibbing, head of the Itasca Mercantile company, who is one of the representative business men of the range, stated that it would simply rob St. Louis county of its fair and just share of local taxes, and cast a blight on the schools and other public institutions that are supported by county taxes.

Mr. McEachin was at the Spalding yesterday. He stated that it was nothing more than robbing the schools and other public institutions of the ranges, of tax revenue that they were justly entitled to, and upon which they depended for their maintenance. Mr. McEachin believes that the result of this, if the tonnage tax measure becomes a law, will not only be to hurt immeasurably the business of the iron ranges, but to also injure the efficiency of the public institutions that have depended in the past for their maintenance, upon the revenue accruing from the iron industry.

"We think it unspeakable," said Mr. McEachin, when asked the opinion of the range people, of the action of the lower house. "It is of vital interest to us, this revenue from the iron industry, and by diverting the taxes to the state treasury, the legislature will be taking away from our institutions that which is justly theirs. We can see no fairness, no justice in the action taken by the lower branch of the state legislature. The results, if the senate should concur in the action of the house, would simply be prostrating to the ranges.

"Its great injury will lie not only in the depriving of the institutions of the iron country of their just share of the tax revenue, but it will also, in my opinion, have a very bad effect upon business. We look at it, merely as a case of taking something that is ours by all right and justice, to lessen the taxes in other parts of the state."

George Shea, city attorney of Virginia, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, was another range man who is of the opinion that the passage of the tonnage tax measure will have a most depressing effect upon business conditions upon the range.

"I am afraid, if the measure is passed by the senate, that it will have the tendency to injure greatly all classes of business upon the ranges," said Mr. Shea. "Of course the people of the ranges have the hope that the senate will not pass the measure. It means more to us than any one who does not live upon the range can realize. Its effect upon the industrial situation upon the range cannot be foretold, but most of the people of the ranges are of the opinion that if the tonnage tax measure becomes a law, it will paralyze all classes of business."

There was a pathetic solemnity pervading the Lenox hotel yesterday, over the untimely passing away of little "Pete," the tame ferret, whose shuffling gait was graphically described in the morning paper yesterday.

Al Ribenack, to whom the little animal was affectionately attached, was particularly affected when he learned of the death of the rodent chaser. He did not know what had become of the pet until he recognized the picture of the carcass in the morning sheet. It was a very lifelike portrait of little "Pete," and despite the exciting caption over the picture, which misled many who were not personally acquainted with little "Pete," Mr. Ribenack recognized his pet immediately.

Texas sure must be reforming. C. J. Nesbit, Jr., of St. Louis, who is at the McKay, has in his possession a letter from a friend, written upon a letter head of the Commercial club of Graham, Tex. Upon the letter head is set forth some of the attractions of the young and thriving Graham.

It says:

"Graham has no saloon and no negroes; it has good schools and good churches."

Graham, according to the figures set forth upon the letter head of the Commercial club, possesses a population of 3,500 people. It prides itself, according to the statements of the Commercial club, with having no places where you can drop in of a hot and sultry afternoon, or perchance early of a cold morning, and imbibe any of the stuff that cools or warms, in inverse ratio to the weather conditions.

Not so many years ago this would have been no recommendation for any Texas town. Good whisky and free and high play, were two of the cardinal recommendations in the days before the reform wave swept over the broad acres of the Lone Star state.

But now there is apparently a pride of moral rectitude asserting itself in the citizens of the state that once was a dangerous stamping ground, unless you were quick with the trigger finger, black brother, but demon rum has fared They still have the old aversion to the formers.

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

Duluth is still enjoying balmy spring temperature. The minimum temperature here last night was 22 degs. above zero. Indeed, the entire weather map fails to show a community which experienced anything so chilly as zero weather. Port Arthur, where the minimum last night was 6 degs. above zero, came nearest to it.

The mild temperatures are expected to continue tonight and tomorrow, with either snow or rain on the side.

The sun rose this morning at 6:11 and is scheduled to go down at 6:20. A year ago today the weather was cloudy.

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"Barometric depressions overlie the Rocky mountains, the lower Mississippi valley and New England coast districts. These disturbances caused light rain or snow over the northern and eastern portions of the lake region, Atlantic and Southern states and Pacific districts. The barometer is highest over Western Ontario. The temperatures have fallen somewhat over the lake region, Central valleys and Southwestern states as a result of rising pressures, while falling pressures in the Atlantic and Gulf states, the Rocky Mountain region and Northwest are attended by milder weather generally. The easterly movement of the Rocky mountain disturbance will doubtless cause some rain or snow at the Head of the Lakes during Sunday or Sunday night."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Tears, Idle Tears.

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail,
That brings our friends up from the under world;
Sad as the last which reddens over one
That sinks with all we love below the verge;
So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-wakened birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remembered kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned,
On lips that are for others, deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret—
O Death in Life, the days that are no more!

—ALFRED TENNYSON.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Half the excitement to a girl of being in love is wondering if she really is.

Because there are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught is no guarantee that you will catch any of them.

Men who sneer at the world are merely trying to distract your attention from the fact that the world despises them.

The most puzzling thing in making a bargain is to guess whether the other fellow is lying more or less than you are.

A woman could really believe in men's brains if they could comprehend that what is paid for in millinery is not mere material, but the potential capacity to make other women miserable by not having something more costly.

Crum's Successor.

Charleston News and Courier: Besides being a business man of the best type, largely interested in the affairs of the community and thoroughly identified with its people in all its affairs, Mr. Durant is a good all-round fellow. He was born in Minnesota, but he couldn't help that, and he has been born again in Charleston, S. C., which was altogether to his liking.

He is not exactly "one of us," as the saying goes in these parts, but, better than that, if anything could be better, he is one of us. His home is here, his money is invested here, his work is done here. He is a man of education and refinement. He looks well in a dress coat, he saws lumber, plants potatoes, strings beans, hunts deer, rides horseback, drives out in a carriage, runs an automobile and plays golf. When distinguished people come into this port, he will know how to meet them and they will be glad to meet him. He will make a dignified representative of the government at Washington in the ceremonial part of the business of the collector, and will make the people of this town and the South feel that in his appointment Mr. Taft is realizing his high aim "that this government is their government, and that its officers in their states are their officers."

Thank you, Mr. Taft. Speedy confirmation and good luck, Mr. Durant.

A Toast.

Fashion! Lovely Dame!
Pledge in sparkling wine!
Let us add her name
To the Muses' nine!

Though the lovely Nine
All should pass away,
Why should woman pine,
If but Fashion stay?

Tho' the Muses' lore
Molder on the shelf,
Still may she adore
In Fashion's glass—Herself.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Human Types—The Optimist.

Excellent creatures the optimists are. Life would be dull and dreary without them. They redeeme the darkest day from utter gloom, the most painful situation from beginning a source of despondency and despair; and yet certain kinds of optimists are more or less exasperating to us who cannot follow them in all their rainbow chasing, and in their persistent pursuit of the pot of gold that lies at the base of the rainbow. One optimist of my acquaintance has for the last thirty years been periodically on the point of making at least $10,000 a year. That pleasant consummation was just in sight—so clear in fact to his vision that he asked his friends to congratulate him. But the years have gone, and he is now 70 years old, and working ten hours a day on a salary of $6 a week. But dear, hopeful, kindly, aspiring soul that he is, I wouldn't for the world ever remind him of the number of times when he has informed me that it was a "dead sure" thing, and that this time, for sure, he was going to have all the money he needed.

I know a member of the opposite sex who has that same ebullient disposition. Schemes without number take shape and float through her brain; but they come up against the hard, cold tests of life, and lo! the bubble bursts. Nevertheless you cannot repress her, and at 60 years of age she is still one of the most cheerful, hopeful, sunshine-dispensing persons of my acquaintance. And why should I of less sanguine temperament, chide her because her dreams and visions have so often faded into the light of common day? And, why, forsooth, should I allow myself to be provoked because of her unyielding tendency to hope on and hope ever? It is only a relic of barbarism in me, a sign of my very partially sanctified state that I do ever feel a passing thrill of almost savage satisfaction that the optimists, like the rest of us, must live in a cold, cold world which demands that every fair vision, every large hope, shall prove not only its beauty, but its feasibility and utility.

The only thing we can ask of any optimist is that he should never overlook the actual amount of difficulty, ignorance, suffering and sin in the world. You may build a very pretty philosophy by selecting only the facts of human life that accord with your theory and by leaving out all that militate against it; but such a philosophy in time dissolves, and the better way is to see at the beginning both sides of the shield, the number of divorces as well as the number of happy marriages, the reckless sacrifice of human life in the mines, on railroads as well as the splendid achievements in the industrial world, the bitter race prejudice that manifests itself not only in one section of the country, but in all, as well as the growing spirit of democracy and brotherhood. The optimism that can maintain itself in the face of these staggering and depressing facts is of a finer and more lasting character than that which utterly ignoring them goes on to brag of the wonders of modern civilization and the amount of joy and success in the world at large.

My favorite optimist in literature is Browning's "Pippa." I picture her as a lithe, delicate maiden, the embodiment of sunshine, dancing blithely through the world and singing:

The year's at the spring,
The day's at the morn.
Morning's at seven
The hillside's dew-pearled!
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in his heaven,
All's right with the world!

The greatest, sanest, most commending optimist in history is Jesus Christ, and His message concerning the friendliness of God, the value of the human soul, and the far-reaching brotherhood of men constitutes the kind of optimism to which we may all confidently cling.

Property and Proprietors.

Joseph Chamberlain: The rights of property have been so much extended that the rights of the community have almost altogether disappeared and it is hardly too much to say that the prosperity and the comfort and the liberties of a great proportion of the population has been laid at the feet of a small number of proprietors, who neither toil nor spin.

THOUGHTS ON BOYS

By J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.
Author of "The Young Man and Himself," etc.

HIS VOCATION.

(Copyright, 1909, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

If he gets his right vocation at the right time it will be the right settlement of a question that ranks among the solemnest things in his life. If he gets into the wrong vocation, it will be like wearing a pair of shoes that do not fit and insist on pinching and rubbing and irritating, and he is not likely to have sense enough to change to the right thing. But he must not enter his calling till he has gotten beyond the boy stage. Then, why consider the matter in a discussion of boys at all? Well, for two reasons, surely. He is getting himself ready for it unconsciously and his rulers are deliberately and intelligently preparing him for it. At least they are if they are true to him.

He is moving right on steadily toward his calling, when he has a chance to let himself out and to engage in some preliminary preparatory callings. His first vocation is play and that he pushes with a devotion worthy of him. He cannot have made a better choice and you pronounce him a success. You say he will be heard from yet and you base your conclusions on the fact that he has already been heard from, mightily.

That vocation is quickly succeeded by another, also play, a new phase of play, in which he is busier than ever. For he has now added an avocation, a side calling going to school, and perhaps running on errands and helping about the house, or the school or with the horses or in the field. All along he is getting ready for his life work without knowing it and without showing it, save to trained and penetrating eyes.

Another vocation follows soon—still play. But this time it is team work. His social instincts are at work and the sentiment of otherism is getting hold of him. On through the gang period and into the chum period it extends, and then some definite plans are likely to be formulated. All through those periods he has been dreaming of being all sorts of things, and he has been doing some things. He has been dreaming of being cowboy, lion hunter and the whole line of things familiar to those who are familiar with boys. He has been doing such things as peddling papers or working on a farm in summer or being an errand boy or making vegetables on the shares. He is really doing valuable preparatory work, for body and brain, and heart and hand.

But you notice that he seldom becomes just what he first wanted to become and he seldom continues in what he starts to doing. There are reasons for it. He is simply doing whatever he can get his hands on, in order to have some fun or make some money to do what he would like to do. Besides, he is learning, by experience, what not to do. And we must not forget two facts, that his strongest attitudes may be still dormant and that he has not yet the power of final choice.

When he has made his preliminary experiments, has found those deep and determining aptitudes and has developed his power of definite and decisive choice, then he will have very little difficulty in finding his calling. He cannot well make a mistake and if he does it will be a mistake that can be very easily corrected.

He might fit into any one of a group of related callings, like building, contracting, milling and the like, because the sense of the mechanical is dominant. If he is a harterer, he can trade in almost any line. Or he might be a dentist or druggist or a doctor and make no mistake in either case. Any one of kindred professions might be suitable for him. He may have to have experience in one before settling in a closely related calling. His talents and tastes must harmonize with his trade.

It must not be supposed that he came to his calling in a fortuitous way or solely by self direction. It had to be, in the final decision, his own choice, for it must ever be a choice and not a coercion. But others were preparing him for the momentous decision. They were watching over his play, giving steady direction, tactful correction and constant protection, and the subtle power of making wise choices was growing in the lad. They were preparing his body by wholesome food and the right exercise, in work and systematic training as well as play. They were developing his mind till its more hidden and tardy talents should come forth, to give their voice in the council chamber. In doing so, they sent him through as thorough courses in school and college and university as possible, so that he would not fail of any needed equipment. For they knew also that the boy with the well-trained mind has a distinct advantage over the rest of the boys. If they want him to have the chance to become president of the United States they know that h's chances, according to the way it has already been going, are about thirty times as good with a college education as without, while he has not as many chances to become a supreme court judge and almost as few to become a United States senator and he has nine times as good a chance to succeed in any other calling.

They have also taught him a trade, as the Jews used to teach their boys. That old rabbi was not far wrong in saying that he who did not teach his boy a trade did the same as teach him to steal. A trade gives one useful knowledge, skill, sympathy with toilers and may provide for some unforeseen, yet very serious, emergency. Our manual training schools are preparing our boys for their callings. Those who have charge of him have also been helping him get a technical training for his calling, by sending him to school or directing his reading or observations.

There is one other element in the selection of his calling and that is the presence and will of him who gave us the raw materials for all our callings and gave us the aptitudes for them, who still exercises a providence over us and has His personal plans for us. The boy must be taught to respect that fact of Providence and to co-operate with him whose will is so glorious. Yet he must also make his own final choice.

MAKING CABINETS

BY SAVOYARD

It is only history repeating itself when a Republican president of the United States appoints Democrats to cabinet places. Is it not written in profane story: "The mistress of Strafford became the mistress of Pym?" But I do not mean it in that possibly offensive sense. Government is not an exact science, and politics is a game of chance. Nobody is better persuaded than I that Franklin MacVeagh and Jacob M. Dickinson can accept cabinet places under William H. Taft without the slightest sacrifice of personal honor, or the least recantation of political principles. In 1896 the Democratic party gave indefinite furlough to every member, and enlisted the Pops as Janizaries.

The "cabinet" is a rather indefinite term. There is no warrant for it in the Constitution and little authority for it in statute law. If he should see fit the president could go through four years of chief magistracy without calling a single cabinet council. Gen. Sherman knew that when he characterized Edwin M. Stanton, then secretary of war, as "a d—d clerk."

It was proposed in the convention that framed the Constitution to establish a cabinet, every member to be chosen from the majority side of the house of representatives, and no cabinet minister to lose his seat in that body, or his right to participate in debate. Thus a president of one party would have been required to change the entire personnel of his cabinet if the opposing party proved successful at the elections held the middle of his term.

That would have been parliamentary government, which is government by the people. Besides that, no member of the house of representatives would ever have broken his neck trying to be senator. As it is, we have executive government. The president is the whole show, and in his presence congress has no more backbone than a fishing worm. For seven years Theodore Roosevelt was only a more fortunate despot than Louis Napoleon—all because of the sycophancy and poltroonery of the American congress. As for the Constitution, it had been hid away as the Book of the Law in the vanished Ark of the Covenant in the Babylonish captivity. Whether it is to come forth again, time only will tell. Mr. Taft begins his administration with a palpable and contemptuous violation of it in the case of his secretary of state.

I thought I would take a glance at some cabinet situations of the past. When the minority of the delegates to the Whig national convention succeeded in defeating the majority, nominating William Henry Harrison over Henry Clay, Thurlow Weed, who had done the thing, set about to placate the friends of "Harry of the West," and thus John Tyler was given the nomination for vice president, though Daniel Webster might have had it in spite of Weed. When Clay heard of it he was sitting in Brown's hotel in this town, and terrible was his rage. Turning to a gentleman next him, who proved a clergyman, he exclaimed: "By —, if there were two Henry Clays in this country one of them would make the other president of the United States!"

Tyler became president one month after the new administration came in. He was no ordinary man; but in history he is a greatly under-estimated man. He resigned his seat in the senate rather than obey, or disobey, the instructions of the Virginia legislature as to certain legislation. In the main he was a supporter of Clay's, but when he vetoed a rechartер of the bank, and that made Clay his relentless enemy; but Henry A. Wise was his friend, and Wise, after many debates, induced Tyler to make John C. Calhoun secretary of state.

And that is how it came we got Texas and the Mexican war when we did. Had Tyler had any other secretary of state, doubtless the annexation and the war would have been postponed for years. The annexation and the war came with Polk.

The cabinet of President Pierce was the only one in our history that remained intact the entire administration, and that is strange, too, when we reflect that William L. Marcy was secretary of state and Jefferson Davis secretary of war; but they never clashed, and there was the utmost harmony between them. Marcy, a candidate for president, busied himself reforming the diplomatic and consular service, and Davis, who had no desire to be president, worked like a Trojan reorganizing the army. Both were eminently successful, especially so the secretary of war, himself an accomplished graduate of West Point and an approved brilliant soldier on the field of battle.

Guthrie, than whom no abler financier was ever put in that station, was secretary of the treasury, and Caleb Cushing, inventor of Ben Butler, was the attorney general. He was a great jurist, and in his time furnished more law to more administrations than any other man of our history. When Grant nominated him for chief justice of the supreme court, a Republican senate rejected him for his friendship for President Davis.

Lincoln's cabinet was a disappointment to many ardent members of his party. Seward, Chase, Cameron, Wells, Bates, Blair, Smith." Of these, four had been Democrats and three Whigs, and they were in no sort of political accord except the preservation of the Union and opposition to slavery. When Lincoln was remonstrated with for favoritism to former Democrats, a majority of his cabinet, he simply flung one leg over the other and answered: "Well, I'm a Whig; that evens things up."

But by-and-by Cameron went out of the cabinet and Lincoln appointed Edwin M. Stanton to the vacancy. This man had characterized the speech of Jefferson Davis, bidding the senate farewell, as inspired of God, and between the inauguration of Lincoln and his own appointment to the war office he wrote letters to James Buchanan that were simply startling, read in the light of his subsequent life, and yet the biographer of Buchanan says that for sheer decency he suppressed many of the worst!

Let the man who would be acquainted with the miscreant read the disputations of Jeremiah Black with Seward and Garfield.

When Gen. Grant became president, he nominated A. T. Stewart for secretary of the treasury. Never had the secrecy of the personnel of a cabinet been so well kept, but that was natural, as the work of a great soldier. Somebody dug up an old statute of 1789, when Alexander Hamilton was secretary of the treasury, prohibiting an importer from holding the office of secretary of the treasury. Stewart was the largest importer in the Union. Gen. Grant saw the obstacle, and like the soldier that he was, he dispatched a message to congress that was not inaptly characterized as "General Orders No. 1," and said simply: "Repeal the law," just as four years before he had ordered an army corps hither or thither. Congress refused.

Garfield's cabinet was not completed until a few minutes before it was sent to the senate. It was headed by James G. Blaine and Wayne MacVeigh was the attorney general. It would not have survived a single session of congress. Few men as able as MacVeagh have been Uncle Sam's law officers. Except Jeremiah Black, he is, perhaps, the most brilliant man the bar of Pennsylvania has produced.

Mr. Cleveland weakened his party by taking from the senate Bayard, Lamar and Carlisle, and putting them in his first cabinet, and Taft will be fortunate if he does not miss Knox from the senate before his administration is half over.

Cleveland made Walter Q Gresham secretary of state of his second administration. Patriotically, it was a great thing to do; politically, it was an imprudent thing to do. But then Cleveland was more of a patriot than a politician. If there had been room enough in one administration for Grover Cleveland and William R. Morrison, a Democrat, would have been inaugurated president of the United States this good day of March 4, 1909 instead of Mickinley, the disciple of Pig Iron Kelley, and president because he was the most distinguished apostle of the dogma of protection in the country, chose Lyman J. Gage for the treasury department, who had voted for Grover Cleveland because of the tariff issue of 1892. Roosevelt's secretary of commerce and labor, Oscar S. Strauss, was the enthusiastic admirer and devoted friend of William L. Wilson, and is as much a free trader today as Champ Clark or Henry Watterson

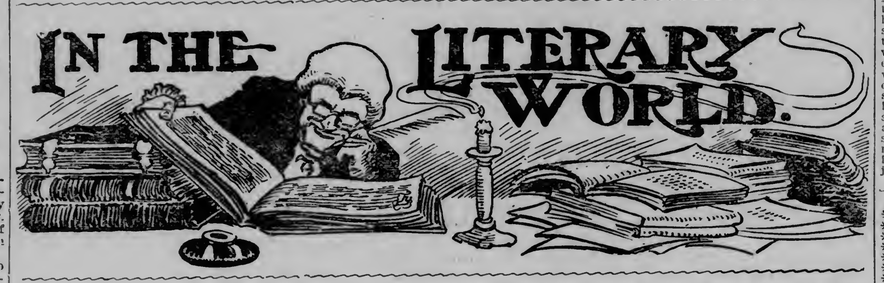
Franklin MacVeagh is to business what his more brilliant brother is to law—in the front ranke of the elite of the guild. He, too, was a Cleveland Democrat, for sound money and honest and constitutional taxation.

If the Republicans shall make an honest effort for decent taxation and measurably succeed, I do not quite clearly see what my old friend, the Democratic party party, is going to do for a living. If the Republicans fail, as I think they will, then fortune will again knock at the Democratic door.

IN THE LITERARY WORLD.



THE MAN IN LOWER TEN. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill Co. $1.50.

"The Circular Staircase" was one of the happy surprises of 1908. In "The Man in Lower Ten" Mrs. Rinehart tells an even better story with even greater gayety, and even more intense humor. And as for the mystery—the plot so deeply engrosses the reader that he forgets meals and sleep. A man goes to bed in Lower Nine of the Washington sleeper from Pittsburg, and awakens in Lower Seven. In the meantime another man, in Lower Ten, which berth the first man was to have occupied if Pullman arrangements had gone straight, is murdered, and the man in Lower Seven finds, as he starts to dress, not his own clothes and shoes, but the garments of somebody else and the bag of somebody else, instead of the one containing his own valuable papers.

There's the puzzle for you, and it seems all the more baffling because of its very simplicity. The criminal must be one of the little group of people, all described, who hourd on the Washington car. Naturally, every reader becomes a detective on his own hook, certain sure that he has the one correct solution. And Mrs. Rinehart just sits back with her sly and subtle smile—and lets one think so! Her fun will come to see him sit up with a jerk of surprise when she discloses her secret in the last astonishing chapter.

It remains to add that, while the bright banners of humor and the sinister storm signals of mystery are streaming thwart the sky, that still the flag of romance flies bravely, too. On the fateful Pullman on which the hero takes passage there is also a blue-eyed and brown-haired lassie with whom he sees and loves. "The Man in Lower Ten" thus makes a three-fold appeal upon the reader, who is at once absorbed by its unusual mystery, cheered by its delightful humor and charmed by its love interest.

THE WEB OF THE GOLDEN SPIDER. By Frederick Orin Bartlett. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.50.

Things happen in this romance—things thrilling, entirralling, improbable, almost impossible—and things vastly diverting and appealing most potently to that spirit of romance and adventure which in most of us is quite content with perils crowded between the covers of a book, to be read in a place of safety and comfort, whose charms heighten the appeal of the life of battle and danger. The author has certainly done his best that it could possibly hold, and if he had been less skilful as a story-teller, that might have been dangerous. Being as skilful as he is, he has made a story possessing a charm guaranteed to drive away the cares of the day and to replace them with a pleasant thrill over the troubles of book people, which have a way of getting as desperate as imagination can make them, and then of straightening out again in the end.

THE OPEN SHOP. By Clarence S. Darrow. Chicago: Charles H. Kerr & Co.

In this pamphlet the noted Chicago radical provides an appealing brief for union labor, and a timely reply to the arguments in behalf of the open shop. "No one claims," he tells us, "that all trade unionists are wise or even honest. Neither is trade unionism an ideal institution. It was evolved to serve a purpose and to perform a duty in the upward march of the human race. It was made to fit a condition of society divided into the employing class and the serving class. Its mission is to protect the weak against the strong. War and strife are not ideal states, but they have been ever present with the human race, and so long as the war of classes shall continue, the weak and the helpless must ever look to trade unionism as its chief champion and its most powerful defender." As always, Mr. Darrow makes his argument forceful and brilliant.

LETTERS OF A JAPANESE SCHOOLBOY. By Wallace Irwin. New York: Doubleday, Page & Co. $1.50.

A year or so ago there appeared in Collier's Weekly a letter addressed to the editor and signed "Hashimura Togo." Togo described himself as a Japanese schoolboy age 35 years, and said that he "come to this free country for some following reason: 1. To save up money for old age. 2. To learn so much I can. 3. To wait on table fourteen hours daily at boarding house of Mrs. C. W. O'Brien, honorable lady." After explaining that "I am not doing so today as I am confined in hospital enjoying much pain from brickbat wound sent to me by one American patriot, "Togo proceeded to discuss affairs of state, and from then till now he has continued to do so almost weekly. At first the readers of Collier's chuckled over the naive and laughable ideas of this San Francisco Jap boy, but later they grew to the conclusion that the letters were the work of an American humorist. Now these letters appear in book form ,and for the first time it is officially disclosed that their author is Wallace Irwin, though many familiar with his style had "spotted" him long ago. A persistent vein of delicious humor and philosophy runs through the letters, and most readers will agree with Mark Twain's conclusion that Togo is "the wisest and funniest and delightfulest creation that has been added to our literature for a long time." Also with ex-President Roosevelt, who declared Togo to be "a corker." The letters make a tremendously delightful book, and the comments on public affairs are as apt as they are funny.

SOCIALISM AND MODERN SCIENCE. By Enrico Ferri. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. $1.

In this interesting discussion by an able Italian theorist, the doctrine of evolution is applied to social conditions in an endeavor to prove the claim of Socialism by the theories of Darwin and Spencer. The idea of the author is that Karl Marx completes the work of Darwin and Spencer, and he works it out ingeniously and ably.

VITAL PROBLEMS IN SOCIAL EVOLUTION. By Arthur M. Lewis. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

In this little book history, sociology and economics are viewed through Socialist spectacles. Chapters are devoted to the materialistic conception of history, to the Socialist theory of panics, and to the discussion of the ideas of Spalding, Paine, Engels, Duehring and Proudhon. As is customary with this ingenious Chicago thinker, his discussions are entertaining and plausible.

SOCIALISM: ITS GROWTH AND OUTCOME. By William Morris and Ernest Belfort Bax. Chicago: Chas. H. Kerr & Co. 50 cents.

Here is a historical and prophetic discussion of Socialism by two writers well qualified for their task. They have aimed at "a continuous sketch of the development of history in relation to Socialism," and with the "aspirations of Socialists now living toward the society of the future." Their work has been well done, and from the Socialistic viewpoint is no doubt convincing. From any viewpoint it is interesting.

THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK. By Gaston Leroux. New York: Brentano's. $1.50.

"The Perfume of the Lady in Black," by the author of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," is even better than its predecessor. The characters of "The Yellow Room" reappear in the pages of "The Lady in Black," and the hero is again Joseph Rouletabille, the young reporter, whose powers of reasoning bring to light the most remarkable mystery known to the annals of modern fiction.

"The Perfume of the Lady in Black" begins where most romances end—with a wedding. The couple start on their wedding tour with the brightest anticipations for the future, but long before they reach the end of their journey their happiness is merged in a dark cloud of horror, which is not lifted until the last pages of the book are reached, and then in a manner which startles the reader as much as it does the members of the little company assembled in the Square Tower to witness Rouletabille's "corporeal demonstration of the possibility of the body too many."

M. Leroux knows better than any author now living—even better than the inventor "Sherlock Holmes"—how to create a thrill and to awaken the eager and excited interest of his readers. Any one who picks up "The Perfume of the Lady in Black" will not willingly lay it down until the story is finished and the mystery which has held him in its grasp, and which he can not possibly solve until the author wills for him to do so—is a secret no longer.

In the House and Garden for April, Tudor Jenks tells in verse of the assignment of a reporter to "Se what Tareaxacums have to Say" and in a bright way tells of these "sclons of an ancient race," the Dent de Lions, of their aerial voyage from a far off Land of Clover to the pleasant harbor in the lee of the Old Stone Wall. The cheerfulness of the story which he makes them relate is but a reflex of the smiling happiness these bright flowers shed in the early springtime.

Gunter's Magazine for April has a fine collection of stories for readers who like, in their fiction, love and adventure and big, stirring plots, entertainment pure and simple. Three features loom extra large in the April Gunter's. They are a complete novel by Clinton Dangerfield, entitled "Castleton of Kentucky, A Romance of the Night-riders;" the beginning of a serial novel of love and mystery, "The Gable House," by Arthur W. Marchmont; and the first complete story of the "Levinson Lea, Lawyer," series, by Edwin Bliss.

A true tale of shipwreck in the icefloes off the Newfoundland coast opens the April number of Harper's Magazine. It is George Harding's account of his own experience, and his tale of how the men faced threatening death. The drawings were made by the author. An important article in this number is contributed by the famous surgeon, Dr. W. W. Keen, who describes the latest developments in surgery by which feats of almost incredible wonder are performed. Madame de Bunsen, wife of a well-known diplomat, writes a chapter of extremely interesting reminiscences of her experiences at The Hague in the late 60's. Theodore Watts-Duntou contributes a brilliant critique of Shakespeare's "Cymbelline," for which the drawings were made by Edwin A. Abbey. Norman Duncan takes the reader "Beyond Beersheba" and into Egypt by a pleasant road, with much interesting tale-telling and adventure upon the way. The anonymous serial, "The Inner Shrine," continues to develop a piquant and absorbing plot, and to draw the attention of readers generally. Besides, there are seven fine short stories by Arthur Stanwood Pier, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, James Branch Cabell, James Barnes, Willa Sibert Cather, Alice MacGowan and Leo Crane. The illustrations include a group of etchings of Chicago by Charles Henry White, Abbey's Shakespeare pictures, paintings by Howard Pyle, drawings by Frank Craig, Newell, and many others. Mr. Howells discusses further in his Easy Chair the question of the cost of living in New York, and Mr. Alden takes for his theme in the Study the unreality, or reality, of the representation of life in literature.

Among the leading articles in the April number of the Technical World Magazine are: "Terrific Waste of Natural Gas," by Conley B. Purdom; "To Give the Birds a Refuge," by Roy Crandall; "The Waters Under the Earth," by Anne Hard; "New Blow at the White Plague," by Frederic Blount Warren; "Fire Fighter that Gives No Quarter," by A. W. Rolker; "Moving a River to Protect a Railroad," by Harry H. Dunn; "Shall Fire Food be Pure," by Rene Bache; "Conquering the Hell-Gate of the Lakes," by Len G. Shaw; "Motor-Boating for Pleasure," by Darwin S. Hatch; "Latest in Flying Machines," by C. F. Carter and William Walsh.

From the chic looking Mardi Gras girl by John Cecil Clay on the cover, to the last letter in the household department, Uncle Remus"—The Home Magazine for March is just about as satisfying a periodical as you will find. The very first article in the magazine is a startler. It is an editorial written by Julian Harris, the editor. It is entitled "Shall the Solid South Be Shattered?" and in it Mr. Harris makes some remarkable, not to say sensational, statements concerning political conditions in the South. Apropos of the inauguration of Taft, a splendidly written article by M. A. Lane, entitled "Two Early Inaugurations," is of especial interest. In pleasing style, Mr. Lane describes the inauguration of Washington and that of Jefferson. The article is illustrated from photographs of rare pictures of men and scenes incident to the two great events. In "wedding bells" with the brightest anticipations for the future, but long before they reach the end of their journey their happiness is merged in a dark cloud of horror, which is not lifted until the last pages of the book are reached, and then in a manner which startles the reader as much as it does the members of the little company assembled in the Square Tower to witness Rouletabille's "corporeal demonstration of the possibility of the body too many."

Ainslee's for April has an unusually fine table of contents. Every story in the list is worth more than the time and money spent in reading it. Among the contributors are Harold MacGrath, Joseph C. Lincoln, Mary H. Vorse, Steel Williams, Marie Van Vorst, Austin Adams, Jane W. Guthrie, Charles Neville Buck, Elizabeth Duer, William Armstrong, Arthur Loring Bruce and Caroline Duer.

The April number of The Popular is filled with good stories of this best of all types—the clean, heart-stirring adventure story. Take, for instance, "Alan Colcraft, Squire of Dames," by Louis Joseph Vance, the complete novel which stands at the head of the list. It is a story of rapid, but real action, without a single incident at which the reader's credulity must strain; it contains real characters and a charming romance. Alan Colcraft and Elaine Nicholson might have been John Jones and Sally Brown; but their adventures, their actions, their motives, would have been the same—for they were a real man and a real woman, and each was worthy of the other.

Laurence North's novel, "Syrinx," which appears complete in the April issue of the Smart Set stands in a class by itself as a magazine feature. It presents an extremely striking and vivid picture of the inner life of a certain artistic and erudite cult in modern English life. It is the world of scholarship that is laid open before the reader, the human side of the Oxonian and the classicist, in whose nature the beauty worships and the intellectual hedonism of the old Greek life find nothing incongruous in their juxtaposition with an up-to-late motor boat. Aspasia, the idol of the Polite Outcasts, is a character of infinite charm. Cleverness flashes in every line of this story. Mr. North's novel makes a powerful appeal to the intellect and to the imagination; it is a veritable dynamo of rapid-fire wit and scintillating repartee.

Lincoln memories of unusual quality will be the record of "Lincoln's Interest in the Theater," contributed to the April Century by Leonard Grover, manager of Grover's theater, Washington, during the years of Lincoln's presidency. Because of Lincoln's fondness for, and frequent attendance at, the theater, Mr. Grover saw much of him in a pleasantly informal and intimate way; and his reminiscences have value as well as much anecdotic interest. "Pal" Lincoln was present at a performance in Grover's theater on the night his father was assassinated at Ford's theater.

The People's Magazine for April strikes an unusual note in its opening number. In last month's issue first place was given to "The Marlowes," by Calvin Johnston, a quaint and beautiful tale of soul development, told with inimitable charm. This month the chief novel is "An Enterprise of Empire," by Dr. William Bayard Hale, whose famous interview with Emperor William was suppressed recently by the doctor himself for grave reasons of state, at the request of the German foreign office.

A tale of piquancy, of daring repartee and the reckless atmosphere of the Bohemian mid-world is "The Hereditary Taint," by Ellen Farley, in Young's April Magazine, that will bring a refreshing novelty to the man weary of humdrum tales. It's an audacious story of froth and bubble, but it rings the bell of seriousness now and then when "the painted lady's daughter" discusses the narrow morality of the world that jeers her. It's gay with a color of New York life, or that gay, shabby, struggling part of life that lives in studios and sky-light lodgings and fights to make its voice rise against the roar of the city. It's the story of Angel Camillot, and from the moment you met her, charming and insouciant, making coffee over the gas-jet, it's a lively series of new situadons.

In the issue of Harper's Weekly for March 13th, John Jay White, Jr., presents a graphic description of a hunting tour made in company with Dr. W. S. Rainsford, formerly rector of St. George's church, New York, through those portions of East Africa that will be traveled by Mr. Roosevelt on his expedition. It is the first of four articles that will be contributed by Mr. White, and is illustrated with numerous photographs of the trophies obtained, which included lions, rhinoceros, giraffe, zebras, and many species of antelope. John S. Lopez contributes a humorous account of the manner in which astute Celestials and bowery "guides" exploit Chinatown in the interests of country visitors. The progress of the women's suffrage movement is presented by William Hemmingway, who points to the advance which it has made among the wealthy class.

The timely masquerade girl on April 10 Story Book makes it one of the striking covers of the month. And all through the issue the same dash and spiceness is featured. Antia Scott leads the magazine with "The Ghost of a Red Rose," a well written story, dealing with a certain phase of life now being made much of by the daily papers. Another most tragic story on these lines is "The Singeing of the Moth," by Samuel B. Dickens. In a lighter vein are "Podogan's $5,000 Brogue," by Edgar White, "Under the Ban of the Law," by J. C. Plummer, and "The Lycosa's Bite," by J. P. Ferriter.

An important feature of the April number of Popular Mechanics is the remarkable oxygen melting process, by which it is possible to start a chilled taphole flowing in a few seconds. "The Building of Roads By Convict Labor," explains the attitude of various states toward this important matter, and tells just what has been accomplished, and the cost, in states where convict labor is thus employed. "Whaling With Modern Methods" is an article of thrilling interest; and the description of Uncle Sam's derelict destroyer, whose mission is to succor imperilled navigators, repair disabled ships and destroy abandoned wrecks, should be read by everyone, young and old.

Hampton's Magazine for April contains many attractive features, among the more prominent being "The Heart of the Railroad Problem," by Charles Edward Russell; "A Watch in the Night," a story by Josephine Daskam Bacon; "Night Riding—A Reign of Fear," by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr.; "Dangers That Threaten Our Battleships in Action," by Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans; "The News Value of Old Billings," a story by Ellis Parker Butler.

LITTLE JIM PARK

How the Workers of Pittsburg's Painters Row Made a Park of Their Own In the Shadow of Tenements and Steel Mills.

By LEROY SCOTT,
Author of "To Him That Hath," Etc.

(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

I HAD taken it car over to Painter's Mill and Painter's Row and got off at the farther end of a dingy, smoke-hung settlement. I went through and about the houses which the great Carnegie company leases to its workers (with no trouble about collecting the rent), for that is taken from their weekly wages), houses so close to the mill some even wall to wall with it, that they share almost equally with the mill, its smoke and grime and clangor—houses which had been as insanitary and isease-breeding as any I saw offered the poor, even by hardened slum landlords. And then, after I had gone through the rows of houses, at the end of the settlement nearest Pittsburg, I came upon a sudden contrast. It was an open space, with a portion of it canopied, and over the canopy this black-lettered sign:

LITTLE JIM PARK

It wasn't much of a park—just a little bit of ground, in area hardly more than an average city lot, with a second-hand iron fence around it, with rough benches, a pavement of tanbark and a few flower beds bordered with whitewashed bricks. A poor, pitiably insignificant little place, yet strikingly pleasant when compared with its surroundings. On the one side, with ha row of dreary houses between, rumbled and belched the mill; at its back was a littered waste; at its front, across the street, was a steep hill, topped by the ramshackle houses of Stewart's Row, and this hill was muddy, stubbled over with lank dead weeds, gullied with foul-looking, foul-smelling streams of waste water and garbage.

I entered the park, sat down beneath the canopy, and my imagination proceeded to explain how the park had been established. Its name was a certain clue. "Little Jim Park," that fairly reeked ultra-septimentality. Some rich woman had been emotionally stirred by the stories of the cheerless life of tenement children, the Little Jims and the Little Marys; she had chanced to see how especially cheerless is the life of the children of Painter's Row; she had established the park, and given it as title the more or less generic name by which tenement children are known to sentiment, "Little Jim."

I had just credited the park to my Lady Bountiful, had just finished with Romance when Realism sauntered into the park and took the other end of my bench. He was a working man, whose decent clothes and white collar told me this was his day off. His coat collar was turned up, his slouch hat pulled down. One jaw stood out with a quid of tobacco, and his face was deeply wrinkled. He was perhaps twenty-one.

"Won't you tell me," I asked, "who gave this park to Painter's Row?"

He smiled good-naturedly at me. "Who gave it? Nobody give itt."

"Then how did you get it?"

"We took it," said he.

"Took it!" But the name—?"

"Oh, we just took that, too."

Here was something new in the park-building line. I drew nearer. "I wish you'd tell me about it," I asked.

"Sure, I'll tell," said he, and I could detect pride in the park in both the young fellow's tone and manner. He tossed his quid down upon the tanbark. "Used to be a little old church standing here. Little Jim church they called it, queer name for a church wasn't it? Damned if I know why they named it that. For the last five or six years it wasn't used at all, and last spring it just collapsed. The Hunkies come scrambling over it and carried away all the wood to burn, and what was left was certainly a mess.

"Well, I don't know just who started the idea. I guess it was a John Donahue and Jim Leary, (they works around the rolls in the mill), but pretty soon a lot of us guys had decided it would be great if we could clear up the place and make a park. So we started at the job, and when any of us was laid off over at the mill we was workin' here. The iron fence we got when they tore down part of Painter's Row—it was just old junk you know; the bricks 'round the flowerbeds were some left over from building a brewery down the street, we just helped ourselves to 'em; the arch over the gate we made out of an old pipe; the flag pole there used to be a pump handle of a pump down on the river—we swiped that; the ball on top of the flag pole, a carpenter give us. We chipped in and bought this t'ut, and we chipped in and bought a flag. The first one was whipped to pieces by the wind and we had to chip in and buy another before the summer was over. Then we set out some flowers, splashed around with some paint and whitewash, and the park was done. The name of the church seemed sorter to belong to the place, so we called it "Little Jim Park."

"The park was what you might say opened on Decoration day, when the kids come in and sang and performed. It was a great place for the kids to play all summer, and a fine place for us to sit around of evenings an chin and sing. Never had nothing of the sort here before, you know. But the big show here at Little Jim Park was Old Home Week, when we had it all fixed up with bunting and had it lit up of nights. I guess the park ain't much to look at just now, for the geraniums have all been took up, and the fellows are takin' care of 'em in the houses through the winter. But in summer, when the flowers are out, and things are fixed up, I tell you what Little Jim Park looks mighty good to Painter's Row!"

Somehow, when he had finished, this little park, a park by the people, seemed to be a thousand fold more beautiful, a thousand fold more significant. It and the great mill stood there in striking contrast; the mill and the houses expressing the indifference of the company to its human machines, the park the spontaneous expression of a great native desire, though choked down by long hours and the general oppressive dinginess, the unreaching, outreaching desire of the people for light, for air, for natural happiness, for development.

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperhan, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble, and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up, without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Sold by all druggists.

SOCIETY

THE warm golden sun of spring blazing down in its first deceptive, luxurious, opulence brings with it a great discontent with life. How could one ever have thought that the suit now being worn was fit to adorn any creature, no matter how lovely, and as for the hats of the season—monstrous are they. Nothing is fit except the shining new, beautiful, expensive things in the shops that simply glitter and glare with their newness. Clothes which seem after all to be the very center, core, and kernel of life, are the only attraction, and with them society is quite taken up. These first days make one quite forget the long days of dull gray rain which must elapse before there will be any real opportunity to wear the spring clothes.

The spring wardrobes and the graduation gowns are demanding attention, and the days may really be very full with just these details. Many of the clubs are winding up the year's work, and church and charity are receiving, of course, their share of attention. But for the most part there is a lack of excitement that is truly Lenten.

One of the most interesting of the spring weddings will be that of Miss Charchen Dony-Fitger of Bremen, Germany, and Arthur H. Krieger of this city, which will take place April 12 at Bremen. The bride is the adopted daughter of Arthur Fitger, the artist, who is a brother of August Fitger of this city, and is known in Duluth through his work.

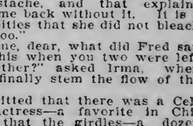
the EVENING STORY



Aline's Philosohpy

By Beatrice Lee.

"My dear Aline, I wouldn't let the deacon's goodness worry me if I were you; for depend upon it, men are never as good as they seem!" Thus wisely advised Mrs. Calverly-Burke, as she impolently sank beneath among the cushions, sophisticated and serene.

"Oh, yes you would if you knew him as well as I do," sighed Aline Culver. "Still it is awfully sweet of you to give me a ray of hope; but alas, Fred is rectitude itself, and he will never lapse into the little irregularities that make other men so attractive and tantalizing. Here I have been married only four years, when heaven knows it seems like 400. When I hear about other couples of our acquaintance enjoying such delightful little intrigues—all under the rose—I feel that I shall go insane from this intolerable ennui. Their affairs are not really wicked, you know, but oh! so enjoyable."

Fred Culver was a very busy man. He was interested in a number of widely different concerns. Oil in Texas, coal in West Virginia, corsets in Michigan, and fire insurance in Connecticut, gave him little time and much money. His well beloved wife chose to live in Hartford, so there he established his headquarters. Occasionally he made yourself perfectly comfortable; for I have so much to tell you.

On returning home from Irma Burke's, Mrs. Culver found a note from her husband to the effect that Mr. Stevens—the manager of the Culver Corset company—would dine with them that evening. He proved to be a man of 50 odd, who could talk nothing but "shop."

When he was introduced, he regarded his hostess with visible astonishment which greatly puzzled her.

After the first small talk at table Mr. Stevens said rather abruptly: "You have no idea, Mrs. Culver, how entirely you differ from my mental picture of you."

"In what respects?" queried that lady pleasantly.

"In the first place your coloring is the very reverse, and then you are not so tall."

The last rather piqued Aline, for while her spouse stood "six foot two" in his socks, she was on the miniature order.

"How did you happen to form such a decided impression of my probable appearance?" she asked, with a mystified smile.

"Why, it was from those girdles we made up for you while you were in Chicago with Fred last winter."

"Goodness," thought Aline, "the man must be mad. I was so anxious to take the trip, but Fred said it was simply out of the question, as he would have no time to fool away with a woman." Aloud she said, quietly: "So that was the way of it?" This struck her as being very non-committal. It might mean anything, and gave her time to think.

"I was very much pleased when Fred told me that you were perfectly satisfied with our work; for your materials were much too fine to be ruined. I never saw anything like them; and your special design was so original, so simple, and yet such an improvement over the old regulation girdle that I wondered no one ever thought of it before," hurried on the voluble Stevens.

"That is what brought me to Hartford this time, Fred," he continued. "If we could bring out a new spring model on exactly the same lines as your wife's design, our fortunes would be made. I tell you it's great! You don't realize it, man! I knew that I must get your joint consent, and I wished to talk with Mrs. Culver personally."

Turning to Aline, he said in a lighter tone: "Of course the new girdle will have to be named. Would you object if we called it 'The Celeste,' after you?"

Something like a groan escaped Fred's lips.

Mr. Stevens beamed genially upon him. "I see you are surprised that I remember your wife's name. Surely you will not be the first to forbid its use," he added, fearfully.

Aline was stunned. The awful truth, past denying, was forced upon her—but they should not see how it hurt. She saw that Fred was wholly unequal to the occasion, so she spoke up bravely. "Mr. Stevens, I am grateful to you for your approval. You may have the design and welcome, but do not think me ungracious if I withhold the name—Celeste." mfw etoin

Her guest—astride his hobby and blind to all else—continued: "I was prepared in case of your refusal to suggest "The Symphony," for every one of those twelve girdles deserved the name both in color and contour. I owe the word to Fred. My favorite of the lot was that bewitching thing of delicate, shadowy tints merging into almost imperceptable flecks of burnt orange and emerald green. Though it was impossible to lay a finger on a single spot of the vivid colors, yet I felt sure they were there. Fred said it was a perfect symphony of color, reproducing the marvelous shades of your hair and eyes. I see now that he was joking, for your hair is that fine Irish blue-black; but the word stays in my memory.

"Then that heavy cream and carmine satin brocade—it was the richest color scheme I ever saw. I couldn't help being amused over Fred's enthusiasm when he declared that your cheeks rivaled it, for you will admit"—turning to the unhappy deacon—"that carmine is a pretty strong term to apply to a lady's natural blushes.' Then to Aline: "Leaving jokes aside, every one was a gem; and if you will tell me the fairy loom that wove those fabrics you will be the making of our business. You know there is not a lady in the land who could resist such dreams of loveliness."

For a brief moment it looked to Aline as if here was where she "came a cropper," for what could she, who knew less than nothing about the wretched girdles answer? But, with a new-born horror of defeat, she forced herself to reply, "You do not realize what you are doing, Mr. Stevens, when you ask a woman to relinquish her cherished, unique treasures to be copied and shared by every woman in the world who fancies them."

Then, with malicious afterthought, she added: "As for the fairy loom you speak of, Fred can best inform you, for I only chose from samples that he furnished me."

This perforce brought to life her apparently petrified husband, but Aline's courage had inspired him and he came bravely to the fore. "No, Stevens, I could not think of robbing my wife of her derest whims—her exclusiveness, her originality. The design and the name 'Symphony' are hers, but not the exact reproductions. As a favor she may be persuaded to select another supply of materials from a different lot of samples. Will you do this for us, dear?" he pleaded lamely, careful to avoid her name and eyes.

"Certainly I will be glad to," returned Aline, letting her open, honest gaze fall full on the deacon's defenceless face.

We will draw a veil over the house of Culver until 10 o'clock on the following morning, when Mrs. Calverly-Burke rushed into Aline's holy of holiest, in obedience to a hastily penciled note from that petite madame.

"Oh, you darling Irma, how good of you to hurry over," cried Aline, as she gave her a butterfly caress. "Do make yourself perfectly comfortable; for I have so much to tell you.

"You remember how very, very much I wanted to go to Chicago with Fred last winter?" Irma nodded. "And you know he pretended that he would be so busy he could scarcely take time to choke down his food?" Another sympathetic nod.

"Well, last night the corset company's manager was here to dinner, and I found out all about the Deacons' trip. There the old goosey sat and described with agonizing minuteness the shocking details of Fred's adventures right before his face.

"You never heard of such an utterly irresponsible, shameless thing as that Celeste. On a wager she left the theater one night and, just as she was, took a forty-mile ride in the cab of an engine, regardless of her exquisite opera cloak—an inspiration in mauve, he called it. Of course, it was a wreck at the end of her ride, and she twisted it up in a wad and stuffed it into a greasy corner of the cab. Then she returned to Chicago in a prosaic Pullman bareheaded, with Fred's coat over her decollete gown, in the broad light of day. Mr. Stevens was pleased to consider that brilliant of me, instead of idiotic.

"One day, when Fred seems to have been actually busy, Celeste beguiled the time away with an automobile. She was alone and must scorch. She would not stop until several policemen had hailed her, thereby getting a string of charges for resisting officers. After a frantic search Fred found his missing treasure in the station house. When on trial she further complicated matters by making very witty, though impertinent remarks, about the judge, which, however diverting to those present, was contempt of court. Fred must have felt no end of pride in his prodigy.

"Her minor iniquities were positively without number. She bleached Fred's mustache, and that explains why he came back without it. It is a thousand pities that she did not bleach his hair, too.

"But, Aline, dear, what did Fred say to all of this when you two were left alone together?" asked Irma, when she could finally stem the flow of the torrent.

"He admitted that there was a Celeste—an actress—a favorite in Chicago, and that the girdles—a dozen beautities—were made of materials she furnished, from her original design, free of charge, as an advertisement. Fred had not liked to confide in Mr. Stevens, so had told him that

OUR YOUNG FOLKS' PAGE

The Boys Who Played Hookey and What Happened to Them.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

THERE were three of the boys in the school who did not like the teacher. Not that he was a cross teacher, nor an unreasonable teacher, nor a partial teacher, but because he was a TEACHER. And during the entire winter term of school these three boys had been mischievous and at times rather unruly, causing the teacher much trouble and anxiety. In fact, the teacher was a good little man, of nervous disposition, and it wounded his feelings to have any of his pupils feel so unkindly toward him, and to have them miss their lessons and to cheat at exams. And more than anything else it hurt him to be obliged to punish the pupils for their shortcomings.

The school was in the country and was what is usually called "a district school." There were no "grades," and all the pupils, ranging from five to 18 years of age, were instructed by the one teacher, the good little man alluded to in the paragraph above. Now, the boys and girls who attend the town and city graded schools can have no idea of the trying duties of a teacher in an "ungraded" country school. He must teach the infant class their letters and instruct the more advanced pupils in Latin. So you will readily understand how he must of necessity be a patient teacher.

The names of the three boys who, without cause, disliked their good little teacher, were Jack Adams, Hank Biggs and Pat Donivan. Pat, a red-haired, freckle-faced little chap of 12 years, was the leader of the three, and was himself as full of mischief and unruliness as it is possible for one young mortal to be.

One beautiful day toward the end of March Pat called Jack and Hank to the rear of the schoolhouse in private consultation. It was during the noon hour and Pat had felt the laziness of the coming warm weather in his bones, as he expressed it. And he had conceived the idea of playing hookey that afternoon and of going to the river a mile distant. The river was always the place of rendezvous for the boys during the summer vacation, but Pat decided the vacation time was too far distant to wait for, so he determined on playing hookey if he could get "confederates" to join him in his wrongdoing.

When he whispered his "scheme" to Jack and Hank they at first shook their heads, feeling a bit afraid to steal away from school for half a day. They often consented to play along the road to school of a morning, arriving there very tardily and having no valid excuse for being late, but to play the truant for half a day was a bit scarey to contemplate.

"He was hanging on for dear life."

"We'll get flogged—or kept in at noon for a week," whispered Hank. "Yes, an' teacher'll send word to our folks about what we've done," declared Jack. "Why don't we wait till Saturday and then go to the river?"

"Yes, wait till Saturday an' wake up to find it's raining, or that you've got enough chores to keep you busy for the whole day," said Pat. "No, siree, I say let's go while it's fine, and while we're free from chores at home."

So Jack and Hank gave in to the persuasion of their leader and the three remained behind the schoolhouse till the bell rung, announcing 1 o'clock and time for study. While the other pupils were marching into the schoolhouse Pat, Jack and Hank stole off over a hill, and once getting out of sight of the hated place they took to their heels toward the big river.

They reached there all out of breath and sat on the bank to rest. The river was swollen very high from the melting of the last heavy snows and a recent prolonged rain. Pat declared the river would be full of fish during the summer, for after heavy snows and rains there were always plenty of fish. "Gee, but we'll come here fishing and swimming during July and August," he declared in a voice of happy anticipation.

"Yes, and I wish we'd waited till vacation time had come," admitted Jack, not a very bad fellow at heart, but easily led into wrongdoing by his companions. "I really don't like playing hookey, for you're sure to be found out, and then you'll get punished at school and at home. My mother will settle with me for doing this today."

"Oh, the teacher may not say anything about our playing hookey," assured Pat. "He's not so very bad, but I don't like him a little bit. He's so easy and good-natured."

"Well, I can't say that I positively hate Teacher," laughed Jack, "but I'm not afraid of him, and that's why I dare to do so many things, for I know he'll let us off easy. He's got no backbone. If he had more nerve—more real sand in his craw—I'd be afraid of him. But he's so good-natured that I don't care whether I mind him or not."

"Say, there's a fine tree," exclaimed Pat, pointing to a tall tree that grew at the river's edge and bent far out over the water. "Gee, it's a dandy to climb! I'm going up it and see if I can get a glimpse of the old schoolhouse."

"Yes, maybe you'll see old Giddy looking out of the window for us," laughed Jack. "Old Giddy" was their teacher, the name having been given to him by Pat. His real name was Giddings, and Pat thought it clever to play upon the good-natured and kindly teacher's name.

Pat threw off his coat and shoes and was soon going up the tree like a squirrel, for he was an expert at climbing. And Jack, also being good at the sport, divested himself of shoes and coat and followed Pat. They were soon in the very top of the tall tree, perched together on a slender, swinging limb.

"Say, you'd better get off that limb!" cried out Hank, for from where he sat on the ground he could see that the limb was not sufficiently strong to hold the weight of the two boys, and was threatening to break from the body of the tree at any moment.

"Oh, a fellow has got to take chances," called back Pat. "It's no fun always being in a safe corner where no danger lurks. I like danger. It's almost as much fun to risk your neck as it is to tease old Giddy."

Then Pat and Jack began laughing and swinging the tree limb, and Hank, fearing that an accident might happen to them, again warned them to get off the limb. "Anyway, one of you'd better get off," he said.

"All right, I'll jump into the river!" called out Pat, making believe to prepare to jump. Just as he did so the limb broke and he fell headlong to the river below, striking with such force that he went at once to the very river's bed. And hardly had he fallen when Jack set up a cry, for he was hanging on for dear life to the dangling limb, which was still attached to the mother trunk by a mere string of bark, which would break away with another moment's exertion from Jack.

Hank looked at his comrade in the water, then hurriedly turned his eyes upward to where Jack hung in such a perilous position. He was so excited and frightened that he could not speak and ran first toward the water, where poor Pat was struggling, and then to the base of the tree, as if intending to try to rescue the crying Jack. What should he do? Pat needed his help, but he feared to plunge into the water, for he always got cramps when the water was cold, and the river had some bits of floating ice still on its surface. Then he felt that he should not delay, but climb to where Jack was hanging helplessly from the loosening limb.

But the cries from Jack, and an occasional strangled cry from Pat, brought to Hank his voice, and rushing up the hillside, he called out with all his might: "Help! Help! We're drowning! We're hanging! Help! Murder! Fire! Death!"

Then he felt a hand on his shoulder, and turned to see beside him Old Giddy, who had suddenly come through a hedge that grew down to the water's edge. Hank told him as best he could about what had happened, and the teacher lost no time in hurrying to the river. There Pat was still struggling to keep above the driftwood that came sweeping down upon him, but which was imperiling him every moment. Owing to the swollen condition of the river, and the floating driftwood and bits of ice-cake, Pat could not swim, and was in danger of being drowned at any moment by being beaten under by the driftwood.

Mr. Giddings took in the situation of both boys at a glance. With a call to Jack to hold on a moment longer, and to not struggle, for struggling caused the limb to loosen from the tree, and then instructing Hank to climb to Jack's assistance, he threw off shoes and coat and hat and was in the water, making his way as best he could to the side of Pat.

It was indeed a hard struggle to get ashore through floating ice and driftwood with a burden hanging to his back, but the teacher was as brave and determined as he was kind and gentle, and soon he got ashore with Pat clinging to his shoulders, but so exhausted that he could hardly speak for several minutes.

In the meantime Hank had succeeded in assisting Jack to safety, though it was no easy task, and they, like the teacher and Pat, were exhausted from their efforts and excitement. As soon as all four were assembled on the bank the teacher said: "Now, boys, let's have a fire to dry out our clothes, and to warm us up a bit, for, although the day is fine for March, it is hardly as warm as one would like it for a swim in an open stream. So let's gather up some brush and have a fire."

As they set to work gathering wood for the fire Pat said to Hank: "Say, what do you suppose brought Mr. Giddings here? I'm ashamed to look him in the face—he has been so kind, and has really saved my life in the bargain. What can I ever say to him, anyway?" The boys were out of Mr. Giddings' hearing and could discuss the recent excitement and their own wrongdoing without being overheard.

"Well, I haven't the slightest idea what brought him here" said Hank; "but I'm all-fired thankful that he dropped from the skies just when he did, for otherwise there'd be two boys dead on this bank. And I say he's a hero, and I mean to make a clean breast of my part in playing hookey and my past ugly feelings toward him. He's a good little man, and a better teacher than we have deserved. Let's try to be worthy of him in future. What say you, eh?"

"I was just thinking the same way," confessed Pat; "and I mean to ask his forgiveness."

At that moment Mr. Giddings had a roaring fire built and called to the boys to join him and Jack in the enjoyment of it. As the four stood about the blaze Mr. Giddings said: "Well, boys, I suppose you wonder how I came to be Johnny-on-the-spot just when you needed me. The truth is, I saw you going off over the hill, and I knew you meant to play truant this afternoon. I left the school in charge of Miss Mattie Strong and followed you here, intending to try my powers of persuasion on you, for it hurt me to feel that I had no good influence over you. I wanted you to like the school—to feel kindly toward me."

"Stop, Mr. Giddings, you make me feel like a criminal!" said Pat in a trembling voice. "We are a most ungrateful bunch—Hank, Jack and I, and I've been the meanest of the three, too. But I am ashamed, and I want you to forgive me. You've been too kind and tolerant of us all winter, and now you cap it by saving my life. It's too much, I say. You've been too good to us. You ought to flog us till we've turned black and blue, that's what I think."

Mr. Giddings took Pat's hand, and looking into his face, said: "I have known your good heart all along, my boy, but I didn't know how to reach it. I'm sorry we had to have this terrible accident that I might find the way to it. But—well, let's get good and dry. Then we'll all go to my house for a little supper and talk over our afternoon and the days to come. What say you, boys?"

"You're a brick, Mr. Giddings!" cried Jack. And Hank declared the same. And all expressed their pleasure in accepting the invitation to sup with the good teacher whom, until the present hour, they had despised so heartily.

"And, Mr. Giddings, I mean to make up for my past," said Pat. "I've lots to undo, and I mean to begin undoing it right from this hour."

"We'll forget the past, my boy," smiled Mr. Giddings. "We'll live in the present and work for the future. So the past is dead between us, except this hour when we got to understand each other. And now we'll pay attention to drying out, so we can hurry home. Miss Mattie will look after the school all afternoon for me."

SPRINGTIME.

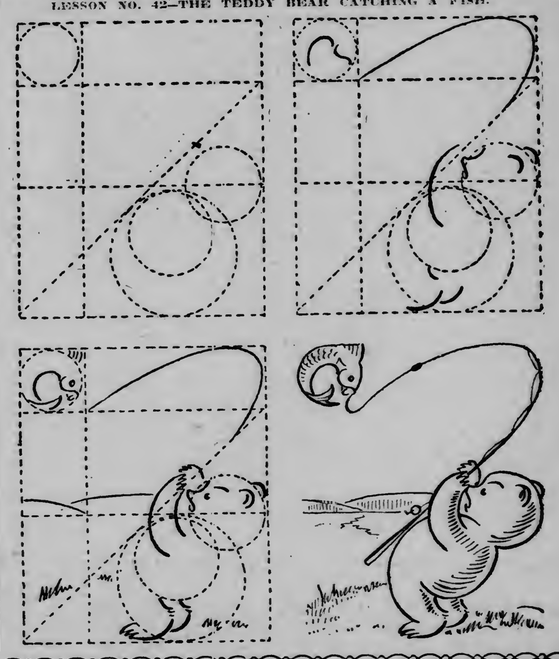
IN the springtime all the children
Love to run and romp and shout,
For 'tis lovely when old Winter
Says "Goodbye" and then steals out;

When the days of snow are over
And the sunshine, warm and bright,
Comes to bring life to the flowers,
It is such a dear delight.

Everywhere you hear sweet laughter
From the little ones, so gay,
For they all love nothing better
Than a glorious new spring day.

Helpful Hints For Our Young Artists.

LESSON NO. 42—THE TEDDY BEAR CATCHING A FISH.



INSIDE BILLY'S POCKET.

BILLY had a pocket,
Neither broad nor deep,
But inside this pocket
Little Bill did keep

Half a dozen marbles,
A little rubber ball,
A kite string and some scissors,
A jack-knife and an awl;

A bit of chalk, some pencils,
An empty bottle, too,
Some tacks, a wornout thimble,
The top of an old shoe;

Some crooked pins, all rusty,
A pipe stem made of clay;
All these were in Bill's pocket,
And he put them there to stay.

Question of the Hour.

"We are really at a loss to know how to punish Earlie," she said. "We have tried all the punishment in our kindergarten list without effect. We have reasoned with him and told him that he will cease to be our petty pet and will grow up to be a bad, bad man, and"——

"Madam," interrupted the gentleman of the old school, who was visiting them, "you will find on the trunk in my room a very excellent strap that I shall not need temporarily."

But, of course, he didn't know anything about modern methods.

The Troubles of Master March Wind.

BY MAUD WALKER.

MASTER March Wind was just a little fellow—a mere baby-breeze—when the incidents to be related in this story began. He had just come into being and had not yet learned the world. A beautiful mother Master March Wind had, a young and lovely mother, and her name was Dame Spring. Wherever she walked flowers would soon spring up, and if she but smiled at the trees buds burst forth, soon to blossom into leaves. And her presence caused the skies to smile through the leaden veil that old Winter had left draped over them. But in spite of her gentleness and beauty, and her love for flowers and bright skies, Dame Spring had many trials. One of these trials—or, I should say, her greatest trial—was her own dear, boisterous son, Master March Wind. He was, from the very first, a mischievous little chap, and it was his pleasure to rush forth of a morning and blow through the grass and trees and make them rattle and shake, frightening the early insects and the little nesting birds. And then as he grew—and he did grow tremendously fast!—he became bolder and would rush down the road, kicking up the dust and causing it to fly into people's eyes, making them cry out: "Oh, this terrible March Wind!"

Then he got to playing with the school children, pulling at their hair and jerking off their hats and bonnets, carrying them off down the town street or the country lane, making the youngsters race after him to recover their possessions. But the children so enjoyed Master March Wind that he grew very fond of them, for they never cried out against him and always loved a race with him. Even the little girls delighted to have him blow their curls about wildly, and to take away their little shoulder capes and bonnets. They would laugh merrily, declaring they loved Master March Wind, and wished he might stay with them always.

But pretty soon Master March Wind got to be a very big, strong fellow, and he would go about the country blowing down fences, young trees and small houses. And he enjoyed ripping the clothes from clothes' lines as soon as the washerwoman had hung them up to dry. Oh, he did make himself troublesome at times!

One day while he was resting his dear, fond mother came to him, saying:

"Son, I wish you would be less stormy and bothersome. You create such a disturbance everywhere you go, and people are afraid of you. Why, I overheard a dear old farmer talking to his son the other day and he was complaining that you had blown the chimneys from his house, and that on the same day you had blown the ricks of hay from the fields, causing him much trouble in gathering it up again. Now, I know you love to frolic, but you should not do harm to the property of people or to the people themselves."

But Master March Wind only laughed and laughed, till his mother declared he had no consideration for either herself or others.

"Well, gentle mother," smiled the happy and frolicsome youth, Master March Wind, "I can't help my disposition. It is my nature to be rough and noisy, and to play pranks on people and things. But why should you bother about my doings? I help you in your work every day. You cause the grass to grow, and I come along and blow against it, causing it to become hardy and self-supporting. Were I to be mild and gentle the grass, the weeds, even the trees, would become so weak that they would not be able to hold up their heads. I blow against them, and they, in self protection, lift up their bodies and brace themselves against me. It's a battle for strength, you see, and it makes them strong to hold out against me." Then Master March Wind smiled at his mother, whom he loved very, very dearly, waiting for her reply. She sighed gently and said:

"Maybe you are right, my son, in regard to the flowers and trees; but what excuse have you for having blown down certain houses and hay ricks? That was doing real harm to property."

Again Master March Wind laughed. Then, with a more serious face, he explained: "You see, mother dear, I do these things to make men more careful. Why, the houses I blew down were mere weak wooden frames, and not houses fit for people to live in. Men throw up these useless structures and put their families therein to live. That's an injustice to the families. So I come along and throw down the ugly and frail shack, and then the man has to build a better home for his family. So, my mother, you see there's method in my madness."

He would go about blowing down fences, young trees and small houses."

"Well, I'd rather you used more method and less madness, my son," said Dame Spring, for she was of such a gentle turn of mind that any rudeness or loudness irritated her and made her unhappy.

"Well, I have a purpose to fulfil in this world," laughed Master March Wind, "and since it is not a pretty, peaceful duty, but a rugged, fierce, fighting one, I must do it with a will, and not allow myself to worry over the consequences. Do you ever stop to think of the good I do by starting little hurricanes, mother dear? Why, I blow sickness and disease out of the land. I find old heaps of filth piled up here and there, breeding disease germs. What do I do about them? I don't trip past and leave them to smolder and ferment. I just go to blowing, and I blow them to pieces—scatter the debris, and so dry it and purify it by opening it to the sun's rays, thus removing from humanity a very grave menace. That's why I blew the hay ricks away from the old farmer's field. Those ricks were rotting and old, and all beneath them was moisture and heat, and that was causing disease. So I blew them down and scattered them, and made them healthy again."

"I believe you are right after all, my son," confessed Dame Spring. "I never thought of the good your mischief does at times. I shall know that from henceforth your motives are good, no matter how you work to accomplish your purpose. I have heard so much complaint about you that I had not given your side of the matter as much thought as I should have done. But now I am proud of you, for under all your merriment, your mischievous nature, there is much good purpose. Go on blowing, my son, and blow good and hard."

"Yes, my mother, and it is time for me to rise from my rest. I've been lying down all afternoon, and the meadows and fields are still very wet from the melting of the heavy snows, and in no condition for the farmer's plow. I must blow and blow and dry things up. So farewell till later, mamma."

Then Master March Wind rose and blew with all his might, causing the housewives to rush to their open windows to close them. "Oh, it's that awful March Wind!" cried many of the housewives, not understanding the good of the very Wind they were condemning. "And it will blow and blow all night," declared one pretty young girl who was going to a party that evening, "and I'll have to wear my high shoes and my warm wrap, for this March Wind is so fierce that slippers and a light wrap are out of the question."

When Master March Wind heard the little Miss make this remark he smiled. "Ah-ha," he whispered, "if I hadn't risen and blowed like a fury of demons, that dear girl would have gone forth clad as for summer. And that's when I came at the right time, for I've saved her a sick spell and her father a doctor's bill. And yet folks abuse me and wish I would remain away. But what care I? I know my work, and I delight in doing it. Now away to blow and blow, and to toss over some old shacks of houses that have no right to stand. And I shall make merry everywhere tonight, for I'm full grown now, and know my strength." And then Master March Wind broke forth into a regular gale that was glorious to see.

HE WAS WILLING.

His Mamma—Willie, I'd like to put in one whole day without once having to scold or punish you.

Willie—You have my consent, mamma.

Gardens for the Children.

IT will soon be time for making gardens, and there is nothing more delightful or more wholesome for the children than to take spade and hoe and dig into old mother earth, preparatory to seed-planting. Loosening the soil, leveling it, shaping it into pretty beds for the growing of flowers and vegetables, all is such joy, such an interesting work, for boys and girls.

And after the garden has been finished will come the satisfaction of seeing the little green sprouts peep through soil. Then will form tiny leaves, and next Little Boy and Little Girl will be able to name the growing plants. "An onion! A carrot! A radish!" you will hear the little Boy explaining happily, pointing out various growing bits of green. "A marigold! A four-o'clock! A sweet pea!" Little Girl will exclaim, directing your notice to various little growing plants which she can easily tell by their individual shapes, for Little Girl has studied botany long enough to recognize various garden plants while they are still in their infant state.

And isn't it a curious fact that Little Boy always delights in gardening vegetables and fruits, while Little Girl devotes her time to flowers and ornamental plants? But this is as it should be, for we must have the practical and useful combined with the beautiful and ornamental.

There is one very necessary thing for the young and inexperienced gardener to learn, and to learn well; he or she must know the difference between the weeds and vegetables or flowers. A little boy one time pulled up all the tomato sprouts in his mother's garden, thinking they were weeds, and he wished to be of use in helping to keep the garden clean of that ruinous intruder, the weed. But alas! the little fellow did more damage than good, and he should have been taught to know the shapes of various vegetables and flowers, for then his labor would not have been lost, and no harm would have come to the tomato bed. So, take warning from that boy's experience, and study your botany as well as your gardens.

GOOD THING FOR INDIAN

Shutting Off $10.00 Per Month Will Redound to His Credit.

Red Men on Fond du Lac Reserve to Have Less Drunks.

Cloquet, Minn., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent ruling of the department of the interior, in which the monthly payment of $10 to those Indians who have money coming to them from the government was discontinued, will effect the Indians on the Fond du du Lac reservation to a considerable extent.

The ruling, of course, in no ways effects the annuities, but these are so small, amounting to only a few dollars a piece a year, that little importance attaches to the manner in which they are distributed; but the money which the government holds in trust for those Indians who have sold their timber presents a matter entirely different. Some of the Indians are wealthy as far as the amount of their trust money goes, but the government pays it out only at the rate of $10 a month, as a general rule. In some cases, however, where the Indian has proven that he is industrious and capable of managing his own affairs, the government has turned over large amounts for improvements, etc., provided it is accurately accounted for to the Indian agent.

Cloquet, being but a mile from the homes of a large number of Indians on the reservation, has seen enough of Indians on pay day to feel that the government has acted wisely in abolishing the indiscriminate payment of $10 a month. The amount is not sufficient for the average Indian to live on. He must get his living from another source and therefore the extra $10 puts him on "velvet" for a few hours during which he is king of the "island," but generally lands intoxicated in jail before morning. There are some Indians, however, who make good use of their $10, and it is for the benefit of such that the government has given to the Indian agent the privilege of providing them with money if he sees fit to do so. On the whole, the general sentiment is that the new ruling is a wise one.

RAILROAD FLAGMAN HIT.

Struck Down by Unknown Assailant and Rendered Unconscious.

Menominee, Mich., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Grinier, railroad flagman on Riverside avenue crossing for both the Northwestern and the St. Paul railways, was found lying near the tracks unconscious early yesterday morning. His head and face were cut in a dozen places, but his watch and money were in his clothing.

No motive for the assault can be assigned. Grenier, an aged, harmless man, says he has not an enemy in the world to his knowledge.

"About 11 o'clock at night, after having a lunch down town, I returned to my shanty, but in trying to enter, I found the door barred," he said, upon regaining consciousness. "Suddenly it flew open, something blunt struck me in the face, and I lost consciousness."

The belief is that the assailant was laying in wait for a company's employe who was in the habit of visiting the shanty shortly before midnight regularly.

The cars were then moving slowly, and one wheel passed over his body, causing almost instant death. DAKOTAS

UNCLE SAM MAY GO AFTER BOYS

East Grand Forks Youths Alleged to Have Burglarized Boat.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry Evans and Arthur Keller, the two East Grand Forks boys who were arrested in that city on the charge of breaking into and burglarizing two boats, one belonging to the government, taking tools and other articles, and who were brought here for a hearing, waived a preliminary examination before Judge Purcell and were held in $500 bonds.

The government boat, the Grand Forks, and the Red River Valley Transportation boat, the Fram, were the ones burglarized. On the government boat two doors were broken open, while on the Fram the young men broke through seven doors. The booty secured was hauled to the Evans home, and the officials were enabled to trace it through the fact that several articles were dropped from place to place.

When the officials arrived at the Evans home, the young fellow opened the barn door for them, and there was found the entire loot. Evans confessed his guilt and implicated young Keller, who was later found hiding in the basement of his home.

The fact that one of the boats entered is government property makes it probable that the government will take a hand in the matter. The steamer Grand Forks is owned by the United States and is used in the river service. In case the government takes charge of the case, it is liable to go a bit harder with the lads, both of whom have admitted their guilt.

FAMOUS PREACHERS WHO ARE MORE THAN THAT

(Copyright, 1909, by the Associated Literary Press.)

IT is quite customary these days, when the cry is abroad in the land that the preacher is no longer a sizeable man in his community, for the average man or woman to look upon a preacher—even the more famous ones—as just preachers. Yet the fact of the matter is that today this country possesses an ever-widening circle of preachers who are more than that—wearers of the cloth who are forces to be reckoned with in fields of activity far beyond the church, making them, in numerous cases, leaders in their extra-clerical enterprises.

Some of these preachers who are more than that have attained national prominence as educators, as did many a preacher in the so-called good old days, and as heads of great institutions never dreamed of in the times when the preacher was supposed to be at his apogee, exert a potent and far-reaching influence upon the citizenship of tomorrow. Others of these preachers are civic workers in our leading cities—some of them have taken the stump against political corruption. Then there are preacher-editors, preacher-authors, preacher-soldiers, preacher-scientists, preacher-statesmen, preacher-diplomats, preacher-athletes, preacher-sociologists, and preacher-state officials, even to preacher-governors—in fact, preachers who loom noticeably in almost every honorable walk of life.

Russell H. Conwell, the famous Philadelphia clergyman and head of the largest Protestant congregation in this country, has built a college and a hospital among his other enterprises, and both are directed by him. Frank W. Gunsaulus of Chicago can turn with equal versatility to either the dry, hard facts of technology taught by the great Armour Institute of Technology, of which he is the organizer and head, or to the fanciful flights of poetry, of which he has written several volumes.

Archbishops Ireland and Ryan have fought far beyond the boundaries of Catholicism against the evils of divorce and intemperance, and both are civic leaders of large influence in their respective cities of St. Paul and Philadelphia. Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church, and Former Chancellor Elisha Benjamin Andrews of the University of Nebraska are men of the cloth who have also worn the regimentals of war, as well as the mortarboard of the college campus. And the bishop, in addition, for years has been the chief reformatory manager for the great state of Illinois.

In the venerable Edward Everett Hale the country has not only a preacher, but also the author of "The Man Without a Country," a lecturer, traveler, editor, newspaper man, and molder of public thought on many of the vital questions of his day and generation. Then, too, there is Lyman Abbott, also venerable, and also noted as an editor and an author both in this country and England.

Henry C. McCook, the clerical representative among the famous "Fighting McCooks," has enriched the natural studies of the ant, the spider, and others of God's small and apparently insignificant creatures. In Henry A. Buchtel, the state of Colorado has a governor who was called by it from the head of a great university, which first enticed the gentleman in question from the pulpit. And, of course, the average American has heard more or less of Charles H. Parkhurst, whose sensational slumming enterprises led to the exposure of New York police force graft and the subsequent overthrow of Tammany Hall—a world-famous Sanskrit scholar, literary man and mountain climber, who ever since has been in the thick of the fight constantly being waged by certain persons and societies to purge the metropolis of that which they hold to be unnecessary evil and corruption. Thus, the list might be extended—one is almost tempted to say to the length of a column or two of this paper.

The Diversified Activities of a Bishop.

But of all our versatile preachers, none is more picturesque or influential than Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church, who is now in his seventy-fourth year. Like Dr. Conwell of Philadelphia and Former Chancellor Andrews of the University he has preached, fought and taught, and like Dr. Andrews, he has not been averse to taking part in political discussions when he considers the occasion ripe for his entrance into that most difficult of all arenas for any wearer of the cloth to occupy with dignity and success.

In almost every respect, Bishop Fallows' career has been varied. Not even in the domain of religion has he been content to follow one path. First a Methodist, later an apostle of the Reformed Episcopal church, he has still more recently become an exponent of the new "faith-cure" in the West, as is Dr. Worcester of the Emmanuel church of Boston in the East. In this work Bishop Fallows has the earnest co-operation of many of the most prominent physicians of Chicago.

Prison reform, in the opinion of Bishop Fallows, is one of society's most important tasks, and, apart from his other duties, he has taken a great deal of time in studying this problem not in an academic way by reading or hearsay, but by mingling with the inmates of prisons, confiding with convicts and obtaining their confidence, and, later, by visiting them upon their return to the outer world, that he might help direct them to better paths. Much credit has been given the bishop for the successful work of the Illinois state reformatory, of whose board of managers he has been president since 1891. Records of its inmates discharged during the last twelve years show that over three-fourths have been really reformed.

In the Civil war Samuel Fallows proved a good fighter, physically, as well as spiritually. Although he entered the Union army as a chaplain, he afterward shouldered a gun and plunged into the conflict with such zest that for gallantry in action he was promoted to the rank of colonel and later brevet brigadier general. At no time, however, did he forget his original calling. In one battle he was missed from his post and the report was brought in that he had been killed. Some hours later he appeared in camp, covered with mud.

"We thought you had either been killed or left on the field to die," said the commanding officer.

"No," was the reply. "A young fellow whom I shot asked me to stay by him and pray for him. I have just left him in the hospital—dead."

When it came time for this chaplain-general—a combination considerably rarer than that of pastor-fighter—to lay down the sword, he not only returned to the pulpit, forsaken for the defense of the Union, but also plunged as energetically into educational work as previously he had launched bullets and troops in the direction of the "Johnnies." The result was that a bare year after the close of the war he became a regent of the University of Wisconsin, and five years later his fight for the proper education of the citizens of tomorrow placed him in office as superintendent of public instruction for the state of Wisconsin, whither he had gone in '48 from his birthplace in Lancashire, Eng. Later on, on removing to Illinois, the bishop became a university president, holding the position for several years, or until he went over to the Reformed Episcopal church. But his allegiance to a new creed did not stifle his educational work; today his interest in that branch of activity is as great as ever, and as chancellor of the University association his influence is still large in the country's higher educational circles.

The bishop is typical of that small class of men who do not let piling years decrease their pile of daily work, and his latest enterprise—that of "church healing"—shows his ability to keep pace with modern thought and movements, though he is now more than three years beyond man's allotted threescore and ten. In Chicago, which has been his home since the year before the great fire—when, by the way, he proved himself to be more than a mere preacher—he is well-nigh universally looked upon as one of the West's most versatile and influential leaders in movements having for their aim the ultimate betterment of the race.

Organizer and Head of a Great Institute.

Chicago also is the adopted city of another versatile preacher whose fame is equally as widespread as that of the bishop's. This preacher is none other than Frank Wakeley Gunsaulus—twenty-one years the bishop's junior—who, by a sermon of extraordinary eloquence, all unconsciously opened up a new field of work for himself, in which he has made a name as great as that which came to him as head of Chicago's famous Plymouth church during the years stretching from 1887, when he went to the Western metropolis, until 1899.

The sermon that gave Dr. Gunsaulus his chance to qualify as one of the country's technological experts was delivered one Sunday morning back in the panic year of 1893, when not even a multi-millionaire was supposed to have in his head even a remote thought of founding a great educational institution, let alone heavily endowing any established seat of learning. Nevertheless, Dr. Gunsaulus, on this particular morning, spoke with unusual earnestness and emphasis on the crying need of an institution in which poor youths could be trained for various trades. Such an educational enterprise, he contended, would go a long way toward solving the pauper problem with which Chicago, at that time, was peculiarly afflicted.

He said what lay on his heart, and said it straight from the shoulder, Gunsaulus fashion; and then—were the man's innermost feelings known—he probably was seized with a certain kind of sorrow that such an institution as he had preached for was not an immediate prospect of establishment.

The last hymn had been sung, the benediction given, the congregation was wending its way out of the doors, and Dr. Gunsaulus was preparing to leave the pulpit, when up to the pulpit steps came a rather portly man, who held out his hand and shot this question at the preacher:

"Could you carry out your ideas just expressed if you had the means?"

"Most assuredly," was the quick response.

"Well, then," said Philip D. Armour, "if you'll give me five years of your time, I'll give you the money."

The beef baron kept his word. Out of the conversation grew the Armour Institute of Technology, and when Dr. Gunsaulus accepted its presidency Mr. Armour advanced him $50,000, his salary for five years, in one lump. To enlarge the scope of the institute's work, Mr. Armour subsequently gave over $2,000,000. The need for more funds has been incessant, because of the various organizations which Dr. Gunsaulus has built up from the Armour Institute and the Armour Mission, as, for example, the Doremus school, the city kindergarten, and the industrial school on the 340-acre farm at Greenwood, where 200 boys are trained in body and brain for the real tasks of life.

But Dr. Gunsaulus is more than a preacher-educator; he also is a preacher-poet, and, moreover, a preacher-politician, and a very active one at that. It is to poetry that he turns to free himself from the burdens of the institute, and declares that he finds an ever-increasing delight in mounting Pegasus for more or less lengthy flights into the realms of fancy. As the fruit of this recreative work he has given to the literary world several volumes of verse, which show a wide range of poetic thought and treatment.

As a preacher-politician—using the word politician in its best sense, of course—Dr. Gunsaulus is no mean adversary, as many a Democratic leader of the Middle West knows of his own experience. Nor does the strenous doctor confine his political activity to his city of Chicago, in whose civic problems he always takes great interest; he has also delivered stump speeches for the hosts of Republicanism throughout Illinois and the neighboring states of Indiana and Michigan, where he is in great demand as a star speaker when politics get particularly hot.

Possessed of tremendous energy—as his various activities show—Dr. Gunsaulus further increases his capacity for work by means of a thoroughly trained corps of assistants. To them he leaves smaller details. His secretary keeps track of appointments and correspondence. Every hour of the day is strictly accounted for. He is up in the morning as early as a day laborer, and by 7:30 a. m., he is at his desk at the institute. From then until 9:30 a. m. he and his secretary and stenographer attend to his voluminous mail. Then until noon he receives and talk wit hall who seek his help and advice. After luncheon he devotes the rest of the afternoon to reading and study, or consulting with his assistants who are reading and studying for him. The bulk of all reference and research work he turns over to some one else, and then quickly digests the fruit of the subordinate's labor.

In appearance, as well as in his methods of work, Dr. Gunsaulus differs from the stock-cut clergyman of tradition. To illustrate the former point, his friends are fond of telling of an experience which, they say, befell him when he had gone out to Arizona to inspect some property held by him in that land of deserts, rattlers, gila monsters and uninterrupted sunshine. Being fond of red neckties, and believing they would awaken no criticism in the desert, as they might in State street, Chicago, the doctor dressed his neck one morn in an especially brilliant cravat of his favorite hue. The flaming Ascot, the owner's wide-brimmed black felt hat, his heavy dark hair and bushy black mustache fairly startled the conductor—accustomed though he was to strange habiliments—as he asked for the passenger's ticket. Out came a pass, on the back of which was the legend, "Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus."

The "cagey" son of the desert bored the passenger with a steely eye. "No, you don't," he exclaimed, decisively. "You don't play that game on me. You're no preacher. I want your carfare—and I want it quick!" It was in vain that Dr. Gunsaulus protested; he was told that he would have to pay or get off. And pay he did.

An hour or so later, to the great relief of the Chicagoan, the mayor of Santa Fe boarded the train and identified him. But not until his honor swore legally and otherwise, and picturesquely and fervently, that the red-necktied passenger was a clergyman, did the conductor return Dr. Gunsaulus' money.

A Preacher Editor of National Fame.

Among the preacher-editors—of whom there is quite a notable company—none today exerts a wider influence than Lyman Abbott, who, curiously enough, is practically the same age as Bishop Fallows, being only five days younger than that famous Chicagoan. Since 1869, when he resigned from a pastorate to engage in literature, Dr. Abbott has been one of the country's noted magazine and newspaper editors—and all that time, too, he has been among its better known men of God, as well as a lecturer of no mean reputation.

As an editor Dr. Abbott will go down in the history of the American publication field as one who was extremely fortunate in his editorial associations on at least two occasions—first, when he was colaborer with Henry Ward Beecher in editing the old Christian Union, and second, when he and Theodore Roosevelt shared the editorial chair of the magazine which Dr. Abbott now heads editorially.

But though he is best known as a preacher-editor-lecturer, Dr. Abbott has in his possession a license from the state of New York to practice law (Concluded on page 23.)

America is Rich in Preacher-Editors, Preacher-Sportsmen, Preacher-Educators, Preacher-Novelists, Preacher-Civic Workers, Preacher-Officials, Preacher-Diplomats, and Preachers Who Are Prominent in Many Other Walks of Life.

Some of These Versatile Men of the Cloth Are Frank W. Gunsaulus, Russell H. Conwell, Bishops Doane and Fallows, Henry Van Dyke, Edward Everett Hale, Lyman Abbott, E. Benjamin Andrews, Henry C. McCook and Henry A. Buchtel.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Once more the students of the high school get a week's rest from the work and routine of school life.

At this time it comes as the spring vacation and nothing is more welcome to the students who have been toiling with their books since Christmas time without any break. Indeed, during the balmy spring weather of the last week or two, the students of the school have found it very difficult to remain indoors, and every one has been longing for a chance to get out and enjoy it. The spring vacation comes at a very opportune time.

The last few months of school, which are always the hardest, and the seniors especially will take advantage of their last vacation during their high school life to prepare for them.

ROBERT ELY,
President of the Senior Class.

On the last Saturday of vacation, a week from today, examinations will be conducted in the school for the benefit of those who are behind in their work and who wish to get in good standing. A great many students will take advantage of these, especially those who intend to graduate, and they are a great help, being the salvation of a great many seniors who were careless at some time or another, and are given this opportunity to make up.

The Public Speaking club was the only club to hold a meeting last week. During the balmy week before vacation and the senior play taking up so much time, most of them put off their programs until school commenced again.

The meeting of the Public Speaking club was very well attended as they have all been for the last few months, and a very great interest was shown in the debate for the day. The debate was, "Resolved, That the United States should permanently retain the Philippines." Those on the affirmative were: Rodger Lynch, Laverne Logan and Gilbert Bates. On the negative were: Charles Evans, Bjorn Ostby and Archie McDermott. The feature of the day was the eloquent speech by Rodger Lerch, which showed a deep interest and profound knowledge of the subject on the part of the speaker. His delivery was also very good, which greatly surprised the members of the club who had heard him before. However, despite this he did not succeed in convincing the judges who gave the decision to the other side, the negative. At the meeting the amendment to the constitution was voted upon and passed, by which elections for officers will be held three times a year. The club is now conducting the try-outs for the interclass debates, which will be pulled off in chapel as soon as the teams are chosen. The first junior try-out will be held the Monday that school commences on the question that the United States should so increase the navy as to continue to rank second among the naval powers. These interclass debates are arousing a great deal of interest in the school and when the teams are picked some warm debates will be held in chapel.

The senior play was the whole thing at the school during the week and was about the only thing discussed all week by the pupils. The reserved seats were all sold out in a couple of days and new ones had to be added. A large sale of unreserved seats was also made and so a record-breaking crowd was assured beforehand. Archie Glass, the business manager has been kept busy all week arranging for the production, as also was Dwight Larrowe, the stage manager, who worked very hard to get the stage into good condition. The final rehearsal was held Thursday afternoon, and everything went off fine. Mr. Custance's addition to the play, the country choir, was one of the best features in the play and made a big hit.

* * *

As soon as vacation is over it is expected, that the work for the track team will be begun. Mr. Hiestand is very anxious to get the men out and as soon as the weather is suitable, work will be begun in cross-country running. The students are also very anxious to get outdoors and as the basketball season is over, there is nothing to occupy the minds of those who are athletically inclined and who are very restless unless they have something to work at. Mr. Hiestand has hopes to turn out a crack team this year and every indication is that these hopes will be realized. The baseball question is still up in the air, but it looks as if nothing will be done in this line this year, all the efforts of the students being directed towards track work.

NOTES ON GARDENING

In notes on gardening last week there was a mistake made. Instead of using a shovel for transplanting celery, it should have been a trowel.

Lettuce.

Lettuce can be forced for early use, either in the hotbed or cold frame. A cold frame is the same as a hotbed, without the heating material. Merely a frame, with sash on top, so as to protect the plants from night frosts, depending for heat of the sun. On cold nights these should be covered with old carpets, etc., the same as the hotbeds. The seed should be sown in flats, and when large enough to the soil of the bed, in rows about four inches apart in the rows, and the rows about eight inches apart. The soil should be rich and light. A fibrous, sandy loam, well enriched with well-rotted cow manure, is most suitable. Water liberally, shade from hot sun, and give plenty of air w hen the weather is suitable. Shading can be done by whitewashing the glass.

Radishes.

Radishes of the extremely early kinds can be grown in the cold frame or hotbed. The seed should be sown thinly in the soil of the bed, and if too thick, should be thinned out, so as to stand about seven inches apart in the rows, which should be six inches apart.

Onions.

Onions can be much improved in size, earliness and sureness of a crop, by what is called the new process. This is to sow in flats, or the soil of the bed six weeks or two months ahead of the time for outdoor sowing, and when a few inches high, transplanting to the open ground. The ground must be rich and well worked. The rows should be at least one foot apart, and the plants about four inches apart in the rows. Good drainage is absolutely necessary. This is not really a new process, as I have used it all my life as a gardener, and was in common use when I learned gardening, at least in the neighborhood where I lived. The large Spanish types of onions are best for this purpose, but any kind can be treated in this manner with advantage.

For early green onions, the Esptian Perennial, or the Welsh early white bunching, can be sown in August or September, and being entirely hardy, can remain in the ground all winter, and will produce the earliest green onions in the spring. By careful pulling, leaving one every few inches, the two above named kinds can remain in the ground for several years, as they are perennials and increase by multiplying from the root. The Egyptian, also, produces a cluster of small onions on the top of the main stem. These way be planted, and is the usual way of making new beds. Earthing up lengthens the blanched ends, which is the part eaten.

Of the Spanish type the Prize Taker and Allsa Craig are the largest. The latter is perhaps the largest in the world, and coming from the North of England, is more hardy and better suited to this climate. To obtain the largest specimens transplanting is necessary. The extra trouble will be more than compensated for by the greater yield. For pickling, the small early white kinds are used, such as White Queen and White Barletta. Both are very early and should be sown thickly in rows a foot or more apart, to allow for the use of the wheel hoe. The ground should be made rich with well rotted cow manure, and well drained. A top dressing of nitrate of soda when the plants are young will hasten the growth of any onion. If wanted for green onions, seed of the large white kinds should be sown thickly and used as soon as large enough. For earliest use sow in hotbed or cold frame. It is imperative to keep onions free from weeds and to cultivate not deeply but often. The wheel hoe should be run between the rows at least once a week, setting the cutters so as to draw the earth from the plants, thus allowing them room to bulb. When the tops begin to die down or dirle up, the onions are ripe. If towards the fall the tops remain green, many gardeners break them down. This can be done by rolling an empty barrel over the rows; this helps to stop the growth and ripen the bulbs. When cold weather approaches, the roots should be pulled and left for a day or two to dry in the sun. The tops and roots should then be cut off and the onions stored in a cool, dry place. It is better not to let onions freeze, as they lose flavor; but if once frozen, keep them so till wanted for use. Ripe onions too small for use can be kept for sets and planted in the spring at seed sowing time; they will produce larger and earlier onions than from seed. To grow sets, that is, small onions to plant next year, seed should be sown very thickly on poorish soil, and when ripe, pulled and stored as for other purposes. Onions are one of the most important crops we have, and great care should be taken to insure a good crop. It is not a sure crop in the North, as often they do not ripen enough to keep well, so the earliest kinds should be sown in the open ground. I have found the Australian kinds do the best, and if started in the hotbed and transplanted, many others will yield a good crop. The flat kinds are generally the earliest. The globe shaped take longer to mature, but are milder and more productive.

Forcing Lettuce.

There was an article in The Herald a few days ago on forcing lettuce for winter and spring use, in Duluth, instead of shipping it from Grand Rapids, Mich. This ought to be a good place for such an enterprise. It has been tried on a small scale with good results. The trouble seems to be want of capital and means of transportation. If some one with capital enough to carry the idea out on a paying scale would start, there is no doubt of it paying. There is a large and increasing outlying country besides. It is said the Grand Rapids people to ship their produce it would pay here just as well. There is one difficulty. All land available, at a reasonable price, is so difficult of access. Most of it lies beyond the hills, which surround the city. All land available at a reasonable price is so difficult to get into and out of town during the greater part of the winter. There is often good sleighing in the country and none in town. The grades are all so steep that with the best of roads it is a great tax on the best of teams to get to the top of the hills. If roads with an easier grade could be made, or interurban street car lines with freight cars attached were established, there would be much more encouragement and no doubt some one or even a company for forcing vegetables in winter, would start into business. Lettuce, radishes, tomatoes and cucumbers could be grown, besides a great number of other vegetables. It is done elsewhere and could just as easily be done here.

TRAMPING THROUGH CALIFORNIA

The Columbia's Park Boys' Club, Fifty Strong, Makes a Record for Summer Walking Trips—Suggestions for Coming Vacation Tours.

By Major Sidney S. Peixotto.

(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

(Major Peixotto's walking trips in California have become famous. Starting ten years ago with three boys for companions he has spent weeks, every summer, with growing parties of youngsters tramping through the Yosemite and along the Pacific coast. He is head of the Columbia Park Boys' club and from that organization he has recruited his marchers. Last year he led fifty boys north to the city of Eureka. His suggestion may help other boys' clubs to organize similar trips.)

For the last ten years I have made walking trips to the different parts of California. My first summer was spent walking with three boys from Stockton to the Yosemite valley, and after twelve days in this wonderland we retraced our steps back to the city. In 1901, I led a party of twelve boys into Yosemite and my experience on this trip caused me to consider it as an impossible future journey for such a large party of youngsters. It was, therefore, decided in the summer of 1903 to take a long overland journey to the North, the objective point to be the city of Eureka. This route would lead us through the coast countries of the state, through the great redwood lumber forests and eventually home along the Pacific ocean. It is a delightful and attractive journey, but the roads are very steep and difficult for the horses. The first party that made this trip consisted of eighteen members. From this time the walks began to take a more definite and organized character. The next summer I enlarged the group to twenty-four. We walked from San Jose, 500 miles to the south, following the old King's highway through the Mission country of California. This makes a trip most attractive to boys. The entire country along the Southern Ocean coast is through populous towns and well tilled valleys, and on our way the journey was made delightful and attractive by the attention which we received from the numerous towns where we were often guests of the citizens.

The next summer, I enlarged the party to thirty-six persons and we retraced our steps to Eureka. Those who were interested in the development of these walking trips began to remind me that I was over-stepping my abilities by enlarging the party to this number of boys. It was argued that the individual work became secondary when the number was increased to such a large group. To a certain extent this was true, but my desire was to give a greater number of boys the privileges of enjoying these beautiful outings and gain the beneficial results which were so apparent in building up physical and moral character in every boy who had had the privilege of being a member of previous walking parties.

These summer trips were interrupted by the fire and catastrophe of 1906. The following year, forty-five boys were prepared and taken on a second journey to Los Angeles.

Last year, 1908, we again went over the Eureka trip with a party of fifty boys and not only did we make the journey in harmony and with the utmost order and good spirit in our camp, but we achieved a success in all departments of camp life, which makes the memory of this trip the banner year of the ten which I have spent walking with the boys.

The summer trips of the Columbia Park Boys' club have certainly developed beyond my fondest dreams. In the 1901 trip the expenses became so formidable a feature that I thought, at the last moment, of giving a little show as we passed through the various towns and cities along the line of our march. It was a hastily arranged evening's performance, but entertaining had been so much a part of our club life in the years gone by, that we decided to put our best singers and our best comedians on the stage and let them, in a simple way, entertain with their specialties. We always had a costume closet as a part of our club equipment and from this we picked out some of the nicest things and arranged a simple program. The starting off was a disappointment. The audiences were small and discouraging, but towards the end, as we entered the country far away from the metropolis, the interest became greater and we were rewarded with success in our theatrical ventures. The receipts taken in at the theater doors more than paid for the summer outing for the party of eighteen members. During this summer, to attract the audiences to the theaters, the boys gave a marching drill in the streets just before the theater opened. It was a military drill of excellent quality and with the drum and bugle corps, made a very interesting impression as a prelude to our evening performance.

The next summer, on the Los Angeles trip, we again arranged a theatrical performance. The "show" was greatly improved. It was well thought out and well acted. It received praise and approbation everywhere and there was a hundredfold increase in the receipts at the theater doors. The following year, band music began to be introduced into the club and when the summer time came, it was possible to form a band and drum corps in place of the military drill. This we found to be a greater help than any other feature that we had introduced and the band of that year, though not considered a very ordinary affair, was a powerful addition to the summer trips and to the success of our theatrical shows. The band has developed in these years to the grand musical organization which made the journey last year to the city of Eureka and down the coast. This crack band would be able to walk through the streets of any metropolis and attract the highest praise. The band, consisting of every member of the party, fifty in all, whose music was above the ordinary and whose concert work was exceptional, made a deep impression all along the route and undoubtedly packed the houses to the doors. As a marching organization, it was worthy of mention, for its drills and street work were of the highest character. It ought to be added, in speaking of the theater side of the life of the camp, it is of no more importance to the club than their baseball or their daily camp life. After the first two evening performances, little attention is given to further bettering the "show." There are no rehearsals, nor no tiresome, tedious hours spent in keeping the "show" up to a standard. It all comes happily and naturally that the boys are not bound by any unnecessary preparations, though during the day the conversation sometimes falls upon the bad breaks or the roughness of some of the farces on the previous evening. At the same time, it is not a theatrical performance, in the true sense of the word, and the publicity does not in any way effect or influence these boys' lives.

The routine of the camp life is done by the members of the party. It is a great training and as I look now upon the boys who have made these trips and analyze their present day lives, I can see the influence which the journeys have had upon them. In the development of health and strength, I can see that these trips have created strong, sound boys, different altogether from the boys about them. They have limbs of iron and grand, sound bodies. The trips have, as a rule, increased the size of the average boy of the camp two or three inches in the seven weeks uoting.

The cost of conducting these summer outings has gradually increased. The three-boy outing cost about one hundred dollars for three weeks. The fifty-boy outing costs all of $2,000 for seven weeks. A large item of cost is the equipment, for it is absolutely necessary to furnish each boy with a sensible and hygienic costume for living in the open. I have designed a costume which seems to fit every condition perfectly, costing about $4.20. Care must be taken that the shoes are of good quality and have been "broken in" before the start is made. The expense of a party of fifty is between $25 and $30 a day. Then there are the horses and wagons, two difficult problems for the novice to handle, but if properly financed, and cared for during the summer, these items could be made to pay for themselves. We earned last year $[illegible]00 clear of all commissions and percentages charged at the theater doors, the total money coming in at the box offices being $2,726 for twenty-five performances.

When one considers the benefits that have been derived by the boys on these summer travels, it is almost impossible to speak in words about them. We are day by day traveling onward, and we are seeing new sights at every hour of the day; we are among vineyards, orchards in the canyons, we are by the rushing waters, we are plunging into the depths of the mountains, leaving civilization on behind; we are making friends in the populous communities through which we pass; we are lying down at night with the stars above us; we are swimming in the broad rivers, learning every day of nature and geography and infinitesimal things that go to make up this beautiful world. It is a dream-life, this walking in the sunshine; and although it is at times a hardship, and though it teaches them a thousand lessons in bearing each other's infirmities, in eating unpleasant foods, and trying to live together in harmony and peace, it brings us all back stronger and nobler, and filled with countless remembrances that take the place of idle gossip during the year to come.

HORTON MINE STARTS WORK

Arizona Property Resumes After Being Idle Eighteen Months---Several Sacks of High Grade Ore Now Ready to Ship.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 20.—L. J. Horton is preparing to begin operations again at his mine, thirty miles northwest of Phoenix, after it has lain idle for a year and a half. When the panic caused a shut-down of nearly all of the smelters, Mr. Horton had several sacks of good ore taken from a fifty-foot shaft ready for shipment. It is still on the dump.

For several years, Horton has worked his property in a style both striking and unique. He has an immense body of surface ore, from which he has, with methods of his own manufacture extracted $8,000 or $10,000 in gold. His first experiment was with an arrester constructed at the Agna Fria river, three miles from the mine. The tailings from this assayed $12.50 per ton, a loss much too great to sustain. He then constructed a home-made cyanide plant, and hauled water three miles to the mine in a home-made tank. With this he worked the ore from a fifty-foot shaft. With depth, however, there appeared more copper, lead and silver and to get the best results required smelter treatment to obtain the gold as well as other values.

Horton is now preparing to sink a shaft to water level. He believes that at depth the copper values have been precipitated and that the mine which carries good gold values at the surface, will prove to carry immense copper deposits at lower depths.

The property has recently been transferred into the ownership of the Trixey Copper Mining company, of which Horton is president. It is capitalized conservatively at a half million dollars, and a block of 50,000 shares has been offered for 20 cents per share, the proceeds of which will be used in development.

THE OHIO COPPER COMPANY

posh. The shaft is down forty-five feet. In the North Billy group, adjoining the Millard Iron group, is also a good showing. Ore has been encountered showing $24 to $55 a ton in gold The Glorious Smelting & Refining company of Irvington, N. J., overbid local smelters for a thirty-three ton shipment of high grade from the Manmoth mine at Tintic. The ore brought a little over $70,000.

The Dutchman Leasing company, operating in American Fork Canon, has struck four feet of carbonate ore that nets $90 a ton in silver and lead.

A consolidation scheme has been effected in Beaver county by which the Frisco Contact takes over the North Horn Silver, the Glorious and the Good Hope groups, all comprising twenty-one claims. The new company will be known as the Frisco Consolidated Mining company. The Butte district, that is not

C. T. Birchard, president of the Utah Mining, Milling & Transportation company, which has been operating the Hub mine in Beaver county, has bough the Lady Bryan property, owned by Matthew Cullen, as well as three adjoining claims belonging to A. L. Fotheringham, rounding out a compact group in the heart of the Star district. Considerable ore has been marketed from the Lady Bryan, and in several shallow workings there is good silver lead ore exposed.

The Bay State Tintic Mining company has a showing of gold-silver so good that the immediate installation of a ten-stamp mill has been decided upon. A shaft has been sunk more than 300 feet and a number of drifts have been run from, thirty to sixty feet, uncovering a ledge of gold quartz averaging $18.50 in gold and $2.10 in silver. There is also a six foot vein of carbonate with values of $2.50 in gold and $1.10 in silver. About 2,000 tons of ore are now on the dump.

will be able to treat about 5,000 tons of ore per day.

Butte Coalition.

The Butte Coalition company is shipping on an average about 1,250 tons of ore per day. 600 of it coming from the Rarus and the remainder from the Original, giving the average cost of Coalition copper is below 10 cents per pound. In a few months, when the new levels of the Tramway are opened, the company will be able to produce nearly 60,000 tons per month. The Tramway shaft is about as deep as it will be sunk for the present, 1,700 feet, and the lowest level will be opened at that depth.

"We are producing our normal amount of copper in the Butte district," said a prominent operator the other day, "and we are shipping about every pound that is turned out, but what is being done with the metal is beyond my knowledge; I am sure it is not being consumed."

Tuolumne.

Through an accident to the engine at the Tuolumne mine the company has again been forced to suspend operations. Another and larger engine has been ordered to be used temporarily until the company gets its big engine, ordered six months or more ago, and which is being built especially for the Tuolumne, but will not be finished until some time next summer. This is the third time the old engine has broken down and compelled a temporary suspension of work.

Butte-Montana.

A number of Eastern stockholders of the Butte-Montana Copper Mining company and of the new company, the Butte-Alex Scott, are in Butte getting ready for the special meeting of stockholders of the former company, which is to be held March 20, to pass on a proposition to transfer the property to the new company and change the capitalization. While there is much opposition to the reorganization it is not likely that the opposition is strong enough to block the plans of the large stockholders. Among the stockholders who are favorable to the reorganization, who are in the city, are Martin Rosendahl of Duluth, James T. Fisher of Laurium, Mich., J. A. Minnear of Calumet, Max Stevens of Ironwood, John Tredennick of Hibbing and R. A. Kerr of Duluth. Rosendahl claims to have proxies for 850,000 shares of stock.

Raven.

What the Butte stockholders of the Raven Mining company expected has happened—that which they feared has come upon them—and the company is to be reorganized. The subscriptions called for did not come in in sufficient numbers and amount to provide the treasury with a working fund and it is stated that the subscriptions that were received have been returned. The company has a considerable indebtedness and in the absence of a treasury a resumption of work at the mine is improbable for some time. What form the reorganization will take has not yet been determined, but if the views of some of the old stockholders are taken into account, the reorganization will perhaps begin with the management, for however efficient it may be, it still bears the taint of the old days of Raven when thousands were stung, and many that know this have not yet grown strong in confidence. It is likely that the company will be reorganized on an assessable basis, making the old shares exchangeable for a new issue, with an assessment added. The Raven should be foremost among the newer companies of Butte. None of them is more favorably situated as to property. The Raven is almost surrounded by producing Amalgamated mines, beside which the Raven company owns three-fourths of the Snoozer, a property developed to a producing stage, but because the Butte Coalition company owns the other fourth the Raven cannot mine it without the consent of the co-owner, which is withheld, but some day the Raven may be able to acquire the whole of the Snoozer or sell its interest at a big price. Apparently there is no property in the Butte district, that is not actually producing, that has greater prospects of developing into a copper producing mine than has the Raven mine. The shaft has reached a depth, on an incline, of 1,350 feet. The vertical depth is several hundred feet less than that. The Raven vein has been partially opened on the 1,100 and 1,200 and it show a gradual and certain improvement in mineral contents, especially in its copper. The Buffalo mine of the Anaconda company adjoins the Raven on the east, and it is one of the Anaconda company's good mines. Many Raven stockholders hope that the reorganization may be along plans that will take in the Old Glory claim, a property lying between the Raven and the Snoozer, or that some arrangement can be made with the Coalition company for the organization of a company that will take in the Coalition interest in the Snoozer. The Old Glory owners are anxious to go into a new company with the Raven, and with the Snoozer in also, the Raven could be made a big producing company very quickly.

Barnes-King.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Barnes-King Development company, held at Kendall, Mont., a few days ago, the following directors were elected: C. W. Goodale, John Gillie, Donald Campbell, L. O. Evans and Phil C. Goodwin of Butte; John L. Bright and Wilford Johnston of Lewistown, Mont., and W. H. A. Fischer of New York. The monthly reports of Supt. McGee and the annual report of President Gillie show that for twelve months the company has been able to show net earnings from about $1,000 per month to $5,000. The property is in good shape, and about one-third of the expenditures every month go into development work, that being kept about a year ahead of actual mining. While dividends are not thought of, the company is in a little better condition than it was when the new management took hold of affairs.

Pittsburg-New York.

The Pittsburg-New York Copper Mining company stockholders have authorized the directors to bond and mortgage the property for $30,000 for the purpose of raising money with which to pay debts. After all obligations are liquidated, the company will have about $10,000 left for the treasury for a working fund, with which, it is hoped, the gold property of the company at Helena can be placed on a paying basis. The property was in former years a considerable producer. The company also owns a group of undeveloped copper claims south of Butte.

The Krao Silver Lead Mining company has made a report to stockholders showing a total expenditure of $52,475.95 since the organization of the company, and a balance of $32.34 in the treasury. The company did considerable development work on its property in British Columbia, but the only return from ore shipments amounted to $1,440.74. No work has been done on the property for several years.

and most substantial in the district. The Pioneer adjoins the Steel corporation's famous Chandler mine, the last of whose ore was taken out last year, and it has ranked as much the largest producer on the range, its output of 475,000 tons last year being more than half of all the ore sent out from the Vermilion. Its aggregate production to date is 6,500,000. The Pioneer possesses a model underground electric haulage system, and it also has a model change house for the miners, a commodious one-story building of steel and concrete, only recently completed, and equipped with all facilities and conveniences.

Option On the Kloman.

The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, already much the largest holder of mineral lands on this range, has taken an option on the old Kloman mine at Republic, in the Marquette district. The property was formerly in the hands of Andrew Carnegie and associates, and has been idle for a quarter of a century. It is owned now by Marquette people. The Kloman was never opened to the depths at which it is now known that the largest deposits exist in the Republic field, and it is expected that important discoveries will result from the diamond drill work to be undertaken by the Cleveland Cliffs people. The location, directly west of the Cambria Steel company's Republic mine, is a very favorable one. It is understood that in the event the Cleveland Cliffs company decides to acquire the property, control will be transferred to it for a consideration of $125,000.

New Compressor For the Baron.

The Breitung interests have ordered a thirty-drill air compressor for their Baron mine, at Humboldt, Marquette range, the plant at present in service being of too small capacity for prospective needs. The shaft at this property is to be put down one or two additional levels this year, and a material increase is to be made in the working forces.

At the Mary Charlotte No. 2 property a new mine which the Breitung people are opening at Negaunee, a depth of 375 feet has been attained and the shaft is sinking to an additional level. A shaft house, 85 feet in height and of Washington fir, is in progress of erection. Ore has been hoisted throughout the winter. No further stockpile room is available at the company's Breitung Hematite mine, in the same locality, and the product of that property is now being taken out through the main shaft at the Mary Charlotte No. 1. Stocking ground is limited at this latter mine also, and just as soon as navigation opens shipments will be started. Two-thirds of the company's season's output has already been sold.

An interesting report current on the Gogebic range is that the United States Steel corporation intends to establish a big powder factory, at which will be made the dynamite used by the company in its mining operations. The corporation is materially the largest consumer of explosives in the Lake Superior region, and it is unquestioned that to carry out the reported project would be in the interest of lessened cost. The proposed location of the plant is near Ironwood.

MANY SALES OF MODERATE PRICED LOTS FOR HOMES

"Own Your Own Home" Spirit Booms Dealing in Suburban Real Estate—Many Homes Will be Built During Coming Summer—General Market Is Quiet.

The only noticeable feature of the real estate market during the present week was the increased sale on building lots in the suburbs, and the sparsely settled portions of the city. People with small capital are anxious to get title to a piece of real estate.

The man on the smallest of salaries, who is now paying rent, is working with the idea of owning his own home foremost in his mind. He buys his lot on easy payments, and pays for it in a few years. Then he builds his modest home, and when it is completed, he is able to pass over the burden of enriching landlords, to others.

The sales of lots in the suburbs have been unusually heavy this year. Many people are getting away from the renting idea, and working in with the "Own Your Own Home" spirit. Lakeside, Woodland, West end, West Duluth, Park Point and Duluth Heights are all figuring in the buying and building, and they will hear the joyous sound of hammer and saw during the coming summer.

There haven't been any big sales of real estate during the past week. Several big deals are on, but they haven't come to the finishing point yet. Owners of good business property are not anxious to sell, for they have just as good an eye to Duluth's future as the prospective buyers have. There are always a few people willing to let go, of course, so that the prospective buyers have not absolutely a barren field to look over. Inquiries from the East is strong, for capitalists have an eye on Duluth. The owner of a good piece of property who is anxious to sell doesn't have any trouble finding a buyer, and a top-heavy market, in which buyers outnumber sellers, is always indicative of strength and prosperity.

The building prospects are unchanged by the week's developments. The Superior street buildings which have already been mentioned will go up immediately after the first of May, but no new projects have come out of seclusion. Contractors are busy figuring on the buildings already assured, and there is no danger of men in the building trades being idle during the coming season. Outside of the store and office building work already in sight, there are hundreds of residences, costing from $1,000 to $50,000, to be erected, and while figuring on the big jobs, the contractors are not losing sight of the little ones.

Plans have been prepared and application made for a building permit for a new garage to be erected on the southeast corner of Superior street and Fourteenth avenue east. The building will have a frontage of sixty feet on Superior street and will extend through to Jefferson street, a distance of 100 feet. It will be built for the Duluth Motor Vehicle company, which will occupy it. The building will be of substantial brick construction and will be ornamental to such an extent that it will not be at all out of place in that section of the city.

Olsen & Magney, the architects, have let the contract for an apartment house for John Klowosky to Peter Olson. Other building developments reported by Olsen & Magney are:

Contract let to John LePage for new residence for Dr. R. W. Johnson on the northwest corner of Twenty-second avenue east and Fourth street. The house will cost about $7,000 complete.

The contract for the new store and apartment building for H. C. Fulton on the south side of First street between First and Second avenues east has been let to William Fawcett. The building will cost about $6,000.

Mr. Terryberry is also taking bids on a residence for John Webb at Jefferson street and Eighteenth avenue east. It will cost about $5,600.

Quite a number of building permits were issued through the building inspector's office during the past week, but most of them have been for small work, entailing the expenditure of only a few hundred dollars.

Following are the permits covering work to cost $1,000 or more:

ATTRACTIVE HOME WITHIN REACH OF MAN OF MODERATE MEANS

The above illustration suggests a good plan and artistic design, possible for a home of small cost. It is a rule rather than an exception in building of small houses that builders sacrifice the appearance for the cost. A house, no matter how small, can, with proper attention to design, be made artistic without additional cost.

The exterior of the above design is treated with siding and stucco, frame construction. Space is well utilized in the plans. For a house of its size, the rooms are of unusual size, and the arrangement most compact and complete. The width of the building permits of its being erected on a 25-foot lot.

The arrangement of the first floor plan indicates, in every detail, convenience. A fireplace enhances the attractiveness of the living room. Both living room and dining room are well lighted, and by opening into each other, give an effect of roominess. No pantry is planned, but the kitchen is completely equipped with fixtures and cabinets, making that department most compact; everything being at the finger's end. The direct communication from kitchen to front part of the house, and the convenience of the basement stairway and side entrance, are all good features.

The second story works out exceptionally well with three bedrooms and bath. The smaller bedroom having no closet, would probably be better used as a sewing room. A large bedroom can be furnished in the attic, where there would be space besides for store rooms. The roof being high and gabled, permits of a spacious attic. With the attic finished, this would become a very complete seven-room house.

With hardwood floors, birch finish, hot water heat and plumbing, full basement, and attic complete, a home as above described would cost to build in Duluth or vicinity, $2,700.

THE MARKET IS SOLD OFF

Wheat Is Soft and Closes More Than Point Weaker.

May Flax Is Easier, Other Seed Options Are Firm.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 20.—Quite a selling movement in wheat caused lower prices in the American markets today. Values declined almost steadily from the opening until the close, under the pressure from the bears.

Receipts are still furnishing bearish statistics in the Northwest and Minneapolis and Duluth showed the heaviest declines from yesterday.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to ⅝d lower, Budapest ⅜c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

The May option closed 1¾ lower in Duluth, ⅝@¾c lower in Chicago, 1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York, ¾@⅞c lower in St. Louis, ½@⅝c lower in Kansas City and 1c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅞c lower in Duluth and Kansas City, ⅝@1c lower in Chicago, 1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, ½c lower in New York, ⅝@⅞c lower in St. Louis, ⅞c lower in Kansas City and 1⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅝@⅞c lower in Chicago and ⅛d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool "Wheat—Easier American cables yesterday caused larger offerings at the opening here, and as a result of a poor demand, values declined ¼d. During the morning, the market continued under pressure although trading was dull and a further decline of ⅛ to ⅜d occurred, with the principal pressure in the distant month. Broomhall forecasts that the world's shipments for the week will be heavy and this, together with continued liberal arrivals and further reports regarding the favorable outlook for the American winter wheat crop, prompted realizing in a moderate way. At midday, the market was easier and ⅝ to ⅝d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was quiet at the start and unchanged. Later the market lost ⅛d. The decline in wheat and the easier La Plata offerings, caused some pressure to sell."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 95 against 73 last year and at Minneapolis 160 against 300 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 255 against 373 last year. Chicago received 83 against 33 last year. Winnipeg received 200 against 147 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 472,000 bu., last year 520,000 bu. Shipments 249,000 bu., last year 250,000 bue. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 210,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 572,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 193,000 bu.

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.14 asked, and ranged between that and $1.13 during the rest of the session, closing at $1.13 bid, a loss of 1¾c from yesterday. July wheat opened ½c lower at $1.15¾ bid, advanced to $1.14½, declined to $1.13⅞ and closed there, a loss of ⅞c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¾c lower and cash spring wheat 1c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull and closed easier. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.62½, declined to $1.62 and closed there, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday. July flax was inactive and closed ½c higher at $1.62½. September flax sold at $1.39½ and closed there, unchanged from yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.35, advanced to $1.35½ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Steady. Following a Decline at the Start.

Chicago, March 20.—The wheat market was steady in the session today following decline of ¼c to ¾@⅞c at the start. Lower cables and additional rain in Oklahoma and Southern Kansas prompted some selling by pit traders, but offerings were readily absorbed by commission houses after the first few minutes of trade. May opened at $1.15⅝@1.15¾ and sold off to $1.15½. July opened at $1.03½@1.03⅝ and sold at $1.03⅜@1.03⅝. The market developed additional weakness later in the day, the July delivery being under considerable selling pressure by longs. May dropped to $1.15¼ and July to $1.02⅝. The close was weak at almost the bottom. May being off ⅝@¾c at $1.15¼@1.15⅝. July was down ⅞@1c at $1.03.

Liberal receipts and a slackening of demand for the cash grain caused weakness in the corn market, cash houses being moderate sellers. Wet weather in the corn belt, however, had a tendency to check the selling pressure. Prices at the start were unchanged to ¼c lower. May being at 66⅝@66½c. Early in the day May declined to 66@66¼c. The market followed wheat in its downward course, May declining to 65¾c. The close was weak with May off ⅝@¾c at 65¾@65¾c.

Oats were weak on selling by cash interests based on the easier tone of other grain. May opened a shade lower at 54¼@54½c, sold at 54⅝c and then eased off to 54¼c.

Provisions were firm at the start, but soon weakened on profit taking based on the weakness of grain. Pork was especially heavy, declining about 20c from initial quotations. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 5c higher

Local receipts were again lighter than last year. The market was uneventful. Towards the close it weakened and went $1.13¾, the closing price and over 1c lower than yesterday's close. Minneapolis today received 160 cars against 360; Duluth, 95 against 73; Winnipeg, 200 against 147. May opened $1.13⅝@1.13⅝; high, $1.13¾@1.13⅞; low, $1.13; close, $1.13¾. Both country and local millers were eager buyers and paid 1¾@2¼c over for No. 1 northern and ¾c over to ¼c under for No. 2. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.14⅝@1.14¾; to arrive, $1.14⅝@1.14¾. Flax receipts were 10 cars today against 50, and shipments, 1. Demand was strong, but offerings were too light to allow an active market. Prices were the same as Duluth May, close, $1.61¾.

Barley receipts were 40 cars today against 27, and shipments, 43. The usual easy market for Saturday prevailed today. Demand was fair and prices fell off 1c. Feeding and malting grades met about an equal inquiry. Close, 61@62½c.

Millstuffs shipments were 1,150. Demand was good and in excess of the supply. Shipments were heavy and prices held firm. Bran in bulk, 23.00@23.50.

The demand for flour was slow. A large milling company today was obliged to close part of one of their biggest mills on account of the poor business. Shipments were light and prices remained unchanged. Shipments, 40,883 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.50@5.65; first clears, $4.40@4.50; second clears, $3.15@3.25.

AN ECONOMICAL BEACON.

Technical World: On a sunken reef 350 feet distant from Stornoway lighthouse is a remarkable beacon which warns mariners with the help of a light which is only apparent.

The beacon is a cone of cast iron plates surmounted with a lantern containing a glass prism. The prism derives its light from refracting the rays emitted from the lighthouse, and the optical delusion is marvelous.

Mariners naturally suppose that there is a lighted lamp on the beacon itself, and many of them will not believe otherwise. But the object of the beacon is attained when the navigator sees the reflected light, which indicates the perilous rock below. This beacon has been in use more than half a century and since it was fixed in position others have been placed in other neighborhoods to make clear points of danger.

STRENGTH OF A WHALE.

Kennebec Journal: An anecdote of the whale is told of us by an eyewitness, Sidney King, who says that while at Grand Manan last week he saw a large specimen swimming about at Seal Cove, near the mooring at that place.

The large sardine boat Ouida, owned by William Russell and Grover Cook, was tied up for the winter with a 6-inch and a 4-inch bridle to the mooring. In playing about the vessel, which is of some fourteen tons burden, the sea monster either accidentally or by way of sport took the two large ropes in his mouth and started to swim to the bottom. The vessel heeled over and took in water, the chocks were torn completely off her deck, and finally both ropes were parted by the terrific strain, setting the vessel adrift.

She was tied up again without damage, but it shows what a whale could do if he was really enthusiastic.

DOWNWARD MOVEMENT

In Stocks Continued, But Losses Restricted to Fractions.

Trading Light and Close Was Barely Steady, But Lifeless.

New York, March 20.—Prices of stocks moved to a lower level in the opening dealings today, which were in light volume. The changes also were small, as a rule. Colorado & Southern first preferred and Tennessee Copper lost 1¼.

Sympathetic weakness spread through the list when an active selling movement began in Reading. That stock declined over a point, touching 127⅝. Losses otherwise were restricted to fractions. The local tractions continued their downward course. Covering by the shorts in Reading, and a rise of 1 in Great Northern preferred and 1½ in Northern Pacific pulled up the list afterwards.

The market closed barely steady, but lifeless. The drift of prices was downwards again in the second hour, but the movement was held within the previous limit. Brooklyn Union Gas rose 3, and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and American Malting preferred declined 1.

Stock Gossip.

New York to Piper, Johnson & Case: A very dull and narrow speculation was seen in today's session. From a weak opening the market gradually hardened, but it was a very tedious affair. The tractions were under pressure. Inter-Metropolitan preferred sold down to a new low level and large blocks of Steel common were pressed for sale at slightly lower quotations. Northern Pacific and Great Northern were exceptions to the general rule. The first named, instead of opening easier as foreshadowed by the London market, advanced sharply in the first few sales and before the first hour ended the stock sold at 140, an advance of almost 2 points from the low of yesterday. Great Northern did not do as well, but the buying was of a good character. We look for a narrow market, but favorable purchases on all sharp recessions.
